St. Paul, April 11.—The house pretty thoroughly disposed of the so-called Younger brothers parole bill, and in a way that savored of a snap judgment. It came up as a special order and was advocated by ex-Gov. Gale. Messrs. Abbott, Plummer and Kelly spoke in opposition, and then Mr. Fosness spoke in favor of the bill. Following this, Messrs. Van Lehe, Grendahl, Wheaton and Ahlstrom spoke in opposition. There were a number of others prepared to advocate the bill who had been taking notes of the hostile arguments with a view of replying, but the opponents of the bill had gotten up so much steam that they moved the previous question and cut off all further debate. The vote on the bill was 50 yeas to 68 nays. Probably the bill would have been defeated any way, but it would have come with a better grace if the gag rule had not been applied.

Representative Kinne's bill for good roads went the way of all the earth. It had been so emasculated by amendments that Mr. Kinne said he didn't care whether it passed or not, but it received 59 votes, nevertheless, only lacking one of passing.

The bill making the Fourth regiment of the National Guard a reserve regiment during the absence of the Thirteenth volunteers at Manila, which is the first regiment in the National Guard, was passed.

A bill was passed permitting licenses to sell liquor within 400 feet of school houses in towns of less than 5,000 inhabitants.

The senate did a big day's work in passing bills. Some of the obstructionists tried to force the senate into committee of the whole, but the effort failed and the whole day was spent in passing bills, some 40 or 50 going through and two or three being killed. The binding twine bill was amended by striking out the provision requiring purchasers to make affidavit as to the amount of twine they will need, leaving it optional with the prison board, as at present, and in that form it passed.

In a like manner all stomach ills fly before the wonderful power of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It strikes at the root of all diseases—the stomach, and not only cures indigestion, constipation, biliousness, liver and kidney troubles, but cures them quickly and permanently. It makes a hearty appetite and fills the blood with rich red corpuscles.

SPLENDID FIELDS OF GRAIN.

Following is copy of letter received from Dennis Twohey, who went to Winnipegosis, Manitoba, from Austin, Minn., March, 1898:

Benjamin Davies, Esq., Canadian government Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

Dear Sir: I have great pleasure in writing you these few lines to let you know how I like my new location, and how I have been getting along since I left Southern Minnesota. I like this country well, the climate agrees with me and my family at all seasons, and taken all around it is away ahead of Minnesota. I may say that we have not had one storm yet this winter. As regards the productives of the soil, I consider it beats Southern Minnesota. I am a practical farmer, but have never seen such vegetables in my life as I have seen raised here. As regards grain of all kinds, I have seen splendid yields, in fact any man who cannot get along here and make a good living cannot do it anywhere.

We have abundance of wood for fuel, timber for building, and lots of hay. I have got good water on my place, about 24 feet. I have a good class of neighbors around me, and have been well used by everybody. I have been able to get lots of work for myself and team at fair wages, whenever I wanted it, and I think any one else can do the same. I would not care to return to Minnesota.

I am, sir, yours very truly,

(Signed) DENNIS TWOHEY.

What "Alabastine" Is.

Alabastine is a durable and natural coating for walls and ceilings. It is entirely different from all "kalsomine" preparations. Alabastine comes in white or twelve beautiful tints, and is ready for use by adding cold water. It is put up in dry powder form in five-pound packages, with full directions on every package. Alabastine is handsome, cleanly and permanent. It can be re-coated and retinted at slight expense. Paint dealers and druggists sell Alabastine and furnish card of tints.

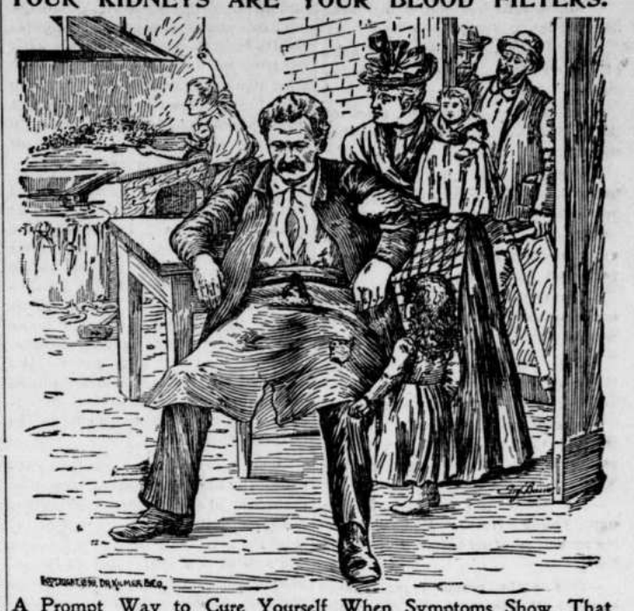
OVER WORK MAKES WEAK KIDNEYS.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

YOUR KIDNEYS ARE YOUR BLOOD FILTERS.



A Prompt Way to Cure Yourself When Symptoms Show That Your Kidneys Are Out Of Order.

To Test the Wonderful Merits of the Great Modern Discovery, Swamp-Root, Every Reader May Have a Sample Bottle Sent Absolutely Free By Mail.

The way to be well is to pay attention to your kidneys.

They are the most important organs of the body—the blood filters.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes.

The kidneys strain or filter out the impurities in the blood—that is their work.

Purifying your blood is not a question of taking a laxative of physic.

Does your blood run through your bowels?

What the bowel-cleaner does is to throw out the poisons confined in your bowels ready for absorption into your blood, but the poisons which are already in your blood, causing your present sickness, it leaves there.

There is no other way of purifying your blood except by means of your kidneys.

That is why bowel-cleaners fail to do their work—they fail to help the kidneys.

When you are sick, then, no matter what you think the name of your disease is, the first thing you should do is to afford aid to your kidneys by using Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root the great Kidney Remedy.

In taking Swamp-Root you afford natural help to nature, for Swamp-Root is the most perfect healer and gentle aid to the kidneys that is known to medical science.

Dr. Kilmer, the eminent physician and specialist, has attained a far-famed reputation through the discovery and marvelous success of Swamp-Root in purifying the blood, and thereby curing chronic and dangerous diseases, caused by sick kidneys, of which some of the symptoms are given below.

Pain or dull ache in back or head, rheumatism, neuralgia, nervousness, dizziness, irregular heart, sleeplessness, sallow complexion, dropsy, irritability, loss of ambition, obliged to pass water often during the day, and to get up many times at night, and all kinds of kidney, bladder and uric acid troubles.

Swamp-Root is sold by all dealers, in fifty-cent or one-dollar bottles. Make a note of the name, SWAMP-ROOT, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and remember it is prepared only by Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

To prove the wonderful merits of his great discovery he now offers to every reader of this paper a prepaid free sample bottle of Swamp-Root, which he will send to any address, free by mail.

A book about Health, Diet and Disease as Related to your Kidneys and giving some of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from the sufferers cured, also sent free with the sample bottle.

The great discovery, Swamp-Root, is so remarkably successful that our readers are advised to write for a sample bottle and to be sure and mention this paper when sending their addresses to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

Any Girl Can Tell

A physician who makes the test and is honest about it can tell you that, in many cases, the number of red corpuscles in the blood is doubled after a course of treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

That this means good blood may not be entirely clear from the doctor's statement, but any girl who has tried the pills can tell you that it means red lips, bright eyes, good appetite, absence of headache, and that it transforms the pale and sallow girl into a maiden who glows with the beauty which perfect health alone can give.

Mothers whose daughters grow debilitated as they pass from girlhood into womanhood should not neglect the pill best adapted for this particular ill.

Frank B. Trout, of 123 Griswold Ave., Detroit, Mich., says: "At the age of fourteen we had to take our daughter from school on account of ill health. She weighed only 92 pounds, was pale and sallow and the doctors said she had anæmia. Finally we gave her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. When she had taken two boxes she was strong enough to leave her bed, and in less than six months was something like herself. To-day she is entirely cured, and is a big, strong, healthy girl, weighing 130 pounds, and has never had a sick day since."—Detroit Evening News.

The genuine Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are sold only in packages, the wrapper always bearing the full name. At all druggists, or direct from the Dr Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N.Y. 50 per box.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, MINNESOTA, April 14, 1899.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Sam Murphy lost one of his team horses Tuesday night. It's dead.

—Prof. Bohn says on Saturday each of his customers will be tendered a cigar.

—Send for one of the fine maps of the C. B. & N. Ry. See add in another column.

—Nietzel & Son have moved their tailor shop into the old Joseph Cramer residence on N. River street.

—Miss May Mowatt entertained a number of her friends at a croqueno party last Wednesday evening.

—Front yards are being raked off in some parts of town, and a few are looking over their garden spots.

—Boss carpenter Nelson, Dave McCloud, and other R. R. carpenters fixed up the R. R. bridge Tuesday.

—August Sieloff and crew shingled the old Catholic school house, now used by the St. Anthony society, this week.

—Mr. Meister has removed the big sign, 'Young's Hotel'. He intends fixing up and painting up the hotel soon. Good.

—This is the maple sugar makers harvest. It looks as if the sap ought to run well these cool nights and sunshiny days.

—Prof. Emery M. Cunningham has been offered the principalship of a N. Dak. high school. The Prof. says Dak. is a good place for teachers.

—If you don't want the village authorities to clean up for you haul everything away before May 1 to the dumping ground on the West side.

—We have had a few days of fine weather, but the mercury this morning was nearly down to the freezing point with a cold disagreeable wind.

—Messrs Knoll and Mara have made a window in the north end of their office at the round elevator. This was much needed and a great convenience.

—People living on South Third street are clamoring for a hydrant or two as a fire protection. They are entitled to them and ought to have them.

—The Mayor's monument on R. R. Ave. was unveiled Saturday but the water was not turned on for several days afterwards. It has also been painted.

—The gasoline engine at the Cargill Co's elevator balked Monday. J. P. Berneck was in demand. It is said that Joe has a way about him that makes 'em go.

—Mrs. Dugan has been taken in charge by the village and moved to John Leudasher's where Mrs. L. is caring for her. She was in a deplorable condition.

—We acknowledge the receipt from the experiment station of Bulletin No. 61, Division of Entomology. It is interesting and instructive, and is neatly gotten up.

—The I. O. O. F's. have got their store room ceiled, arched overhead, a new floor, the walls and ceiling nicely painted, and it is now among the nicest of its kind in these parts.

—Those ugly reports about town are about as discreditable to a lot of business men as they are to poor Lizzie, who it is claimed has been sent away to hide her and their shame.

—The Billings restaurant has a new soda water foutain and will endeavor to share with Roban the trade in this line when the weather gets warm enough for people to desire sodawater.

—Jim Hill is entitled to quite a few privileges, but when it comes to letting a box car stand across the sidewalk while people plod around days at a time, it is just a little beyond unbearable.

—Phil Martin and crew worked this week at tearing down a part of the old J. E. Borsch dwelling, prepatory to surrendering up the ground to Stace Redmond who will build a fine livery barn on the corner.

—We are informed that a dumping ground on Bock's land on the West Side has been secured. People should use it and measures should be taken to prevent its becoming offensive or injurious to health.

—The gorge of ice above the railroad bridge Monday night was quite a strain on the middle piers, and split and broke some of the timbers. It is a wonder that the R. R. authorities don't put in a good iron bridge at this place.

—Water this spring refuses to run up hill around Mr. Gutzwiller's residence as much as ever. If the tiling around that corner was big enough and put under ground far enough, it would keep that big mud hole off from that part of Third street.

—Our village lockup is sadly in need of a couple of cages with beds in so that when prisoners are confined there they can have a place besides the floor to sleeep on, also unruly ones could be prevented from decorating the walls and otherwise injuring the jail.

—Teachers are to be hired tomorrow night for the coming school year. There seems to be plenty of applications in, and no reasonable excuse for not having as good a corps of teachers as any school in the country. A good school is an honor to any village. Let us keep to the front.

—The river raised considerably this weeek and the ice ran out. On Sunday and Monday a number of dynamite cartridges were exploded beneath cakes jammed in above the R. R bridge in order to prevent too big a jam. It made lots of sport for a big crowd that appeared to have nothing else to do about that time.

—People living along the river where garbage was dumped last year begin to talk about sueing the town for damage in case sickness in their families results from the poisonous gases arising from the unsightly piles of refuse piled along the river bank. That is no place for dumping offal, and the Street Commissioner should be instructed to cover up the offensive matter, or remove it to a more proper place.

—On Monday night the water raised to a level with the floor of the boiler room at the power house, and the belts were removed to prevent their getting wet. A very narrow escape from another reminder to our citizens of the short sightedness of our village council in building the power house where such things might happen. There is plenty of high ground and good drinkable water about Delano so that waterworks could have been put in to be of much more benefit to the citizens of the place.

—One flock of a few chickens will eat all the buds off of several neighbors shrubbery in early spring and destroy much more than they are worth besides the good will of the neighbors, and scratch up every bed of radish, peas or other early vegetables that is planted. People having chickens should keep them up or it is no wonder they loose them as soon as garden season opens. It is bad enough to make garden for your own chickens, but when it comes to planting for neighbor's chickens it is worse.

—The American, Manila, P. I., of March 8, says: "Orders have been sent from the Navy Department to have the cruiser Newark start with dispatches from the New York navy yard for the Pacific station via the straits of Magellan. The Newark is a powerful protected cruiser of about the same type and power as the Philadelphia, whose place she will take on the station while the Philadelphia is at Samoa." The Newark is the boat on which our late fellow townsman, Otto Marr is now sailing.

—The fire alarm on Monday afternoon brought out the companies and the citizens to find quite a blaze in a straw pile in the alley (contrary to village ordinance) near Dyer's barn. Sometime after the hose was in place and "water" "water" yelled several times a man appeared with the hydrant wrenches and the water was turned on, the fire having been nearly squenched before that time. Boys and others should not be allowed to help themselves to fire apparatus when they please and misplace them. In case of a big blaze, a minutes time in turning on the water might decide as to whether or not thousands of dollars worth of property be destroyed: or if it be the one door school house many lives lost.

—The following extracts are taken from a letter to the Minneapolis Tribune, written by J. P. Koll, their special correspondent at Manila:

"Privates Catlin and Enright arrested two women of the town, Europeans, some days since, for being drunk and disorderly. They were taken before Judge Corriston and fined $15 and $10 each. The boys are very severe on all wrong doers and any who escape their eagle eyes are fortunate. The grip of the law in Manila is like that of Iron since Minnesota's sons have had the run of the city."

"The newly appointed corporals in Co. I are Ed McInnis, Barker, Bares, McKee, Holbrook and Kingsley. Cook Dyer ranks as a corporal, making the quota complete—13.

Al Kurtz, who has been working on the G. N. west of here during the winter is in town for a few days. He is going on an ore train near Duluth as soon as the lake opens which is nearly a month behind time this year.

County Cullings.

Some of our esteemed citizens of the third commissioner district claim their candidate for commissioner at the next election, has the biggest understanding of any man in the county, an' wears the biggest boots. Understanding and boots would be a good combination on the board.

Ole Hendrickson, of Cokato, we see by the Enterprise, had quite an accident a couple of weeks ago. He tried to get on board a moving train and was thrown violently to the frozen ground and his face badly bruised. While Ole lived in Delano he undertook to jump from a train and lit with his mouth on a pile of cinders, tearing the flesh loose from his lower jaw, quite a serious injury. Ole should be getting old enough to wait till the train stops when he wants to do business with it.

From Manila.

MANILA, March 25, 1899.

Father: 8:30 a. m.: As the mail closes at 10 for home I thought I would relate to you a sad incident which occured late last night to one of our company.

Between the hours of 12:00 and 1:00 a. m. electric light wires broke down, and as soon as it struck the ground jumped high into the air, sparks flying in all directions, this is according to the report of two eye witnesses of our company who were patrolling.

Between the hours of 4:00 and 5:00 two more men were patrolling the same beat, having relieved the first two. These last two were Tim Enright, and Bedard. The first being a fearless sort of a man, when seeing the wire he undertook to handle it, at first cutting the dead wire, being it. He said: Well if they want to fix that they will have to get another piece of wire, because I want this for a clothes line." Then Bedard entreated him to "come on" and "let the rest alone" exclaiming that he might get a shock from it, but with no effect. Finally Enright said: "This comes from town it must be alive" with that he seized the wire and fell directly backwards. He was killed instantly, the wire burning his hand, the current leaving a large burn on the back of his head where he struck the ground.

Bedard then fired 4 shots as a signal, at once men went to the scene, sent and procured medical aid but it was too late. The ground was quite wet, it having rained a little. His body was catried to the quarters where it is at present. I do not know when the funeral will take place. (Enclosed find a small piece of the wire, I would like to have you save for me. I have a large amount of small relics).

Continuous firing is heard around the city. Either today or tomorrow there is a large engagement expected. I will write the particulars soon after it takes place.

All of the boys in I company seem to be looking well. The last time I saw Bert, Perry, and Orley they looked well.

Admiral Dewey has had a call from his equal in rank but far inferior in fighting qualities, Admiral Seymor, of the British navy, who is still in the harbor awaiting the rest of his fleet of these waters.

Being in a hurry, must close. Send best regards to all, and I forgot to say I am not yet ill.

Your son,
A. G. CATLIN.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $4.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

If the authorities at Washington are really in earnest about keeping faith with the boys enlisted for the humanitarian war with Spain, now that the war is over, the best way to show it would be to send them home.

Get to work the right. In our war for humanity we won every time, and with comparatively small losses. Since opening up on the Filipinos, who are fighting for independence, what Americans are we proud of. God seems to be favoring independence more and more.

If the Administration thinks by breaking promises made to the Philippines, keeping thousands of our volunteers away from home months after their term of enlistment has expired to succeed in expending our territory it will find it is mistaken. God is not with such doings.

Coming Home of 13th Reg.

The 13th Minn. Vol. as did others, enlisted for two years or during the Spanish American war. That war is ended. Peace has been declared, and volunteers are entitled to their honorable discharges from the service. The government has no more right to ask them to remain in the service longer than it has to place a gun in the hands of any other young man in this country and tell him to proceed at once to the Philippines and take a position on the firing line.

The Governors and others from states from which volunteers went to fight in the Spanish American war are importuning the authorities at Washington to send their soldiers home. Some are trying to make out that this is for political effect. What are they keeping men whose terms have expired, under arms for? Is it for political effect? Enlisting men to fight for "humanity", to free an oppressed neighbor from bondage, and then using them for the purpose of extending our territory, and our commerce! is just a little too far from right for the liberty loving people of America to sanction.

No law abiding citizen denies that the Spanish war is over and the term of enlistment of the volunteers expired, and that they are entitled to come home. Why, then is it necessary for their friends and their state officers, and possibly even the men themselves to get down on their marrow bones to a despotic authority and beg that they be brought home. It is indeed, rather humiliating. And then, as in our own state, after Gov. Lind has writted to Washington for information as to when we might look for them, and four days afterwards, with his question still unanswered, asks our legislature to and him in petitioning the powers that be, to bring the boys home, to have the great Gen. Wilson, who heard that $45,000 was to be expended in Minnesota to get the Youngers out of Stillwater, and who worked so hard to get them out, but failed, though it is claimed he had sufficient pull to get his son home from the Philippines, get up and oppose the bringing home of the 13th, and his colleague in the other house, whose ancestors were liberated from bondage by U. S. volunteers, and who has succeeded in having a bill passed this winter permitting gentlemen of his complexion equal rights before the bar with whites, opposing the asking that our volunteers be brought home when their term of enlistment is completed, smacks some of politics.

And again for Senator Johnson of Nicollet to use his oratorical powers to keep the boys in the Philippines until "they could come with glory and honor bringing with them their flag, bright and unsullied, and not in response to a resolution adopted by somebody. The hands of the administration should be upheld and not pulled down in this hour of trial." Does the Senator think if the boys were to remain as at present for the next ten years they would have any more "glory or honor"? If he is not satisfied that they bring their flag home with them now, and it is to represent, instead of liberty and justice to humanity, American greed and imperialism, let them nail it to the top of the highest bamboo they can, out on the firing line and leave it for Senators Johnson, Wilson, and a few other legislators to bring home, "bright and unsullied" if they so wish.

As for us we say bring them home in reason, so that the democrats could inject sufficient ginger into Mr. McKinley to make him call Germany down as they made him call Spain down a year ago. The people are stirred to deepest indignation by the news that German treachery in Samoa has been responsible for the ambushing of a small detachment of American and English marines by 800 natives and the killing of two lieutenants, one American and one English, one American Ensign and four marines, and the administration is doing just as it was doing a year ago—waiting. Germany has deserved a sharp call down from this government four or five times since the war with Spain began, but in every instance the administration has allowed itself to be placated with a little soft soap from the German Ambassador. This Samoan business has aroused the people, and action is demanded. Senator Stewart voiced public sentiment when he said: "Does Germany want to fight? If so she may be accomodated. We are a peaceful people, but we do not permit others to go around with chips on their shoulders". And Representative Hull, of Iowa, a republican said: "In my section the feeling has been strong against Germany for six months. The people believe that she was hostile to us in the war with Spain. The people are in such temper that they will not permit any trifling or hedging on the part of this government." The time has come when the ruler of the German Emperor must be cleared in an effective manner of the idea that this country is afraid of him.

War Department officials are at last convinced that peace in the Philippines is still a long ways off, and the administration is beginning to realize that the islands were not a bargain at $20,000,000, and that we will pay the money a long time before we get possession of the property, such as it is. When Aguinaldo's capital was taken it was announced by administration officials that the fighting was all over, yet during the present week there has been almost continuous fighting over there, and our troops didn't have to do all the attacking, either. Speaking to several army officers, Gen. Shafter said: "Gen. Lawton and his men are achieving much success so far as they go. The fighting against the Filipinos, however is like the brushing away of flies; the moment the brushing is stopped they come back. The Filipinos are bound to give in eventually, but I believe it is a much more serious task to subdue them than most people think. Another army officer said, after noting the resemblance of Gen. Lawton's campaign to those against the Apache Indians: "The Filipinos will get tired of the chase sooner than the American Indians did, and after a few years of attempting to keep up a fight against the authority of the U. S. the insurgents will disappear or surrender." That's a nice thing to contemplate isn't it? Pay $20,000,000 and thousands of good American lives for Islands which we will get complete possession of in a few years, and will not have any use for after we get them.

Gen. Shafter has had critics in plenty ever since the charge was made and never fully disproven that he had "flunked" in the Santiago campaign and that he would have made a mess of the whole business if Gen. Joe Wheeler and others had not prevented, but his testimony regarding the canned "roast" beef brought more harsh criticism than anything he had previously said or done. In the face of the evidence of nine out of every ten witnesses who have testified that the stuff was unfit to eat, Shafter said it was good and that he ate it every day and enjoyed it. Either he overdid the thing in his testimony or he was furnished with a different sort of canned "roast" beef from that furnished the rest of the army. How his testimony was received at the White House may be judged from the fact that he was the guest of honor at a dinner given by Mr. McKinley, before he left town, and was assured that he would be one of the two additional major generals that the army will be entitled to under the army reorganization act.

Mr. McKinley's selection of Mr. E. Bartlett Tripp, of S. Dak., who was minister to Austria under the Cleveland administration, to represent the U. S. on the international Commission that will endeavor to straighten out the Samoan tangle, was disappointing to a number of republicans who would like to have secured the plum. Mr. McKinley is no novice in the game of politics. He got elected by the support, directly or indirectly of gold democrats, and he is playing for the same support next year. Mr. Tripp is a gold democrat; besides he is a near relative, by marriage of Senator Davis, of Minn., who is chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations.

Firm in the Faith.

Mr. Bryan, in his recent New York speech has shown himself as firm as ever in the faith. Here is what he had to say concerning the Democratic platform:

"The democratic party has a platform. It does not dismay those who stand upon it to hear it denounced this year by those who denounced it two years ago. We got accustomed to it in 1896; and it is not strange now, but it would be a surprising thing, indeed, to hear that party denounced by those who left it two years ago, but this we do not hear. The democratic platform is satisfactory to those who supported it in 1896.

That platform was written by the representatives of the democratic party in the most democratic convention that has been held in a century. It is a compliment to receive a presidential nomination from any national convention, but I am proud that my nomination came from a convention, not of bosses, but of democratic citizens. (Loud applause.) It has vindicated that platform, and every plank of it is stronger today than it was when the platform was written.

Those who believe that we should invite into the democratic party all those who cannot share in the purposes and the asperations of that party—I cannot speak for others, I speak for myself—are wrong, and I say that I would not abstract from it a single plank to get back every man who left it. Nor do I believe that we could draw people to us by cowardice. The day for ambiguity has passed.

That platform means something, and if you ask me why it was that in the campaign of 1896 the hearts of the people were stirred as they have not been lately stirred, I will tell you that it was because the struggling masses found in that platform an inspiration and aggregated wealth found in it a menance to every man who robs his neighbor for his own benefit. It was those who have entrenched themselves behind abuses of government. And well they might object, because the platform was aimed at every abuse of government, and I was glad that I was supported by those who would have only asked me for just laws. I am glad that the six million and a half who voted for me simply wanted me to get other people's hands out of their pockets (applause) and not to get their hands into other people's pockets.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 7, 1899.

It is regretable that Congress is not in session, so that the democrats could inject sufficient ginger into Mr. McKinley to make him call Germany down as they made him call Spain down a year ago. The people are stirred to deepest indignation by the news that German treachery in Samoa has been responsible for the ambushing of a small detachment of American and English marines by 800 natives and the killing of two lieutenants, one American and one English, one American Ensign and four marines, and the administration is doing just as it was doing a year agowaiting. Few Re-enlist.

Washington, April 16.—The desire of the volunteers to return to this country is evidenced in a report that shows that of those that have been offered opportunity to re enlist, with the offer of a bonus in travel pay over $500, only about 7 per cent will accept. The volunteers it is said, desire to come home by organization instead of individually.

Some discharges of individual soldiers have been brought about by congressional pressure, but as a rule, Gen. Otis has been disapproving all applications for discharges except in the case of sick or wounded and disabled soldiers.

Christalizing Sentiment.

The killing of our own boys, who left this city nearly a year ago, is certain to crystalize public sentiment in support of the administration's policy.—St. Paul Dispatch.

The Dispatch is surely mistaken. The boys went to the Philippines not to fight against the natives, but with them for liberty. No matter what the Dispatch may claim they were sent there for, the boys and their friends know that patriotism was their sustenance.

A MASQUERADER.

Love that came in Pity's guise,
Could I say him nay?
Down he dropt his radiant eyes,
Veiled his pinions gay
'Neath a mantle gray,
Hid his bow and arrows, too.
What was a poor maid to do—
Love that came in Pity's guise,
Could I say him nay?

Softly knocked he at the door,
So I looked to see;
Love I knew had knocked before,
But this was not he—
Pray, who might it be?
"Pity is my name!" he cried;
So the door I opened wide—
Love that came in Pity's guise,
Could I say him nay?

In my empty heart he came,
Filled each corner, too,
Till one day, with look of flame,
Off his cloak he threw,
And Love's self I knew.
With a laugh of cruel glee,
"I am master here," quoth he—
Love that came in Pity's guise,
Could I say him nay?

Love that comes in Pity's guise,
Who can say him nay?
Maidens, an' ye would be wise,
Turn the rogue away,
Lest ye find, some day,
Cruel Love your tyrant grown,
And, like me, ye make your moan—
Love that comes in Pity's guise,
Must as master stay.

Norritt's Flotation

THE premises occupied by the Norritt Cycle company were, to put it modestly, unpretentious. They consisted of a small, dirty looking factory, situated down a narrow alley of Birmingham, and a still dirtier office, with a small, square aperture in the wall bearing the label above, "Inquiries."

The Norritt Cycle company first made its appearance on the cycling horizon in the year 1896, when the fashionable boom was on, and, after a lavish expenditure on gas pipe tubing and hose pipe tires, a quantity of alleged bicycles were stored together and offered to an unsuspecting public at the modest figure of £20 each. By means of copious advertising in the daily papers the Norritt Cycle company actually managed to dispose of these, and more of the same were speedily put on the market. In fact, so successful was the Norritt Cycle company that at the end of a season's trading the head of the firm was able to take a cozy villa in the suburb, where he and his "company," in the person of his wife, settled down. From being plain "Bill" Norritt he sprouted out to William Norritt, Esq., and instead of the cheap blue cloth suit of former days he wore a good honest tweed, his copious expanse of waist (for his figure had developed with his fortunes) being ornamented with a heavy and elaborate gold chain and a gigantic seal. In fact, everyone was made aware of the fact that "Old Bill Norritt" had struck oil. Society opened its arms to Mr. and Mrs. Norritt, and the latter's jewels were the envy of many a fair daughter of Brum.

One day a visitor turned up at the office of the Norritt Cycle company, and inquired for William Norritt. The dirty-faced urchin who popped his head through the aperture asked the gentleman for his card, and disappeared with it in his little black fist. He returned again to inform the visitor that Mr. Norritt was too busy to see him. The latter was persistent, however, and at last a gruff voice was heard from the interior granting the stranger admission, in a manner anything but graceful.

"Good morning," began the frock-coated and tall-hatted individual, as he entered, but he was cut short with:

"Well, what the devil do you want? What's your business, eh?"

With the utmost urbanity the stranger replied:

"My business, Mr. Norritt, is of such a nature that it may put thousands into your pocket."

"Um," said the head of the firm, "I thought you were an advertisement canvasser."

"But I'm not, Mr. Norritt; I'm a company promoter, and I've got a scheme to offer you that will put a bigger fortune into your pockets than you'd make selling bicycles in a lifetime."

By this time the oily manner of Mr. Norritt's visitor had quieted the ruffled feathers of the head of the Norritt Cycle company, and a capacious cigar box was produced.

"The Norritt cycles," continued the visitor, "are now so well known that we ought not to have the least difficulty in getting the public to subscribe half a million of money for the business, if we go about it in the right way. I have already fixed up Lord Fitzbroke, the duke of Leedrop, and two or three other big pots who will join the board, if we can come to terms. Of course, the valuable services of yourself will be retained as managing director."

By this time Mr. Norritt was absolutely mesmerized by his visitor, though he had sufficient common sense to keep his feelings well under control.

"The fact of the matter is, Mr. Tooley," he said, "I'm not really anxious to offer the business to the public, but I'll talk it over with Mrs. Norritt, and we'll see what can be done. Where are you stopping?"

"I am staying at the Grand hotel. Suppose you step out with me and have a bit of lunch. We can go into the details more fully and work out the figures."

"With pleasure," said Mr. Norritt, and, after giving a few instructions to the office boy, Mr. Norritt stepped out in company with his visitor. To tell the truth, he was inwardly delighted with the prospect of floating his company, for things had latterly been slumping just a little, and he found it harder to dispose of his machines than it used to be. Besides, he had got caught in the whirlpool of gambling that had drawn so many magnates of the cycle trade into its vortex, and there were one or two people in the city who held paper from him.

The lunch was excellent, and the champagne so good that a further supply was ordered. William Norritt was undoubtedly enjoying himself. His companion was talking about millions in a way that made poor Norritt's head fairly reel, and was making lightning calculations on the tablecloth. Then the two adjourned to the smoking-room, where liquors and cigars were ordered. So agreeable did Mr. Norritt find the conversation and manner of his host that he found it difficult to drag himself away even when the clock struck five.

"Look here," he said, as he stepped into the hansom which his companion had considerately hailed for him. "You must come out and spend to-morrow night at Norritt lodge with me and the missus. Come in time for dinner and we'll put you up for the night."

"Delighted!" said the other, and Mr. Norritt drove away with the impression that he had never met such a jolly good fellow in his life.

The next night arrived, and with it Mr. Tooley, who very speedily insinuated himself into the good graces of Mrs. Norritt.

"Such a haffable young man," she said to Mr. Norritt when their visitor had departed for the night.

Norritt was delighted, and could dream of nothing but millions all the night. Visions of prospectuses, in which was the name of W. Norritt, Esq., arose before him, and he could see himself with the magic letters J. P. attached to his name. Why not even in time M. P.? And so Mr. Norritt that night slept the sleep of the business man who has done a good stroke of business. * * *

Just as the hall clock of Norritt Lodge was striking 3 o'clock a cab came around the corner of the avenue and pulled up a little way from Mr. Norritt's residence. A man jumped out and gave some instructions to the driver, who moved farther along the street. The stranger who had aligted came up to the railings of Norritt lodge and gave a peculiar whistle. A few minutes more and the hall door was gently opened and Mr. Norritt's visitor appeared, his feet being minus boots.

"Well," said the new arrival in a low voice, "got the swag?"

"Yes," replied the other softly, "it's all here, ready to go. By Jove, it's a splendid haul. We ought to clear a couple of thousand out of it. Where's Jorrocks?"

"Just a bit along the avenue."

"Come along, then, give us a hand with this bag. Sling my boots over your shoulder."

A large bag was lifted by the two men and carried along to the cab, where it was speedily thrown in, the two men jumping in after it."

"Go on, Jorrocks, drive like fury now. And the cab went rattling away down the avenue with its mysterious occupants. * * *

"MR. NORRITT, I'M A COMPANY PROMOTER."

Next morning Mr. Norritt was awakened much earlier than usual by a loud knocking at his door. His nerves were not in a very steady condition after the champagne of the previous night, and he felt angry at the vehemence of the girl's knocking.

"What the devil do you mean by that infernal hammering?" he shouted.

"Oh dear, master, the house has been burgled. All the plate has gone."

In a minute Mr. Norritt was out of bed and had dragged a few garments on him. He met Mrs. Norritt in tears on the stairs.

"Oh, Bill, she sobbed, all my jewels have been stolen. Whatever shall I do?"

He dashed upstairs to the room where his guest of the night before was supposed to be resting. He reeled back thunderstruck when he saw that the "haffable" young man had vanished.

"Good heavens, Maria," he screamed, "the scoundrel has been a burglar. Here's a note on the table." He read it:

"Dear Bill," it ran, "I'm sorry—can't stop—love to Mrs. Norritt. She has beautiful jewels. Will join the board after allotment. Ta-ta! Yours, with love, Bill Wilkins."

But Mrs. Norritt had fainted before he finished, and her husband made a wild charge for the brandy bottle, only to find that it was empty. Poor Bill Norritt nearly had an apoplectic fit. Needless to say, the affair got into the papers, but the burglars were never tracked down, and the flotation of Norritt's never came off. Bill has gone back to the bench, and hates the sight of a prospectus.—The Cycle.

Paddy as Horatius.

When a sub-inspector was hearing a class of London Irish boys repeat Macaulay's "Horatius," he inquired whether three soldiers would be likely nowa-days to hold a bridge against a whole army. "Would three Englishmen, for example?" he said. "No, sir!" said the class. "Would three Scotchmen?" They again dissented. "Would three Irishmen?" "Please, sir," shouted an excitable little fellow, "one Irishman would do it!"—Cornhill Magazine.

MAPLE PLAIN.

For sometime we have been looking for spring and prosperity. Spring is coming slow but shure, but prosperity we have only by promise.

We people who live in the country and dig in the soil for a living, do not expect a heaven here below. The only question is wherewith shall we be clothed and fed.

Our country roads are not very good just now but are drying up very fast.

Farmers are putting in wheat and oats but the ground is not in very good condition, most too sticky.

Fishing seems to be very good this spring. Lake Independence and Lake Sarah furnish most of the fish.

Sugar making is rather poor; not much of a run this spring.

Chas. Budd, deputy sheriff, was up from Minneapolis last Saturday.

Clark Stnrman, of South Franklin, was in our town last Friday. Clark seems to be the boss well man.

One day last week your correspondent made a trip to St. Paul to visit the solons at the capitol.

Went from Minneapolis to the capitol by electricity, the round trip costing twenty cents. In going over the road my mind was carried back forty years ago, when I, but a boy, drove an ox team from Minneapolis to St. Paul and back, but now things have changed, instead of the ox for motive power, we harness up electricity and drive it at the rate of 30 miles an hour.

Arrived at the capitol about 10:00 o'clock and found the solons in the house of Representatives, working hard on the crazy house bill, which was passed that forenoon.

Hon. David Lydiard, Representative from my district, took me in charge and I must say he done the square thing by me, giving me my dinner and introducing me to many of the dignatarie's in and around the capitol. Would say that the members of the present Legislature seem to be rather a bright lot of fellows if most of them are Republicans. But the question is whether St. Paul, the capitol takes after St. Paul the Divine before or after his conversion.

The new capitol is now under way of construction and can just be seen from the street car as you go into the city. The Georgia marble looks you in the face and says, this means millions to you fellows and you must pay the freight.

While in the city, called at the Hennepin county court house and paid some taxes, but things seemed rather quiet. Said they had not done much business since the dog show (or canine convention). It was a fine day and the bicycles that had been wintered over were coming out. Spring bonnets and ostrich feathers were also in bloom.

The treaty stipulations or protocol between the United States and Spain have been exchanged and the Spanish American war should be declared off. But we are still fighting the Filipinos. Would ask what do you call this? Is it possible that the young men of our country must be kept there through the rainy and hot season, fighting those semi-barbarian people? For what? For love of who's country? Not the United States. Let our boys come home. One of them is worth more than all the islands, with that mongrel race of people thrown in. Our mothers have no sons to give in exchange for a mess of earthquakes, volcanoes, and a monkey race of people.

If the money power and syndicates want those islands let them do the fighting. The civil war was fought to maintain the Union, the flag, and our free institutions, and we did it. This war is for what? Tell me if you know. Some people may put themselves under the old Mosaic law which consisted of rights, ceremonies, etc. Without the shedding of blood there was no remission of sins, but we are no more under the law but under grace.

A Swedish inventor claims that by a new invention of transmitting motor power by light he can direct the course of a torpedo and bring it back to his feet "like a boomerang." The number of people who would care to experiment with a torpedo that comes back like a boomerang is probably not large enough to make the invention profitable.

Admiral Dewey informs the navy department that three of the Spanish cruisers sunk in the memorable battle of Manila bay on May 1, 1898, have been repaired and are about ready for service. The London Spectator declares that Gen. Wood's administration of affairs at Santiago is a revelation to the nations which have had long experience in colonial government, and that the best thing the European countries can do is to imitate his methods. Gen. Wood's latest recommendation seems to entitle him to further praise. He urges that public schools be immediately established. That's business! Cuba has never really had any such schools, education being denied the poorer classes.

An engineer named Germain in the French ministry of posts and telegraphs has an invention which he claims will revolutionize the telephone. By an adaptation of the telephone wire the microphone is made to develop and intensify the vibration received so that it is unnecessary to place the receiver to the ear or stand with the mouth close to the transmitter, and conversation is easily carried on between two persons, both of whom may be several yards distant from the instrument. The invention has been officially tested and pronounced a success.

The recent death of Justice Stephen Johnson Field (retired) at Washington, at the age of 83 years, removes the last of the famous justices of the supreme court appointed by President Lincoln, a court remarkable for its ability—three of whom, Chief Justice Chase, Justice David Davis and Justice Stephen J. Field, had presidential aspirations more or less flattering at times, but never realized. Mr. Field's service in the supreme court excelled in length even that of Chief Justice Marshall, and it was only in 1897, after 34 years of honorable service, that he retired.

Statistics taken in France of the spread of the habit of smoking show that within the last year the cigarette and even, astonishing as it may appear, the pipe have found an enormous increase in their female votaries, and smoking among women is no longer confined to the secrecy of a private room. The duchess de Uzes and the marchioness Rouchefoucauld publicly take a cigarette after dinner, and whatever these ladies do may safely be taken as a sign of the highest bon ton. The statistics show that 807,000,000 cigarettes are yearly consumed in France.

WANT TO COME HOME

Volunteers in the Philippines Ask for Their Discharge.

Gov. Lind of Minnesota Sends a Message to the Legislature on the Subject—War Service Men to Be Sent Home.

St. Paul, Minn., April 18.—Gov. Lind Monday sent a message to the legislature urging some action looking towards the speedy return from Manila of the Thirteenth Minnesota volunteers. He states that all appeals to that end addressed to the president and to the war department have been ignored, save in a few individual cases that were influenced by partisanship. He asserts that the volunteers are being held contrary to law, and that he has been notified by Col. Ames that the regiment desires unanimously to return home.

Pettigrew Writes to the President.

Washington, April 18.—Senator Pettigrew, of South Dakota, has written a letter to the president requesting the return of the South Dakota volunteers, now in the Philippines. He says that under the law they are entitled to come home, and that they should not be retained against their will. The senator says he has received requests from 119 members of the South Dakota regiment asking to be discharged and sent home.

To Return War Service Men.

Washington, April 18.—Secretary Alger says that it has been decided to permit the volunteers in the Philippines to return home as fast as transportation can be furnished. They were enlisted for service during the war with Spain or until their services were no longer required, but upon the representation that they desired to remain as long as there were actual hostilities no steps were taken to hasten their muster-out. The action of Gov. Lee, of South Dakota; Gov. Lind, of Minnesota, and other influential men has caused the administration to decide to return all the volunteers. Permission was sent to Gen. Otis a few days ago to furnish transportation for the individual members of the various volunteer organizations who desired to come home and muster out, but Secretary Alger announced Monday night that this order has been enlarged, and that now all the volunteers will be brought to the United States as transportation can be furnished. The secretary would not undertake to estimate when the last volunteer would leave Manila under this arrangement, but considered it a matter of only a few months.

Troops to Be Sent Home.

Under the orders issued for the return of the volunteers in the Philippines the following organizations will come home:

Troop of Nevada cavalry, companies A and D of California artillery, A and B Utah artillery, First Wyoming, First California, First Colorado, First Idaho, Fifty-first Iowa, Twentieth Kansas, Thirteenth Minnesota, First Montana, First Nebraska, First North Dakota, Second Oregon, Tenth Pennsylvania, First South Dakota, First Tennessee and First Wyoming infantry volunteers and the First and Eighteenth companies of the volunteer signal corps.

About 6,000 regulars are now under orders to proceed to the Philippines.

Extra Pay for Troops.

Washington, April 18.—The payment of the 20 per cent. extra pay to the American troops in the Philippines has been extended to include all our soldiers now in service, and will continue until hostilities in the Philippines cease. The troops in the Philippines, both officers and men, will be given the two months' extra pay when mustered out.

DIES UNEXPECTEDLY.

Rt. Rev. John Ambrose Watterson, Bishop at Columbus, Passes Away—Funeral Thursday.

Columbus, O., April 18.—Rt. Rev. John Ambrose Watterson, D. D., bishop of the diocese of Columbus, died suddenly at his residence in this city early in the morning. He had been in ill health for some time, but his death was unexpected and came as a great shock to the public of Columbus.

Bishop Watterson attained national prominence by taking advanced ground on the temperance question. In 1893 he promulgated his famous decree barring liquor dealers from membership in Catholic societies and instructing priests of the diocese to refuse absolution to saloon keepers who carried on their business in violation of civil law, unless they promised to cease offending.

Beef for the Philippines.

Kansas City, Mo., April 17.—One of the largest contracts for dressed beef ever placed by the United States government has just been arranged with a local packing house. The contract is for 1,500,000 pounds of best export dressed beef to be shipped to the Philippine islands for the government troops. The beef will all be furnished in Kansas City and 12 carloads of the order will be started west at once.

AN IMPRESSIVE FUNERAL.

Last Rites Over the Remains of the Late Justice Field Are Held in Washington.

Washington, April 14.—Impressive funeral services were held over the remains of the late Justice Stephen J. Field at the Church of the Epiphany at 10:30 in the morning. The church was crowded with a distinguished company gathered to pay their last tribute of respect and honor to the memory of the great jurist. Among those present were President McKinley, Secretaries Wilson and Long, Attorney General Griggs, the British, Russian and German ambassadors, the Chinese minister and the diplomatic representatives of other foreign countries, ex-Postmaster General Don M. Dickinson, ex-Senator Edmunds, many senators and representatives and other distinguished people high in official and social life. Rev. Satterlee, the bishop of Washington, assisted by Rev. Mackay-Smith, the pastor of the late justice, officiated. Chief Justice Fuller and his associates on the supreme bench acted as honorary pall-bearers. The remains were interred in a vault at Rock Creek cemetery, where they will remain temporarily until Mrs. Field decides where they are to be permanently buried.

POINTS AGAINST QUAY.

Judge Biddle Admits as Evidence the Secret Books of the People's Bank.

Philadelphia, April 17.—The prosecution in the trial of former United States Senator Quay succeeded in having admitted as evidence the three books found in Cashier Hopkins' desk after the People's bank failure, and on the pages of which the commonwealth alleges will be found the evidences of conspiracy between Quay, former State Treasurer Benjamin J. Haywood and John S. Hopkins, the dead cashier. These books are the famous "red book," the "black book" and the "blue book." In the "red book," it is charged by the prosecution, will be found calculations by Hopkins of interest on state funds, which interest was paid, it is alleged, to Quay. The "black book" contains records and entries pertaining to stock transactions alleged to connect the defendant with Hopkins in using state funds for speculation. The "blue book" is asserted to be a record of individual loans made by Cashier Hopkins, and, it is charged, will show that Senator Quay borrowed money without sufficient security.

FLOODS CAUSE DEATH.

Twenty-Three Members of the Crow Tribe Perish Near Sheridan, Wyo.—Great Damage to Property.

Sheridan, Wyo., April 15.—The flood has subsided for the present, but the damage caused by high water has been enormous. The people are trying to figure up the loss of life and property. As far as definitely known all the dead are Crow Indians, and the number is placed at 23. The city has lost five bridges, and has only three left. These are of iron, and are located in favorable positions. Main street is cut in two by the loss of the bridge, as is Broadway and Fifth avenue. The northern portion of the city was under water, causing the inhabitants of that portion to vacate their homes, many of them having to wade waist deep in water to reach places of safety. No greater flood was ever known in this country, and the foothills and mountains are still covered with an enormous quantity of snow that will cause high water during the hot months.

Bottom Fell Out.

San Francisco, April 14.—Passengers on the steamer City of Rio de Janeiro from Honolulu state that on March 23 the bottom of the great volcano fell out, followed by great clouds of dust and smoke. Some alarm was felt by the guests of the Volcano house, occasioned by the noise and the frequent landslides which followed, but some of the guests became reassured and started to investigate the phenomenon. A hole 150 feet in diameter showed the extent of the cave-in. All attempts to locate the bottom of the crator were unavailing, and some authorities place it at 800 feet below the mouth of the crater.

Gen. Shafter Ill.

Buffalo, N. Y., April 15.—Maj. Gen. William R. Shafter arrived here at noon Friday accompanied by his personal aide, Capt. Edward H. Plummer, of the Tenth infantry. When nearing Buffalo, Gen. Shafter was seized with a severe chill and upon his arrival at the home of Capt. Plummer he took to bed. The post surgeon at Fort Porter was sent for and reported that the general was threatened with a recurring attack of Cuban fever.

Will Stay in the Cabinet.

Washington, April 15.—Secretary Alger Friday night put an effective quietus on the persistent reports that he contemplated retirement from the cabinet by a positive and unequivocal statement that the reports were absolutely without foundation and that until some unforeseen and unlooked for contingency arises he proposes to remain secretary of war throughout this administration.

Deserts Quay.

Harrisburg, Pa., April 18.—State Senator Magee, of Pittsburgh, who has steadfastly voted for Quay for United States senator, announced Monday night that he would not vote for the ex-senator to-day and that other members from Allegheny county has also cast their last vote for Quay. He predicted Quay would lose 20 supporters to-day and said the prospects are bright for the election of a senator.

Illinois Wheat Injured.

Springfield, Ill., April 18.—Reports received by the state board of agriculture from the wheat-growing counties under date of April 11 show that the continued cold weather up to April 10 has been very injurious to the plant and it is believed that the crop will not be over 70 per cent. of an average crop, or not enough for home consumption and seeding in the state.

Pronounced Invalid.

Washington, April 18.—In the United States supreme court an opinion was handed down by Justice Peckham pronouncing invalid a portion of the state law of Michigan regulating the sale of thousand-mile railroad tickets. The part of the law affected is that providing that these tickets shall be good for two years and shall be sold at a reduced rate.

Bargain Hunting.

It is impossible for all us men to be the gallant prince who is the devoted slave to the lady in the rose-colored fairy story, but we can offer our seat in the street car to the tired woman who has been "shopping" all day in the vain endeavor to make the $2.25 her husband kindly "gave" her clothe a family of six and make them look as neat and comfortable as the children next door. —L. Suggestions for Spring Cleaning.

Much of the labor of house cleaning may be avoided by the exercise of good judgment and management. Pleasant weather must be selected for the work, usually the first of May is the best time to begin. Every thing should be in readiness beforehand. Brooms, brushes, tacks and strings should be provided. The windows and paints can be perfectly cleaned by washing with warm water and Ivory Soap; the free use of lime and borax will purify and deodorize the premises.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. WAS HE BLUFFING?

The Very Disagreeable Revelation of a Man Who Was in No Hurry.

At four o'clock one Friday afternoon not long ago as Mr. T—— was busily engaged at his desk in a down town office a man walked in and inquired for Mr. B——, who occupies a desk at the opposite side of the same office. Mr. T——thought he recognized the man as an unwelcome caller. When asked if Mr. B—— was in, without raising his eyes from the work before him, Mr. T—— answered, "No, he is not," whereupon the caller remarked that as he was not very busy he thought he would sit down and wait.

At five o'clock he was still waiting.

At 5:30, still waiting.

A few minutes before six Mr. T—— closed his desk for the day and prepared to go home. The caller ventured to ask if Mr. B—— was likely to return to his office again that day. Mr. T—— answered:

"No; he is in Buffalo and will be back next Tuesday morning."

The caller showed no anger. On the contrary he smiled.

"Don't apologize," he said; "my business was not important, and your office has proved a pleasant lounging place. Fact is," he blandly added, "I suppose I'm coming down with the smallpox and the doctor told me I must stay indoors and keep warm."

And Mr. T—— anxiously wonders whether he was lying or not.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

ONE reason Mrs. Pinkham's treatment helps women so promptly is that they have confidence in her.

Through some of the many thousands of Mrs. Pinkham's friends an ailing woman will be led to write to Mrs. Pinkham at her home in Lynn, Mass., and will tell her symptoms. The reply, made without charge of any kind, will bear such evidence of knowledge of the trouble that belief in her advice at once inspires hope.

CONFIDENCE HELPS TO CURE

This of itself is a great help. Then the knowledge that women only see the letters asking for advice and women only assist Mrs. Pinkham in replying makes it easy to be explicit about the little things that define the disease.

MRS. ELIZA THOMAS, of 634 Pine St., Easton, Pa., writes: "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I doctored with two of the best doctors in the city for two years and had no relief until I began the use of your remedies. My trouble was ulceration of the womb. I suffered something terrible, could not sleep nights and thought sometimes that death would be such a relief. To-day I am a well woman, able to do my own work, and have not a pain. I used four bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and three packages of Sanative Wash and cannot thank you enough for the good it did me."

MRS. M. STODDARD, Box 268, Springfield, Minn., writes: "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—For about four years I was a great sufferer from female troubles. I had backache all of the time, no appetite, pains in stomach, fainting spells, was weak and my system was completely run down. I also had falling of womb so bad that I could scarcely walk across the floor. After taking two bottles of your Vegetable Compound and one box of Lozengers, can say I am cured."

Life Saved by Swamp-Root.

The Great Discovery That Cures Kidney and Bladder Troubles.

Statistics prove that more people are brought to the grave by diseases of the kidneys and bladder than by any other disease.

For many years medical science has been trying to discover some remedy that would positively overcome these dangerous troubles.

But not until recently was the discovery made. Doctor Kilmer, the eminent physician and scientist, after years of study and research, and after test on test that never varied in the grand result, announced the discovery of Swamp-Root, which has proven itself a most wonderful cure for all diseases of the kidneys and bladder.

While Swamp-Root has proven such a remarkable success in curing kidney and bladder diseases, it has also proved equally invaluable in the cure of blood diseases, rheumatism, liver and stomach troubles and in the regulation and cure of all uric acid troubles.

Swamp-Root has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work, in private practice, among the helpless too poor to purchase relief, and has proved so successful in every case, that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent absolutely free by mail. Also a book telling more about Swamp-Root and containing some of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women who owe their good health, in fact, their very lives, to the wonderful curative properties of Swamp-Root. Be sure and mention this paper when sending your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

This great modern discovery is for sale at most drug-stores in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

LEGISLATIVE GOSSIP

Our Special Correspondent Tells of the Solons' Doings.

The Work of the Session is Finished With the Usual Scenes of Hilarity. The Closing Hours Devoted Mainly to Killing Bills.

St. Paul, April 12.—The Senate took another turn at killing the 4 per cent. gross earnings railroad tax yesterday. It will be remembered that the judiciary committee reported in favor of indefinitely postponing the house bill raising the figure from 3 to 4 per cent. Then a motion to reconsider was laid upon the table and a motion to take it from the table failed. The opponents of the bill argued that this killed it. Lieut. Gov. Smith cited the rules of Congress, showing that in both branches a bill in that condition would be considered dead, and followed this with a ruling that this bill is alive and can be taken from tabie at any time a majority of the Senate reorders. At 2 p. m., a call of the Senate was ordered and Senators Schaller and McGowan were found to be absent. Senator Schaller soon appeared and then the hunt for McGowan was prosecuted. A Sargeant-at-arms was sent to his home in Minneapolis, but failed to produce him and after three hours of futile effort it was given up and a vote was taken on taking the bill from the table. This was defeated by 27 yeas to 34 nays. After the vote was announced two of the twenty-seven announced that they would not vote again to take it from the table, so the bill can now be considered as being dead.

The omnibus appropriation bill was reported in both houses and made the special order in each for today.

A resolution was passed by the Senate to have a statute of Henry M. Rice, one of the first U. S. Senators from Minnesota, placed in one of the two Minnesota niches in the national capitol.

One of the bills passed requires railroads to build platforms at stations to facilitate the handling of grain and live stock. Another one is for the preservation of forests and to create fever boards.

In the House an Anoka-Hastings asylum bill was sprung which obviates the objection of the Governor in that it gives each town a county asylum at an aggregate cost not to exceed $125,000. An attempt to rush the bill through failed and it was made the special order for today. The bill allowing public officials to have their salaries garnisheed for debt was passed.

St. Paul, April 13, 1899.—Though the senate refused to raise the gross earnings tax on the railroads, it treated the express companies differently yesterday. The express companies have been paying 3 per cent on their gross earnings, but Representative Dwyer got a bill through the house raising it to 6 per cent. The senate compromised on 4½ per cent and passed the bill with only one dissenting vote. Senator McGowan made an elaborate explanation of his absence yesterday, claiming that he had not promised to be present and did not expect the gross earnings tax bill would be taken up at that time. The omnibus appropriation bill occupied the entire afternoon in the senate and was less than half completed when an adjournment was taken. The only notable change made was relative to the amount for publishing the laws in the newspapers. The appropriation has usually been $40,000, but the committee had cut it to $30,000. The senate, with but one dissenting vote, reinstated it at the old figure.

The house passed the amended Anoka-Hastings asylum bill with but little trouble. Some speeches were made against it, but its friends relied on the votes and did not talk. It passed by 68 to 37. It not only limits the Anoka plant to $125,000, but requires that the sum shall fully equip the building. It is also to be used, at the discretion of the trustees, for chronic insane only. If the senate passes this amended bill, it will be the entering wedge for ultimately two large institutions at Hastings and Anoka respectively.

The house also had the omnibus appropriation bill as a special order and made so much better progress than the senate that the bill was passed before adjournment. It went through almost as it came from the committee, with the exception of raising the appropriation for publishing the laws in the newspapers to the old figure of $40,000, just as the senate did. Mr. Jacobson, chairman of the appropriation committee was the only one who spoke against the change.

An effort to tack on an amendment making an appropriation for continuous sessions of the normal schools failed. To the surprise, even of the Duluth delegation, the item appropriating $75,000 for a new normal school at Duluth passed. The present normal school management wanted to get money for continuous sessions of existing institutions instead of building a fifth one at Duluth and the indications were that as the normal school advocates were clashing among themselves both would fail. The bill appropriates about $1,800,000. In order to save time the senate will probably lay aside its own bill and take up the house bill and pass it, as so far both bodies have agreed upon the only important amendment.

St. Paul, April 14.—The senate is not inclined to help the public examiner out according to his request for more money for clerk hire. A bill is pending granting the examiner an extra allowance of $300 for clerk hire, and the attempt today was to jump it from the committee of the whole to the calendar. The senate made a party question of it, saying that the present Democratic examiner had as much money as his Republican predecessor, and as the Republican had been censured by the Democrats for not accomplishing more, they proposed to let the present incumbent stand on the same basis. The effort to advance the bill was very decidedly defeated. The house refused to concur with the senate in reducing the tax on express companies from 6 to 4½ per cent of their gross earnings, and a conference committee was appointed. About 11 a. m. the senate took up the omnibus appropriation bill, and it was not until 7 p. m. that its consideration was concluded. There was scrapping all along the line. The bill which passed the house last night was substituted for the senate bill. One big contention was the question of continuous session of the normal schools. This was voted down in the house, but the senate put in an amendment to the bill making continuous session in all four schools and appropriating $30,000 a year for two years, or a total of $60,000, to maintain them. The big fight was on the item appropriating $75,000 for a fifth normal school at Duluth. This came on at 5 p. m., and was the last item in the bill. The fight lasted until 7 p. m., and created quite a bitter debate. The section was adopted by just one majority, the same that it had in the house. Then an attempt was made to defeat the whole appropriation, and in the excitement that nearly proved successful, the bill only passing by one majority, the closest vote on an appropriation bill in the history of the state.

The senate amendments increase the appropriation bill $120,090. It is quite uncertain whether the house will vote the $60,000 for continuous sessions of the normal schools, and it is also an open question whether the governor will not veto the $75,000 appropriation for the Duluth normal school. He can veto any item in the bill he wishes to.

Speaker Dare received word this forenoon that his wife, who has been ill for some time, was dying at their home at Elk River, and shortly before noon he resigned the gavel to Mr. Roberts. Speaker Dare returned home this afternoon. With a good deal of opposition and many wry grimaces the house today concurred in the senate amendment to the game and fish law, cutting out spring duck shooting. Owing to the affliction of the speaker, the morning session was quite brief and the afternoon was devoted to considering bills in the committee of the whole. Bills requiring the manufacturers of baking powders to print on their packages the ingredients and to prevent the adulteration of white lead and mixed paints, were recommended to pass. The bill reducing the fees for oil inspector from 15 to 7 cents was recommended to pass. As the Standard Oil company pays the fee, it will be quite a help to a struggling corporation.

St. Paul, April 15.—It was decided Friday that Monday night (midnight) is the last hour for passing bills. The question between Monday, the 17th, or Tuesday, the 18th, being the last day, has been mooted for some time and the popular impression has been that Tuesday was the last, but this proves to have been an error. So far the governor has only sent about 250 bills to the secretary of state with his approval, and perhaps no more than 100 more will get through, making the actual completed legislative work unusually light. Senator McGowan offered a resolution to have his absence when the 4 per cent gross earnings bill was defeated, investigated, but Senator Snyder gave notice of debate, throwing the resolution over until tomorrow. The session is so near its close that it is doubtful whether an investigation will be ordered. The senate unanimously adopted a resolution asking the president to expurge from the war records the order of Gen. Young, accusing the officers of the Fifteenth Minnesota of cowardice at the time of the riot at Augusta, Ga., over the shooting of one of the men of the regiment by a saloonkeeper. The house Hastings-Anoka insane asylum bill passed the senate after an hour's debate. As the bill has been made to conform to the governor's views, it will doubtless become a law. The senate held its first evening session last night, and finished up the 165 bills in committee of the whole. The majority were sent to third reading, so that with those already in that order there are now about 80 bills before that body for final action.

The bill for the Itasca state park was recommended to pass. The same treatment was accorded to the bill asked by the retail grocers requiring assignment of debts to be recorded in the office of the city or town clerk. The sugar beet bounty bill, which has passed the house, was passed over which is almost equivalent to defeat. The bill requiring notaries public to have their names on their seals was defeated.

Speaker Dare's wife being a little better he returned to his post yesterday, but Mr. Staples was chosen speaker pro tem to provide for any emergency.

The house refused to concur with the senate amendments to the appropriation bill and appointed a conference committee. The contest is over the appropriation of $60,000 for continuous sessions of the normal schools.

The bill allowing saloon men to transfer their licenses occupied the attention of the house a large portion of the forenoon and was finally recommended to pass.

The house does not propose to accept the senate anti-trust bill and wants one more drastic. Congressman Tawney is credited with having drafted a new bill, and an attempt will be made to substitute it. The bill is being made a political issue.

St. Paul, April 17.—The senate passed a few days ago a bill requiring suit to be brought against the Chicago Great Western railway to collect 3 per cent tax on its gross earnings. The road is now paying 2 per cent, claiming that that is all it is required to pay under its territorial charter. The bill was introduced by Senator Shellback and is now in the House. The Minneapolis Journal claimed that the bill was designed to repeal the Andeman bill taxing railroad lands and that this was its concealed purpose. An opinion of Attorney General Douglas given to Representative Jacobson carried out this view. Saturday Senator McGill offered resolutions condemning the article, strongly endorsing the integrity of Senator Shellback and declaring that the bill does not repeal the Andeman law. A large number of senators spoke for the resolution, during which the attorney general was sharply criticised. The resolution passed unanimously.

The conference committees are having hard work to agree. The committee on the general appropriation bill reported to each house that they could not agree on the item of $60,000 for continuous sessions of the normal schools and new committees were appointed. The new committee agreed tonight to recommend that the senate recede and cut out the continuous sessions. This report will be made Monday morning to both houses. The conference committee on the gross earnings tax on the express companies was also unable to agree. The tax is now 3 per cent. The house raised it to 6 and the senate made it 4½. The house committee offered to compromise on 5 per cent, but the senate committee refused, and a new conference committee was appointed. Thirty-nine bills were passed and over 50 left pending when the senate adjourned tonight. Senator McGowman secured the appointment of a committee to investigate his absence when the 4 per cent tax on railroad earnings was acted upon.

The house promptly passed the new anti-trust bill as a substitute for the senate bill. It was sent to the senate for concurrence. The house either passed or defeated every bill on the calendar at the morning session and devoted the afternoon to considering bills in committee of the whole.

The Shellback bill voted in the senate proceedings, was amended to prevent its affecting the Andeman bill and recommended to pass.

The governor signed the Anoka-Hastings insane asylum bill.

St. Paul, April 18.—Yesterday being the last day for passing bills by the legislature, it was a lively one. The senate had 71 bills on third reading in the morning and 42 in committee of the whole. The house had 39 ready for passage and 34 in committee of the whole. The beet sugar bounty bill, which has been up at intervals all of the session, came in for a good deal of consideration. Weeks ago the senate passed a bill repealing the bounty entirely. The house delayed action on this repeal bill, and in return sent to the senate a bill amending the present law to still continue paying one cent per pound bounty on sugar, but limiting the amount to $50,000 in any one year, and if a larger sum would be earned, that rate per pound is to be reduced. This bill came up in the senate yesterday and an amendment was added requiring the factories to pay $4.50 per ton to the farmers for beets. After adopting this amendment the senate killed the bill. Later the house reached the repeal bill and killed that. This left the old law standing which gives a bounty of one cent per pound without any limit as to the sum which might be required. When the senate heard of this it reconsidered its action and passed the amended house bill which limited the amount to $50,000. Then the house, very strangely, refused to compel the factories to pay $4.50 to the farmers, and the bill went to a conference committee, which cut the amount to $4.25, and in that shape it finally passed both branches.

The bill reducing the fees of the state oil inspector from 15 to 7 cents per gallon was defeated in the senate.

The report of the conference committee on the omnibus appropriation, which cuts out $60,000 for the continuous session of the normal schools, was adopted by both houses, and the bill now only awaits the governor's signature to become a law. As he can veto any item in the bill, without disturbing the rest of it, it is possible that some other matters may be cut out. It is hinted that the governor will veto the item of $75,000 for the building of a normal school at Duluth. All during the day and evening the house was obstreperous and deliberately delayed business with the evident deliberate intention of allowing a large number of bills to fail, and many bills were lost which otherwise might have been acted upon. Motion after motion was made to advance bills from the committee of the whole to the calendar and voted down with derisive laughter. There was no particular objection to the bills, but simply a determination to let nothing advance.

There was just one exception, and that was a bill to allow university students who went to war in 1898 to be reinstated in their classes on their return if they so wished. The house sobered down sufficiently to allow this bill to be advanced out of its order and be passed.

PLEASED WITH ALBERTA.

An Excellent Report from Wisconsin and Minnesota Delegates.

The opinion of five delegates from Minnesota and Wisconsin, published by the Edmonton Bulletin, are very complimentary to Northern Alberta. The report says:

"We must say with all sincerity that, driving all over the country for six days, we have not found one settler who was not more than pleased with the country and its productions, and will not return to the land he left. We have seen people here from all parts of the states and all doing well. We met a Dakota farmer by the name of McLean, who has informed us that he has raised more grain here in three years than he did in 12 where he came from, on half as much ground. We have seen a number of others, both men and women, and all speak in the same strain about Alberta. They all look well and contented; even the children are happy. In our drives over the country, in passing the countless schoolhouses, we could only see happiness in the faces of the little ones. We noticed them all well dressed, equal if not better than the same class of children in the State of Minnesota.

The wheat that is raised here is just beautiful, the kernel full and plump and may well be termed golden grain, yielding 30 to 55 bushels to the acre. This statement is not from one farmer, but from hundreds, who tell the same tale. Oats yield from 70 to 100 bushels to the acre, barley from 40 to 60 bushels and potatoes from 300 to 400 bushels to the acre.

We have taken particular notice of the climate in regard to the difference between this country and our own. When we left Ada, Minnesota, we were in the midst of a real Dakota blizzard. When we arrived at Edmonton we found the people on the streets still wearing summer clothing, no mittens on their hands and far less use for them. The country is simply more than we ever dreamed of. The printed matter sent out by the Government does not half tell of the grand country in Alberta, open for millions of people to make beautiful homes for themselves. Too much cannot be said in praise. It is all and more than the greatest eulogist ever thought of giving to the public.

We saw cattle and horses in herds grazing on the prairie like in summer time, all sleek and fat. We were informed by several farmers that most of the stock run out all winter. We also found the market extra good here for beef and pork. Hogs fetch 4½c live weight. Three-year-old steers will bring from $40 to $45 right from the prairie. Coal and wood are here in abundance. Coal is sold in the town of Edmonton for $2 per ton and farmers can secure coal at the mines themselves for 75c per load.

Before closing we say to you one and all, come to Alberta, where there are homes for millions and a promise for something to lay by for an old age. We are well satisfied with this country, and as evidence have each bought a half section of C. P. R. land in township 55, range 21, west of the 4th initial meridian, and will return next spring to reside.

Hoping this may be of some benefit to the overburdened farmers of the United States.

Sent by Floyd Dean, son of E. S. Dean, of Beanville, Mich., who is now in Alberta, and has taken up 160 acres there.

"I think it's one of the worst things that ever happened. It's an imposition, that's what it is. Pretty soon it'll be so that the man who goes into the woods 19 miles from the nearest postoffice for the purpose of getting away from his business may receive a message at any moment calling him home to attend to something that, in case it had gone wrong in his absence, he could have blamed somebody else for."—Chicago Evening News.

There is No Remedy the Equal of Pe-ru-na in All Their Peculiar Ills.

Miss Susan Wymar.

Miss Susan Wymar, teacher in the Richmond school, Chicago, Ill., writes the following letter to Dr. Hartman regarding Pe-ru-na. She says: "Only those who have suffered with sleeplessness from over-work in the school-room, such as I have, can know what a blessing it is to be able to find relief by spending a couple of dollars for some Pe-ru-na. This has been my experience. A friend in need is a friend indeed, and every bottle of Pe-ru-na I ever bought proved a good friend to me."—Susan Wymar.

Mrs. Margaretha Dauben, 1214 North Superior St., Racine City, Wis., writes: "I feel so well and good and happy now that pen cannot describe it. Pe-ru-na is everything to me. I feel healthy and well, but if I should be sick I will know what to take. I have taken several bottles of Pe-ru-na for female complaint. I am in the change of life and it does me good."

HIS OLD YELLOW ALMANAC.

I left the farm when mother died, and changed my place of dwellin'
To daughter Susie's stylish house, right in the city street,
And there was them, before I came, that sort of scared me tellin'
How I would find the town-folks' ways so difficult to meet.
They said I'd have no comfort in the
rustlin' fixed-up throng,
And I'd have to wear stiff collars every weekday right along.

I find I take to city ways just like a duck to water.
I like the racket and the noise, and never tire of shows;
And there's no end of comfort in the mansion of my daughter,
And everything is right at hand, and money freely flows;
And hired help is all about, just listenin'
for my call,
But I miss the yellow almanac off my kitchen wall.

The house is full of calendars from attic to the cellar;
They're painted in all colors, and are fancy-like to see.
But just in this particular I'm not a modern feller,
And the yellow-covered almanac is good enough for me;
I'm used to it, I've seen it round from boyhood to old age,
And I rather like the jokin' at the bottom

I like the way the "S" stood out to show the week's beginnin'
(In these new-fangled calendars the days seemed sort of mixed),
And the man upon the cover, though he wasn't exactly winnin'
With lungs and liver all exposed, still showing how we are fixed;
And the letters, credentials that was writ
to Mr. Ayer,
I've often, on a rainy day, found readin'
very fair.

I tried to find one recently; there wa'n't one in the city,
They toted out great calendars in every sort of style;
I looked at 'em in cold disdain, and answered 'em in pity:
"I'd rather have my almanac than all that costly pile."
And, though I take to city life, I'm lonesome, after all,
For that old yellow almanac upon my kitchen wall.

Proof Positive.

Two men were standing outside a jewelers' window admiring the gorgeous display of glittering gems that lay before them. Presently one of them, pointing to an object in a red plush tray, said:

"Just look at that scarfpin, representing a fly. Anyone can tell that's not real."

"Well, I should think so," answered the friend. "Who ever saw a common fly with such a bright appearance? Why, it makes me weary when I think that the jeweler who produced that fondly hoped that some one would purchase it to deceive his friends. If I saw that on a man's scarf I could tell directly that it was an enameled imitation."

At that moment the object of their condemnation moved across the tray, flew in the air, and vanished. The two men looked at each other, gasped, and moved away without a word.—Pearson's Weekly.

ALABASTINE

LABASTINE is the original and only durable wall coating, entirely different from all kalsomines. Ready for use in white or twelve beautiful tints by adding cold water.

ADIES naturally prefer ALABASTINE for walls and ceilings, because it is pure, clean, durable. Put up in dry powdered form, in five-pound packages, with full directions.

LL kalsomines are cheap, temporary preparations made from whiting, chalks, clays, etc., and stuck on walls with decaying animal glue. ALABASTINE is not a kalsomine.

EWARE of the dealer who says he can sell you the "same thing" as ALABASTINE or "something just as good." He is either not posted or is trying to deceive you.

ND IN OFFERING something he has bought cheap and tries to sell on ALABASTINE'S demands, he may not realize the damage you will suffer by a kalsomine on your walls.

ENSIBLE dealers will not buy a lawsuit. Dealers risk one by selling and consumers by using infringement. Alabastine Co. own right to make wall coating to mix with cold water.

HE INTERIOR WALLS of every schoolhouse should be coated only with pure, durable ALABASTINE. It safeguards health. Hundreds of tons are used annually for this work.

N BUYING ALABASTINE, see that packages are properly labeled. Beware of large four-pound package light kalsomine offered to customers as a five-pound package.

UISANCE of wall paper is obviated by ALABASTINE. It can be used on plastered walls, wood ceilings, brick or canvas. A child can brush it on. It does not rub or scale off.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY [illegible], 1899.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Seeding is now in order and the ground is in fine condition. A bountiful crop is looked for next fall.

—Clark Sturman was in Tuesday, buying lumber to build a smoke house on his farm. Clark says he proposes to smoke some meat himself.

—Street Commissioner Welker with a crew of men are at work giving the streets and alleys an unusually thorough spring cleaning.

—Joe Stein is building a barn. F. H. Lindsley is making additions to his home, and neighbor Mowatt is having some shingling done on his residence.

—On Saturday evening Roscoe Sturman entertained 30 of his young friends at his 15th birthday celebration. Of course a good time was had.

—Pickerel spearing and shooting has been the principle amusement for a good many this week. It is claimed the opportunity for a good catch never was better.

—The M. E. S. S. is thankful to a St. paul S. S. for a present of a supply of singing books. Also to Miss Julia Cunningham for the part she took in securing the donation.

—Thanks to the ingenuity of Peter R. Peterson and the enterprise of Wandersee Bros., a feather renevator has been attached to the laundry and become one of the industries of Delano.

—People must be very hungry for fish who wade in the lake up to their waists in order to spear a few. We had sooner catch them on a hook, or buy them from the fellow who likes wading in ice water.

—Adam Horsch says his increasing business crowded him out of his office and he has filled that building with sash and doors, and has had a new small office built. He expects before long to build a big house above high water mark and have room enough for business, office and all. Surely the West side is booming.

—Frequent complaints are heard of children making playgrounds of neighbors yards, to the detriment of the general appearance of the premises and the ruffling of the tempers of property owners. One old batch says: "Parents ought to restrain their progeny or give them some lessons in regard to the above they will remember."

—Some of our citizens were questioning the physical ability of Prof. Carleton to manage the Delano High School, of which he has been elected principal. But on learning that he had no time for waiting for railroads and such, but just footed it up from Minneapolis Saturday, all doubt as to his having sand has been removed.

—Now that spring has opened up the complaints handed in to the Health Officer are quite numerous. People should be a little considerate of their neighbors privileges and not trespass on them. A much more friendly feeling will exist among neighbors if they will just try to have things about as they know they ought to be.

—Mr. Bullen's truck horse ran away Saturday last, distributing a load of finishing lumber for a block leading from his sheds. The rear part of the wagon became disconnected from the front part near Mowatt's place on 3rd street, the horse continuing, with the two front wheels, to the barn, but little damage was done however. Mr. Bullen and son were putting a fine $12 window and sash into the wagon when the horse started but fortunately it was not injured.

—The naughty Old Bird if still suffering from fear of her life. Since Dr. Catlin's elm tree was cut down it was hoped she could rest easy. Now she has found a water shut off sticking up in Tim Gleason's sidewalk. She reminds us of that other tradition-old maid that was questioned as to why she was crying, and who answered "I was just thinking if I should get married, and have a baby and the chimney should fall down on it. boo, hoo."

—The Board of Education met Saturday evening and hired teachers except for the Primary room. Prof. Hubert Carleton, of New Ulm, was the unanimous choice for Principal. Miss Cotton for assistant; salary $55. Mrs. Tupper, Grammer room; A unanimously signed petition from her pupils was handed in to the board for her re employment. Miss Anna R. Quinn was re-employed. Miss Webber takes Miss Hobarts place. Several applicants for the primary department were asked to visit the board so they might make a choice. Janitor Carlson was allowed half pay for Christmas holidays. Miss Arnold was allowed $4 50 from book tax money for use in arranging a free entertainment in the near future.

—The village council held a meeting Monday evening. They agreed to arrange for sprinkling streets, by May 1. Mr. Mucky reported ladder at the watertank in bad repair. It was ordered fixed. Fire Chief Mealey was authorized to purchase some needed supplies for fire company. It was decided that hydrant wrenches should be fastened to hose when not in use. Committe on poor reported arrangement made with Mrs. Leudasher for taking care of Mrs. Dugan for $12. per month. Bond of Street Commissioner Welker accepted. Bonds of P. F. Sexton were accepted and license to sell intoxicating liquors granted.

County Cullings.

The Old Bird says "Editor Catlin is after the oil inspectorship at Delano." We don't know where she got her information. We have met the Governor once since election and he didn't say a word about oil inspector at Delano to us. If the Eagle Editor had read his county exchanges, several weeks back; or even his own news this week, plate matter, he might have learned of the selection of Editor DeHaven, of the Maple Lake Messenger, as Oil Inspector for Wright County.

Among seniors at the Gustavus Adolphus College at St. Peter who have attained the highest standing in the College course and who have been appointed commencement speakers, we notice the name of E. O. Chelgren, Cokato. Tally one for Wright county.

Senator Chilton seems to have opposed the resolution asking for the return of the soldier volunteers from the Philippines. Even though their work, for which they enlisted, has been done, they are held out on the firing line in a guirilla warfare against the very people for whose liberty they were enlisted to fight and he knows it is wrong and yet he don't evidently dare vote against the administration's wrong doing. The Senator wouldn't even let his boy go to fight in "humanitarian war". Possibly he was far seeing then, but a little short sighted now.

Among Our Exchanges.

St. Cloud Times: The American losses in the Philippines since February are 201 killed, and 974 wounded. Such thus far is the life cost of expansion, not including the many who have died of disease.

Sherburne County Times: It is again reported that Secretary Alger is to resign. Let us hope it is true, not only for the good of the party but of the whole country as well.

Wabasha Standard: Gov. Lind last week vetoed the bill authorizing insane hospitals at both Anoka and Hastings, and we believe he did right.

Anoka Herald: The Wilson bill was overwhelmingly defeated in the lower house Monday, as it should have been. If it had become a law it would have practically freed the Youngers by allowing them almost unlimited parole privileges.

Sherburne County Times: The Wilson bill for the parole of the Younger Brothers has received its quietus in the house by the decisive vote of 63 to 31. The house members have evidently heard from their constituents. Representatives Mallette and Boutwell voted for the bill and Elwell against it; Speaker Dare not voting. Tally one for the house.

From Manila.

MANILA, P. I., March 18, 1899.

Father: At the late hour of 8:00 last night the welcome news came that we would be relieved from police duty, and that we would be pushed out at 8:00 o'clock tomorrow with great rapidity.

Our brigade is said to be Wyoming, 4th regulars, 17th reg., Minnesota and two guns of Utah, under the direct command of Brig. Gen. Hall, recently Col. of the 4th regs and in the Division of Gen. Arthur.

When we start we will have one rubber blanket, one woollen blanket, one hat, one blue shirt, one undershirt, one pair of brown pants, pair of shoes and stockings, belt, leggins, gun, 100 rounds of amunition (I have about 120) haversack canteen, knife, fork, spoon, plate and cup, according to the present orders, but I shall take a few small articles such as paper, envelopes, stamps, pencil, compas, of both kinds, and perhaps we will have a few days of rations. We are to be relieved by the 20th so it is stated.

I am in the best of health and I suppose all the rest of the boys are the same. I have not been able to leave the quarters to go visiting for some time, therefore I am not able to say. Although I received news of Perry who is in N. D. and on the firing line. The natives do not understand what war is I guess by the way it is conducted, with the exception of cutting off the supplies from the interior. They burned one railroad bridge but left several complete trains in the best of trim which we readily took, and have had trains running daily from the line to Manila, transporting wounded soldiers to the hospital and taking out men and supplies.

They are continually firing on our lines in some portion or other. The first night is the only night that we were attacked from every side.

Now there is one brigade on the fly, consisting of 3 regiments 20th, 22nd regulars and Oregon. They do the best of fighting when it is to be found.

At the rate the men are picked off lately we can hold out for some time to come, because there are seldom more than 15 or 20 wounded and killed.

Tonight news has come to the effect that there are now in custody 2,000 natives and nearly 1,000 more killed near Pasig. The 3,000 were surrounded, then fired upon by the boats and men till it began to look too much like murder, then the rest were made prisoners.

The mode of fighting is very poor because they will expose a white flag then fire upon our men who come out to see what is wanted. "The only good native is a dead one" is the talk of some.

Now we have waited so long that the insurgents are beginning to fire volleys as good as we do, although they are a trifle high; but the condfounded papers are always telling how high they shoot, therefore they are beginning to get the range much better. We will move down to the old Spanish quarters at the end of the bridge of Spain, which are both comfortable and nicely arranged, where we shall sleep tomorrow night, then Monday we will cut the wind for the insurgents to put down the "cause of humanity" that we came into the Philippines to so proudly fight the Spanish for. Now that we have won, we must now give them a shower of bullets, long toms, and cassion schrapnel and solid shot, because they did not like the idea of "poga, poca tempo" (I will pay after while) which in a great many cases became beyond the means of the American soldier and also beyond the endurance of the business people who so generously trusted our men at their word.

The navy and artillery are the stronest part of the defense, one shell many times killing close onto a hundred insurgents. After the regiment gets to the front I will let you know how things are getting along if it is possible, and all things are possible.

Yours, A. G. CATLIN.

Health Officer's Notice.

Merriam Consults Hanna.

Washington, April 15.—(Special to The Herald)—Governor Merriam says he has not appointed Capt. Barrows of the Fifteenth Minnesota as special agent in his bureau nor to any other place. It is said in Washington that Merriam is very careful about making appointments, and hardly dares to give out a $1,000 clerkship without consulting his great friend, Senator Hanna, and Minnesota applicants will do well to pull that string if they want to land.—Duluth Herald.

How to Breed Deficit.

A deficit threatens the British Government, and it is proposed to impose an import tax on sugar, grain, flour and meal. This illustrates the difference between Free-Trade theory and practice, and also the difference between the Protection principle and the Tariff for revenue only idea. Under the Dingley law duties are imposed mainly on articles of foreign manufacture that come into competition with the products of our own labor. Under the English system duties are imposed mainly on articles not produced in England, but which every Englishman must have. In England everybody knows who pays the tax."—Chicago "Inter-Ocean."

The above taken from the American Economist shows how the G. O. P. want to fool people, and they have actually drilled many of their party in this coutry to believe that they never paid any tariff. We know a well to do man who has raised a good sized family in moderate circumstances and a staunch Republican, right or wrong, who insist that he never paid a dollar to run this government, though he has lived in the United States all his life. Nothing like thorough drilling.

School Essays.

Abraham Lincoln.

Abraham Lincoln was born in Kentucky, February 12, 1809. His father and mother were very poor. They used to eat out of wooden plates and drink out of tin cups. His bed was made of leaves. They used to eat corn mush and corn bread. He went to school with his sister Sarah. He and his sister could read and write, but his father could not read or write. His mother could. When he had to write his numbers, he had to write with charcoal. He only had two books and these were the life of Washington and the book of Robinson Crusoe. In school they had to sit on logs. His sister Sarah would go with him. One day he borrowed a book from a man. When he went to bed that night he took the book with him, then he put the book between the logs. That night there was a storm, and the next day the book was spoiled. Then he went to the man and said: "What could I do for this book?"

The man said: "Work in the field three days or pay 75 cents." so he worked in the field three days.

They had skins over the door to keep out the snow and wind, and over the window they had skins to keep out the wind and snow. Then they moved to Indiana. Then his mother died and his father married Miss Johnston. She had three more children. She was very kind to him and his sister Sarah.

Then they moved to Illinois. Then he took a boat and went down to New Orleans and saw some negroes whipped.

There was a war between the North and the South, then they wanted a president so they chose Abraham Lincoln. VERA RADER.

Hiawatha.

Listen dear children, and you shall hear the tale of long ago.

It is all about a little Indian boy named Hiawatha, who lived with his grandmother old Nokomis in a queer home called a wigwam.

A wigwam is the Indian home made of skins or cloth which looks very much like a tent.

By the shining big sea water stood the wigwam of Nokomis.

Right behind it rose the forest.

Right before it beat the shining big-sea-water

The days soon made Hiawatha larger.

When he was a little baby he was rocked in a linded cradle lined with moss. Nokomis lulled him asleep singing. And this was her song:

"Eay yea my little owlet

Who is this that lights the wigwam with his bright eyes?

Eay yea my little owlet.

Iagoo said to him one day: "I will make you a bow and arrow." So he made him a bow and arrow, and then he said to Hiawatha: "Go my son, go into the forest and shoot for us a red deer.

Iagoo made him a bow of ash and an arrow of oak.

The birds saw the arrow and said to Hiawatha, "Do not shoot me".

As the squirrel ran up the tree it said to Hiawatha, "Do not shoot me."

As the rabit ran across the pathway it said, "Do not shoot me."

And pretty soon the red deer came and then Hiawatha aimed an arrow and it stunned the deer. It died. That day Hiawatha carried the red deer home. Iagoo was waiting for him, and when he got home Iagoo took the red deer.

Nokomis made Hiawatha a cloak, and then she made him a dinner and invited all of his friends.

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

All Three Together for Only $2.25

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

GOV. LIND has appointed Monday, May 1, as Arbor and Bird Day. Let the people observe the day in an appropriate manner.

COL. AMES telegraphed Gov. Lind April 21, that Nicholos Hanson, Co. A. and Ira S. Towle Co. F. 13th Minn. were severely wounded.

IN retiring at this time from politics, Tom Reed is strengthening his chances for being the nominee of the Republican party for President, at the next election.

NEW JERSEY the home of the trusts, and Texas the residence of the Lillie Whites each offer a regiment to go to the Philippines to "Mow down the natives" or to see them "run like jack rabits".

ANOKA and Hastings each are to have an asylum for insane. This seems to have been a compromise. But as usual Delano was not counted in; likewise several other towns that offered sites for asylums.

GEN. C. MC C. REEVE, who went to Manila as Col. of the 13th is at home, in Minneapolis. He was promoted to Gen. after arriving in Manila and subsequently discharged. He is not favorably impressed with the war against the Filipinos.

GEORGIA seems likely to have a race war. Several negroes have lately been lynched very unceremously, and the black people are getting revengeful. Even Bob Ingersoll "hopes and believes the Christian people" will interfere with such lynchings.

THAT offer of a Texas regiment to take the place of our Minnesota boys in the Philippines whose time has expired, having been made in the style it was leads us to suspect it was made by Lillie Whites. We don't think the ordinary Texan entertains any such idea as that Minnesota soldiers are not the genuine article.

IT jars our nerves considerably to read of three or four negroes being hung or burned by our fellow citizens in Georgia; but they are not soothed any by reading that our United States soldiers, enlisted to fight for freedom, are being ordered out to shoot "like jack rabits" the very people they went to the Philippines to free.

IT may be excitement for soldiers to shoot Filipinos "like jack rabbits" as they run, but we don't consider it a credit to the government of a free people to send troops out to do so. Our volunteers enlisted to lift the yoke of Spain from the necks of Cubans, not to put a heavier yoke on Filipinos fighting for liberty.

THE Annandale Advocate objects to our saying our boys "went into the fight for freedom" and ought not to be used to fight those they went to free. He says: "Your noble Filipino is on that same level as the criminal element the police have to fight at home." This is a free country, and if it knows no better the Advocate of Imperialism can print such stuff, subject to the criticism of those who think differently. From what we know of the subject the Annandale editor could learn civilization, Christianity, humanity, and patriotism from the Filipinos

THE Litchfield News-Ledger publishes extracts from a letter from Geo Harding, Co. M, 13th Minn. Vol., Manila, P. I., to his parents, at Darwin. The letter was dated March 18, and the regiment was preparing to leave Manila for the front, a change Geo. thought he would like. He says: "I try to do my duty and make the best of things but a fellow can't stand it for ever, and everybody kicks at Uncle Sam for keeping us. Most of this regiment will see the U. S. go to thunder before they will enlist again. We didn't enlist for half a dozen wars. It is a shameful trick for them to play."

IF the people of the United States are so dreadfully anxious that soldiers stay in the Philippines until the "last nigger is dead" it would be much more satisfactory to the friends of the volunteers whose time has expired if they shou'd be immediately returned to their homes, and those so anxious to expan' our domains be given a chance to enlist. Congress provided for 35,000 additional volunteers and it is too bad to deprive those expansion howlers of the opportunity of, as the St. Paul Pioneer Press headline of Tuesday reads "Mowing Down Natives", or as dispatches before said, seeing them "run like jack rabbits". Do give the expansionists a chance to enlist, if you MUST continue the war of extermination.

Political Capital.

"If it leak out generally in the South that Mr. Bryan sat down to dinner with colored men and women his prospects will be seriously damaged with some of the faithful."—Pioneer Press.

The above, of course is for political capital. Why didn't the Pioneer think of that when Mr. Bryan addressed the Minnesota legislators, one of whom is as black as the blackest? or was the colored man excluded?

Bryan in 1896.

Mr. Bryan said publicly at the Saturday night dinner, speaking of the 1896 campaign: "I carried nearly every state I did not speak in, and lost every state I visited." And can it be that Mr. Bryan sees nothing significiant in that curious fact?—Pioneer Press.

He surely can see, as others do, that in the states where he thought there might be doubt as to his election he went and Mark Hanna fellows likewise went, while in States where neither party made an extra effort Mr. Bryan was the choice of the people, who, unhampered, voted their own way.

An Income Tax.

If Rockefeller lived in England he would have to pay $400,000 per year of an income tax. here he does not pay one cent more than the man who works for four shillings per day.—Lake Crystal Union.

Say, old man, please tell us how the old fellow who works for four shillings, pays taxes. Now don't hesitate.—Jackson Republican.

Well, "old man," if the fellow who works for four shillings a day ever drinks a cup of tea or a glass of beer, or purchases any clothing he pays national taxes, although some editors in this country may not know enough to know it. In other words, the poor man with a large family to provide for, pays more tax to the general government than the rich man without a family. The national taxes are levied, not according to a person's property or his ability to pay, but according to the necessities of himself and family. The system is very unjust, having been devised by rich land owners to shift the taxes upon the poor.—Waseca Herald.

Ought to Soak His Head.

"The whole crowd of anti expansionists, from Bryan down to Andy Lee, are solely intent on manufacturing what they imagine will be political capital, no matter at what cost of blood and treasure to the government."—Minneapolis Tribune.

The fellow that wrote the above squib for the Minneapolis daily ought to soak his head. It surely must need soaking. It is a dirty, low down fling at people who are opposed to pressing our boys into the firing lines after their time of enlistment has expired, simply to get control of islands thousands of miles away from our shores, and to which comparatively few of our citizens have money enough to pay their transportation, did they care to emigrate to them. Talk about political capital, what does this country want of the Philippines? Is there any political capital to be gained by taking them after buying them, and keeping them. We think not at the terrible cost of human lives.

Not in the Bible.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 7, 1899.

The McKinleyites are jubilant because their bluff intended to drive Czar Reed out of Congress has succeeded, and Reed has accepted an offer to join a New York law firm. This means a new deal all around in the House and a general shaking up of the desirable chairmanships, many of which were held in the last House by men who were no more subservient to the administration than Reed himself was. All this will be changed in the organization of the present House, if present plans of the administration can be carried out, and no man will get anything desirable in the way of a chairmanship who does not wear the McKinley collar. There are about a dozen republicans who consider themselves candidates for Speaker of the House; but they are wasting their time. The Speaker and all the important chairmanships of committees will be selected by Boss Hanna and Mr. McKinley and all the Republican caucus will have to do will be to ratify the selections. There will, of course, be republican objection to this programme, but without a stronger leadership than it is likely to have, it will not be able to change it. A friend of Mr. Reed says that he intends as a farewell shot at the administration, to take a hand in the election of his successor. If he only would, there would be a lively scrap, but as his law firm is to make a specialty of corporation practice his partners will doubtless be able to convince him that he can't afford to offend such an influential corporation magnate as Mark Hanna.

The talk about deposing Chairman Jones of the Democratic National Committee because of his extreme silver views is tommyrot of the worst kind. Chairman Jones has represented a majority of the committee, and still does; but his health is in such a condition-he is now at Atlantic City, slowly recovering from his recent serious illness-that his physicians have told him that it will be risking death for him to attempt to do the amount of work he had been doing up to the time he was taken sick. This being the situation, Senator Jones retirement from the position of chairman of the committee was easy to predict, but it was a very small business to try to make it appear that he was to be forced out because he was not this or that, and is calculated to cause a man like Senator Jones to take the bit in his teeth, regardless of his health or the orders of the doctors, and retain the chairmanship until the democratic candidate for President, in accordance with custom, names his successor. Should Senator Jones die under the strain, those who originated the stories mentioned would be as surely murderers as though they had administered poison to him.

Hon. Bartlett Tripp, the American member of the Samoan Commission, which will leave San Francisco next week on the auxiliary cruiser Badger, doesn't regard the trip as anything more than a pleasant summer excursion. He said before leaving Washington: "I do not believe it will take any extended period for the representatives of the three governments interested to agree on some policy that will be satisfactory to all. There are no insurmountable difficulties in the way of an understanding that will protect everybody. It isn't as though the mastery of a continent was involved; the comparative smallness of the interests at Apia is a pretty sure guaranty against trouble of a serious sort." There is more interest in the result of the Commission's investigation of the charge that German treachery was responsible for the ambuscading of American and English marines than in anything else it has to do. Nobody seems to care a continental what the Commission does about the government of the Samoan Islands.

A sharp reprimand to the military censor at Manila was sent by the War Department, because he allowed the remarks of Gen. Lawton about 150,000 men being needed in the Philippines, to be cabled to this country; it is said that Gen. Shafter also got a blot from the same source that he was doing too much talking about his belief that it would be necessary to kill off half of the Filipinos before we could keep peace on the Islands.

Mr. McKinley has decided that it would be bad politics to call for more volunteers to be sent to the Philippines, and has ordered that the volunteers now over there shall be sent home as fast as vessels to bring them are available. Regulars will be sent to take their places, as it is not considered safe to reduce the number of men under command of Otis, even during the rainy season, soon to begin.

There was quite a shock in Washington when Admiral Dewey reported that Lieut. Gilmore and 14 of the crew of the Yorktown had been, while away from the ship on a launch either killed or captured by the Filipinos. Washington is Lt. Gilmore's home.

TIRED OF SLAUGHTER.

View Expressed by Col. Stotzenberg Just Before His Death.

CHICAGO, April 24.—A special cablegram to the Record from John T. McCutcheon at Manila says:

"I had a conversation with Col. Stotzenberg yesterday. He was in Manila, where his wife is staying. He said he wished he was back in America.

'I am tired of fighting,' said the officer who fought so bravely, 'and I am tired of seeing my men killed. More of the men in my regiment have been killed than in any regiment in the Philippines. Since March 25 fifteen of my brave boys have been killed and 120 wounded, and there are but 650 men in the regiment.'"

The Cottage on the Fell

By J. T. Kingsley Tarpey

ON THE old road between Langton and Fazerley, half way up the fell, there stands the ruin of a pretty little thatched cottage. Roses and honeysuckles twine over the porch; and, though there is no garden to speak of, the old road is so overgrown with grass and flowers that it is a garden in itself. There is no traffic this way now, except on market days, when the carts from a few scattered farmsteads go past Fazerley; so the long, green ribbons on the road and the wide borders gradually encroach year by year, until in some places they meet in a level stretch of grass. The heather comes down the hillside almost to the wall, and through it, laughing and dancing, runs a little beck, which crosses the road a few yards below the cottage.

Some ten years ago the place was occupied by a young widow and her twin children, a boy and a girl. She had come there with her babies five years before, on her husband's death, and had earned a scanty living ever since by working for one of the shops at Fazerley. She was either too shy or too proud to make friends easily, and no one knew whether she had friends or kindred elsewhere. On market days some one of the passing farmers would bring her small purchases up from Fazerley, or take her bundle of work down to the shop. The bustling farmer's wife at the Fellside farm had always a kindly word, and sometimes a bun or an apple, for the twins, when they went to fetch the milk two or three times a week. The old shepherd, when his sheep were on that side of the fell, liked to have a chat with the little ones in passing, or to have them trot beside him for a mile along the road; but those were the nearest approaches to intimacy the country folk had with the occupants of the cottage. The children always looked clean and neat and rosy; the cottage was a miracle of order and trimness; and no one guessed till it was too late the terrible poverty that had been hidden under this cheerful air of independence.

During the winter and spring the mother had been constantly ailing; she had a troublesome cough, and more than once when the farmers passed on market days the twins had taken messages from her in bed. It was no matter of surprise to Farmer Bleasdale, therefore, when, to his usual inquiry one morning in August, the little girl replied that "Mother was poorly, and nothing was wanted." When he passed back in the evening the two children were sitting on the doorstep contentedly eating bread and gooseberries for their tea, and sharing a mug of milk between them. They had played about the cottage and the lane all day, paying tiptoe visits now and then to their mother, who was strangely quiet and had taken none of the tea they had so carefully prepared for her. The twins slept at their mother's feet to make more room in the narrow bed, and when it grew dusk they crept quietly in without disturbing her. In the night the boy awoke, crying, with the touch of something cold.

'Mairly, Mairly, what is it? I'm frightened!" he sobbed.

"Hush, Don! Don't wake mother," whispered the little girl; and so, cuddling close together, they slept again.

Early in the morning they were wakened by a shaft of sunlight through the eastern window, when the sun rose over the fell. They sat up together, feeling lonely and frightened; Don began to cry.

"Why doesn't mother wake?" he sobbed. He crept along the bed, and patted her cheek gently; at the touch he screamed and slid to the ground.

"Mairly, Mairly, what is it? Why is mother so cold?"

An hour later the two children were found by the old shepherd, barefoot in the road, clinging fast together and crying bitterly. When the doctor came it was found that the mother had been dead some hours.

Two weeks afterwards the future of the twins was already decided upon, and they were told to bid good-by to one another. They had been living at the Fellside farm since their mother's death, but the vicar had interested himself in them, and he had decided that Don must be near the school; so, a small subscription having been raised, he was to board with a family in the village until he could work for a living. Mairly was to go to an orphanage some 30 miles away, where she would eventually be trained as a servant. More than one house would have been open to the children, in the first tide of pity and wonder at the tragedy, but the vicar thought that their future welfare would be best considered by this arrangement; and when he took the matter up no one ventured to protest.

The twins parted quietly, without tears. Mrs. Bleasdale had tried to mitigate what she considered "a cruel shame" by whispering that it would only be for a little while, and they implicitly believed her. Indeed, the past two weeks had seemed to them like an ugly bustling dream, and they hardly realized that worse could befall them. It was only at bedtime, when he found himself without Mairly, in a room with three or four other children, that some sense of his desolation burst upon Don. He lay sobbing far into the night, and refused to be comforted. Mrs. Smith had every wish to be kind to him, but she had a houseful of unruly children to manage, and Don's ways were strange to her. She complained to the neighbors that he made himself "fair silly wi' frettin'." When he was not crying he was perplexed and frightened by his new surroundings. The children quarreled over their games and their mother usually quelled the disturbance by dealing out slaps with a generous hand. Don came in for a share of these with the rest; he was missing soon after and was not found till nightfall, fast asleep on his mother's grave. Mrs. Smith considered she must break him of a bad habit, so she beat him again, and told him he should not see Mairly if he went there any more. That night he cried so that the other children could not sleep, and after a week in which blows, scoldings and cajolings all failed to "break him of the habit," he was put to sleep in an out-building, that the household might have peace. For the rest he was dull and docile enough, listening with pathetic credulity to Mrs. Smith's assurance that Mairly would come soon, which was her formula when she wanted to be kind.

Mairly had been taken by the vicar to her new home. She looked such a quaint little figure in her long lilac print gown and white apron, the uniform of the orphanage, that the vicar's daughters called her a "sweet little dear," and gave her silver six-pences, and the servants kissed her and cried over her. She was some years younger than the usual age of admission, and the girls at the home seemed very big to her. The long rows of lilac print frocks and white aprons bewildered her, and the sameness of voice and expression never ceased to perplex and distress her. If there were some who were inclined to tease and torment her, there were others who would have liked to make a pet of her, but Mairly never distinguished between these; she suffered the caresses of one in exactly the same spirit as she endured the petty tyranny of another.

The teachers found her good and obedient, and she went through the daily routine with immovable patience, but without interest. When there was some unusual sound in the house, or a visit from a stranger, Mairly's face sharpened into a look of intense expectancy, and then settled back in awhile to the same dull patience. One day, when a visitor had come and gone, Mairly's disappointment expressed itself in a sudden demand of the matron:

"Please, ma'am, when shall I see Don?"

"You will see him some day, if you're a good girl," said the matron, kindly.

"But when, ma'am, please?"

"I can't tell you that, Mary."

"It's much easier to be good if I know when," pleaded the child; but the matron could make no promises, and Mairly abandoned her hope from that day.

One night in the early spring, she awakened with the sound of Don's voice in her ears, crying "Mairly!" most piteously. She lay quiet until the usual time for getting up, and when the household assembled for prayers she went up to the matron with the customary bob and curtsey.

"Please, ma'am, I must go to Don."

"You can't do that, Mary, I'm afraid."

"I must go, I must go!" sobbed the child, her fortitude giving way for the first time. "Don wants me, he keeps crying and crying; he waked me last night with his crying!"

It was in vain they tried to comfort her—Don was in trouble, she must go to Don. She kept sobbing this out, till at last she was pronounced "naughty," and put in a room by herself to get over it.

Mairly was very quiet when she was let out, and by evening the scene was forgotten. In the early morning she awoke again, and sat up listening, but without making any sound. She crept out of bed and put on her clothes in the dark, pausing now and then to hear the steady breathing of the sleepers in the long dormitory; then she took her shoes and went out along the corridor, past the open door of the teacher's room and down the creaking stairs. In the basement she got her cloak and bonnet, and, by standing on a chair, shot the heavy bolt of the playroom door, and so into the yard. There was no way out of the grounds, but at the end was a space railed off for hens, and out of this a small opening had been made for them into the field beyond. The door into the hencoop was only latched, and, by dint of a great struggle, Mairly was out through the hole, leaving part of the lilac print behind her.

It was some hours before Mairly's flight was discovered at the orphanage, and at first she was only looked for in the grounds, for it was thought impossible she could have got out. At length the piece of torn lilac print in the hencoop gave a clew, and by noon she was traced to the roadway station. The booking clerk had booked a half-fare to Fazerley by the workmen's train; he thought the child was with some workmen; he had seen one of them lift her into the carriage. At Fazerley the porter remembered that a workman in the early train had asked him to show a little girl the road to Langton; he had put her on the way when he went to breakfast.

The matron drove to Langton; and it was only when she arrived with the vicar at Mrs. Smith's that Don's absence was discovered. No one thought of going to the little fellside cottage until the old shepherd came through the village again in the afternoon; and by that time it was early dusk. There was a bitter east wind blowing, and the promise of a hard frost; and the whole village turned out with lanterns and went up to the fell. After some hours' fruitless search they were forced to wait for daylight, when they set to work, reinforced by help from the countryside.

They found the children by the beck, 400 or 500 yards from the cottage, lying in the heather tightly clasped in each other's arms. They were both dead; but the brown cloak of the orphanage was round Don, and it seemed as if Mairly had been trying to keep him warm.—London Speaker.

General Miles Correct.

TThe testimony before the commissions, establisded to sift the complaints of the commander of the army about the rotten and unhealthful beef delivered to our soldiers during the war establishes the fact that the complaints of Miles were correct. The evidence is too strong to deny that. The head of the Commissary Department, Eagan, was not discharged for his incompetency; he was put on the retired list with $5,000 salary because he behaved like a ruffian against Miles.

Though $5,000 looks to be a big salary for doing nothing, for a man who was put at the head of such a department without reason, he could not be discharged, because his own testimonial discloses the fact that it was Alger who compelled him to buy the canned and embalmed beef from Armuour and alias. As a reason for this he states, that the Chicago packers undersold the Texan cattle dealers. So Mr. Alger poses as the man who protected the tax payers against those cattle dealers, who tried to make inordinate profits.

I will admit that this canned goods business gave an impetus to our tin can manufacturers. I will even admit that as Armour the republican patriot and contributor to the campaign funds got his contract, there might have been under the democratic rule, a democratic packer and contributer, who might have got the contracts, because our parties work on the dirty principle that to the victors belong the spoils.

With these admittances I hope to keep the government partisans from kicking. I do not believe in the disinterestedness of these party patriots. There must be and is a reason why Armour could undersell the cattle dealers, and why this canned beef was unpalatable, spoiled, entirely unfit as food for our soldiers.

I copy from the quotations of the South St. Paul beef market: Steers fair to choice $4 to $5. Bulls and stags are cheaper. At the bottom of the list are canners, quoted at $1.50 to $2.40. That is, of course, the refuse of the market, lean, scraggy, unhealthy animals; stuff that no butcher would or could sell to his customers. The name indicates that these animals are used by the canning establishments for canning purposes.

These prices explain why the canners could undersell the cattle dealers, but they fix too, that our government bought as food for our soldiers the poorest beef in the market either for economy or to favor Armour. All the whitewashing will not alter this fact, nor will it cover the negligence of the government, not to control these preparations in the factories.

FRENCH word makers are now engaged in trying to coin a sufficiently scientific sounding name for the peculiar phase of insanity developed by the Dreyfus agitation. Twenty-five persons afflicted with the Dreyfus mania have recently been admitted to Paris insane asylums. From other French cities there come similar reports.

THE phenomenon of ice freezing on the surface of Lake Chelan in warm weather, when it rarely or never freezes in winter, was reported the other day. The steamer Stehekin encountered thin ice covering a large surface of the lake four or five miles above Lakeside on her down trip. The fact is sufficiently vouched for by credible witnesses.

It was a heavy rubber-faced garment, and the fatal bullet hole and stains of blood were plainly visible."

IT has been stated that every piece of land between the King William statue and Trinity square, London, E. C., cost 1,000 guineas a yard. This would mean about £117 per square foot, or over £5,000,000 per acre. The ground in the vicinity of the bank of England is estimated to be not worth less than £2,000,000 per acre. Land in Pall Mall has changed hands at £500,000 per acre.

THERE is a new rival to the chamois skin vests so long worn by women for extra warmth. These new vests are of paper. Those who have worn them pronounce them less bulky, just as warm and less expensive than the chamois. They are so cheap, indeed, that they can be thrown away and a new one purchased without troubling the conscience of the woman with only a moderate purse.

AT a recent meeting of the Academie des Science, Paris, M. Marey presented a new phonograph which speaks so distinctly that one can scarcely recognize any difference between the original voice and its reproduction. On the same occasion M. Dusaur described a new method of amplifying the sounds of the phonograph just as a photograph is enlarged. It is done by causing the phonograph to speak into a second phonograph having a cylinder of larger diameter.

MAURICE GRAU is a very happy man. At the first annual meeting of stockholders of the Maurice Grau Opera Co., which was held the other afternoon at the Metropolitan opera house, he was able to report that the profits of the opera season just closing would not be less than $110,000, and to announce that the board of directors had declared a dividend of 35 per cent. on the $125,000 common stock, including the 5 per cent. required by the by-laws to be paid on the investment.

SIXTY-ONE men were kept busy serving the wines and mineral waters at the Croker $10 dinner in New York a few days ago. They had nothing else to do while the banquet lasted, and this was fortunate, for their time was fully employed in dispensing the 3,000 quarts of champagne, and the 2,600 quarts of other kinds of wine. Of all this, it was affirmed at the close of the banquet, not a drop was left. The 2,400 quarts of mineral water, however proved more than ample.

PERSONS who are compelled to make use of public drinking fountains may relieve their minds to a great extent of fear of infectious microbes by supplying themselves with a lip guard and protector which has been recently patented by Alvah C. Tebbets, of Boston. It is merely a metal or rubber shield which slips over the edge of the drinking glass and is held in place by the natural spring of the material. This prevents one's lips from coming in contact with the edge of the glass, and thereby prevents infection.

THE Novosti, of St. Petersburg, gives a description of roses that are jet black in color, and which are the result of ten years' toil and thought by a florist named Fetisoff, in Woronesch, Russia. This man has produced some remarkable effects in the garden world. His latest success with the black roses has stirred up quite a sensation among the lovers of flowers in Russia. Some specimens were sent to to the czar by Fetisoff, and a beautiful collection of them has been sent to London to be exhibited at the coming annual flower show.

THE new Havana police force is having a great deal of trouble. Scarcely a night passes without the killing of one or more policemen, citizens or soldiers. The Cuban is too excitable, too nervous to make a good policeman. It will not be long before the American provosts will have to begin policing the streets again. Although there are strict orders against selling any intoxicating drinks to the soldiers in Havana, the men get liquor some way, and one drunken soldier or sailor will make things remarkably interesting for three or four of the Cuban police.

AMERICANS can hardly realize how densely some of the new possessions are peopled. Malolos is less than thirty miles from Manila, yet day after day the American columns advanced through towns and cities from 1,000 to 10,000 population. The fact is, as shown by the latest census, that the population of the whole island of Luzon averages more persons to the square mile than many parts of the United States. By the census of 1890 Illinois had 68 persons to the square mile of territory and Indiana had 61 to the square mile. Luzon, by the census of 1889, had 79.

A FIENDISH REVENGE

Horrible Work of an Infuriated Mob in Georgia.

After Cutting Off a Negro's Ears and Fingers They Burn Him at the Stake—Another Negro Strung Up.

Newnan, Ga., April 24.—Sam Hose, the murderer of Alfred Cranford and the ravisher of his wife, was burned at the stake two miles from here at 2:30 Sunday afternoon in the presence of 2,500 people.

Before the torch was applied to the pyre, the negro was deprived of his ears, fingers and other portions of his anatomy. The negro pleaded pitifully for his life, while the mutilation was going on, but stood the ordeal of fire with surprising fortitude. Before the body was cold, it was cut to pieces, the bones were crushed into small bits and even the tree upon which the wretch met his fate was torn up and disposed of as souvenirs. The negro's heart was cut in several pieces, as was also his liver. Those unable to obtain the ghastly relics direct paid their more fortunate possessors extravagant sums for them. Small pieces of bone went for 25 cents, and a bit of the liver, crisply cooked, sold for ten cents. As soon as the negro was seen to be dead there was a tremendous struggle among the crowd which had witnessed his tragic end to secure the souvenirs. A rush was made for the stake, and those near the body were forced against it, and had to fight for their freedom. Knives were quickly produced and the body was soon dismembered.

The mob was composed of citizens of Newnan, Griffin, Palmetto and other little towns in the country round about Newnan, and of all the farmers who had received word that the burning was to take place.

Made a Partial Confession.

Hose confessed to killing Cranford, but denied that he had outraged Mrs. Cranford. Before being put to death the negro stated that he had been paid $12 by "Lige" Strickland, a negro preacher at Palmetto, to kill Cranford.

Strickland Also Lynched.

Palmetto, Ga., April 25.—The body of Lige Strickland, the negro preacher who was implicated in the Cranford murder by Sam Hose, was found swinging to the limbs of a persimmon tree within a mile and a quarter of this place early Monday. Before death was allowed to end the sufferings of the negro, his ears were cut off and the small finger of his left hand was severed at the second joint. On the chest of the negro was a scrap of blood-stained note paper attached with an ordinary pin. On one side of this paper was written: "New York Journal—We must protect our ladies, 23-99." The other side of the paper contained a warning to the negroes of the neighborhood. It read as follows: "Beware, all darkies. You will be treated the same way."

Before being finally lynched Strickland was given a chance to confess to the misdeeds of which the mob supposed him to be guilty, but he protested his innocence until the end.

PROTEST FROM GERMANY.

Formal Objection Made to the Language Used by Capt. Coghlan, of the Raleigh.

Washington, April 25.—The German government has entered a formal protest against the language used by Capt. Coghlan, of the Raleigh, at the Union League club banquet in New York, last Friday night.

The protest was lodged with Secretary Hay, through the German ambassador, Herr Von Holleben.

Secretary Hay replied that the language appeared to have been used at a dinner in a club, and so could not be regarded as an official or public utterance in the sense that would warrant the state department in acting. However, the navy department was fully competent to take such action as the case seemed to require. With this statement the ambassador was content for the time at least, and will doubtless await a reasonable length of time upon the navy department. There are semi-official intimations that the ambassador will not so much concern himself with the course of Capt. Coghlan, as with the course of the United States in dealing with Coghlan. The German ambassador stated Monday that the poem recited by Capt. Coghlan was "too nasty to be noticed."

A Fiendish Crime.

Pana, Ill., April 22.—Friday morning at two o'clock Chief of Police William Kiely and Deputy Sheriff Frank Cheeney arrested Mrs. Anna Brunot, aged 50, her paramour, Frederick Sibley, aged 21, and her son, Henry Brunot, aged 19, on Mrs. Brunot's farm near Dunket station, five miles north of Pana, and brought them to this city and placed them in jail. The two men are charged with the most atrocious murder known in the criminal annals of central Illinois—the killing of Miss Jane Brunot, of Danna, Ind., whom, it is charged, they shot through the head in the garret of Anna Brunot's house and afterwards placed her body in an abandoned well on the farm, near the residence, and filling the well with earth. Later in the day both Brunot and Sibley made a full confession.

Ratifies the Treaty.

City of Mexico, April 21.—The senate has unanimously adopted the new extradition treaty with the United States.

Washington, April 22.—The president will in a few days issue a proclamation giving effect to the new extradition treaty between the United States and Mexico, President Diaz taking similar action in Mexico. The text of the treaty has never been made known, but besides providing extradition for all crimes not political, its principal feature is in giving the treaty retroactive effect, so as to cover crimes committed while no treaty existed.

Quarreled About a Girl.

Fulton, Mo., April 24.—Edward Palmer on Sunday shot and killed Thomas Ganaway, a companion, in a trivial quarrel over a girl. Both men are young. Palmer, whose mind is unbalanced, made no attempt to escape, but seemed to enjoy the sensation he had created. The case is a pitiable one. Palmer's brother and mother are both mentally unbalanced, and the father, who was the support of the family, fell dead at his work bench only last Monday.

QUAY IS ACQUITTED.

A Verdict of Not Guilty Is Returned by the Jury—Is Appointed Temporary Senator.

Philadelphia, April 22. — Matthew Stanley Quay was Friday declared by a jury of his peers to be not guilty of the charge of conspiring to use for his own unlawful gain and profit the funds of the state of Pennsylvania deposited in the People's bank, of this city. This verdict was announced by the foreman of the jury just as the hands of the courtroom timepiece pointed to 11 o'clock.

The case went to the jury at three o'clock Thursday afternoon and four ballots were taken before the final decision was reached. The first ballot stood 10 to 2 for acquittal, the next two stood 11 to 1. The one standing out for conviction by this time had very much modified his reasons for conviction, and when the last ballot was taken he voted for acquittal.

Harrisburg, Pa., April 22.—Immediately on receipt of the news that Matthew S. Quay was acquitted of the charges against him, Gov. Stone appointed him United States senator to fill the vacancy until the next legislature meets, and notified Vice President Hobart as follows:

"Sir: By virtue of the power vested in me as executive of the state of Pennsylvania, under article 1, clause 2, section 3, of the constitution of the United States, I hereby make temporary appointment of Hon Matthew Stanley Quay to be United States senator from Pennsylvania to fill the vacancy now existing in this state. Very respectfully, WILLIAM A. STONE,
"Governor of Pennsylvania."

Gov. Stone said that in appointing M. S. Quay he felt that he had done the fit and proper thing. He thought it would make the issue and is better done now than by waiting for weeks.

The authority cited by the governor says that the governor of any state may make temporary appointment during a recess to hold until the next legislature meets.

The legislature adjourned Thursday without electing a senator, having been in deadlock since January 17.

[The charges against Senator Quay followed the collapse of the People's bank in March, 1898, and the examination of its books by a receiver. The warrants were issued in the following October and included, besides Mr. Quay and his son, the names of Charles H. McKee, a Pittsburgh lawyer, and ex-State Treasurer Benjamin J. Haywood. On November 21 the grand jury found true bills against all but McKee. The suicide of Cashier Hopkins just prior to the bank's failure prevented his coming within the scope of criminal action. The indictments were five in number. These were reduced to four by the death of Mr. Haywood on February 23 of this year. One week after true bills had been found counsel for Mr. Quay and the other defendants filed demurrers to four of them and moved to quash the fifth. Judge Finlotter on December 1 decided against the defendants. Counsel then carried the case to the supreme court, on the plea, among other contentions, that the prosecution was actuated by political motives which would prevent an impartial trial in this county. The supreme court declined to interfere. The trial was set for February 20 and was postponed until the 27th when it was again postponed until Monday of last week.]

AWFUL MINE DISASTER.

Four Men and a Boy Killed by a Gas Explosion in New Mexico.

Denver, Col., April 22.—A special to the News from Albuquerque, N. M., says: Four men and a boy employed in Cook & White's coal mine at Madrid lost their lives at noon Friday. Orders are strict to the effect that only safety lamps shall be used in the mine, but two men some time after the foreman had made his rounds carried in open lamps. While the men were ascending for their noon meal a terrific explosion occurred. Four men, John Sienwesky, Adam Jeiascwiesi, John Reya and Fred Aira, and a boy, F. E. Wapps, were still in the pit. The machinery refused to work and it was not until 2:30 that a descent could be made. Two dead bodies were found at once, and about four o'clock the remaining three. The men evidently died from suffocation, as no bruises could be found. Had it not been for the injury to the machinery it is thought all could have been saved. The two open lamps were found by the bodies. The mine is badly wrecked.

The Flour Milling Combination.

New York, April 25.—The Tribune says: It was said Monday that the flour milling combination had been finally arranged and would become effective on May 1. The consolidated company, it is understood, will have a capital of $25,000,000, half preferred stock and half common, and will issue $15,000,000 bonds. The combination, it is said, does not include the Washburn-Crosby, Pillsbury & Consolidated mills of Minneapolis, although the Washburn-Crosby company may before long enter into the new company.

Twelve Drowned.

St. Augustine, Fla., April 24.—Considerable excitement was created here early Sunday afternoon by a small boat out at sea giving signals of distress. Capt. Allen immediately went to its assistance in the yacht Baldwin. Upon nearing the boat he found it to be the missing lifeboat of the steamer Gen. Whitney, which foundered north of Cape Canaveral during Friday night. The other lifeboat was swamped in the surf and 12 men were drowned.

Schley to Visit Omaha.

Omaha, Neb., April 22.—It is announced that Admiral Schley will visit this city about May 1 as the guest of ex-Senator Manderson. He comes for rest and aside from a dinner given by the Loyal legion and a reception at the Omaha club. The admiral will be accompanied by his wife, and after a short visit it is proposed, in company with Gen. and Mrs. Manderson, to take a trip through the west.

A SERIOUS BATTLE.

Disastrous Result of an Engagement with Filipinos Near Quingua.

Manila, April 24.—In an encounter with the Filipinos Sunday near Quingua, about four miles northeast of Manila, seven Americans were killed and 49 wounded. The following were killed:

Col. John M. Stotsenburg, of the First Nebraska regiment, formerly of the Sixth cavalry.
Lieut. Sisson, of the same regiment.
Two privates of the Nebraska regiment.
Three privates of the Fourth cavalry.

Most of the wounded belong to the First Nebraska regiment.

The Filipinos retreated with small loss.

The loss of the Nebraska regiment in the campaign is the greatest sustained by any regiment, and Sunday's disaster has greatly saddened officers and men, who promise to take fierce vengeance in the next fight.

Col. Stotsenburg has won a reputation as one of the bravest fighters in the army. He always led his regiment and had achieved remarkable popularity with his men since the war began, although, during his first colonelcy, the volunteers, who were not used to the rigid discipline of the regular troops, thought him a hard officer.

Washington, April 24.—The following message regarding the fight at Quinqua was received at the war department Sunday:

"Manila, April 24.—Adjutant General, Washington—A reconnoissance on Quingua place, six miles northeast of Malolos, made by Maj. Bell and troop of cavalry this morning resulted in contact and battle, in which four battalions of infantry and four pieces of artillery became engaged. Enemy driven from strong intrenchments at Quinqua, with considerable loss; our casualties quite severe. Col. Stotsenburg and Lieut. Sessions, First Nebraska, killed, also several enlisted. Considerable number wounded, not yet reported. OTIS."

The following dispatch was received at the war department late Sunday evening:

"Manila, April 24.—Adjutant General, Washington, D. C.—Casualties at Quingua to-day: First Nebraska, two officers and two enlisted killed; two officers and 26 enlisted men wounded. Fourth cavalry, two enlisted men killed; five wounded. Fifty-first Iowa, seven enlisted men wounded. Utah light artillery, one officer and two enlisted men wounded. Total, 49. Names in morning. OTIS."

New York, April 25.—A dispatch to the Herald from Manila says that in Gen. Hale's advance on Calumpit 50 Filipinos and one American were killed.

Manila, April 25.—Gen. MacArthur's division left Malolos Monday, apparently intending to besiege Calumpit.

BREAK IN THE LEVEE.

Inundation of Finest Sugar Plantations in Southern Louisiana Has Begun.

Raceland, La., April 25.—What was thought to be the inevitable has happened. Notwithstanding strenuous efforts by the people of the Lafouche valley, the levee gave way Monday morning at one o'clock at a point five miles below Raceland on the left descending bank of Bayou Lafouche, on the upper confines of the Clotilda plantation of Barker & Le Blanc. The break quickly widened, and at the break of day a disastrous crevice was pouring the murky waters of the bayou over some of the richest plantations, inundating hundreds of acres of cane and corn and stretching its grasp in all directions.

Aged Minister Dead.

Lexington, Ky., April 24.—Rev. Robert Ryland, probably the oldest Baptist clergyman and educator in the United States, died here Sunday, aged 94. He was one of the pioneer educators of Virginia, and was for eight years president of Richmond college, during much of this time also pastor of the largest African church in the world, 3,000 members, nearly all Virginia slaves. He taught them orally every Sunday. His later years were spent at the head of educational institutions and churches in Kentucky and Tennessee.

Gives $100,000,000 to Charity.

Vienna, April 21.—The Neue Freie Presse asserts that the estate left by Baroness Maurice de Hirsch de Gereuth, who died on April 1, has been valued at £25,000,000 ($125,000,000), of which £20,000,000 ($100,000,000) will be expended in carrying on the various charities founded or fostered by the baroness and baron. The Hirsch foundation fund in New York receives £240,000 ($1,200,000) and the institution at Montreal one-tenth of that amount.

Takes Issue with the Governor.

Washington, April 24.—President McKinley has received a letter from Lieut. Gov. John T. Kean, of South Dakota, strongly opposing Gov. Lee's demand for the recall of the South Dakota volunteers from Manila, and asserting that the governor does not represent the true sentiment of the state.

EX-GOVERNOR OGLESBY DEAD.

Famous Illinoisan Suddenly Passes Away at His Home Near Elkhart, Ill.

Lincoln, Ill., April 25.—Richard J. Oglesby, former governor of Illinois, died at his home at Oglehurst, near Elkhart, Ill., at five minutes past one o'clock Monday afternoon. Concussion of the brain, resulting from a fall, was the direct cause of his death, but the weakness which had been so apparent to all who met him of late was the indirect cause.

[Gen. Richard J. Oglesby was born in Oldham county, Ky., July 25, 1824. His parents were of Scottish extraction. In 1836 he was taken by his uncle, Willis Oglesby, to Decatur, Ill., and in that city grew to manhood. In 1844 Mr. Oglesby began the study of law at Springfield, and upon his admission to the bar located in Moultrie county, where he practiced until the Mexican war broke out in 1846, when he enlisted as a volunteer. At the close of the war he returned to Decatur. In 1857 he was nominated for congress and ran against James C. Robinson, who defeated him. Two years later he was made state senator, his election as a republican making the senate of Illinois republican for the first time in the party's history of this state.

The call to war in April, 1861, found him ready to answer, and his resignation as senator promptly followed. April 25 he was elected colonel of the Eighth regiment, Illinois volunteer infantry. In February of the next year, after six months at Bird's Point, he was given command of the First brigade, First division, Army of West Tennessee. His men were the first to enter Fort Henry and for gallant conduct in the investment and capture of Fort Donelson he was made brigadier general. In this capacity he fought in the second battle of Corinth, October 3, 1862, and was so severely wounded that he was carried from the field supposed to be dying. Hackleman, who commanded with him, was killed. Gen. Oglesby was taken to his home in Decatur, where he lay wavering between life and death for three months. The anti-war legislature was in session in Springfield, and as soon as the general was strong enough to bear excitement he was invited to speak before the senate. He appeared in the hall, his form emaciated and his face pale from suffering and long confinement. His voice trembled when he began to speak, but when his emotion and the intensity of his feelings had keyed his strength to the right pitch he made one of the most thrilling speeches ever heard in the legislature. That speech made him the candidate for governor in 1864. His wound did not heal and in June, 1863, he asked that his resignation be accepted, he having in the meantime resumed his place in the army. Gen. Grant refused to accept the resignation, but granted Oglesby, now major general, six months' leave of absence. The next year, May 24, 1864, he again urged his resignation, and the next day was nominated for governor. His opponent was the same James C. Robinson who had defeated him for congress in 1858. November 8 Oglesby was elected. After a rest of four years at the conclusion of his term Gov. Oglesby was again chosen to lead the republicans to victory, and in November, 1872, was again elected governor of the commonwealth. He was soon transferred to the senate of the United States, taking his seat March 4, 1873. At the expiration of his senatorship in 1879 he declined a reelection. In November, 1884, he was again elected to the office of governor. Since the close of his term, January 1, 1889, he had been out of public life and lived most of the time on his farm near Elkhart, Ill.]

Guilty of Cowardice.

New York, April 21.—The findings of the court of inquiry which investigated the allegations of cowardice on the part of some of the officers of the Seventy-first New York volunteers in the battle before Santiago have been made public. The verdict of the court finds that Maj. Smith, who was lieutenant colonel of the regiment; Capt. Whittle, who was major, and Maj. Austin, of the staff of Brig. Gen. Smith, who commanded a company in that regiment, were guilty of a lack of bravery and courage and of incompetency.

Not a Candidate for Reelection.

Washington, April 22.—Vice President Hobart has definitely informed his personal friends here, including President McKinley, that he will not be a candidate for reelection. This decision is due to the ill-health of the vice president and the necessity of putting aside as far as possible all cares and responsibilities. It is even doubtful if the vice president will be able to perform his duties next winter as presiding officer of the senate.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Matters Pertaining to the State Fire Wardens.

A Circular Explaining the Laws and the Duties of the Wardens. The State Desires Special Observance.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, Office of Chief Fire Warden St. Paul, Minn., April, 22, 1899.

To Fire Wardens:

We are entering upon the fifth year of the Fire Warden Law, and each year should show improvement in its administration. "Warning placards" will not be sent to Fire Wardens this year, unless actually needed and called for; in which case they will be furnished. The great object of the Fire Warden Law is to prevent the careless setting of forest and prairie fires. The law assumes that town supervisors are in position best to attend to this. They pass through their towns on public business, they know who is most likely to be careless, and they have the authority, influence and opportunity for warning careless persons better than most anyone else. It was because of this that they are constituted Fire Wardens. They must anticipate dangerous weather and by timely efforts guard against any fires that might prove unmanageable. It is impossible by human agency to extinguish a great forest fire, but such fires can be prevented. Take a pride in making a good record for yourself and your town in preventing dangerous fires.

Under the Fire Warden Law of April 18, 1895,

Supervisors of towns are Fire Wardens.

Mayors of cities are Fire Wardens.

Presidents of village councils are Fire Wardens.

Fire Wardens shall post, or cause to be posted, warning placards.

Fire Wardens shall take precautions to prevent the setting of forest and prairie fires.

Fire Wardens shall enforce the provisions of the law.

This means that, among other things, they shall make complaint against parties who violate the law, and endeavor to have them punished. Circumstantial evidence is sometimes sufficient to convict. A person who in very dangerous weather causes a fire which endangers the property of another is liable under the first part of section 9.

Chairmen shall inquire into the cause of each forest or prairie fire within their districts and shall report the same, etc.

This means that they shall make a prompt and thorough inquiry, and prompt report to the Chief Fire Warden.

The Chief Fire Warden has general charge of the Fire Warden force of the state, consequently his reasonable orders and instructions are to be obeyed with promptitude.

Any Fire Warden who refuses or neglects to perform his duties shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of not more than $100 or imprisonment in the county jail not to exceed three months.

District courts as well as justices of the peace have jurisdiction of offenses under the Fire Warden Law.

In case a Fire Warden is to be absent even for only half a day, he should arrange to have some one act in his place.

Each chairman will furnish one of the printed copies herewith of this circular to each of the other supervisors of his town.

Fire Wardens will please read and preserve this and other printed instructions which they may receive, and turn the same over to their successors.

Respectfully,
C. C. ANDREWS,
Chief Fire Warden.

A Cheap Hotel.

A number of Minneapolis men are said to be considering the advisability of erecting a hotel of from three to five hundred rooms, to be conducted on the some plan as the Mills house of New York, under the auspices of the Union Mission. The hotel, if arranged for, will be divorced from the mission, so that the people taking lodging in it will not feel that they are objects of charity. As such a building would be very plain, both inside and outside, and as the rooms would be small, it is thought that the cost would not be very great. It is estimated that the cost of the structure ought not to be in excess of $50,000.

Candidates for Annapolis.

April 28 is the date set for the examination of candidates for admission to the Annapolis military academy. The committee appointed by Congressman F. C. Stevens, consisting of Dr. Talbot Jones, Rev. M. D. Edwards and Professor F. A. Weld, will meet all applicants at the Central high school on the day mentioned. Examination is given in reading, spelling, geography, arithmetic, history, old world history, geometry and algebra.

News in Brief.

Mrs. Elizabeth Patch died in Minneapolis, aged 100 years, 10 months and 10 days.

Fire destroyed 40,000 feet of lumber belonging to Sartell Brothers, of Sauk Rapids.

The residence of H. Sleiburling, at LeSueur, was destroyed by fire.

Roy Bebo, of Minneapolis, was drowned in Bassett's creek.

Cracksmen entered an office occupied by Victor Cohen, a South St. Paul packer, and W. E. McCormick, of the Luley Packing company, at Merriam Park, and forced a safe. There was no money in the safe and the papers secured are not negotiable. Three insurance policies and 100 shares of nontransferable mining stock are missing.

Adjutant General Lambert received four additional applications for pensions by soldiers by soldiers of the Spanish-American war. He in turn has taken the matter up with the pension department at Washington.

Health Inspector White, of Winona, has been notified that there are thousands of dead fish in the lake which will have to be removed in some manner in order to protect the health of the citizens on the South Side. Mr. White made an investigation. Nothing can be done as yet, owing to the fact that the ice is not yet out of the lake.

John Carlson, of Elmdale, suicided by hanging. He went to the woods to work and, not returning in the evening, search was instituted, and he was found hanging to the limb of a basswood tree. No cause is given for the deed.

PAINFUL PERIODS NO MORE

MRS. GEORGE OSMUN, of Belvidere, Warren Co., N. J., writes: "Suffering as I had from weakness, irregularities and backache for several years, a release from this suffering was a blessing. Oh! how I wish more suffering women would accept your kind offer and be relieved. There is no need for women to suffer. Mrs. Pinkham's advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will relieve them."

MRS. IDA PETERS, Milan, Tenn., writes: "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—When I wrote to you the first time asking your advice I was a great sufferer. Menstruations were irregular, sometimes a week too soon and then a week or two late, and when they appeared were very profuse; great pain and tenderness in the bowels, pain in back and limbs, leucorrhœa all the time. I was weak and nervous and had no appetite. Burning and choking sensation in my throat. I received your reply and followed all your instructions and now I am cured. I owe my recovery all to Mrs. Pinkham's advice and her wonderful remedies."

ELLA E. BRENNER, East Rochester, Ohio, writes: "I have been thankful a thousand times since I wrote to you for what your Vegetable Compound has done for me. I followed your advice carefully and now I feel like a different person. My troubles were backache, headache, nervous tired feeling, painful menstruation and leucorrhœa. I took four bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, one box of Pills, one package of Sanative Wash and am now well."

MRS. MAGGIE P. STINE, New Berlin, Pa., writes: "I have suffered with terrible backache in the small of my back for about seven years, and could never get anything to help me. I tried several physicians, but found no help. I have now taken three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and feel like a different woman."

MRS. H. A., 124 S. Cedar Street, Owosso, Mich., writes: "Nearly three years ago I wrote to you asking advice in regard to my health. I was so miserable; suffered from painful menstruation and backache, was nervous, dizzy and faint. I received such a kind letter from you, telling me just what to do. I followed your advice and I now am recommending Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I thank God for this pain destroyer."

AN ORDINARY OLD COIN.

But It Served to Bring Out the Failings of Weak Humanity.

"Say!" said the street car conductor to a mild-mannered man who was deeply engrossed in his newspaper. "Say, young feller, I don't want this quarter. I can't use it." The mild-mannered man continued to hold out his hand for his change, but paid no other attention to the conductor.

"See here!" yelled the conductor, getting red in the face, "you can't pass no quarter like that on me. It's slick. I can't take it for more than 20 cents."

The mild man looked up and said: "I'm sorry, because you gave me that very quarter yourself last night, and I've been laying for you since. Well, give it here." He took the quarter and gave the conductor a nickel. As he took the quarter from the conductor he suddenly dropped his newspaper and gave a chuckle.

"Well, well!" he exclaimed; "here's luck. Bless me if that isn't an 1832 quarter with 14 stars and an arrow. It's worth $3.82." He slipped it into his pocket with evidence of much satisfaction.

A hungry-eyed man in the corner, who had overheard the conversation, jumped up and said to the conductor:

"Isn't that the very quarter I gave you yesterday morning? I missed that quarter. It was a pocketpiece and a valuable coin. I remember now that I gave it to you. I demand it!" he said, looking fiercely at the mild man. "If you are a gentleman you will give it to me."

"It isn't yours. You never gave it to me. My wife gave me the coin by mistake; it's part of a collection that's been in the family since 1827!" yelled the conductor.

"I tell you it's mine," said the hungry-eyed man. Thus they wrangled and quarreled all the way downtown.

"No," said the mild man to a neighbor, as he stepped from the car. "It's only a plain, ordinary old shiny quarter that I've been trying to pass off for a week. We were all lying. It's worth about 22 cents."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Advantages of Direct Buying.

Certain manufacturing institutions have in recent years inaugurated a new system of disposing of their products which is unqualifiedly to the advantage of the consumer. Among the pioneers in this new method of doing business was the Elkhart Carriage and Harness Manufacturing company of Elkhart, Ind. These people began this plan 26 years ago and have adhered to it strictly ever since. The result has been so entirely successful that they are to-day the largest manufacturers of carriages and harness in the world selling to the consumer exclusively.

The advantages to the consumer are almost beyond estimate. He gets better goods, better and larger selections, and he buys at a much lower price. There is no risk, as this firm ship vehicles or harness everywhere for examination, and guarantee every article they manufacture and sell. The Elkhart Carriage and Harness Manufacturing company publish a large illustrated catalogue, which they will cheerfully mail to all who request it.

WANTED PAUL TO TELL.

A Tipsy Wayfarer Who Is Familiar with the Scriptures Asks a Question.

A man of the North side saw a masculine member of the human race tumble down on the sidewalk the other evening, hopelessly intoxicated. Disgusted at the sight, he was about to pass on unheedful of his neighbor's misfortune when the story of the good Samaritan flashed across his mind and he resolved for once to be charitably helpful. He accosted the fallen one and assisted him to his unsteady feet, and after much persistent interviewing succeeded in ascertaining the number of his home. Thither he piloted his swaying companion and was rewarded on the doorstep by a volley of thanks and a most importunate invitation to enter and take a drink.

"No," responded the modern Samaritan, emphatically. "I won't go in and take a drink, and you'd better follow my example and get to bed as quickly as you can."

"All right, I guess I will," muttered the tipsy host, drowsily. "But tell me your name, anyway. I want to know the name of the man who brought me to my door."

As his eloquence and voice were waxing in strength, the Samaritan thought it wisdom to comply in some way with his associate's desires, and at the same time had no intention to reveal his own identity.

"Paul is my name," he answered, at last, in compromise, turning to go down the steps.

"Come here, Paul," eagerly called the other man at once. "Come back and answer the question I've had it in my mind to ask you for years. Paul," he continued, impressively, "did you ever get an answer to your letters to the Ephesians?"—Chicago Chronicle.

"I guess dat's 'bout right, pa'son, doah don' lak' t' say it."

"Ef he ain' in de faith, den wha' doctrine does he cling to, Mis' Johnsing?"

"Well, pa'son, I ain't got much opinion in de mattah, but I kind o' reckon dat de only doctrine he hangs onto wid any very grea' amount o' tenasticy am de one dat sez: 'A bird in de bag am wuth two on de roost,' when de doah o' de coop's got a spring lock an' de dawg's unchained."—Cleveland Leader.

Two Valued Opinions.

An officer of one of the transpacific steamship lines says: "There is no train service in the world comparable with that of the New York Central's Lake Shore Limited."

Among His Impedimenta.

ARE GREATLY PLEASED WITH WESTERN CANADA.

W. R. Milburn, John Holmes, M. R. Dagger, E. L. Stetson, of Buena Vista County, Iowa, report as follows of the Canadian North-West as to its situability for farming, and the advantages it offers to the agricultural immigrant from the United States: "We came here solely to look up improved farms and, if suitable, to select such as pleased us best. We have not visited the homestead districts at all, though we believe them to be very inviting. Our inquiries have been confined solely to the district around Hartney, Deloraine and towards the Souris River in Manitoba. Our impressions of all that region are in every way satisfactory, and we have decided to go back to Iowa at once, and, having disposed of our several interests there, to return to Manitoba in the month of March next, and, effecting our purchase of improved farms, which we find we can do at reasonable rates, immediately begin farming. We are greatly pleased with all that we have seen in that part of Western Canada. The soil we find to be more than equal to that of our own country for wheat-growing, and the other conditions of climate, schools, markets, etc., are all that we could wish for.

"To show what an energetic man can do we may mention that we found one such at Hartney who had rented a farm on shares, receiving two-thirds of the returns as his share of the crop. When he came to sell his own produce he found that his two-thirds, when converted into cash, was enough to buy the farm he rented out and out, which he accordingly did, and is now its owner. It is our intention to induce as many of our friends as possible, who are practical farmers, to remove from Iowa to this country, where we believe there is a better future for the industrious man than is now to be found anywhere on this continent. We are well known in our part of the State of Iowa, and we invite correspondence from its residents in all parts with regard to this region of Western Canada which we have visited, and to which we intend to return."

The Fourth Dementia.

"Golf?" the physician said, with a sigh. "Golf, or, more correctly, golficitis, must be designated the fourth dementia. Golficitia is a permanent addition to English manias, and is attracting the attention of thinking alienists. This mania differs from others in that it is not acute in its chronic stages and is curable. The symptoms are a loathing for legitimate business, an abnormal disposition to copious profanity and nervous irritation, a passion for giddy and eccentric garments, a profound contempt for truth, a hatred of domestic restraint, accompanied by flushed face and a depraved love of out-of-doors."—Golfing.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

THOUSANDS HAVE KIDNEY TROUBLE AND DON'T KNOW IT

Swamp-Root, The Great Kidney Restorative and Healer.

ITS MARVELOUS SUCCESS IN ALL KIDNEY, BLADDER AND URIC ACID TROUBLES,

To Prove for Yourself the Wonderful Merits of This Great Discovery, You may Have a Sample Bottle Sent Absolutely Free By Mail.

What your kidneys need is a gentle, healing, tonic influence, that will soothe their irritability and gently regulate them.

The only thing that will do this is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the ideal Kidney Restorative.

It used to be considered that only urinary troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all constitutional diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these useful organs.

What more natural?

The Kidneys filter and purify the blood.

When they don't your whole body must suffer.

If you are sick, doctor your kidneys, because as soon as they are well they will help all the other organs to health.

The mild and extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases and is sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar bottles. Make a note of the name, SWAMP-ROOT, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

You may have a sample bottle of this famous kidney remedy sent free by mail, postpaid, by which you may test its virtues for such disorders as kidney, bladder and uric acid diseases, and urinary troubles, obliged to pass water frequently night and day, smarting or irritation in passing, brickdust or sediment in the urine, constant headache, backache, lame back, dizziness, sleeplessness, indigestion, nervousness, skin trouble, anaemia, Bright's disease, neuralgia, rheumatism, bloating, irritability, worn-out feeling, lack of ambition, loss of flesh, sallow complexion.

If your water when allowed to remain undisturbed in a glass or bottle for twenty-four hours, forms a sediment or settling or has a cloudy appearance, it is evidence that your kidneys and bladder need immediate attention.

The great discovery, Swamp-Root, has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work, in private practice, among the helpless too poor to purchase relief, and has proved so successful in every case, that a special arrangement has been made by which all the readers of this paper who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent absolutely free by mail. Also a book telling more about Swamp-Root and containing some of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women who owe their good health, in fact, their very lives, to the wonderful curative properties of Swamp-Root. Be sure and mention this paper when sending your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

The Natural Cure for Indigestion.

Do you have pain in the stomach after eating? Do you have a yellow tongue? Wind on the stomach? Constipation? These things arise from Indigestion and Dyspepsia.

Digestion depends on digestive fluids or "ferments" secreted by certain glands. When the secretion becomes insufficient, Indigestion results. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People cause these glands to resume their normal action and good digestion follows.

Artificial ferments (of which most so-called Dyspepsia cures are composed) may give temporary relief, but Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People afford a permanent cure.

Poor digestion often causes irregularity of the heart's action. This irregularity may be mistaken for real, organic heart disease. A case in point: Mrs. Ellen Colsom, Newpoint, Ind., had suffered for four years with stomach trouble. The gases generated by the indigestion pressed on the heart, and caused an irregularity of its action. She had much pain in her stomach and heart, and was subject to frequent and severe choking spells which were most severe at night. Doctors were tried in vain; the patient became worse, despondent, and feared impending death.

She noticed that in intervals in which her stomach did not annoy her, her heart's action became normal. Reasoning correctly that her digestion was alone at fault she procured the proper medicine to treat that trouble and with immediate good results. Her appetite came back, the choking spells became less frequent and finally ceased. Her weight, which had been greatly reduced, was restored and she now weighs more than for years.

That others may know the means of cure we give the name of the medicine used—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. These pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. —New Era, Greenburg, Ind.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, April 28, 1899.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Livery business is lively now-a days.

—Diphtheria made its appearance on South Third street Monday. Mrs. Baltuff is the patient.

—A chimney sweep livened up our village with his bugle Monday. He says business is not overly good.

—Rev. Orlando Steiner, of Armstrong, will preach in the Delano M. E. church Sunday eve., April 30th.

—John Teischler occupies the old John Haffner residence on N. Third street, where he is at home to his friends.

—Private Charles Little, of Howard Lake, is home from Manila where he was wounded and discharged from the 18th Minn. Reg.

—Delano is represented in the class of honorable mention at the "U." by Miss Grace O'Hair, a graduate of the Delano High School.

—Thursday morning's rain was thankfully received, and all nature including the people took on a more cheerful appearance.

—Undertaker Redmond resurrected the remains of Martin Conzet Saturday and conveyed them to Rockford where they were re-buried.

—Read over carefully your law supplement found in today's GAZETTE and see what laws the legislature passed and the Governor signed this winter.

—About a dozen traveling men arrived in Delano Monday. Although a vacant house was pressed into service there were not sample rooms enough. One was heard to remark that he would make this town on his return trip.

—Owing to the unprecedented enterprise of the Minnesota Editors and Publishers Association law committee, and the skill and energy of the Dispatch Publishing Company we are enabled to 10 days after the adjournment of the legislature, give our readers the new laws.

—The Board of Education we are informed has contracted with teachers for the High School, except for the primary department. If they don't get better positions and forfeit their $10 deposit the school will probably open next fall under favorable conditions.

—The Johnny Bull head of the bicephalous Old Bird up street says something about "The Philippine annex located in the rear of Dr. Catlin's office." If Johnny Bull has any arguments concerning the Philippine question why don't he produce them? What excuse has he for "jack rabit" shooting? Is he under orders to keep still as Capt. Coughlan or Admiral Kautz? Of course he favors an English-American alliance.

Hiawatha.

A long time ago there was a little Indian boy named Hiawatha. Hiawatha lived in a wigwam which looked very much like a tent. He lived with his grandmother, old Nokomis.

Nokomis had a friend named Iagoo. Iagoo was a great story teller. Some times Hiawatha would go to the door of the wigwam and sit. Iagoo would say, "There are many red deer down at the river, and I will make you a bow and arrow. Shoot a deer with antlers.

So Hiawatha went to the forest and shot a deer. When he went his friends said: "Do not shoot me Hiawatha". Hiawatha did not hear them for he was thinking of the red deer.

So Hiawatha went till he came to the river. When the red deer came to the river he lifted his bow and arrow and shot a deer. Hiawatha carried the red deer proudly home to Iagoo and Nokomis. Nokomis made Hiawatha a coat from the fur and a dinner from the meat. Iagoo told his friends to come and eat dinner with him. Hiawatha's friends all praised him.

County Cullings.

Our legislators will have considerable explaining to do in the next campaign.

Howard Lake wants a new school house. They need it and ought to have it. Nothing advertises a town better than good school houses and first class schools.

Charles Goodsell, aged 81 years, died in Minneapolis, Saturday, April 22. Mr. Goodsell was an old settler and founded the Village of Howard Lake, where his remains were taken for burial.

The Maple Lake Messenger makes use of several bar-room and dog-fight terms this week. It might have caught them from the Advocate of Imperialism; or imbibed them from its inspiring fountain of politics.

Our legislators should have been a unit on allowing the people to vote on whether or not we should increase the gross earnings tax on railroads. The people is the power. They elect legislators and the legislators ought to respect their wishes enough to allow them the privilege of voting on important questions when they desire so to do.

The Buffalo Standard says: "The old soldiers who come to St. Paul and who visit the Adjutant Generals office are forcibly impressed with the fact that the boys of '61 who conduested this office have been turned out by the new administration." That was where brother Saylor earned his salary (but wasn't he born before '61?). If the old soldiers want to find a man to talk to let them visit the office of the Dairy Commissioner or Bank Examiner.

The County Commissioners were in session Wednesday. They appeared to be uncommonly jolly for some reason. The Auditor mentioned on the opening of the afternoon session that the "full board" was present. Then he said he thought they were not "full" either. A couple of medical men present thought they were not full. They seem to be more tormented with petitions to be set off from one school district to another than anything else. They made short work of the dozen or so before them by lumping them and granting all notcontested.

The steam plant for the Court House has arrived. The Commissioners allowed the contractors to use another kind of radiator from that in the specification, and the firm that would not sell that kind to the contractors will be advertised rather by the conspicuousness of their absence.

The burly form of Wright county's Sheriff was about the first thing we beheld on arriving at the Court House Wednesday. A Mr. Sundberg was being examined for committment to the asylum. Drs. Shannon and Powell were on the examining board.

The Treasurer didn't seem to be so very busy just now.

Clerk of Court Vorse had the usual good natured smile and hand shake for all callers.

Charlie McClatchie was trying to pare the foot of a small mule, whose proprietor was soothing into quietness by means of a twister on the nose. Charlie said he could "shoe a mule better than a Democrat."

Anti-expansionists are thick at the county seat, and they are very outspoken about it too.

A. C. Heath, Abstractor, quietly remarked that "Tariff is a Tax". We verily believe that Mr. H is aware of that fact.

Democratic politics, though apparently quite dormant in Wright county are sizzling to beat the bosses. It is of no use talking, there is such a thing as overdoing politics, and they have for years been overcooked in our county. The better men of both parties have found out where the matter lies and are keeping their eyes and ears open even though their mouths are mute as oysters. Men, able, competent, and willing to be defeated if need be in a square, honest fight, are coming to the front, or rather are being crowded for positions on a genuine 1896 Chicago platform, with anti-imperialism ticket. Men who undertake to cry down the Chicago platform, Bryanism or Bryan in this county have been rapidly loosing ground for several years and already we begin to scent the pure stuff. Let us keep the scent.

Among Our Exchanges.

Wabasha Standard: Raw whisky is said to be the prime factor in the manufacture of smokeless powder. Well, the stuff is bound to kill a man in some form anyway.

Duluth Herald: No, no; by no means let us abandon our sacred work in the Philippines! Let us go on and slaughter! Let us wipe out the entire population! Murder is more manly than acknowledgement of error.

World: The Administration is no doubt wise in deciding not to call for the 35,000 volunteers authorized in the Army bill. The inducements for "jack-rabbiting" and jungle fighting in the Philippines against poor devils whose cry is "Liberty or death!" are not alluring to Americans.

Sherburne County Times: Gen. Shafter says the canned beef was all right and good eating. Roosevelt says it was uneatable, nauseating and unfit for human food. Shafter was at the rear in a hammock, Roosevelt was at front with the other fighters. Which of the two will the public believe?

St. Cloud Times: THERE IS a difference. In Washington it is given out that any volunteer in the Philippines may obtain his discharge by asking for it; from Manila comes the statement that Gen. Otis is not approving any applications for discharge, except those from sick, wounded, or disabled men.

County Line: SENATOR WILSON, who opposed Governor Lind's suggestions relative to the Thirteenth Minnesota, is one of the law makers who supported, with a fervor bordering on insanity, the bill to release the Younger brothers. But, come to think of it, the senator's son has been discharged because of a pull, so what does he care about the Thirteenth now?

New York Dispatch: The big licking that this country gave Spain is a mere nothing to the enormous licking operations that are now being carried on here as a result of the original one. Revenue stamps to the amount of $26,384,440 were consumed from the passage of the war tax measure up to February. The total receipts from the war revenue measure during the same period were $62,012,191.

Waseca Herald: Shall we continue to select out the physically perfect young men of the nation and send them to the opposite side of the earth to either meet death or contract physical and moral disease, under the mistaken notion that it is our duty to continue the work of murdering an unoffending people who were our allies in the late war with Spain, and whose only crime is that they have accepted the teachings of Washington and the revolutionary fathers?

He Didn't Need Any More.

A very subdued looking boy of about 13 years, with a long scratch on his nose and an air of general dejection, came to his teacher in one of the Boston public schools and handed her a note before taking his seat and becoming deeply absorbed in his book. The note read as follows:

"Miss B—: Plese excuse James for not being thare yessterday. He played trooant, but I guess you don't need to lick him for it, as the boy he played trooant with an' him fell out. an' the boy licked him, an' a man they sassed caught him an licked him, an' the driver of a sled they hung on to licked him allso. Then his pa licked him, an' I had to give him another one for sassing me for telling his pa, so you need not lick him until next time. I guess he thinks he had better keep in school hereafter."—Harper's Bazar.

Have Wages Increased?

And one of the g. o. p. papers asks this bureau whether or not it is true that wages have been increased and a general lift all around. Let the paper make its own answer. Has it raised the wages of its devil and its printer, raised advertising and increased subscription rates? Has the editor's butcher raised the pay of his men, or the merchant that of his clerks? The wall paper dealer will tell you that the trust has raised paper forty per cent, but that he himself is making less on it than last year. Some of the specially protected lines the trusts have raised wages in some instances, but turned loose an army of men in the concerns that have closed by the combinations. Everybody knows that there is little or no profit in most lin s of trade, hence there can be no general increase of pay. In the cities combinations of the labor organizations have been able to maintain wages reasonably, aided by their unions and by the chance that labor has gone elsewhere until it has been scarce here. In general the tide is lower and lower, as it is bound to be, the country being at the mercy of the combinations in restraint of trade which have it by the throat. Nor is it the reform forces which are calling most loudly for relief, but the ablest bodied of the calamity howlers are among republicans. Thus the Pioneer Press sounds a regular fog horn, while ex-senator Ingalls of Kansas, is afoot with predictions of revolution. Even the Springfield, Mass., Republican declares of general industrial conditions that the combines have brought ruin, "closed factories, discharging labor in large numbers, while possibly raising the wages of those remaining slightly—as little as possible—added commercial travelers to the army of the unemployed, destroyed the salaried or commission men and wiped out merchants or forced them into the department stores, or idleness and ruin.', Well, howl. The other fellows have been telling you the truth now for a long time Tell it yourselves awhile. —Reform Press Bulletin.

DIED.

ROSS,—In Franklin, Thursday, April 20, Mrs. C. Ross aged 66 years.

CADY.—At Buffalo, on Tuesday, April 25, Dr. Resolvo O. Cady, aged 80 years.

Dr. Cady was born in Dublin Ireland, emigrated to America, studied medicine graduating at Geneva College, N. Y. He located at Buffalo in 1866, and had an extensive practice. He was a few years ago, President of the Wright County Medical Society. He was, for years, Coroner of the county. Many former patients will testify as to the kindness, faithfulness and generosity of their former physician, now dead and gone to his reward. He leaves a wife and several grown up sons and daughters who have our sympathy with that of a large circle of friends and acquaintances. The funeral was held Thursday, under direction of the Masonic Fraternity of whose order he was an honored member.

ACTIVE SOLICITORS WANTED EVERYWHERE for "The Story of the Philippines" by Murat Halstead, commissioned by the Government as Official Historian to the War Department. The book was written in army camps at San Francisco, on the Pacific with General Merritt, in the hospitals at Honolulu, in Hong Kong, in the American trenches at Manila, in the insurgent camps with Aguinaldo, on the deck of the Olympia with Dewey, and in the roar of battle at the fall of Manila. Bonanza for agents. Brimful of original pictures taken by government photographers on the spot. Low prices. Big profits. Freight paid. Credit given. Drop all trashy unofficial war books. Outfit free. THE delights of an evening spent around a well-lighted reading table are not half understood. An illustrated magazine with its wealth of illustrations, its stories of adventure and love, its descriptions of travel which carry you to the remotest ends of the earth, and its instructive articles for young and old—these are the first requisites for your own enjoyment and the entertainment and proper education of your children.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal,

Both Together One Year for Only $1.80

In this way you secure your own home paper and an illustrated magazine at a price that is only about a fourth of what some of the illustrated magazines sell for. For three years The Cosmopolitan has undisputedly claimed that it reached the largest clientele possessed by any periodical, daily, weekly or monthly, in the world. It was The Cosmopolitan which sent Julian Hawthorne to India to let the world know the real horrors of famine and plague. It was The Cosmopolitan which established at its own cost a great Free Correspondence University which now has over 20,000 students on its rolls. It was The Cosmopolitan which offered a prize of $3,000 for the best horseless carriage and prizes for best plans for public baths, and best arrangement of sewer and pipe systems for cities. It was The Cosmopolitan which set the presidents of great schools and universities seriously discussing the defects of existing educational systems. It is The Cosmopolitan whose enterprise is always in the lead in advancing the world's civilization.

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

Three Together One Year for Only $2.35

"INCOMPLETE."

There's many an image in the stone
That waits for the sculptor's hand;
Through the 'ong, long years it waits alone,
Wrapped in obscurity round it thrown,
But the master fingers never come
To mould it into shape.

There's many a flower that sweetly blooms,
Away from the human eye;
On the desert air it wastes perfumes,
And blushes at naught but the sky.
Alas! No one's gladdened by its light;
It blooms, and fades—alone.

There's many a hill in the way of life
That is hard—so hard—to climb;
You would not notice its care or strife
If helped by an act sublime.
But no one ever takes the time,
And you trudge away unhelped.

There's many a heart that waits today
For the touch of a loving word,
To take its grief or sorrow away,
To bring "the beautiful from the clay";
But no one troubles to think of this,
And it dies—unloved—alone.

There's many a grumbler, as you know;
But scarcely ever you meet
One who, forgetful of his woe,
Is ever calm and sweet.
So life is darker and harder to bear
For want of help and love.

—Bertie Rawlinheimer.

IF President McKinley wants to do the wishes of the people, after offering the volunteers in the Philippines $500 and learning that only 7 per cent of them would accept it to stay there six months longer, why don't he send the balance of them home?

IT is announced that Mrs George, who was acquitted for shooting George Saxton, is to lecture on woman's rights. To most people it looks as if under the circumstances, as far as known to the public, Woman's rights would be as well off if Mrs. G. didn't go on the platform.

THE talk of turning Capt Caughan out of office or reprimanding Admiral Kautz for having opinions of his own and expressing them, and of refusing to deliver mail between soldiers and their friends and a few more things taste too strongly of Imperialism altogether for this country.

DISTURBING elements of all kinds seem to be at work in our country at present. A war between white strikers and imported negro miners in Illinois has been going on for months. Idaho is having U. S. soldiers sent there to put down striking miners, a negro regiment is among the soldiers. Negroes are being hanged or burned in Georgia for crimes somebody committed. It seems that things must be too troublesome when local authorities can't keep law and order.

SOME of the Republican papers seem to delight in abusing Gov. Lind and calling him names, and holding him and the 13th Reg. officers up to ridicule but they make an awful fuss whenever a friend of a volunteer says he thinks the President, commander in chief of the army, should discharge the volunteers whose time is out and who are being kept to fight in a war they never enlisted to fight in. If the war in the Philippines must be carried on let the President call for some of the expansion howlers to go over and fight it, and have some of the "glory" they tell so much about.

THE idea of the Constitution of our country is that the will of the people is the souvereign power. The ruler of a country should be informed as far as possible as to conditions and wants of the subjects over which he governs.

If the people are the power and rule themselves they are entitled to know what is going on at their headquarters. This secrecy business with the powers that be, as to matters of facts, and as to intentions, and aims, and objects of government, is growing tiresom, is wearing on the nerves of our nation, and creating disturbances at home. A good, open, frank confession of what the intentions of our government's servants at Washington are, would put the people, the powers that should be, right, in their own minds at least; and have a soothing effect on the country.

THE terrible race war that seems imminent in this country should, if possible, be averted in some way. There seems to be an antipathy against the negroes among white people, not only in the South but in the North at some places. The shooting of one of President McKinley's Post Masters in the south seemed to be the start of an outbreak; the burning of Hose, and the hanging of preacher Strickland, in Georgia, the last of the outrageous proceedings. But in a northern and eastern state a few days ago a negro was hanged till nearly dead, for stealing. After he was cut down he confessed to the crime. There seems to be no mixing of the races, no more than there is of oil and water. And as it is necessary to have separate vessels for these, it seems necessary to have separate habitations for the white and black races. For thirty years our country has had more or less of the race troubles, and as things are still so bad it seems as if something should be done toward stopping such barbarities as those recently carried out. Criminals should be promptly captured, convicted and punished according to law. There should be justice, tempered with mercy where possible, meted out promptly. Several have suggested shipping the negroes to Africa to enlighten the wild men of that country. If they desire to go it might be well to assist them. Brooker Washington claims that no educated negro has been caught perpetrating crimes. That is a good argument for educating what remains here.

The Dispatch Needs a Scavenger.

The St. Paul Dispatch would do lots better if it would let up on the 13th Reg. for a few issues. It has been running down and belittleing their services and abusing their officers about long enough. But last night they capped the climax by saying: "The Thirteenth is a good regiment—too good a regiment to be doing the menial, scavenger work of police duty to which it has been assigned," etc. The 13th has all along been praised for its efficiency as a police force. We think the Dispatch needs a "scavenger" to carry the editor of that article over to the "13th Reg. auxillary grannies" and let them treat him to a soapsuds bath: of course he would kick.

"Jack Rabbit Shooting."

Under the above heading this week's Eagle evidently does her prettiest to answer our questions of last week drawn out by her allusion to us as the "Filippino annex" in the previous weeks issue,

But instead of using her brains, (if she has got any brains) she trots out about a column of quotations, from who? About half from W. D. Washburn, Jr.! Half of the balance from Gov. Roosevelt, and the remainder from Senator Johnson, of St. Peter. Does anyone seriously consider this authority as against that of Hear, Reed, Atkinson, Bryan or Towne, to say nothing of thousands more equally as learned and competent of judging as the authorities cited by Mr. Buckley?

The Eagle article is wound up by a few thoughts which seem to have been incited within the shallow recesses of the editor's noddle by reading the quotations of the not very eminent authorities quoted by her. Mr. Johnson saying: "I want to say frankly, that I don't know what necessity there is for maintaining troops in the Philippines, but I do know that as long as war exists in the Philippines, I for one shall vote to sustain and uphold the government."

As it was to get some opinion from the Eagle, (if she has any opinion and dare give it to her readers) that we asked "what excuse has he for 'jack rabbit' shooting?" We have only to deal with the few lines from the pen of Mr. B. He says of Dewey: "He HAD to take Manila". He then believes in the destiny of the affair. We think differently. It is admitting our country is coming to hard lines when we say she HAD to take a town as far away as Manila. But granting that Dewey took Manila as a war measure to cripple Spain, and "the peace conference turned over the islands of the archipelago to the United States but the Filippinos desired to set up an independent government which the whole world knew could not stand. The United States government promised them almost everything but absolute independence," Now haven't they been fighting for years for independence? And isn't that the one object in life of patriotic people and didn't we arm them and accept their assistance in driving Spain out? And arn't they entitled to independence?

But the corker for an argument is here, and must be considered purely original with the Eagle, and shows to perfection the unhuman feeling that swells in the bosom of her bombastic editor and blatant expounder of a false patriotism: "American privates are not asking to be withdrawn from active service. They enlisted to fight and they would just as soon shoot jack rabbits as anything else."

And think of it. The man who wrote the above quotation claims to be patriotic! Shame! Either he is misrepresenting himself before the people, doesn't know what patriotism means, or the meaning of the word itself has met a terribly disfiguring change since the advent of the last administration.

The soldiers have hearts and are human, and such a thrust is a disgrace to all American volunteers.

The editor didn't tell us whether he favors an English-American alliance or not.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 28, 1899.

"Like master like man". Secretary Alger's fight upon Gen. Miles has mostly been of an underhanded nature, so it is not very surprising that the report of the Military Court of Inquiry, now in Mr. McKinley's hands, should seek to make its attack upon Gen. Miles seem fair by jumping on a few minor commissary officers and recommending that they be court martialed for neglecting their duty in connection with the beef supplied to the army,—a neglect that the report says was extremely profitable to the beef contractors. This thing isn't done with. Gen. Miles was completely vindicated by the evidence taken and he intends to keep on fighting until his vindication is officially recognized, and he has been assured of support by prominent men in Congress, some of them republicans. He has known from the first that the personal enmity of two men connected with the court of Inquiry would have prevented his getting fair treatment, even with Secretary Alger's influence against him left out of consideration.

Political pull was stronger with Mr. McKinley than his friendship for General Joe Wheeler; consequently "Fighting Joe's" application for active service in the Philippines was turned down, and that eminent political warrior Fred Grant, chosen as one of the three Brigadier Generals that are to be sent to the Philippines at once; the other two being Bates, who has just been detached from the command of the Santa Clara province, Cuba, and Young, who has been supervising the mustering out of volunteers in the South. Gen. Wheeler has repeatedly said that he would resign his commission if he could not get active service, but it is stated that he is to be offered command of the Department of Texas, which is to be revived. If Gen. Wheeler accepts this command, it will be an indication that there is something in the story of his expecting to be appointed Brigadier General in the regular army.

Things are far from being satisfactory in Porto Rico. Thirty-nine deaths from starvation have been officially reported from a single province since the free government rations were suspended, and 180,000 are reported to be continuously hungry. It is proposed by the Red Cross to establish depots in the large cities for the sale of Porto Rican products for the benefit of the poor on the island. The stuff will be given by Porto Rican planters and merchants and brought to the U. S. free by the Porto Rican steamship Co, if this government will allow them to be brought in without payment of duty.

In decidibg to reprimand Capt. Coghlan, of the cruiser Raleigh, because he told a story that was published all over the world nearly a year ago, in what he supposed to be the privacy of a club room in New York, Secretary Long and the administration added nothing to their popularity. It looks too much like truckling to the German Government to please the Average American. It was unnecessary for Secretary Hay to have taken the proper stand in telling the German Ambassador, when he called at the State Department to make a protest, in the name of his government, that Capt. Coghlan had spoken as an individual at a private gathering of friends, and with no expectation that what he said was to be published, and that this government would take no official cognizance of the matter, if the Navy Department was to punish Capt. Coghlan. It looked to much like Secretary Hay made a bluff for public consumption and then privately assurred the German ambassador that Capt. Coghlan would be punished. That doesn't square with the American idea of straightforwardness. If that sort of thing is kept up our army and navy officers will be afraid to talk among their friends, until each of them has been sworn not to give his remarks to a newspaper.

Representative Grosvenor has been given a straight tip from headquarters not to become a candidate for the speakership of the House, because Boss Hanna had decided that the administration could not afford to put an Ohio man in that position. The talk about Grosvenor having decided not to become a candidate because he thought Ohio was already sufficiently provided with big political honors is all bosh. It was a case of Hanna, not diffidence.

Surely Alger is surely to be pitied now; Jay Hubbell, of Mich., whose political methods were too bad even for the republican party, whose notorious connection with the forced assessing of government employes in the Garfield campaign, when Hubbell was at the head of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee, has not been forgotten, floated into Washington this week and gave Alger a public endorsement through a newspaper interview. Of course, Hubbell endorses Alger; they are birds of a feather, but among decent people his endorsement does more harm than would his condemnation. By the way, it has been much commented upon that Alger was the only member of the Cabinet in Washington who did not accompany the Presidential party that went to Philadelphia to see the Grant monument unveiled. It is said that Mr. McKinley did not ask him.

WOMAN—A STUDY.

Woman, woman, winsome woman!
Tell us are you saint or human,
Or a toy Beelzebub has sent us from afar?
We've thought about you, sighed about you,
Fought about you, cried about you,
Stayed up nights and lied about you, puzzle that you are.

Just when we would dream we've got you
Figured out, as like as not you
Leave us topsy-turvy, guessing what to say or do;
Now we hate you, then caress you,
Now berate you, then we bless you,
But our lives are stale unless you keep us in a stew.

Some there are who really dread you,
Some who long to woo and wed you,
Some would banish you forever to a distant land;
Artists paint you, poets verse you,
Bishops saint you, cynics curse you,
But "for better or for worse" you still are in demand.

There are times you sadly vex us,
Puzzle, plague us and perplex us,
Till we wish you were in Texas, very far away;
But, although we sadly doubt you,
You've such winsome ways about you
We can never do without you, so we let you stay.

—Nixon Waterman, in L. A. W. Bulletin.

The Candidate's Daughter

IT IS a pleasant conviction of old age that the affairs of the world are not quite so important as they were a few years ago and that the ability for conducting them is going back instead of advancing. This commentary is suggested by the experience that the old political campaigner was relating to some of the legislative friends when they met at the hotel.

"I don't suppose," said the veteran, "that the like ever happened in Michigan, before or since. There was a romance involved, some of the greatest men the nation ever produced took a hand, a whole community was divided by the bitterest factional war, the career of an ambitious congressman was suddenly terminated, and yet the little federal position involved was not worth over $100 a month, if that much. It was a sort of a bloodless political duel, and I know of at least one participant that would rather have stood up and been shot at than to have lost.

"It was right out here in the country where I was raised and brought up. There were only two prominent aspirants for the little office, but their rivalry had stirred the town into a flutter of excitement from center to circumference. I think political interest is more general in the country than in the city, and in those days the individual was more assertive, more appreciative of the supreme rights of citizenship, because he had not been suppressed by machines, combines, rings and bosses as he is now. The churches were internally divided on this issue, social bees were turned into debating societies where feeling ran high, the war was carried into the local paper by heated correspondents, the store and the post office were largely monopolized by the disputants, and some very old friendships were strained to the uttermost.

"I was very much infatuated with the pretty daughter of my candidate. Now that I can view the situation more calmly I realize that he was my candidate because she was his daughter, but wild horses couldn't have drawn such a confession from me at the time. His opponent also had a pretty daughter, and she, too, had an admirer, who was a stanch supporter of her father in his time of political need. These two girls were rival belles, and Tom Harter and I were regarded as among the most effective political herdsmen in that locality. You can understand how much feeling could be stirred up with such elements of discord. Farmers neglected things at home to wrangle or to listen to others wrangle. Some of the women quit speaking and said very unkind things of each other. The young people were as distinctly divided as though lined up in opposition at a spelling school, and there was more genuine temper displayed than in any presidential campaign we had ever gone through.

"Now, I was not alone in my admiration for the daughter of my candidate. There were others, and several of them. I had never felt secure enough to venture a proposal, and was passing through a very trying period of uncertainty. One afternoon as I was walking rapidly by her house I found her leaning over the gate and looking disconsolate enough to cry. 'Tom Harter's going to Washington to-morrow,' she said abruptly. 'You know what that means?'

"Lovers think quickly, when capable of thinking at all. 'I should think he would go, under the circumstances. It's his duty.'

"'Then I suppose father might as well draw out,' and there were tears in her lovely eyes. 'O, if I were only a man!'

"'I'm thankful you're not,' I laughed, and there were two of us leaning on the gate. 'I'm going to tell you something that I have never confided to another person.' This was strictly true, for I had never thought of it till that minute. 'Please don't mention it to a living person, not even to your father, for it might defeat all our plans. I go to Washington to-night, Hattie. I have everything ready. I'll take the train from the side opposite the platform, and no one will be the wiser until some time to-morrow. Did it ever enter that wise little head of yours that I'd allow Tom to get the start of me or give you anything to cry over?'

"Her eyes sparkled, roses came to her pale cheeks as if by magic, she turned a glad face toward me and—well, who wouldn't? In my eagerness I had perpetrated a regular schoolboy smack and a frightened robin darted out of the cherry tree over our heads. Keep in mind that we were leaning over the same gate. It was the first time, too.

"Well, I went through to Washington as fast as steam would carry me, and lost no time in hunting up the congressman from my district. He promised so much and did it with so little apparent consideration that I did not place much dependence upon his assistance. I thought of the girl I left at the gate, took courage of love and went right to the postmaster-general. There, that comes of being rusty on politics. I did not mean to tell what position I was trying to have filled, but even that will not identify the town or the candidates. It happened that the secretary of state was sitting with the postmaster-general, and I suppose that the latter wanted to make an impression. I stated my case to him as concisely as I could, telling him of the central location of my candidate's place of business, his loyalty to the party, his fitness for the position and of the important fact that his appointment would be a great favor to me.

"The general answered with a sneer that he made little attempt to conceal. He would be delighted to do me a personal favor. It would be a downright pleasure for him, but he did not see that the interests of the nation were seriously involved in this little appointment, and he would withhold his decision. Whatever that might be, he hoped that I would keep in mind the fact that he was postmaster general.

"I managed to tell him that the fact did not strike me as an unalloyed blessing, and thought that I saw a pleasant twinkle in the eye of his distinguished caller. I went away mad and disheartened. Suddenly Senator Zach Chandler came to my mind. He was a friend of my father, both were from New Hampshire, and whenever the great leader was in our section of the state the two men would have a good time talking over the old home state. I went to the senator, telling him everything but the gate episode and the other party thereto. He knew me when I entered, for he never forgot names or faces. He inquired particularly after my father, expressing his regard for him as an old friend, and was in a mood to favor any reasonable cause I might espouse.

"'So he tried to squelch you, did he?' and the old war horse's face had its sternest setting. 'Wanted to show off at the expense of one of my friends and constituents, did he? Just drop this matter and meet me here at eight this evening. That will let you out of the city to-night if you want to go.'

"I was on time and Chandler handed me a commission for my candidate. He stopped my thanks to ask me if it would inconvenience me to remain over till the next day. I was burning to get home with the glad tidings, but I would have given him a month, had he asked it. 'Then take this to the postmaster general, tell him that his treatment of you was inexcusable, that Michigan men do not permit such attempts to humiliate them, that he told you to remember that he was postmaster general, and that you now ask him to accept notice that the state of Michigan has been removed from his immediate jurisdiction.' I followed instructions, and, while I do not know what that message from the president, sent to the general through Chandler and myself, contained, I do know that he wilted and stammered an apology. I also know that Chandler was the man after that who said who might hold post offices in this state.

"I gave that commission to the girl who came running down to the same gate to meet me, and when I promptly attended to another little matter of business she said she would marry me a thousand times if it was going to make me so happy. Harter had to wait three years before his girl became good-humored enough to accept him."

The Prig and His Cane.

In the number of the Tatler for October 6, 1709, it is observed that "a cane is part of the dress of a prig" (this, by the way, shows the erroneous notion prevalent that "priggishness" is a modern word) "and always worn upon a button, for fear he should be thought to have an occasion for it or be esteem'd really and not genteely a cripple." In the number for November 18 a rural squire in town is sketched who is the prototype of one of the pavement nuisances. "His arms naturally swang at an unreasonable distance from his sides, which, with the advantage of a cane that he brandished in a great variety of irregular motions, made it unsafe for anyone to walk within several yards of him." And under date of December 3 there is an amusing sketch of "a lively, fresh-colored young man" who was among the applicants to Isaac Bickerstaff's Court of Censorship for license to use "canes, perspective glasses, snuffboxes, orange-flower waters, and the like ornaments of life." This young man had his cane hanging on his fifth button, and was "an Oxford scholar who was just enter'd at the Temple."—Gentleman's Magazine.

"The Little Minister's" Church.

The Auld Licht church at Kirriemuir (Thrums), Scotland, made famous by J. M. Barrie, seems to have fallen upon evil days. William C. Conn, the "little minister," has resigned because the older members of his congregation said he was "too broad," having preached in the pulpits of other denominations. Although the presbytery acquitted him of all blame, Mr. Conn could not be persuaded to remain. There are, by the fay, only 27 churches in Scotland and two in Ireland which are now included in the "Synod of United Original Seceders," a fact which reminds the Philadelphia Press of the reply made by an old Scot when asked after the welfare of his church: "Weel," he said, "ye ken 't this way; first, there were a hunnerd o' us. Then there was a schism an' tha' left but fifty. An' then there was a heresy trial which took awa' twenty-five. Then a deesruption left only my brother Donald an' myself—an' I have sair douts o' Donald's orthodoxy."—Detroit Free Press.

From Independence.

MAPLE PLAIN, Minn, May 2, 1899.

MR EDITOR: Amidst the busy whirl of life, surrounded by all the temptations, privations, and afflictions that the flesh is heir to, we still live.

Some ministers tell us from the pulpit and orators from the rostrum that our national ills are only imaginary, and that there is no lion in the way, and the leaders of this and all other countries are weaving a web of prosperity for all nations of the earth and that our future prospects were never more bright from the days of righteous Abel than they are at this present time, that even all domestic sky is clear with only a few exceptions, and even then behind each cloud is a silver lining with gold trimmings.

We read in some of the papers that the common farmer is a living monument of all earthly prosperity. We are thankful for the compliment, but cannot accept the flattering words of a Demosthenes as being true gospel.

Our bosom may burn with love of country and patriotism, our sword may be unsheathed to defend her free institutions. But when we are called upon to father two hundred and seventy trusts and combines where is our glory?

I know the farmer, the producer, and the inventor is the salt of the earth, and if the salt has lost its savor wherewith shall ye be salted?

The farmer, the producer, and the inventor, with the aid of divine providence, furnish not only food, raiment and locomotive power, but everything for the comfort and benefit of man while he lives, and also at his death and we still do more for humanity than this. We have been furnishing the brains of this country for more than a century. Washington, Webster, Clay, Lincoln, and all of our most able men came from the farm. The farmer, the producer and the laboring man fight the battles of our country, defend our homes, our firesides and our free institutions. The millionair can count money and clip coupons behind his desk, but farming and war is all Greek to him. Sometimes they run into office by paying a heavy freight bill. The newspaper is a very useful and convenient thing to have but some of them sometimes blows hot or cold just as they see fit.

Money, tariff, and war are the questions at issue. It is said there are two hundred and seventy trusts organized, with an individual capitalization of $400,000,000 and a combined capital of $6,089,742,200. Can the farmer and the producer overcome this mountain of wealth and combination, and have anything to say about the prices upon his own products. We may live in hopes but I think we will die in despair.

It it happens that a farmer is seen with a few luxeries of this life, such as a new suit of clothes, a top buggy, a stove pipe hat and pug dog, he is commented upon as getting up in the world, and being quite a swell. I know we farmers are the salt of the earth and if we live ye live also.

"When the goodman mends his armor
And trims his helmet plume;
When the good wife's shuttle merrily
Goes flashing through the loom."

We farmers are now busy putting in seed and preparing grounds for crops, so the hungry millions may be fed, and perhaps we get a little stipend out of it, to pay taxes and high protection and also help to furnish money to send beer, whiskey, arms, ammunition and missionaries to the Philippines to civilize the Filipinos. Thousands of people are putting in a protest against this monkey war with the Filipinos. Read about the anti-expansion meeting held in Chicago, if you want to find out the opinion of some of the people in regard to this war.

"The love of money is the root of all evil".

It is being made the chief corner stone of everything almost. We are living so fast that it requires many dollars to keep up appearances.

Porto Rico is soon to have its first electric railway. It is to be built by Americans, and will connect several surrounding towns with San Juan.

Municipal woman suffrage is a condition and not a theory at Beattie, Kan. At the recent election the town elected a mayoress, five alderwomen and a clerkess.

You best a man when he gets the worst of it. You worst him when you get the best of him. That is to say, "to best" and "to worst" mean exactly the same thing.

A pauper woman in Paris has been convicted of having had her child baptized 14 times as a Catholic and 12 times as a Protestant for the purpose of securing five francs and a dress each time.

Congressman Joe Sibley, of Pennsylvania, has furnished a startling precedent for other congressmen by giving his entire salary for the term, amounting to $10,000, to public hospitals and other charities in his district.

The late John Walter, of the London Times, made a peculiar will. He left as a legacy to one of his daughters, one of the advertising columns in that paper. The column is the best in the paper for advertising, it commands a very high price, and she is enjoying a steady income of $150 a day therefrom.

In the last 50 years the total number of public officials in France has increased from 188,000 to 416,000, and their salaries have grown from $49,000,000 to $121,000,000. In the same period the population has increased only ten per cent. Either France did not have enough government half a century ago, or else it has too much now.

Relic hunters are carrying away piecemeal in their pockets the house in Montpelier, Vt., in which Dewey was born. The number of relics immediately pertaining to the hero of Manila are few in number. Those for which he is responsible are numerous, but they are not available as mementoes, as they are at the bottom of Manila bay.

And now there is a revolt in Arabia caused by the fleecing of pilgrims by the Turkish authorities, and it is reported by cable that the chiefs of the Mohammedan church at Mecca may throw off the yoke of the sultan forever, and give their undivided allegiance to the grand cherif, who is England's friend. This promises to be a turbulent year in Europe.

The annual report of the inspector general of the army shows that 29 regular college students and 59 alumni were commissioned in the regular army and 157 students and 296 alumni in the volunteer army, a total of 541 officers, or enough for about 12 regiments. Further, 1,084 students and former students joined the army as noncommissioned officers or privates.

A French centenarian has just committed suicide because he was afraid that he would live forever. It is not necessary to inquire whether this aged person was in the full possession of his faculties. Evidently he had lived so long as to lose the power to reason correctly, or he would have appreciated the truth of Mark Twain's remark that only French duelists are immortal.

That hay fever is a mystery is very evident. An editor in Ohio says it is caused by kissing grass widows. A Missouri editor says it is caused by a grass widow kissing a fellow by moonlight. An Iowa editor says it is caused by the fellow kissing the girl while he is feeding hay to the cow, and a Kansas exchange is of the opinion that it's caused by missing the girl and kissing the cow. A poetical editor says that it is caused by kissing in the heydey of youth.

The farm on which Abraham Lincoln was born near Hodgensville, Ky., has been sold to David Grear, and will be converted into a park. The farm should be preserved as a park for many reasons, one of which is that it is the only thing related to the place of the great American's birth that has not been searched around for exhibition. The cabin Lincoln was born in, the old oaken bucket that hung in the well, and every fence rail that was on the place when Mr. Lincoln died disappeared long ago. But neither the showman nor the relic hunter could remove the farm.

Kentucy beats the world for queer names. The Herald-Ledger, published in Russellville, finds among those listed for poll tax in Logan county the names of Nim Forehand, Spot Garrett, Kennedy Poteet, Commodore Bibb, Constance First, Perk Lamb, Major New, Lum Bilberry, South West, Lum Low, Toss Bell, Lee Panther, Yack Fresh, Wash Garrigus, Garl Felps, Jasper Hipock, Green Self, Bill Pulley, Pearce Ligons, Bill Chestnut, George Buckett, John Woolcock, K. O. Loopmans, Peany Hightower, Bill Fipps, Ike Key, Hose Stewart and Samuel Kisselbaugh.

The announcement that Mme. Adelina Patti is arranging for another concert tour in the United States will not surprise the friends and admirers of the diva. Being both woman and artist, likewise a baroness, Mme. Patti is privileged to change her mind as often as she pleases. She may have imagined that she had left us for good after her last annual farewell tour. But, as the poet remarks, "absence makes the heart grow fonder," and the diva probably never realized just how much she loved America and the American dollars until after the last sad farewells.

OBSERVE DEWEY DAY

The First Anniversary of the Victory at Manila.

President Sends the Admiral a Cablegram—The Day in Manila—Appropriate Exercises in All American Cities.

Chicago, May 2. — One year ago Monday Dewey's ships glided like phantoms of the deep, in the gray dawn, through the channel of Manila bay. The roar of cannon that followed not only startled Montojo and his unhappy crew, but reverberated across the globe. Monday the echo was heard from one end of this country to the other.

Aside from the production of the "Manila Te Deum" by the composer at the Auditorium Monday evening, with grand instrumental music and a chorus, the celebration at the Ashland club, where a "naval banquet" was given, and the "expansion" dinner given at the University of Chicago, which, in a sense, was a rebuke to the anti-expansion demonstration Sunday afternoon at Central Music hall, no formal observance of the day was arranged in this city. The day was made a state holiday in two states, Pennsylvania and California. In all the great cities flags were flying and patriotic exercises were the order in the public schools.

The Day in Manila.

Manila, May 2. — Yesterday, the anniversary of the battle of Manila bay, was observed by the United States fleet, the usual drills being omitted. Admiral Dewey had many visitors and the American and British merchantmen dressed ship.

The President's Cablegram.

New York, May 2. — While at the navy yard President McKinley sent the following cablegram to Admiral Dewey:

"May 1, 1899.—Dewey, Manila: On this anniversary of your great victory the people of the United States unite in an expression of affection and gratitude to yourself and the brave officers and men of your fleet, whose brilliant achievements marked an epoch in history and which will live in the annals of the world's heroic deeds.

(Signed) "WILLIAM M'KINLEY."

The Nashville at Memphis.

Memphis, Tenn., May 2.—The United States gunboat Nashville entered Memphis harbor at six o'clock Monday afternoon, amid the deafening shouts of more than 20,000 people, and dropped anchor near the Arkansas shore. The coming of Uncle Sam's warship had been widely heralded, and the city was thronged with visitors. The national salute of 21 guns was fired from the Chickasaw bluffs, and the Nashville thundered a similar salute in response. At night Capt. Maynard and the officers of the gunboat were entertained by the reception committee at the Gayoso hotel.

BIG PLANT WRECKED.

Serious Outcome of Labor Troubles in Idaho—$250,000 Property Destroyed —One Man Killed.

Boise, Idaho, May 1.—The trouble between union and nonunion miners at Wardner, which has been brewing there some time, culminated Saturday in 600 men attacking the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mine and mill, blowing up the mill with dynamite, and killing one man and wounding many others. Property worth $250,000 was destroyed. The damage was done by union miners and sympathizers from Canyon creek, about 20 miles from Wardner.

Saturday morning a mob of from 800 to 1,000 men, all of them armed and many of them masked, seized a train at Burke, the head of Canyon creek. There were nine box cars and a passenger coach and they were black with the mob. The visitors brought with them 3,000 pounds of giant powder. After a parley of two hours 140 masked men armed with rifles, Burke miners in the lead and Wardner following, started with yells for the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mill and other buildings a third of a mile from the depot.

They sent out pickets ahead and one of the pickets fired a shot as a signal that the mill was abandoned. This was misunderstood by the main body of the mob, who imagined that nonunion miners in the hills had opened fire on them, and they began to fire upon their own pickets. About 1,000 shots were thus exchanged between the rioters and their pickets, and Jack Smith, one of the pickets, formerly of British Columbia, and a noted figure in drill contests, was shot dead. The fatal error was discovered after a few seconds' firing, and Smith's body was brought down from the hillside.

By this time the strikers had taken possession of the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mill, which they found deserted, the manager having directed his employes not to risk their lives by battling with the mob. Powder was called for and 60 50-pound boxes were carried from the depot to the mill. The heaviest charge was placed under the brick office building. Other charges were placed around the mill. Then the boarding-house, a frame structure, was burned.

Fuses leading to the charges were lighted and the strikers, carrying the dead body of the picket, retired to a safe distance. At 2:36 p. m. the first blast went off. It shook the ground for miles, and buildings in Wardner, two miles away, trembled. At intervals of about 60 seconds four other charges went off, the fifth being the largest, and completely demolished the mine. The loss to the Bunker Hill and Sullivan company is estimated at from $250,000 to $300,000. In a few minutes the strikers went back to the station, the whistle was blown for stragglers, the mob climbed aboard, and at three o'clock, just three hours after its arrival, the train hauled out for Canyon Creek.

Captured by the Filipinos.

Washington, May 2.—The following cablegram has been received from Admiral Dewey:

"Manila, 30.—Secretary Navy, Washington: Apparently reliable information ten of the Yorktown boat crew, including Gilmore, are prisoners at insurgent headquarters. Am continuing investigation.

(Signed) "DEWEY."

Sixty-Two Miners Killed.

Berlin, May 1.—Owing to an inrush of water at the Ktschnar gold mine, near Troiszk, Russia, a shaft in which 95 men were at work, collapsed. Sixty-two of the miners were killed, and nearly all of the remainder were seriously injured.

HONOR FOR GRANT.

Equestrian Statue of General Unveiled at Philadelphia—President Attends the Ceremonies.

Philadelphia, April 28.—In the presence of President McKinley and his wife, members of his cabinet, three generations of Gen. Ulysses S. Grant's family and a great crowd of people, Miss Rosemary Sartoris, granddaughter of Gen Grant, on Thursday unveiled an heroic equestrian statue of her illustrious grandfather in Fairmount park.

Mayor Samuel H. Ashbridge presided at the ceremonies, and after formally welcoming the president to Philadelphia he called upon Rt. Rev. Ozi W. Whittaker, bishop of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Pennsylvania, to deliver the invocation and prayer. The mayor then made a short address, and was followed by John H. Converse, who presented the statue to the commissioners of Fairmount park. As he concluded speaking, Miss Rosemary Sartoris mounted a small platform near the statue, pulled the cord which held the national colors about the figure, and the horse and rider were brought to view. As the drapery fell battery D, national guards of Pennsylvania, fired a salute of 17 guns, and the gallant cruiser Raleigh, lying in the Delaware river nearly four miles away, was given the signal at the same moment, and she, too, belched a salute of 17 guns. Mrs. Grant took a long look at the bronze figure of her husband, and as she sat down she could be seen wiping tears from her eyes.

Then followed the review of the 6,000 troops. The parade was started at 2:30 o'clock and the line of march was north on Broad street from Spruce, around the city hall to Spring Garden street, thence west to the river drive in Fairmount park and then up the drive past the statue.

After the review the president and the others of the distinguished party returned to the hotel. On the return trip Gen. Miles rode in the carriage with the president.

After a brief rest at the hotel President McKinley was entertained at dinner by John H. Converse in the assembly room of the Union league. About 100 guests were present, among whom were members of the president's cabinet, Gen. Miles, Admiral Silas Casey, Capt. Clark, Capt. Coghlan, Brig. Gen. Fred D. Grant, Capt. Algernon Sartoris and Mayor Ashbridge.

The ceremonies of the day were concluded by a public meeting at the Academy of Music at night. President McKinley and all of the other distinguished people who attended the unveiling exercises were present. Speeches eulogistic of the famous soldier-president were made.

Galena, Ill., April 28.—Galena was en fete Thursday in honor of the anniversary of Gen. Grant's seventy-seventh birthday. The city was thronged with people from near-by and distant points. The public and private buildings were gayly decorated for the occasion. The morning feature was the presentation to the park commissioners of a Spanish cannon, 19½ feet long, captured at Santiago, July 3, 1898, on the destruction of Cervera's fleet.

IMPRESSIVE FUNERAL.

Honors Shown to Ex-Gov. Oglesby—Gov. Tanner and Militia in Attendance.

Springfield, Ill., April 29.—One of the most imposing and largest-attended funerals ever witnessed in Illinois was that of former Gov. Richard J. Oglesby at his beautiful country residence, Oglehurst, near Elkhart, Friday afternoon. People were in attendance from all over the west. A special train of eight coaches arrived just before services, with Gov. Tanner and other state officials, prominent persons from various points, members of the G. A. R., and several companies of the Illinois national guard.

The services were held at two o'clock, the impressive services of the Episcopal church being read by Bishop Seymour, of Springfield. The body rested in a handsome rosewood metallic casket. The funeral procession was from the residence to the church of St. John the Baptist, where the remains will lie in state, guarded by a detachment of company H, of Decatur, until next Friday, when private services will be held on the arrival of the daughter, Felicite, from Paris.

Made a Bishop.

Chicago, May 2.—Rt. Rev. Alexander J. McGavick was on Monday consecrated auxiliary to Archbishop Feehan, with the title Bishop Marcopolis. Services were held in the Cathedral of the Holy Name. The programme included as participants some of the most prominent Catholic clergy in this section. Three hundred visiting priests were in attendance. Archbishop Feehan acted as consecrator and celebrant of solemn pontifical high mass. The consecration sermon was preached by Bishop Spalding, of Peoria.

Train Is Ditched.

Rochester, N. Y., May 1.—Two persons were killed, more than a dozen seriously injured and 50 less seriously hurt as the result of a wreck at 2:40 o'clock Sunday afternoon on the Rochester & Lake Ontario railroad, better known as the Bay railroad, at Rosenbauer's Corners, about one-half mile north of the city, when two cars on an excursion train filled with passengers left the track while rounding a curve at full speed, and were completely wrecked. The dead are: John Heiberg, aged 20, and an unknown man.

Death of Lewis Baker.

Washington, May 1.—Hon. Lewis Baker, widely known and prominent in journalism and politics for more than a third of a century, died at his home in this city at noon Sunday. During the past seven weeks he had suffered from an attack of pernicious aenemia, which steadily grew worse. Funeral services will be held on Tuesday morning, and the remains will be interred in Rock Creek cemetery, this city.

Many Left Homeless.

Chicago, May 2.—More than 100 families in the Polish district, near the corner of Noble and Blanche streets, were left homeless Monday afternoon by fire and lost nearly everything they possessed. Eighteen buildings were burned, each housing from one to twelve families. The loss is estimated at $50,000.

THEY WANT PEACE.

Representatives of Aguinaldo Visit Gen. Otis.

Ask for a Brief Armistice—Unconditional Surrender Is Demanded by Americans—The End in Sight.

Chicago, April 29.—John T. McCutcheon, special correspondent of the Chicago Record at Manila, cabled that paper at midnight Friday as follows:

"I interviewed Gen. Otis at Malacanan palace regarding the emissaries from the insurgents who are here making peace proposals. The Filipino representatives are Col. Manuel Argueses and Lieut. Jose Bernal. They came through the lines under a flag of truce. They were escorted to Manila by Maj. Malloney, of Gen. MacArthur's staff, and were taken directly to the office of Gen. Otis.

"President Schurman and Charles Denby, members of the Philippine commission, immediately entered the palace, and it was nearly two hours later when the two insurgent officers left.

Thinks Rebels Demoralized.

"I immediately went to Gen. Otis. In response to my inquiry he said: 'I believe the insurgents are thoroughly demoralized. They had considered Calumpit the strongest position on their lines. It was there that they had made their successful stand against the Spaniards in 1896. Many of their former trenches were still there, not having been destroyed, and were used by the insurgents yesterday when the Americans drove them out. I presume after that defeat the Filipinos lost all confidence and spirit.

Ask Armistice Till May 1.

"'The emissaries who have been here came to ask for an armistice until May 1, when the Filipino congress, they said, would convene and discuss the question as to whether the natives of this island favor a declaration of peace or a continuation of war.

"'I told them the only terms that would be accepted by the Americans would be unconditional surrender, with amnesty to all insurgents bearing arms.

"'The representatives of Gen. Aguinaldo did not think the insurgents would agree to this. They said it was not consistent with their idea of honor, and that if forced to surrender the peace thus procured would not be permanent.

Sends Emissaries Back.

"'I considered this expression in the nature of a threat, and I so told the insurgents, and requested the officers in whose company they had come to the palace to take them back to the lines.

"'I consider that possibly the insurgents are only sparring for time in making this request for an armistice. Further aggressive action on our part will be necessary.'

Natives Panic-Stricken.

"It is reported that San Fernando, where for a time Aguinaldo had his headquarters, is thronged with panic-stricken refugees. The insurgent troops are in mutiny. The great body of the Filipinos are ready to give up the fight. Many natives are between the American lines and Manila now hurrying to their homes. They show a friendly disposition toward the Americans, and most all of them agree that yesterday's victory at Calumpit broke the backbone of the insurrection.

Another Conference.

Manila, May 1.—Gen. Luna's envoys, after another unsuccessful interview with Gen. Otis, returned to the Filipino lines understanding fully the only terms upon which the natives can end their war. While the conference resulted only in making plain the fact that the United States authorities will consider no proposition except an unconditional surrender it is believed that the native officers have learned enough of the American army's intentions to counsel submission by their followers.

It is confidently expected that the end of the war is at hand. The native officers undoubtedly will return with fresh proposals, looking to a recognition of American sovereignty over the islands.

Uprising Against Aguinaldo.

The fact that Aguinaldo's government has a minor insurrection on its hands is likely to prove an additional argument in favor of surrender. The Macabebes, old-time foes of the Tagals, are menacing the native forces at the north, practically holding all loyal to Aguinaldo between two fires. San Isidro, the new Filipino capital, is threatened by these hostile natives, so that the insurrectionists cannot long escape crushing defeat by the one side or the other.

Bring New Propositions.

Manila, May 2.—The insurgent commissioners who left Manila Saturday have returned here from the insurgent army with new propositions.

Seeks an Exchange.

Manila, May 2.—Gen. MacArthur has sent officers to Gen. Antonio Luna, the Filipino commander, under a flag of truce, carrying money and provisions for American prisoners in his hands, and asking an exchange of prisoners and the names of such as he may have.

Money Paid to Spain.

Washington, May 2. — The last move in the negotiations terminating the war with Spain occurred Monday, when Secretary Hay paid to the French ambassador, M. Cambon, the $20,000,000 provided by the treaty of peace for the cession of the Philippines. The payment was made in four treasury warrants of $5,000,000 each, and was receipted for by M. Cambon as completely liquidating the obligation of the United States in this connection. The ambassador deposited the $20,000,000 in the Riggs national bank, of this city, and the cashing of the warrants is expected to be made later through the City national bank, of New York. The Spanish government was notified by cable of the payment, but nothing will be done as to forwarding the funds to Europe until Spain directs the exact course to be pursued.

Woman Suffragists.

Grand Rapids, Mich., May 2.—Interest in the national woman suffrage convention appears to increase with each succeeding session. The attendance on Monday was larger than last week and the proceedings were remarkably enthusiastic. At the morning session Sarah Clay Bennett presented a report for the committee on federal suffrage, in which she cited conflicting decisions by the United States supreme court, showing that the court has indirectly decided that women in all the states have the legal right to vote for presidential electors and members of congress.

A Peanut Trust.

New York, May 2.—A consolidation of the peanut industry of the country, under the control of a single company with a capital of $5,000,000, is about to be effected. The value of the peanut crop of the United States annually is estimated at between $6,000,000 and $9,000,000. One of the plans of the consolidation is to increase the product and export part of it. The peanut crop of the United States is raised almost entirely in Virginia, North Carolina and Tennessee.

A Happy Miss.

PARSNIP COMPLEXION.

A majority of the ills afflicting people to-day can be traced to kidney trouble. It pervades all classes of society, in all climates, regardless of age, sex or condition.

The sallow, colorless-looking people you often meet are afflicted with "kidney complexion." Their kidneys are turning to a parsnip color, so is their complexion. They may suffer from indigestion, bloating, sleeplessness, uric acid, gravel, dropsy, rheumatism, catarrh of the bladder, or irregular heart. You may depend upon it, the cause is weak, unhealthy kidneys.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble and both need the same remedy. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, will build up and strengthen weak and unhealthy kidneys, purify the diseased, kidney-poisoned blood, clear the complexion and soon help the sufferer to better health.

The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases, such as weak kidneys, catarrh of the bladder, gravel, rheumatism and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling all about it. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

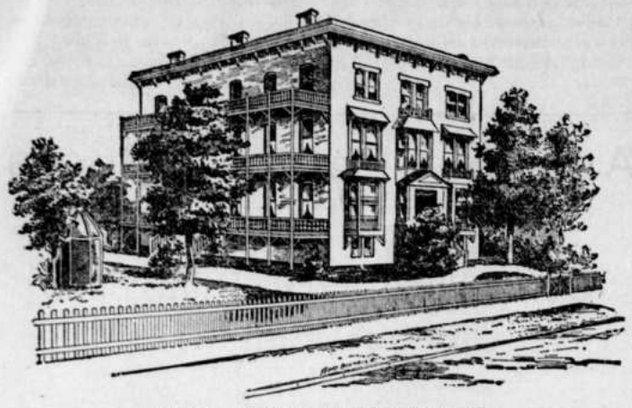
FRANCES WILLARD HOSPITAL

USES PE-RU-NA FOR CATARRH OF THE STOMACH.



The Frances Willard Hospital, Chicago, Ill.

Miss Georgiana Dean was for three years missionary in Liberia under the M. E. Church from the training school in Chicago. After her return she studied nursing, graduating from the present Frances E. Willard National Temperance Hospital of Chicago. She is an enthusiastic friend of Pe-ru-na, as is evident from the following letter:

Pe-ru-na Drug M'f'g Co., Columbus, O.:

Gentlemen—You will be glad to know of the happy results obtained from the use of Pe-ru-na among the patients under my care whenever prescribed by the physician. I have seen some very remarkable cures of cases of very obstinate catarrh of the stomach, where Pe-ru-na was the only medicine used. I consider it a reliable medicine.

The symptoms of catarrhal dyspepsia are: Coated tongue, pain or heavy feeling in the stomach, belching of gas, dizzy head, sometimes headache, despondent feelings, loss of appetite, palpitation of the heart and irregularity of the bowels.

HARD TO GET.

The Girls Were Learning to Make Hair Flowers and They Wanted White.

A venerable white-haired clergyman recently preached in the church of a friend. He had hardly got back to the vicarage from the church when the door bell rang and a young lady asked to see him. He received her. They talked about the sermon and other things, until finally she asked, diffidently:

"Oh, won't you please give me a lock of your hair?"

"Certainly, my child," said the old gentleman, flattered at the request. "I'll send it to you to-morrow." And he did.

On his return to his own home he had five more requests of the same kind, and he proudly boasted to his wife that he was glad to see that he had not yet lost his power to please. All went well until his wife received this note:

"Dear Mrs. Fourthly: Won't you please ask your husband to send me just a little lock of his hair? We have all been taking lessons in making hair flowers. So many of the other girls asked him, and he sent it to them, that I thought I would rather ask you to get it for me. Won't you please do this for me. It is so hard to get white hair for lilies of the valley."

This was a terrible blow, and the less now said about locks of hair in that old gentleman's presence the better.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Burglary in the Future.

"Curse me luck!" hissed the burglar, and fled into the night. Bear in mind, if you please, that all crime was now disease, merely, and all diseases the work of germs. "I am," remarked the tall man. "Thank you," said the stranger. "Then I assume that yours is one of the names that appears on the hourly bulletin?" "It does," said the tall man. "Thank you again," said the stranger. "And now, what I want to suggest is that you permit me, for a handsome compensation, of course, to add these words at the bottom of each bulletin: 'Use Bulger's Blood Bitters! They fight off disease!'" "Sir!" snorted the tall man, trembling with indignation, "those bulletins are not advertisements." "Aren't they?" screeched the peppery stranger. "Then take your name off of 'em!" And he stalked away, leaving the tall man speechless with rage.—St. Louis Republic.

"Oh, yes, it does. Don't you know you can lift persons down as well as lift them up?"—Yonkers Statesman.

A CHARMING grandmother!

What a pleasant influence in the house is a delightful old lady in good health!

MRS. MOLLIE BARBER, St. James, Mo., writes: "I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound during change of life, and have passed through that critical period safely. I suffered for years with falling of the womb and female weakness. At times could hardly stand on my feet, also had leucorrhœa. I tried several good doctors, but instead of getting better, grew worse all the time. A friend advised me to try Mrs. Pinkham's Compound. I did so and after taking six bottles, was cured of both leucorrhœa and falling of womb. I am now enjoying good health and feel very grateful for the good your medicine has done me. I would recommend it to all women suffering as I was."

HEALTHFUL OLD AGE

MRS. N. E. LACEY, Pearl, La., writes:

"I have had leucorrhœa for about twenty years, falling of womb by spells for ten years, and my bladder was affected, had backache a great deal. I tried a number of doctors. They would relieve me for a little while, then I would be worse than ever. I then thought I would try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Eleven bottles of Compound and one box of Liver Pills cured me and I am now sound and well. It helped me through the change of life period. I am fifty-five years old."

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Killed by a Rattler.

Mrs. Eliza Spaulding was bitten by a rattlesnake in Minneapolis and death followed the next day.

Dickinson's museum of wild animals is located at 825 Washington avenue south. There are birds, monkeys, bears, deer, and the wily reptile is allowed representation. The entertainment consists partly in seeing Mrs. Spaulding show with what ease she can manage her snaky pets, and how obediently they follow her bidding.

The show was in progress and the woman giving an exhibition on the stage. She had half a dozen of the reptiles coiled about her neck and head. Suddenly the reptile buried its fangs into her thumb. The other employes of the place did all possible to counteract the poison, but medical help did not arrive until several hours after. The woman was taken to the hospital, where she died in great agony.

Will Develop the Mine.

At the big Alice A gold mine nearly two months were spent last winter by W. D. Ramsay, a noted mining expert of London, who was there in the interest of capitalists of that city. He made very thorough and exhaustive tests of the mine and sailed for London shortly after. A cablegram has been received from there that the men who sent Mr. Ramsey here have decided to take heavy interest in the mine, and to at once erect a very large stamp mill of the latest and most improved design, together with a concentrating plant, which will quite probably be of the Krupp make, experts being now in Germany examining that style of plant.

Up-Country Millers Oppose.

St. Cloud and Little Falls millers will oppose the request of the Northern Pacific to the state railroad commission to be allowed to meet competition on Duluth freight via Brainerd without reducing local freight rates in proportion. They claim that Minneapolis millers would have an advantage of from 4 to 7 cents over them in lake and rail flour shipments. They do not mind having the Northern Pacific meet competition on through business, but insist that their rates must be lowered in proportion.

Railroad Lands to Be Sold.

Judge Jenkins of Milwaukee ordered the sale of all the remainder of the Northern Pacific land grant in Minnesota and in Dakota east of the Missouri river. Special Master Alfred L. Cray will have charge of the sale. The Minnesota lands will be sold at St. Paul and the Dakota lands at Fargo. Sixty days' notice of the sale will be given. The patented lands will be sold in sections or subdivisions, and the rest in two parcels.

Fraudulent Stamps.

The report of Chief Deputy Vars, of the customs department, shows that Division Deputy Sjoblom has seized 20,000 Lancaster made cigars in Hennepin county. In Ramsey county over 9,000 of these cigars, supposed to bear counterfeit revenue stamps manufactured at the Jacobs factory, have been seized within the past few days, and the deputies will do some work along the same line in Duluth.

Overcome by Gas.

While boring a well on M. A. Nielson's farm, six miles east of Jackson, Ole Gunderson, 35 years old, went down with an augur to fix a break. He was overcome by gas. The men above pulled the augur up when they heard the tools dropping, and found him dead.

Want Roosevelt and Bryan.

The board of trade of Winona has entered into correspondence with Gov. Roosevelt of New York and Wm. J. Bryan, with a view of securing their presence at the monster Fourth of July gathering to be held at Winona this year. Considerable money is being subscribed by the citizens for the occasion.

A STORM'S HAVOC.

Death Follows in the Path of a Missouri Tornado—Loss at Kirksville.

Kirksville, Mo., April 29.—As a result of the tornado that swept through the eastern portion of this city Thursday evening, demolishing half of the residences and other buildings, more than 30 dead bodies and 70 injured persons have been recovered from the ruins. More than a dozen of the injured will die. Although rescuers have been searching the ruins ever since the storm spent its fury, many are still missing and it is thought that a considerable number of the unfortunates were consumed in the flames that broke out soon after the storm ceased. The work of rescue continues, but it may be days before the total number of victims is known.

As far as known the names of the dead are as follows:

J. K. Anderson, Mrs. Amanda Billington, Dr. Billings, Mrs. A. J. Bowman, Drew Bowman, her son; Rev. Theodore Brigham, James Cunningham, Mrs. Elliott, Mrs. W. W. Green, Miss Bessie Green, A. J. Glaze, Mrs. A. J. Glaze, C. A. Gibbs, Mrs. C. A. Gibbs, Mrs. Heaman, William B. Howells, John Larkin, Henry Lowes' three children, Mrs. Calvin Little, Mrs. John Mahaffey, "Grandmother" Miller, Mrs. Mitchell, Harry Mitchell, Franklin McClay, Mrs. Franklin McClay, Miss McClay, Miss Cora Millet, Mrs. Ann Miller, Mrs. Blue Fanchett and baby, Mrs. Mary Rorabaugh, Mrs. H. K. Sherburn, John C. Weaver, Miss Leona Whaley, Mrs. Woods, Joseph Woods, Mrs. Joseph Woods.

The tornado struck the city Thursday evening (and most of the residents were at supper at the time), cutting a clean path one mile long, and 600 feet wide through the residence section and leaving death and destruction in its wake. Buildings were demolished or twisted apart and scattered to the four winds. A conservative estimate places the aggregate amount of damage at $200,000, the individual losses ranging from $100, to $8,000.

St. Louis, April 29.—According to the best information, the storm which caused so much loss of life and destruction of property in northern Missouri originated in Nebraska. Its course was southwest through western Iowa to the Missouri state line, thence through Harrison, Grundy, Sullivan, Linn, Macon, Shelby and Marion counties, north and west through Lewis, Knox, Adair, Sullivan and Putnam counties. When the storm retraced its course it was almost parallel with the other track traversed, and it was then that Kirksville and Newton were struck. As far as known, Kirksville, Newton and Lancaster, Mo., are the only towns that felt the full force of the storm.

Ute, Ia., April 28.—This section of Monona county and the whole of the Soldier river valley was swept by a terrific tornado about midnight Wednesday, and the list of killed and injured is extensive, while the property damage is immense. The killed are Hanson Severson, Harry Ferrn, Mrs. George Ferrn, unknown man, believed to be a tramp named Shields, John Amerston. A great many were injured, all being dangerously hurt.

St. Louis, May 1.—A special to the Republic from Chillicothe, Mo., says: The death list at Newtown from Thursday evening's storm has reached 13 and probably will reach 16 in the next day or two. Mrs. Flagg died Sunday from her injuries, after terrible suffering. Her house was one of those blown away by the tornado. Three others of the injured are thought to be dying.

BEHEADED BEFORE DEAD.

Details of the Horrible Cruelties of the Samoan Rebels—The Battle of April 18.

Auckland, New Zealand, April 28.—Particulars of the fighting in Samoa, contained in the advices received here from Apia under date of April 18, show that the battle between the friendly natives and the rebels took place at Vailelo and that the latter lost 100 men in killed and wounded.

Further details of the deaths of Ensign J. R. Monaghan, of the United States cruiser Philadelphia, and Lieut. P. V. Lansdale, of the same vessel, have been received. They show that Monaghan was beheaded before he was dead. A deserter from the Mataafan forces says Monaghan and Lansdale were retreating when they were discovered by a chief and his wife who were looking for dead men. They gave the alarm and Monaghan was shot while continuing the retreat. Later, it appears, the rebels returned and killed Lansdale. Monaghan fought until he was wounded and he was then beheaded.

Chicago, May 1.—Dr. Reuben Ludlam, a surgeon of national repute, while performing a delicate operation on Saturday, suddenly staggered backward with a cry. A moment later he had fallen to the chair hastily placed for him, and was removed to the next room, stricken with heart disease. In five minutes he was dead. When his father was thus stricken, Dr. Reuben Ludlam seized the knife from his dying parent's hand and completed one of the most difficult operations known to modern surgery, thus saving the patient's life. The son continued working for a half hour, at the end of which time he was informed of his father's death.

To Lay Cable.

New York, May 2.—The United States cable steamer Hooker sailed Monday afternoon for Manila, to connect by cable all the principal points in the Philippines. The Hooker was formerly the Panama, one of the first prizes captured in the Spanish war, and has been extensively altered to fit her for cable service. She has three great tanks sunk into her decks, which contain 300 miles of cable. This length of cable, which is an inch in diameter, with its covering, is only a part of that to be laid, and more will be obtained at Hong-Kong when it is exhausted.

The Public Debt.

Washington, May 2. — The monthly statement of the public debt, issued Monday, shows that at the close of business April 29, 1899, the debt, less cash in the treasury, amounted to $1,172,587,264, an increase during the month of $23,081,701. This is accounted for by the payment of $20,000,000 to Spain, in settlement of treaty obligations.

Fifty Houses Burned.

Sebastopol, Cal., May 2. — A fire here Monday destroyed Chinatown, consuming about 50 houses and causing a loss of $20,000. One Chinese was burned to death.

TURKEYS AS COON BAIT.

Reminiscences of George Pitts, an Indiana Hunter of a Generation Ago.

"I can remember when wild turkeys were so plentiful that you could buy them for a shilling apiece, and the most profitable use they could be put to was in trapping coons," said John Bemus an early settler in Indiana. "That sounds rather queer in these days when there isn't anything in the animal line much more worthless than the coon, and when wild turkey is worth almost its weight in silver. I have trapped coons and shot wild turkeys within gunshot of what is now the home of ex-President Harrison in Indianapolis. In those days the turkey was not marketable, while coon skins were worth anywhere from one to two dollars apiece.

"It didn't used to be any trick to trap a fox, but a man who could catch a coon in a trap had to know how, and using wild-turkey meat for bait, and setting the trap on the bottoms of creeks where coons are in the habit of fishing for crawfish, were about the only ways they could be caught. I had been hunting and trapping a good while around Indianapolis before I could trap a coon. The only person who had any success in trapping coons was a young chap named George Pitts. He was a professional hunter and trapper, and used to come in every day with more coons, foxes, otter, and other animals whose skins were worth taking, than all the trappers on White river and Tale creek put together. I could get quite a nice showing of coons by hunting them among the sycamores of the river bottoms at night, but set my traps for them any way I might, I never succeeded in fastening one of the wily little beasts until I accidentally discovered one of Pitts' traps, and found that he baited with wild-turkey meat. I tried the same bait, and never had any trouble afterward in trapping coons.

"Then as to muskrats. Pitts used to get twice as many of them in his traps as anyone else. I knew he must have a bait of his own for them, too, and I laid myself out to get hold of it. He never would let anyone go with him on his trapping trips, but one day I shadowed him and examined one of his muskrat traps. He had a secret bait sure enough, but it was a simple one, being a piece of parsnip. Pitts had discovered in some way that muskrats were crazy after parsnips, and he took advantage of the discovery. I adopted the parsnip bait myself, and never betrayed the secret and caught just as many muskrats as Pitts did after that.

"But Pitts' stronghold was coons, and he turned his knowledge and skill in hunting and trapping them to mighty good advantage. He not only paid his way through a complete course in the old Marion county seminary by selling coon skins that he trapped during spare hours, but saved several hundred dollars besides from the proceeds of this trapping to start life with after he graduated. I remember that once Pitts fell in love with a famous coon dog owned by a man that lived 12 miles down White river. That dog didn't know anything but coons, and Pitts thought he saw a small fortune in him. Cows were worth $25 apiece in those days, and Pitts owned as good a one as there was within a day's journey of Indianapolis. The cow had a heifer calf by her side that promised to be as good a cow as her mother was. Pitts had made the owner of the coon dog several offers for the cur, and his friends thought he was crazy for making them, while the friends of the dog's owner thought the latter was just as crazy for refusing them; but when the young trapper actually drove his cow and calf the 12 miles to where the coon dog lived, and insisted on trading them for the dog the people felt sure he must be a hopeless lunatic.

"The owner of the dog redeemed himself in the estimation of the community by making the trade. It turned out that Pitts knew what he was about. The very first night he hunted with the dog he bagged 30 coons and sold every one of them next day for one dollar apiece. In one season Pitts gathered in, with the help of the dog, 200 coons and there is no telling how much money the dog would have netted him if it hadn't made a miscalculation one night and tried its mettle on a porcupine. The dog killed the porcupine, but the porcupine filled the dog's eyes, mouth and head so full of quills that he was ruined and was killed to put him out of misery."—N. Y. Sun.

The Earth Originally Cold.

As the terrestrial mass was very cold (—233 degrees C) when separated from the sun, it follows that what heat we observe in the interior of the globe must have arisen from the shrinkage of its original volume. Unfortunately, we do not know the dimensions of the nebular earth, but it will be reasonable to assume that it did not surpass the dimensions of the lunar orbit; and with this rough approximation, it is difficult to see how the internal temperature of the earth can have exceeded something like 1,000 degrees C. Moreover, it probably does not increase after a certain depth has been reached, but then remains essentially uniform throughout the interior of the globe. Contrary as it may seem to old theories like those of Laplace and Poisson, who assigned to the primitive mass a temperature of millions of degrees, there is no evidence that the temperature of the earth ever surpassed the melting point of lava and of the more refractory rock. The retention of the terrestrial atmosphere is direct evidence that the primitive heat was very moderate. For if the heat had been very great, the kinetic theory of gases shows that the molecules of our atmosphere would have been driven off into space.—Prof. T. J. J. See, in Atlantic.

The Original Discoverers.

"That war investigation," said the great grandee, "seems to have caused considerable excitement in the United States."

"War investigation?" inquired the haughty hidalgo; "what was it for?"

"Why, the Americans claimed that the war was not conducted as it should have been."

"Pshaw! We observed that fact last summer."—Judge.

ALABASTINE

LABASTINE is the original and only durable wall coating, entirely different from all kalsomines. Ready for use in white or twelve beautiful tints by adding cold water.

ADIES naturally prefer ALABASTINE for walls and ceilings, because it is pure, clean, durable. Put up in dry powdered form, in five-pound packages, with full directions.

LL kalsomines are cheap, temporary preparations made from whiting, chalks, clays, etc., and stuck on walls with decaying animal glue. ALABASTINE is not a kalsomine.

EWARE of the dealer who says he can sell you the "same thing" as ALABASTINE or "something just as good." He is either not posted or is trying to deceive you.

ND IN OFFERING something he has bought cheap and tries to sell on ALABASTINE'S demands, he may not realize the damage you will suffer by a kalsomine on your walls.

ENSIBLE dealers will not buy a lawsuit. Dealers risk one by selling and consumers by using infringement. Alabastine Co. own right to make wall coating to mix with cold water.

HE INTERIOR WALLS of every schoolhouse should be coated only with pure, durable ALABASTINE. It safeguards health. Hundreds of tons are used annually for this work.

N BUYING ALABASTINE, see that packages are properly labeled. Beware of large four-pound package light kalsomine, offered to customers as a five-pound package.

UISANCE of wall paper is obviated by ALABASTINE. It can be used on plastered walls, wood ceilings, brick or canvas. A child can brush it on. It does not rub or scale off.

STABLISHED in favor. Shun all imitations. Ask paint dealer or druggist for tint card. Write for "Alabastine Era," free, to ALABASTINE CO., Grand Rapids, Michigan.

DELANO, FRIDAY, May 5, 1899.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Fair Day tomorrow May 8.

—An Uncle Tom's Cabin show visited town this week.

—Nick Frank is having stone hauled for a new foundation on River Street.

—The village sprinkler made its first round for the season early this morning. It is a fine thing on dusty days.

—Wash Rader has moved his house onto the rear end of his lots. We understand he is to build a more modern one.

—In another column appears a letter from our son Alva, in the Philippines. The Reg. is now out at the front.

—Garden stuff is doing well, where chickens are not doing the harvesting, even before the plants are out of the ground.

—Our M. D's had a very severe case of traumatic epistaxis to deal with, Wednesday; the result of a family jar at George Luffey's.

—Editor Buckley, of the Delano Eagle, was a Litchfield visitor yesterday. The Review acknowledges a fraternal call.—Litchfield Review.

—Rev. O. Stvner, of Armstrong, in the absence of Elder Farber, made the rounds of our circuit Sunday. He preached a good sermon here in the evening. Owing to rain the audience was not very large, but was appreciative.

—Several farmers have embraced the opportunity to haul away from village alleys the manure that had accumulated. They will, more than likely, be rewarded in the fall with a few more loads of corn than some of their neighbors raise.

—School election is hastening on; people are deciding now who they do not want for members of the board of education. They will, doubtless, make good selections this year as people are showing more than the usual interest in educational matters; all want their children to be properly educated.

—Prof. Dewey has been appointed by the state superintendent to teach in the summer school at Benson this year. He was one of the instructors there two years ago, and the Monitor says that the teachers of Swift county will be pleased to know that he has again been assigned to their school.—Litchfield Review.

—The Eagle don't seem to be posted on several subjects. For instance on the patriotism, politics, pedigree and birth place of Dr. Catlin. She comes about as neaf the truth as she does anywhere when she says, in her way, "It it is true that" he was "born in Minnesota." The Dr. had always understood that he was born in Indiana.

—The free entertainment given by the Delano High School, at the City Hall, Saturday evening, was enjoyed by a large audience. Standing room was at a premium, and people even stood in the stairway. The exercises were well executed and showed much careful drill. Everybody seemed to be pleased, and especially did the little folks enjoy the occasion.

—Several of our citizens fortified with kegs of Delano stimulants went to Lyndale Sunday to engage in, or enjoy a game of base ball. The All Wise One did not permit them to break his commandments very long. A down pore of rain soon set in and bicycles were led into town and occupants of buggies sought dry clothing. There are six days in the week on which to play ball without violating the commandment to keep the Sabbath day holy.

—Michael Brenner has received news from relatives of his in Brown county which says that Sheriff Matter has received news of the death of his brother Edward Matter, age 26 years. These are nephews of Mr. Brenner and sons of Louis Matter, formerly a resident of the town of Franklin where the boys were born. Edward was chief musician in the Third U. S. infantry band, and was on his way to Manila. He served with the army in Santiago where he contracted malarial fever.

—We are in receipt, with compliments of the author, Prof. Willis E. Johnson, of the State Normal school, Mayville, N. D., of a neat little pamphlet, containing a Thanksgiving address delivered by him at the Union services of the churches of Mayville. Those of our readers who remember Prof. Johnson's 4th of July oration on our picnic grounds a few years ago will know that his Thanksgiving address was a good one, and join with us in feeling proud that Willis was one of our Delano boys.

—When Mr. Buckley, of the Eagle, wrote about us that "Dr. Catlin, the proprietor of the "Philippine annex, the Copperhead Benedict Arnold of the Buffalo Gazette who never breathed a patriotic word nor entertained a patriotic thought, has an idea that he is saying something insulting when he refers to us as the "Johnny Bull head of the Eagle" he must have been mad. If he considers "Johnny Bull" an insult he must have intended an insult for us, when, a week ago he referred to us as the "Philippine annex." If Mr. Buckley, from England, don't like to be called the "Johnny Bull head of the Eagle" he has our permission to drop the "Jonnny". He then must have been roaring mad when he wrote how proud he was of his ancestry "tracing back to the Saxons and not, as Dr. Catlin's probably does to the Aborigines of North America!" or he might have seen the open door he had left for people to surmise that he himself might as easily as not be traced back to the once patriotic Benedict Arnold who emigrated to the land of birth of our "patriotic" opponent in argument, and from which he so lately severed his "patriotic" self by swearing allegiance to this land of the free and home of the brave where he can have a vote and write abusive articles about people who have patriotism for their own country, and its institutions and who don't believe in sending men, whose term of enlistment has expired to shoot men "like jackrabbits" and where American citizens consider such a sentence as that eminating from the possible decendant of the once patriot hero of Saratoga, who has taken up his abode among us to run a whipleash sheet to abuse those who want true patriotic American citizen soldiers who enlisted at their country's call to be allowed to come home when the war is over and their time is out and not be kept in a tropical climate to devastate a thickly populated country to satisfy the instinctive greed of such as the "Johnny Bull head of the Eagle" with, or without the "Johnny" and which famous sentence being the conclusion of Mr. Buckley's article on "Jack Rabbit Shooting" must go thundering down the corridors of time as his learned, imported, patriotic conclusion of the whole matter. Here it is! Isn't it the quintescence of patriotism from the "lofty" perch of the Eagle? "They enlisted to fight and they would just as soon shoot jack rabbits as anything else."

County Cullings.

Among jurors to serve for the May term of the United States court, Wright county has W. S. Ives and Samuel A. Gordon, Annandale; Perry Nelson, Waverly.

Pay your real estate taxes before June 1. If you wish to you can pay half of them and the other half in the fall without penalty. If you have the money it saves you trouble to pay the full amount before June.

The June term of Court in Wright county will probably be a long and expensive term. Several murder trials are to be held and other important suits. It is to be hoped that the reputation of the county for crookedness in connection with court matters will be somewhat improved. Honesty is the best policy.

At the meeting April 26, of the County Commissioners, changes in school districts were granted on petitions of O. L. Engstrom, J. O. Hyatt, Erick J. Erickson, Anton P. Moody, Archie Gilmer and Matilda Lamke, Axel Nelson.

June 1st was put as time for hearing school petitions of: Otto Nelson, Jonas Edberg, Peter Falk, Mary Grundin, Aug. Englund, O. Selander, John Bresman, Mattis Mattson, Jonas Larson, August Johnson, Salome L. Remington, S. E. Anderson et al.

Board met on 27th and made road and bridge appropriations for: Corinna $120, Maple Lake 120, Maple Lake, $120, Clearwater $100, Southside $120, Silver Creek, $120; Cokato, $75; Victor, $175; Stockholm, $175; Rockford, $195; Woodland, $180; Otsego, $150; Monticello, $175; Marysville, $50; Frankfort, $175

Petition for county road in Frankfort and Buffalo rejected.

Final road order was issued for a change in old Chatham and Buffalo road at Mill Creek Hill.

Request of C. L. Cullen and J. B. Quinn for abatement of realty taxes were recommended to the State Auditor.

On the 28th, bids for furnishing 3½ doz chairs were received: John Prahl, $54 18, W. W. Thompson $55, O'Leary & Ash, $55.25. Phral's bid accepted.

Owen Groves was appointed one of the appraisers of public school land in Wright county.

A long list of bills against the county was allowed; the biggest being to the Eagle Printing Co., printing financial statement, etc, $550.36. Several Justice bills were cut down.

Claims of Jos. Davidson, Jno. B. Galloday, Chas. Hill, Nels Hill, John Masanz, Gustaf Sillanpaa, John Tracy and R. M. Walter were laid over to the next meeting.

Board adjourned to meet in special session Sune 1st.

The Maple Lake Messenger says: "Say, Doc, Patsy Bolivar is to fight a dog here two weeks from next Sunday, and he would like to borrow your mug."

It would hardly do to have both the Messenger and the Gazette mugs there at once; besdes that's the only mug wev'e got and it don't seem just now as if we really ought to loan it so far away from home. The Eagle might accommodate you. She's "patriotic," don't cher know."

Henry B. Griffin, a fisherman of Lake Pulaski, was the first man to be committed to the insane asylum under the new law. He is a resident of Wright county but was sent from Hennepin. Under the provisions of the old law persons could only be sent from the county in which they lived, while under the new one they can be sent from the county in which they are found, and the county where they reside is liable for the expense.—Minneapolis Tribune.

Wonder if the Hennepin county board of examiners in lunacy will receive the Wright county fees for their services as Wright county boards do, and say nothing? We guess not.

Among Our Exchanges.

County Line: The dispatches say that the losses sustained in Saturday's battle are "regretted" at Washington. That's all; simply regretted—and the war for imperialism (not humanity) goes merrily on.

Democratic Press Bulletin: Speaking of politicians who succeed backwards, it is related that on the accession of Bill Grimshaw to the U. S. Marshallship, he was introduced by a friend to Governor Lind, as the man who "abused him on the stump in Hennepin county more than any other man." To which Governor Lind replied that his abuse did not seem to have had any great effect, recalling that Lind beat Eustis 6,000 in Hennepin county. Poor Grim. hadn't a thing to say.

Democratic Press Bulletin: The attitude of the German-Americans and their press is very significant. In Minnesota there is marked change in sentiment from former strong leanings to Republicanism, under developments everywhere emphasizing the vicious Republican system. It is the same in Ohio under the leadership of such journals as the "Deutsche Umschau," of Greenfield. The Chicago German Americans have organized against the proposed English-American alliance such as is advocated by Senator C. K. Davis, while the German Press of Missouri acting as a body have condemned the Republican policies of alliance, imperialism, and the fostering of the trusts and combines. In fact the outlook is that the German-Americans will next year be found in line with the policies for which W. J. Bryan will stand on "liberty" platform for 1900—freedom from the oppressions of the money power, with its trusts and combinations, and from entangling alliances of every sort. Gut heil the coming day and its certain victories.

German American's on Imperialism.

ST. LOUIS, April 26.—The German newspaper publishers of Missouri held a meeting here today for the purpose of defining their position regarding the new policy of "imperialism and militarism."

The following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

"Systematic and uninterrupted efforts have been made during the past twelve months to destroy by misrepresentations and unfounded sensations the good feeling and old historical friendship between the United States and Germany. These malicious intentions have created among the German-American population the greatest indignation. We, therefore, regard it our duty, as loyal citizens, to denounce these continued falsehoods and misrepresentations which endanger the old friendship of the two countries.

"Germany was the first to acknowledge the supremacy of the United States in the Philippines. This fact alone proves plainly that Germany has no unfriendly intentions and no desire to oppose us in the Orient.

"True to the Constitution and traditions of the Republic, we take a firm stand against militarism and imperialism, knowing that the German-American citizens stand almost unanimously against this new course, which would endanger the welfare and the future of the Republic.—World.

From the Philippines.

Camp Rowley, March 24th, 1899.

Father: The orders have been received to take a move toward the North. By the way we were relieved some time ago (Sunday morning) from the police duty, by the 20th regulars, who were on the flying column, and who, it is said, made a charge, driving the enemy for about fifteen miles, then the enemy turned and drove them back faster than before and would have drove them into the city only for the Wash. Vol., who, like all the rest of the Vols. made a gallant stand, forced the natives back, picked up all the wounded 20th boys who were left by their comrades, numbering some 6 or 8. That is why they are said to be on the "police force now".

Camp life is the nicest thing that ever was. We, being the first battalion now gave us several pleasant days on the road south east of Manila. We came to camp Sunday, 2nd battalion Tuesday, and the 3rd this morning. Today I shot a pig, formerly the property of the insurgents. Now We have the honor of his possession.

In the morning we expect to have the privilege of shooting the natives who insist on staying in our way while we skirmish through the country to the rear of Malabon and they number somewhere between 10,000 and 15,000 so you can see how they are expecting to get there.

Later; 5:15: At 5:00 the order was published, mentioned before, as the Capt said tomorrow something was going to drop and drop hard.

St Paul Dispatch

25c per month for Daily. 75c per year for the Weekly.

The St. Paul Dispatch is the best Twin City daily; it has no equal in the Northwest as to size or quality.

The DISPATCH excels in Northwestern news, having a correspondent in every Northwestern town.

THE delights of an evening spent around a well-lighted reading table are not half understood. An illustrated magazine with its wealth of illustrations, its stories of adventure and love, its descriptions of travel which carry you to the remotest ends of the earth, and its instructive articles for young and old—these are the first requisites for your own enjoyment and the entertainment and proper education of your children.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal,

Both Together One Year for Only $1.80

In this way you secure your own home paper and an illustrated magazine at a price that is only about a fourth of what some of the illustrated magazines sell for. For three years The Cosmopolitan has undisputedly claimed that it reached the largest clientele possessed by any periodical, daily, weekly or monthly, in the world. It was The Cosmopolitan which sent Julian Hawthorne to India to let the world know the real horrors of famine and plague. It was The Cosmopolitan which established at its own cost a great Free Correspondence University which now has over 20,000 students on its rolls. It was The Cosmopolitan which offered a prize of $3,000 for the best horseless carriage and prizes for best plans for public baths, and best arrangement of sewer and pipe systems for cities. It was The Cosmopolitan which set the presidents of great schools and universities seriously discussing the defects of existing educational systems. It is The Cosmopolitan whose enterprise is always in the lead in advancing the world's civilization.

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

Three Together One Year for Only $2.35

THE surest way for the administration to have convinced the volunteers and their friends that they wished to keep faith with the people of this country or any other would have been to have sent the volunteers home when their time was out.

ST. PAUL, Minneapolis and Fargo recruiting stations are said to have figured up at the end of the last month 100 recruits for the Manila war. That don't look much as if the howling patriots wanted to "jack rabbit" shoot very bad.

THE first lecture of Mrs. George who was acquitted of the charge of murdering George Sexton, was delivered at Steubenville, Ohio. Reports say: "The house holds 2,000 but there were only 14 people who paid the admission fee to hear her. She delivered the lecture however, which was a practical sketch of her life."

SOME of the papers are twitting Judge Willis because he did not go to war after offering to raise a regiment and lead it to victory. Why don't they explode part of their amunition over the New Jersey, land of trusts, regiment and the "Bucks Texas Rangers, from the Lillie White country, who offered to go lately? Why don't these patriots go?

THE Grant which left New York for Manila some time ago has returned to San Francisco, where, it is said she discharged her crew of 150 men, claiming that the contract was to return them to American soil; while the men insist that they were to be landed in New York a difference of a couple of thousand miles. It looks as if a dirty trick had been plaid on the men.

WHAT a ridiculous advertisement for the McKinley meeting to be held at Minneapolis on the next Lord's Day, to have Windy 'Ennery late republican candidate for Governor get up in the preliminary meeting and denounce, in his way, as traitors men who love their country more than they do glittering gold, or the g. o. p. with some of its present plans and managers. Windy 'Enery should, to use one of his favorite stage expressions, be "tied back" until he can travel steadier, or till the non-partisan meeting has been "pulled off.

WHEN the expansionists talk about fighting in the Philippines they call the country ours. But when they talk about paying the boys extra they are sorry the laws of the land want permit it only by discharging them as far from home as possible on our own land, and that, they say, is San Francisco. Whose land then are the Philippines and who owns the Hiawaian group? Abraham Lincoln used to say: "You can fool all the people some of the time; you can fool some of the people all the time; but you can't fool all the people all the time.

PATRIOTIC Americans have always pointed to the acts of the English in sending "Hessians" to this country to fight their battles for them with derision. But newspapers say that the present Administration of this country have gone much farther from home and armed Tagals to fight Spaniards and now are arming Maccabees to fight Tagals. If our administration wishes to follow England's teachings it should not follow at so great a distance behind but get right down to date. We understand that England, in April, granted home rule to happy Ireland.

IN an article "Modern Competitive Apostolicism" in the Microcosm for May, Charles H. Robinson takes for his texts: "Woe unto you, Scribes and Pharisees! for ye compass sea and land to make one proselyte; and when he is made, ye make him two fold more the child of hell than yourselves."—St. Matthew XXIII, 15.

"And he said unto them: Go ye unto all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature."—St. Mark XVI, 15-20.

Mr. Robinson says: "In the first instance the Savior was addressing the Jews; in the latter, his immediate disciples, who after his departure, became the twelve apostles, having elected Mathias as one of the twelve to take the place of Judas deceased."

It might be well for some of our fellow citizens who believe they are called to "Evangelize the Philippines" to consult the Good Book on the subject; and if they find they are, to be about the work personally.

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN seems bound to be the next Presidential nominee of the anti expansionists, as well as the standard bearer of the platform of '96. There is no use splitting up on these questions, the same fellows that are contracting our money into the smallest possible compass, and placing the paper money, (or bonds) in the hands of the few, are the fellows that are howling for expansion of territory. They have favored "protection to home industry" until they have succeeded in building up fortunes, now they want foreign markets and are not men enough to advocate taking off tariff so foreigners can trade with us, but want to capture them and their country by "criminal agression" and make them a part of our country, so without surrounding their protection hobby they can build up callossal factories, in lands of cheap labor and bring their goods without tariff to the people of this country. Great scheme. And Mr. Bryan is after them and the people will help him.

Grows More and More Tiresome.

As time goes on and news from the Philippines leaks outa little, the uselessness of the noble efforts of our gallant soldiers in the tropical climate bocomes more and more apparent. Newspaper headlines have been taken for facts by many until they have been led to believe that our boys almost without loss to them, were driving the inhabitants of Luzon into the sea, or killing them off "like jack rabbits." This is a false impression.

Gen. Otis, a few months ago, started out a number of fine regiments of soldiers, as he, it appears, now honestly said, to take the Filipinos "in reverse". He has been driving them from point to point ever since, but not having men enough to leave in the towns taken he simply goes slowly on and on, while the inhabitants fire what property they have, and move on. In this way it seems some 40 miles or so along the railroad have been gone over, fortifications taken by infantry, which the captain of one company anyway, wrote home should have been taken with artillery. Our boys have been marched over rough country and had hard times for what? And now tired out, and with an average of but fifty men to a company that should have 106, they are said to be expecting to assail a strong force, well intrenched, among their native homes. Gen. Otis commands from Manila, with squads of sharpshooters stationed about him to preserve him from assassination we are told, and claims that thirty thousand men is all he needs, while Gen. Lawton fights at the front, and says it will take 100,000 men to subdue the islands.

Head lines say peace is to come quickly, some had it in "two days" several days ago. We believed all along that the United States could have peace whenever they saw fit to say so, and to grant the people of the Philippines what a majority of the people in this country is willing they should have. But when after arming the natives and leading them to believe they would be liberated from bondage, our officials refused to recognize, or parley with their leader who requested it, things were brought to what they are, it looks to us, from this distance, as if, putting this and that together, even Gen. Otis would now be glad to make a treaty of peace with Aguinaldo, and that in the near future peace will come to the satisfaction of both countries.

Says "Buck" Did It.

Little Falls Transcript, (Rep.): The gross earnings bill was defeated by only one vote, so the senator from Morrison is entitled to full credit for saving the railroads have almost $1,500,000. They would had to pay to the state fully $1,500,000 taxes more than they do if the bill had carried. The roads didn't save it all, but the state gets none of it.—Democratic Press Bulletin.

In Wright county it is claimed Senator Chilton should have the credit of defeating the gross earnings bill. But who gets the pay for the job?

Is the day coming when we shall cook our own food at our own tables; when all we shall have to do is to attach a wire to the electric fixture overhead, and on a neat slab, heated by electricity, cook eggs, steaks, and cakes exactly to suit our own tastes, to say nothing of the enjoyment of having everything fresh and steaming hot? Miss Anna Leach's article in the May Cosmopolitan on "Science in the the Model Kitchen" is interesting to housekeepers from a hundred points of view, as well as in its suggestion of the electric cooking of the future. Photographs of the present-day development in electric cooking are given with the article, besides the interiors of the kitchens of many noted houses.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 5, 1899.

Mr. McKinley doesn't like portions of the report of the Military Court of Inquiry, and it is said that the Court, which adjourned a week ago, will be reconvened to revise the objectionable parts of the report before it is approved by Mr. McKinley and made public. It seems that in their criticisms of certain officers, the members of the court, doubtless unintentionally, trod upon Mr. McKinley's toes.

Some of Boss Hanna's tricks in the Speakership muddle are leaking out. One of them was his hint that the Speaker ought to be a western man. It was strange at the time that he should have dropped that hint. But when it is known that several days afterward he had a private conference, in New York, with Representative Sherman, its strangeness disappears. It was a bluff to bring Sherman to his knees, and obtain pledges from him. Whether it succeeded is not certain, but there are reasons for beleiving that it did, and that Sherman, who was first known as Czar Reed's candidate, will be taken up by Hanna, the administration, and the trusts, and elected Speaker. Friends of Hopkins, of Ills., and Henderson, of Iowa, both of whom had been led to expect administration support, are getting very suspicious. They will not talk for publication now, but if the Hanna-McKinley support is given to Sherman they will probably do some talking that will not be enjoyed either by Boss Hanna or Mr. McKinley, and they may not confine their animosity to talk. The republican majority in the next House will not be large and a few vigorous kickers can make lots of trouble for those in charge of the administration programme.

Senator Pettigrew, who has been traveling extensively since Congress adjourned, is now in Washington. He said of his observation of the political situation: "Bryan will be nominated by acclimation. His nomination cannot be prevented. I spent several weeks traveling through the South and talked with people in the small towns. In every state, and especially in Louisiana and Texas, I found the sentiment for Bryan overwhelming. Members of the Board of Trade of New Orleans were not favorable to him, but out in the country districts Bryan's name was mentioned with the highest praise. In South Dakota and the Northwest there is the same feeling. I believe too, that half of the delegation from New York will be for Bryan. You know they elect delegates by Congressional districts in New York, and that will insure the expression of the sentiment of the people." The Senator expressed the opinion that the populists would hold the first National Convention next year, and would nominate Bryan. Speaking of the letter of the Gov. of South Dakota, asking for the discharge of the volunteers from that state, and of the Philippine policy, Senator Pettigrew said: "In his letter to President McKinley, Gov. Lee correctly represented the sentiment of the people of our state. I consider the life of one of the brave boys from South Dakota as worth more than all the Filipinos living. There is no justification for killing these people anyway. The possession of these islands is worth but little from any point of view; we can't make much out of a race whose labor is paid at the rate of four cents a day. Our entire policy regarding them is wrong, and though men who oppose it are denounced as traitors, I believe the time will soon come when they will be looked upon as the true patriots."

Democrats are hoping that Alger's announcement or his candidacy for the Senate will have the administration endorsement. The legislature which will elect Senator McMillan's successor will not be elected until the fall of 1900, and if Alger becomes the administration candidate for the Senate, it will largely increase democratic chances for carrying Michigan for the National Ticket. Senator McMillan says he did tell Alger a year ago that he would not be a candidate for re-election, but that he is not prepared to say as much now, owing to changed circumstances. The "changed circumstances" are believed to have been brought about by McMillan's failure to secure a big diplomatic plum, which Alger made him believe was in his reach, for the express purpose of getting him to declare that he would not be a candidate for re-election to the Senate.

The designation by Senator Jones, previous to his departure for Europe, where he goes for his health, of Mr. J. G. Johnson, National Committee man from Kansas, to take charge of the affairs of the Democratic National Committee during the absence of Senator Jones, its chairman, and Mr. Walsh, its Secretary, means that there will be no change in the policy of the committee, as Mr. Johnson has been one of Senator Jone's right hand men ever since he became chairman of the committe. It means also that there is to be no change in the chairmanship of the committe until after the candidate for President is nominated next year.

The Best Ever.

Herman Enterprise: Lind is the best governor Minnesota has ever had, and there are very few who do not recognize the fact. His efforts in behalf of the soldier boys is going a long way towards making him popular, and besides the people appreciate a governor who at all times considers the states interest in preference to selfish ones.—Herman Enterprise.

THE WAYS OF MEN.

Some people do not like this world,
They sigh, they are unhappy, and
Find things, with few exceptions, here
To have been miserably planned;
The weather never suits them, they
Are always racked with sorrow,
And sigh for things of yesterday,
Or dread things of to-morrow.

Some people find this world of ours
A place of pure, serene delight;
To them the weeds are fragrant flowers
And unto them all days are bright;
They wonder at the gifts that God
To men is ever giving;
They seem to live to spread abroad
The joyousness of living.

Nay, they are not the rich who smile,
Nor are they always poor who sigh;
The servant oft is happier than
The master who in state goes by;
There's always cheer in plenty here
For those who care to take it;
And the world is gladior bright or sad,
As each one tries to make it.

JUANITO

By Edith Wagner

THE sun would soon set. Already there was a cool feeling in the air. It had been market day in Puebla, and now the little family was going home to one of the Indian villages near Cholula. Hundreds of such groups were scattered along the road. Maria was running in a little dog trot, carrying in her rebozo, on her back, Jesus. Jose, the father, was solemnly seated on a pile of garden stuff on the back of the little burro. Lagging a little behind the mother came Juanito.

They all had heavy burdens. On the mother's back, beside the baby, was a load of corn, and her arms were full of oddly shaped and painted earthen jars and baskets. There was no outward and visible evidence of the father's load, but to do him justice it was so great he was unable to walk with it. Maria wore for a skirt a length of dark blue cloth that came to her ankles, wrapped tightly about her back and hips, with a few folds in front. Twisted around her waist was the usual red cotton sash. Partly covering the upper half of her body was a white chemise, the yoke and short sleeves ornamented with beads of red and black. On her head she had the tall straw hat that the Indian women wear; about her throat was a coral necklace. All the Indian women are clothed the same, the difference being in quality of material and degree of cleanliness.

The country people in Mexico have no children's modes. The little people look like grown-up people seen through the wrong end of an opera-glass. Juanito, with round, fat, brown face, white teeth, big mouth, and eyes which shone star-like from out a mop of black hair, was dressed exactly like his father in shirt and long trousers of unbleached cotton, with a red sash to hold his clothes up. A leather band went round his forehead and supported the pack he carried—a large enough burden for so wee a boy. In one little hand he carried his conical hat of coarse straw; with the other, as he trotted along, he tried to shift his load a bit, and so relieve himself. He did it slyly, for he did not want his father to think he was not a big man. Indeed he was—he would be five in a few days—and he was going to have a present on his saint's day, which was also his birthday. He could do as he wished with it. A centavo—a whole cent to spend on himself.

What would he buy with his cent? He had turned it over and over many times in his rudimentary brain. He hesitated between an earthen goose, with a whistle in the neck, and a dulce—like our rock candy. The goose would be an ephemeral thing at best, although the whistle—ay, Dios! but that whistle could be heard a kilometer. A turn of the hand, however, and it was gone. There are kites which sing when they get up in the air, but, Dios de mi alma! what riches are necessary. Four centavos for the kite and one for the string! He had thought carefully. He could buy the string at once and get the kite in four more saint's days, for surely he would go on having them, and it was likely Dona Ynes would always remember them. No! No! After all, the dulce was best.

His face grew brooding as he built his castle—founded on a cent. His mother should have a suck—two sucks, in fact. The baby could lick it, and Nito, the burro, but his father, no! For only yesterday had he beaten him for getting too much water on the clay to make the ollas. He closed his eyes in ecstasy; properly managed, the candy, which was of the durability of old red sandstone or the quartz it greatly resembled, should last, by licking delicately and sucking with moderation, until another birthday.

The sun was throwing its long, golden lances across the plain of Cholula, with its scores of church towers. The family had finished the supper of frijoles and tortillas, risen from the spring, by the wayside, and resumed its journey. As before, the father led, jogging along on the burro; the mother running beside, bending forward from her load. Juanito, as his short legs grew more weary, fell farther behind. The mother looked over her shoulder several times, but she felt no uneasiness, for it had happened before that, being too tired to go on, Tio Pedrito had taken him to his jacal on his burro and brought him home in the morning.

The road made a sudden dip. On one hand was a deep barranca (steep ravine) the sides covered with shrubs and close growth. Juanito, boy-like, was seeing how far he could trot along the verge without losing his balance. He was as sure-footed as a mule, but a long serpentine root, the same ashcolor as the soil, caught his foot in a loop, and in a moment he was twisted off his feet and rolling down the barranca. It so happened no one saw him, and, little Indian stoic that he was, he made no sound.

When he reached the bottom, bruised and out of breath, a savage hand caught his throat and savage eyes met his. A few muttered words and the butt end of a heavy revolver came down on the shaggy little head, and then to one side was brutally tossed the senseless heap. There were three of them crouched under an overhanging ledge—three sinister-looking bandits wearing heavy felt hats and with red blankets drawn across their mouths. They sat still until about the time all travel had ceased on the highway above. They were planning, in low voices, the division of the spoils when Juanito's hard little head began to throb consciously. The first thing he heard to understand was that Miguel was to turn the coach over at exactly that spot, and that Don Hypolite had the money for the year's pulque from his San Martin hacienda, and the Dona Ynes had been to a baile in Puebla, and had on her mother's diamonds.

"If the fall does not kill," growled one, "a tap of the good friend here"—and Juanito heard him slap his pistol.

Juanito heard, and, though sick and dazed, comprehended. He could not see how he could prevent it. He knew that when the coachman tipped the carriage down the barranca Dona Ynes would be hurt, and if she were not hurt enough they would kill her. Ah! he would not get his centavo if Dona Ynes was killed. The thought moved him—poor, little, dying baby!

He tried to raise himself, but the effort increased the deadly nausea. A night wind was blowing and rustled the leaves; under cover of that noise he could move freely if he could keep from crying. And keep from crying he would, for even his short life had given him self-control and courage. He was not an American child, who screams when it is explained kindly that he cannot have the moon. He began to move, pulling himself up by inches, forced often to rest from sheer anguish, but never a moan was wrung from his lips by the torture.

Several hours must have passed before he reached the highway. When there, he could not tell which way to go. He had lost his sense of direction, always extraordinary in Indians. He thought he heard a shout from below, as though the men had missed him; so, without further cogitation, he dragged himself along the road. He was cold with an awful chill that struck out from the bones. The blood steadily ran down his face from the crack in his skull. He was afraid he was going in the wrong direction; before this he should have heard the clip, clip of the high-stepping black mares. His tongue was getting too big for his mouth, and his heart roared like a wild thing within him.

Suddenly he heard the rumbling of the carriage, and he fancied he could see the shining flanks of Don Hypolite's beautiful thoroughbreds. He gave a cry, another, and another. They were driving rapidly—and driving by!

As they swept past, for the first time, he burst out crying, and sank in the dust. Dona Ynes, inside the carriage, was jerking violently at the cord.

"Why does he not stop? Oh, papa, call Miguel to stop. Some one called me; some one is hurt by the road."

Don Hypolite put his head out and ordered Miguel to drive slowly back. The guilty scamp did so reluctantly. The carriage halted by the side of little sobbing Juan, and Dona Ynes jumped out. She had dropped her fur coat, for the night was warm, and her bare arms shone milky-white through the meshes of a lace mantilla. The mantilla was fastened by a gold-and-turquoise comb to the high knot of dusky hair, and the curved edges flapped coquettishly about the roguish face.

Regardless of her satin ball-gown, she knelt in the dust by Juanito. After he had told her and Don Hypolite of the plan to rob and murder them, she carried him herself in her round arms to the carriage, while Don Hypolite, portly and courtly, in evening dress, with a half-dozen decorations glittering on his breast, went back calmly, and pulled Miguel by the coat-collar off his seat. Relieving the rascal of his pistol and kicking him soundly, Don Hypolite took the reins and drove back to Puebla, leaving Miguel rubbing his aches and wondering how it happened.

The motion of the carriage so jarred the little pain-racked frame that Dona Ynes, thinking that it must be a matter of but a few moments, asked her father to stop. Juanito whispered to her that he could not breathe, that he wished to be outdoors, where he could see the stars; so Dona Ynes, tenderly holding the child, sat in the grass by the road.

Alas! he could breathe no better under the quiet stars. There was the croaking of frogs and the song of nightbirds, and the soft wind rustling through the low shrubs. He lifted a wistful face, and with long, laboring breaths he managed to say:

"I want my centavo."

Dona Ynes, keeping back her sobs with difficulty, for she did not wish to distress the patient child, slipped a cent into his little hand. A smile of great sweetness and content stole over his wide mouth, and the tiny, brown fingers closed upon the cherished cent, never to open again.—San Francisco Argonaut.

What He Really Said.

"And you say the idiot of a teacher told you that you had an extravagant fool of a father?"

"That's what he meant."

"But what did he say?"

"He said it was criminal folly to waste money on the education of such a chump as I am."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

All the sowed grain such as wheat, oats, barley, etc. is coming up nicely and never had a better color at this time of year. The farmers will also put in large crops of corn, potatoes, cane, etc. In the way of crops everything looks encouraging to the farmer now, but there are many things liable to happen between now and harvest; storms, cyclones, frost, and a twine famine or a corner on prices same as last year may come and cut the farmers margin short.

The post office department at Washington has authorized the employment of girls in the department in Cuba. This is quite an innovation for the island, as women are rarely employed there in any other capacity outside their own homes, except as cigar makers or as menials. Benevolent Cuban women have often attributed the miserable condition of many of the girls and women of Cuban cities to the fact that they were unable to find employment. The decision to employ women in government departments there will cause a modification of unwritten laws of Cuban society.

The fact that three American colonels have fallen in the Philippines while leading their regiments would not seem to indicate that the officers in the American army are of the kind that stay in the rear and let the men do the fighting. It must shock the haughty English and European army officers to read the account of the death of Col. Stotzenburg, killed while running ahead of his regiment, or the account of Col. Funston climbing across the wrecked railroad bridge over the Bagbag river at the head of a squad who had volunteered to risk their lives in an attempt to cross.

May 1 will always be a memorable day in American annals. The news of May 1, 1898, was a revelation to the world. It showed that a third of a century of peace had not affected the courage and capability of the American people. It proved that when the opportunity offered the United States could present naval heroes who could stand in the same class with Perry, Decatur, Farragut and Nelson. May 1 was the beginning of a series of victories which quickly extended to the land operations that were the wonder of the world. The day will probably some time be made a national holiday.

REPORT MADE PUBLIC

Result of the Investigations of the Court of Inquiry.

Charges of Chemical Treatment of Refrigerated Beef Not Established—Miles, Eagan and Maus Censured.

Washington, May 8.—By direction of the president, who approves the finding, Acting Secretary of War Meiklejohn has made public the report and findings of the military court apopinted to investigate the charges made by Maj. Gen. Miles, commanding the army, that the beef supplied to the army during the war with Spain was unfit for the use of the troops.

Its Findings.

The more important features of the report are: The finding that the general's allegations that the refrigerated beef was treated with chemicals were not established: that his allegations concerning the canned fresh or canned roast beef were sustained as to its unsuitability for food as used on the transports and as a long-continued field ration; censure of Gen. Miles for "error" in failing to promptly notify the secretary of war when he first formed the opinion that the food was unfit; censure of the commissary general (then Gen. Eagan) for the too extensive purchase of the canned beef as an untried ration; censure of Col. Maus, of Gen. Miles' staff; the finding that the packers were not at fault and that the meats supplied to the army were of the same quality as those supplied to the trade generally, and the recommendation that no further proceedings be taken in the premises.

Oppose Further Proceedings.

The conclusion of the court adverse to further proceedings based upon the charges is as follows: "It has been developed in the course of the inquiry, as recited in this report, that in some instances some individuals failed to perform the full measure of duty or to observe the proprieties which dignify high military command, but the court is of the opinion that the mere statement in the official report of the facts developed meets the ends of discipline, and that the interests of the service will be best subserved if further proceedings be not taken."

Criticism of Miles.

There is more or less criticism of Gen. Miles in various parts of the report. Probably the most direct instance is the one which states that beyond the criticism of officers found elsewhere is the report: "The court finds that against none of the officers commanding corps, divisions, brigades and regiments and their staff officers should a charge of guilt be brought. The court also finds that the major general commanding the army had no sufficient justification for alleging that the refrigerated beef was embalmed or was unfit for issue to troops. It also finds that he committed an error in that, having belief or knowledge, as claimed, that the food was unfit, that it caused sickness and distress; that some of it was supplied under the pretense of experiment; that other beef was embalmed, he did not immediately report such knowledge or belief to the secretary of war, to the end that a proper remedy might be promptly applied."

Rebuke for Eagan.

The report places the quantity of canned roast beef purchased for the war by the commissary department at 6,847,174 pounds, including 350,000 pounds which was brought from Liverpool and other English ports. This amount is characterized as excessive, and the commissary general (Gen. Eagan) is severely criticised in several parts of the document on this score.

Approved by the President.

The report closes with the following statement: "The court with a deep sense of the responsibilities devolving upon it has labored zealously to bring out the truth and believes that it has fully covered all the matters referred to it for investigation. That the calling of more witnesses from the large number suggested by the major general commanding, including all those who have taken part in the operations of the war, would only have resulted in additional testimony on the same lines as those pursued, without throwing further light upon the questions involved."

The document is signed by J. F. Wade, major general, United States volunteers, president, and George B. Davis, lieutenant colonel, deputy judge advocate general, recorder. The findings of the court are approved by the president. The court is dissolved by order of Adjt. Gen. Corbin, acting secretary of war.

Miles Has Nothing to Say.

Gen. Miles, when asked whether he had any comment to make upon the beef report, replied that he had read it. "But I have nothing to say," he added, "either about the report, the method of testimony or the conclusions reached."

"Does that mean that so far as you are concerned you will let the matter rest where the report leaves it?" asked the reporter.

"I have nothing to say," replied Gen. Miles.

TO CALL SPECIAL SESSION.

Congress May Be Convened Next Fall to Get Important Business Under Way.

Washington, May 5.—There is a growing belief among members of congress that the president will call congress to meet in extraordinary session this fall, probably early in October. The questions which will come before the next congress for settlement, including as they do everything growing out of our possessions acquired as a result of the war with Spain, and the general legislation, including that relating to currency reform, the Nicaragua canal, merchant marine, etc., are of such great importance that the president is inclined to regard it as advisable that congress should meet earlier than the regular session in December in order to get the work under way.

The retirement of Speaker Reed will naturally entail considerable delay in the appointment of committees in the house, as it is customary to allow a new speaker four or five weeks to make up his committees, and this furnishes an additional reason why congress should be convened before December.

Back from Manila.

New York, May 8.—Flying a "homeward-bound" pennant 236 feet long, the United States cruiser Buffalo, formerly the Brazilian dynamite cruiser Nictheroy, and before that El Cid, came into port Sunday morning after a record-breaking run from Manila. She brought 596 officers and men from Dewey's fleet, more than half of whom participated in the battle of Manila bay. The men are those whose terms of enlistment have expired. The trip from Manila occupied 44 days, including stops at Singapore, Port Said and Gibraltar. The actual sailing time was 37 days, an average speed for the trip of 13¼ knots an hour.

Caught in New York.

Chicago, May 5.—William S. Young, a Chicago attorney and ex-public guardian of the Cook county probate court, has been arrested in New York on charges of embezzlement. He is charged with defaulting with the funds of a number of small estates, the settlement of which had been intrusted to his care. The police have been searching for him for months. The amount of his embezzlement is expected to reach $25,000, and a score of estates, the heirs to most of which are dependent children,

SAN FERNANDO TAKEN.

Insurgent Stronghold Occupied by Gen. MacArthur's Division—Valuable Supplies Captured.

Manila, May 6.—Maj. Gen. MacArthur's division advanced to San Fernando Friday and found that the place had been evacuated by the rebels, who left only a small detachment to cover their retreat by train. Gen MacArthur occupied the burning town without loss.

The rebels south of Manila attempted to rush through Brig. Gen. Ovenshine's line Thursday night. The attempt failed, but the rebels maintained a fusillade of musketry on the Fourth infantry regiment for several hours. The demonstration was ineffectual beyond scaring the inhabitants of Malate.

The outposts of the Idaho and California regiments beyond San Pedro Macati were also attacked during the night.

Maj. Gen. Lawton is still quartered at Balinag.

Washington, May 6.—The war department has received the following:

"Manila, May 5.—Adjutant General, Washington: Following casualties at San Tomas yesterday: One officer, Lieut. Toggart, Twentieth Kansas, and four enlisted men killed; three officers, 22 enlisted men wounded. Among wounded Gen. Funston, hand, slight. Lawton reports capture over 150,000 bushels rice and 265 tons sugar at Balinag. Value of subsistence captured at Malolos $1,500,000. Large captures rice and corn belonging to enemy at other points. Insurgents destroyed by fire yesterday town of San Tomas and last evening fired city of San Fernando.

Washington, May 6.—The records of the war department do not contain the name of Lieut. Toggart. The dead officer probably is William H. McTaggart.

BLOW AT AMERICAN MEAT.

Committee of the German Reichstag Takes a Decidedly Hostile Stand.

Berlin, May 9.—It is authoritatively stated that the committee of the reichstag to which was referred the meat inspection bill which was substantially agreed upon between the imperial cabinet and the United States ambassador here, Mr. Andrew D. White, has reported against the measure and in favor of a bill so hostile to American interests that the government will probably refuse to sanction it.

The most unfortunate circumstance as regards American interests in the matter of the meat inspection bill was the fact that there were insistent declarations in the United States that embalmed and poisonous meats had been supplied to the troops in Cuba. Representatives of the German land-owning interests loudly declared that if the Americans sent poisonous meats to their own soldiers they would certainly send it to the Germans.

A bad result is that the bill, as reported back, provides for examination and inspection of American meats impossible to enforce without utterly destroying American trade with Germany.

The bill, as remodeled by the reichstag committee, also proposes to exclude from importation hams, hard and soft sausages and chopped meats, and prescribes that fresh meats must come in whole carcasses or continuous parts.

The United States embassy and the German government still hope that the better counsels will prevail when the bill comes up for discussion in the open reichstag on its second reading, though the chances for the enactment of the government measure are very slim.

HE NEEDS REST.

President and Mrs. McKinley Leave the Capital for a Visit to Hot Springs, Va.

Washington, May 9.—President and Mrs. McKinley left the city Monday night for a vacation of a week or ten days at Hot Springs, Va.

The party included also Mr. George B. Cortelyou, the assistant secretary to the president; Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Rixey, and Mr. Barnes, of the white house clerical force. The president's health is good, but he feels the need of rest and recreation, and hence all official business during his absence will be attended to as far as possible at the white house. While at the springs the party will stay at "The Homestead," where Secretary and Mrs. Gage are now located for a week's stay.

The Washington Jubilee.

Washington, May 9.—Plans for the Washington peace jubilee are nearing completion. The celebration will be held May 23, 24 and 25, at a time when the national capital will have assumed the height of its beauty. Every organization in the District of Columbia is promoting the proposed celebration. President McKinley and the members of the cabinet are supporting the project in every way. The army and navy will be represented by all available forces and the states will be represented by their governors and representatives of the volunteer service.

Three Hundred Slain in Battle.

London, May 9.—The foreign office has received news from Unyoro that Col. Evatt attacked Chief Kabarega on the east bank of the Nile on April 9 and completely defeated him. Three hundred of the enemy were killed and Kabarega himself, who was severely wounded, and King Mwanga were taken prisoners. Col. Evatt's losses were two killed and 20 wounded Uganda soldiers.

Memorial Day Observance.

Philadelphia, May 5.—Commander in Chief W. C. Johnson, of the Grand Army of the Republic, has issued an order calling upon all comrades to pay the annual tribute of flag and flowers to the memory of the dead soldiers on Memorial day, May 30. Every post is enjoined to attend Divine worship on the Sunday preceding Memorial day.

One Thousand Home Seekers.

Durango, Col., May 5.—Many persons who had been holding places in the line at the land office changed their minds Thursday and joined the rush for locations in the Ute lands which were opened for settlement at noon by proclamation of the president. It is estimated that 1,000 people sought in various ways to secure land.

The Buffalo Strike.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 9.—The strike is practically unchanged. All efforts made to bring about a settlement have been balked by the absolute refusal of the strikers to consider any proposition that did not include the abrogation of Contractor Conners' contract and the refusal of the Lake Carriers' association to cancel the contract.

ARRESTS AT WARDNER.

Troops Continue the Search for Dynamiters in the Idaho Town—Flee to the Mountains.

Wardner, Idaho, May 5.—The troops are continuing the search for dynamiters, and a number have been placed under guard. Gen. Merriam, Attorney-General Hays and United States Marshal Ramsay have arrived here. A detachment of troops has been ordered to Canyon Creek and Mullan, the strongholds of the enemy, and with them will go a number of nonunion miners who will try to identify the dynamiters. It is feared that the desperate men will give battle before they will give in to the officers.

Wallace, Idaho, May 5.—The hegira from Canyon county still continues. Men are going out over the mountains as well as by train. The snow on the mountains is ten feet deep and very soft. The Hecla mine closed down Thursday, as there were no men to work it.

Two troops of cavalry came here and arrested practically every man in town. A train of two coaches and six box cars, all heavily loaded, took them to Wardner Thursday evening. It is thought many are only wanted as witnesses.

OUR INTERESTS UNHARMED.

Official Assurances Given That United States Is Not Affected by Recent Events in China.

Washington, May 6.—Official assurances have been given to our government that the agreement reached between Great Britain and Russia as to spheres of influence in China concerns only the two parties, and that in no manner does it affect the interests of the United States. The agreement does not amount to a seizure of the lands in China defined as being within either of the two spheres, and even should any territory be acquired in them by either of the parties to this agreement the United States, it has been stated, will not be the subject of any discrimination in commercial or trade matters. Such rights as are now possessed in treaty ports will continue to be enjoyed freely by the United States. In view of the fact that the recent agreement presented new and important features through the inclusion for the first time in the territory subject to it of cities that had long been treaty ports, this assurance is regarded here as of the greatest value.

DEWEY'S SUCCESSOR.

Rear Admiral Watson Ordered to Report at Manila to Relieve the Admiral.

Washington, May 9.—The navy department has selected a successor to Admiral Dewey to command the Asiatic station. Orders were issued Monday detaching Rear Admiral Watson from command of the Mare Island navy yard and ordering him to report to Admiral Dewey at Manila, to relieve that officer when he feels that he can be spared there.

Rear Admiral Kempff, at present on waiting orders, has been ordered to succeed Admiral Watson in command of the Mare Island navy yard.

New York, May 9.—Admiral Dewey has cabled to this city his acceptance of an invitation to a banquet to be given in his honor by 100 prominent citizens. It is likely that Admiral Dewey will return to this country as soon as peace negotiations with the insurgents have been concluded. He will return via the Suez canal and will come to New York.

Killed Himself.

Walla Walla, Wash., May 9.—W. E. Gooding, a well-known railroad man and for several years editor of the Minneapolis Times, committed suicide here Monday by shooting himself in the head. The body was found lying in an outhouse back of his lodging house. A letter to the coroner said an inquest was unnecessary, and said his was simply a case of "too much politics and bad luck." Gooding was a man of temperate habits, well educated and of refined tastes. He leaves a wife and three children in Minneapolis; also a brother in business in Minneapolis.

Latest News from Otis.

Washington, May 9.—The latest dispatch received from Gen. Otis on the situation in the Philippines is as follows:

"Manila, May 8.—Adjutant General, Washington: Situation as follows: Lawton at Maasin and Baliuag; scouting parties to north and east. MacArthur at San Fernando; * * * * * Population of country between Manila and northern points held by troops returning to homes; cheerful and contented. Army gunboats operating in rivers. Have cleared country west of MacArthur of insurgents. * * * * * Signs of insurgents' weakness more apparent daily.

Bad Fire in a Texas Village.

Waco, Tex., May 5.—Almost the entire business portion of Moody, Tex., was destroyed by fire Thursday morning. Loss, $25,000; insurance, $8,000. The fire was thought to be of incendiary origin and Byron Dutton has been arrested charged with the crime. He was brought here for safe keeping, lynching being feared. J. W. Maxwell, a volunteer fireman, was killed by the explosion of a can of powder.

Snow Blockade Broken.

Denver, Col., May 5.—The first train over the South Park road into Dillon in four months ran through solid walls of snow Thursday and steamed into the town amid the blowing of whistles and the ringing of bells. The snow blockade had been broken. Work is now progressing toward Leadville, and the entire South Park line from Denver to the big camp will be opened, it is said, early next week.

More Tornado Victims.

Omaha, Neb., May 6.—A special to the Bee from Ute, Ia., says: Death has claimed two more victims of the cyclone that devastated this section of the country last week. Arndt Amundson, aged 52, died Thursday morning and Peter Pederson, aged 70, died in the evening. Pederson's death had been expected for several days. All the other injured are doing well.

Natives Admit Defeat.

Manila, May 8.—Cal. Manuel Arguelles, chief of staff for Gen. Luna, who, with Maj. Jose Bergal, is here as a special envoy from Aguinaldo to plead for an armistice, said frankly that the Filipinos were whipped. Col. Arguelles comes from Gen. Luna, who is the commanding general of the insurgent army.

SAVED THE SECRET.

He Hoodwinked His Trusting Wifey But at What a Fearful Cost to Himself.

He had been out late. When he reached his residence the church clock was chiming five. Heavy, weary, disgusted, he opened the front door with some difficulty, and softly toiled up the stairs, entering the bed chamber with elaborate caution.

Thank goodness, she was asleep!

He dropped into a chair, and, without taking off his coat or hat, began to remove his shoes. One he placed with great care upon the floor, but, alas! as he took off the other it slipped out of his hand and fell with a loud noise.

"Wifey" awoke on the instant.

She looked at him and then at the summer sunlight that streamed through the blinds.

"Why, George, what are you getting up so early for?"

Talk about reprieves!

"Why, my dear," replied George, with the clearest enunciation of which he was capable, "I found I couldn't sleep, so I thought I'd get up and go out and take a walk."

And out the poor wretch went, dragging himself round wearily for an hour upon the verge of tears and torpor.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

YOU AND I.

If you the moon were and I were the sea,
I'd yearn to you whenever we should meet;
And when the storm-clouds hid your face from me,
In wrath against my rocky bounds I'd beat;
But when you smiled again and heaven were free,
I'd build a shining pathway for your feet,
If you the moon were and I were the sea.

If you a mortal were and I were a bird,
I'd sing to you within a summer dell;
I'd tell you things that never human word
With such a thrilling ecstasy could tell;
I'd sing the sweetest music ever heard,
Until your soul were caught within its spell;
If you a mortal were and I a bird.

If you the sun were, I a violet,
I'd ope my eyes to see you every morn;
My chalice with a dewdrop I would wet,
So that your glory on my heart were worn;
I'd blow to you all day until you set,
Then sleep and dream of you till day were born;
If you the sun were, I a violet.

THE TIMELESS MAN

SOME fifty years ago the world was startled by the news of the tragic end of Godfrey Warren, whose sudden accession to vast wealth had been the talk of society. The true story of his death was never told, but it was known that he died mysteriously and alone.

One of Mr. Warren's descendants now offers us the following veritable record of the strange circumstances which led to his unhappy ancestor's miserable end. It is a weird tale that will linger long in the memory. * * *

Godfrey Warren suffered from one of the most singular hallucinations the world has ever known. He believed that so far as he was concerned time went infinitely faster than with other people. In the midst of a conversation, with his mind seemingly intent upon the subject discussed, he would interrupt the speaker to consult his watch; then, replacing it in his pocket, he would nod with an exclamation of impatience, as if annoyed at the flight of time. His mind traveled with the rapidity of lightning from one subject to another, until at length his speech lost coherency and became unintelligible. He had been an inveterate smoker; now he no longer indulged in this recreation; he had no time. His favorite books, his violin, which he played with considerable skill, lay neglected. Meanwhile he rushed about breathlessly, with the air of a man to whom the loss of a moment meant death.

"Go slow," said his family physician.

"I can't," the young man would respond with a sigh; "there is so much for me to do."

It was at this period that his friends, solicitous for his welfare, persuaded him to put himself into the hands of physicians. Worn out by their entreaties and his own fears, Warren finally consented. After a lenghty consultation, the tribunal decided that, as the reckoning of time appeared to be his sole malady, the remedy lay in his being placed in a quiet locality and deprived of the records of passing events. Perfect seclusion for the patient, they argued, would bring mental repose. And his father's old friend, Prof. Herbert, agreed to take charge of him.

Warren proved a docile patient. He parted with his watch willingly, and abandoned himself, without regret, to the rules prescribed for him.

Accompanied by the professor and his daughter, he arrived safely at the retreat. So intent was he upon being cured of his mania that on their journey Warren had failed to note revolutions of the carriage wheels, and had even become interested in the young girl, who regarded him curiously, as she might a new planet.

The apartment assigned to him was a large circular room, flooded with sunlight. The walls were hung with charts of the heavens, while on the floor were spread Persian rugs of brilliant and intricate designs. Altogether Warren was pleased with his new quarters. Certainly it was a pleasant room. Yet there was something missing.

He frowned sightly; then his eyes fell upon a sun dial of ancient pattern. He quickly turned away, affecting not to have noticed it. The professor and the girl retired, and as he heard them descend the circular stairway he smiled. His eyes were fixed upon the dial, and a dream of joy lit them. He would be able, with practice, to calculate the exact time of day. He could have danced with delight at the thought, yet he shuddered at the prospect. That night he retired early in order not to think of time.

The next morning he began to rebel at his confinement. He thought of himself, young, rich and ambitious; a recluse confined in an observatory, with no companions save charts and books, and no record of the passing of time. The latter appeared to him a terrible condition. Life was going on elsewhere. People were keeping appointments hourly. Railway trains were thundering over the country, all scheduled, timed to the minute. Soon he would not be cognizant of the day of the week, month or year.

Oh, if he had his watch! He sat for hours with his fingers held upon his pulse, counting its beats. Sixty time sixty—that made an hour. At length he began to mark the walls with a pocketknife, each time cutting deeper. The seconds he indicated by dashes, the minutes by dots, and the hours by stars. Soon he removed the maps and charts in order to continue his chronology. Days passed, during which he ate little, staring absently at the servant, who had lately begun to manifest a fear of him. Time that had at first appeared interminable now seemed fairly to fly away from him. He would walk the circuit of the room, moving at regular speed, counting as he went. Then he would quicken his pace until, at his calculation, he completed ten of these revolutions a minute.

Upon one occasion the professor called upon him, and Warren shouted:

"Thief! thief! give me back my watch!"

The old man retreated hastily, and now the patient was visited by no one but the servant, who contented himself with knocking upon the door and leaving the tray of food outside.

Warren was growing insane. He began to fear himself, but what he dreaded most was the loss of time. To Warren time was a deity, alternately worshiped, entreated and feared.

Summer had passed without any visible change in his condition. His friends were hopeful still, and the professor, although reticent, expressed his belief in the ultimate success of the rest cure.

Warren had become indifferent to everything but his task. The walls of his room were defaced with knife cuts; there remained only an inch of space upon which to mark his interminable hieroglyphics. Observing this, he began to argue with himself where he might begin anew. He shook his head sadly.

"Only an inch," he muttered.

Then he sprang up, and, seeing a knife, began to work industriously. One, two, three, then up to 60, then 60 again, and so on until the space was completely covered. He was in despair. Suddenly a brilliant idea occurred to him. He gathered up the rugs, rolled them together and tossed them out of the window. Then he began to cut marks on the floor. Frequently weary and bending, his knees callous, his hands shaking, he would fall asleep, and wake only to continue his task. Day and night became alike to him.

Finally the floor was covered. What was he to do now? As the problem confronted him the madman wept tears of despair. He sat for some time crouched beneath a window, then a slow smile diffused itself over his face. He tore away his sleeve, and, baring his arm, pricked his skin with the point of the knife. He counted aloud as he did so, while the blood trickled from the wound. Then the madman grew elated; there would remain yet another arm, after that the legs, finally the chest.

His fingers were clotted with blood as he worked eagerly, tattooing arms and legs. In the silence of the room he heard a familiar sound. It resembled the ticking of a clock. He paused twice to listen. Yes, he was not mad; no one could mistake the steady "tick, tick."

A clock! He sprang to his feet, the knife clattering upon the floor. A clock! Where was it? He dashed about the room. He could see nothing—the clock was hidden. Still steadily sounded the "tick, tick." Always at the same distance, no nearer, no further.

He remembered a watch that he had carried when a boy; a silver gift watch given him by his father.

He felt his pocket. Perhaps it was there now. No, his pocket was empty. He bent his head over his left shoulder, listening intently. Then he cried aloud in delight.

He had found the clock. It was there, where his heart had once been—in his body, on the left side. How loud it ticked! He held his coat over it to muffle the sound that seemed to penetrate the walls. With his nails he dug into the flesh, striving to tear from it the precious timepiece.

"Tick, tick."

Heavens! How time was passing! He struck his chest fiercely. With the movement he stepped backward. As he did so his foot struck something. He looked down and saw the knife. Then he was calm. "Tick, tick," went the clock, but the sound troubled him no longer. In a moment he would see the white dial, the black hands moving slowly and that other hand that twirled away the seconds. Once again he would be master of time, not its slave.

He stooped and picked up the knife. Its edge was ragged where he had forced it into the walls. He moved the fingers of his right hand carefully along his side, until he felt that they rested directly above the clock.

"Tick, tick."

The point of the knife met the sound and silenced it.—Chicago Times-Herald.

POVERTY-STRICKEN GENIUSES

How the World Has Treated Aspirants for Literary Fame for Centuries.

Homer was a beggar; Plautus turned a mill; Terence was a slave; Boetius died in jail; Paul Borghesse had 14 trades, and yet starved with them all; Tasso was often distressed for five shillings; Bentivoglio was refused admittance into a hospital he had himself erected; Cervantes died of hunger, and Vagelas left his body to the surgeons to pay his debts as far as the money would go; Bacon lived a life of meanness and distress; Sir Walter Raleigh died on the scaffold; Spenser, the charming, died in want; the death of Collins was through neglect, first causing mental derangement.

Milton sold his copyright of "Paradise Lost" for £15 at three payments, and finished his life in obscurity; Dryden lived in poverty and distress; Otway died prematurely and through hunger; Lee died in the street; Steele lived a life of perfect warfare with bailiffs; Goldsmith's "Vicar of Wakefield" was sold for a trifle to save him from the grip of the law; Fielding lies in the burying ground of the English factory at Lisbon, without a stone to mark the spot; Savage died in prison at Bristol, where he was confined for a debt of £8; Butler lived a life of penury and died poor; Chatterton, the child of genius and misfortune, destroyed himself.—Homiletic Review.

The Primrose in Florence.

Last time I was in Florence I searched diligently for nearly a month before discovering a genuinely wild primrose, although myriads were daily thrust into my hands in a more or less dead and flaccid condition. Suddenly the sight of a bit of unmistakably English-looking oak scrub on the road to the Certosa brought the conviction to my mind that here, if anywhere, primroses must be to be found. Communicating the conviction to the friend who sat beside me, we stopped our vehicle, and at the end of five-minutes' scramble found ourselves in a copse which might well have been imported just as it was from Sussex or Surrey, only that under its still adhering russet leaves were to be seen, not primroses only, or primroses and anemones only, but nearly every spring flower which we cherish assiduously in our gardens, and can rarely persuade to flower satisfactorily with us even many weeks later.—Hon. Emily Lawless, in Nineteenth Century.

No Society Men.

Bismarck, in speaking about those people who are always complaining of the behavior of the police, said: "I am reminded of the story of the police commissioner of Hanover. A wealthy man complained to him that the police were unnecessarily abrupt in addressing the public. 'Well, you see,' said the commissioner, 'I've advertised for society men to join the force, but I can't get them!' "—Youth's Companion.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Lewis Baker.

Lewis Baker, formerly proprietor of the St. Paul Globe, died in Washington April 30.

Lewis Baker was born on a farm in Belmont county, Ohio, Nov. 7, 1832. At the age of 16 he was apprenticed to the printer's trade, and in the last year of his apprenticeship he became editor of a weekly published at Belmont. Later he purchased the Jeffersonian, published at Cambridge, Ohio, and eventually made it the leading paper of the democracy in that locality. In 1863 he founded the Register, a daily paper published at Wheeling, W. Va. In February, 1885, he assumed control of the St. Paul Globe, remaining in charge of the Globe until his appointment as minister to Nicaragua, which occurred during the second term of President Cleveland. Last year Mr. Baker returned from Managua in an enfeebled state of health and took up his residence in Washington.

Will Protest.

To protest against the discussed alliance between England and the United States and to disapprove of the existing antagonism toward the mother country, is the idea of a movement now being inaugurated by all German societies throughout the state.

The Philharmonic society of Winona has taken the initiative in the movement, and at a meeting selected three delegates who, with a similar number from the other German societies of Winona, will assemble in mass meeting shortly and select several delegates-at-large, who will proceed to St. Paul to attend a monster meeting there.

At St. Paul the delegates will formulate a resolution, and this after its adoption, will be sent to the executive at Washington, protesting against the alliance.

A Small Riot.

The first serious demonstration by the Duluth street railway sympathizers and strikers occurred the other night. They used dynamite to stop traffic.

Four cars were derailed, three at West Duluth and one at Garfield avenue. One of the cars in West Duluth was smashed almost beyond repair, and all the glass in the other two were broken. The car on Garfield avenue was served likewise.

One man was seriously if not fatally injured, and four others were slightly hurt.

When Manager Warren, of the street railway company, appeared on the scene with a wrecking car he was set upon by the strikers.

PE-RU-NA FOR WOMEN

The debilitating drains and discharges which weaken so many women are caused by Catarrh of the distinctly feminine organs. The sufferer may call her trouble Leuchorrhoea, or Weakness, or Female Disease or some other name, but the real trouble is catarrh of the female organs and nothing else.

Pe-ru-na radically and permanently cures this and all other forms of Catarrh. It is a positive specific for female troubles caused by catarrh of the delicate lining of the organs peculiar to women. It always cures if used persistently. It is prompt and certain.

HOW HE LOST HER.

He Struck Out and She Gave Herself to the Young Man Who Didn't Play Ball.

A bright flush overspread the face of the young girl in the pink shirt waist, who sat in the grand stand, as the stalwart young man who had played in the field in the first half of the inning stepped to the plate, bat in hand.

"Line 'er out, old man!" "Three-base hit!" "Good boy!" "Home run!" "Hit it in de nose!" "Swat it good an' hard!" sung out the cranks.

The stalwart young man carelessly lifted his cap, replaced it, grasped his bat with a firmer hold, moved it in graceful circles over his shoulder, while the pitcher was doing the preliminary mysterious juggling with the ball that marks the high-priced player, and as the leather sphere—it is the correct form to call it a leather sphere—came toward him like a rifle shot he swung his bat.

"Ah!" groaned the crowd.

He had fanned the air.

This phrase is also the correct form.

Again the high-priced pitcher juggled the ball mysteriously, again it came like a rifle shot, again the young man at the plate swung his bat—

And again the crowd groaned:

"Ah!"

The high-priced catcher rolled the ball carelessly down to third, put on his mask, came close behind the bat, spread his high-priced legs apart, placed his hands on his knees, leaned forward, and made an imperceptible signal to the high-priced pitcher.

The vast crowd held its breath.

Which is also the correct thing to do at a critical moment like this.

Like a shot the ball sped toward the plate.

With a mighty lunge the young athlete swung his bat a third time.

It smote only the air.

Another groan burst from the crowd.

He had not only struck out, but put the side out.

"Mr. Spoonamore," said the young woman in the pink shirt waist, turning with pale cheeks and flashing eyes to the pimply-faced young man who sat by her side. "I said 'no' to you the other day. I say yes now. I will marry you whenever you like!"—Chicago Tribune.

AUTOGRAPH FIENDS.

Devices to Which They Will Resort to Secure the Signature of a Reigning Celebrity.

"Every time we have a celebrity with us," said the chief clerk at one of the leading hotels, "I am certain to be deluged with autograph albums. They are left by people who calmly request me to waylay the notable and get his or her signature, preceded if possible by some neat and appropriate sentiment, verse preferred. It would be a pretty ticklish task if it were not for the fact that the celebrities themselves are broken in to that sort of thing and have ceased to regard it with any surprise. As a rule, no explanation is necessary and all I have to do is to hand over the little books. The autograph hunters are particularly keen after theatrical stars, and there is one well-known manager who derives a good deal of amusement in acting as proxy. Last time he was here he was with an eminent actress and I had been intrusted with no less than a dozen autograph albums. I received specific injunctions from the owner of each to get 'something characteristic,' and I turned the bunch over to my managerial friend. 'Here's where I make a hit!' he exclaimed enthusiastically, and, grabbing a pen, proceeded to inscribe an enigmatical 'sentiment' of his own manufacture in every volume. I remember one, which ran like this: 'Is not the expression of emotion merely the emotion of expression? Truly yours, Miss So-and-So.' The others were equally incoherent, but somehow they had a wise sound and the autograph chasers were perfectly delighted. 'So deep!' 'So thoughtful' were the comments they made as they studied the gibberish after the books were returned, and I am willing to bet they are still wrestling with the inner meaning of their prizes. The star herself has the reputation of being quite a student, and if she knew of the little joke that was perpetrated in her name I am inclined to believe she would get after her manager with a club."—N. O. Times-Democrat.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases of of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

WOMEN WHO EARN THEIR LIVING

MISS NANCIE SHOBE, Florence, Col., writes a letter to Mrs. Pinkham from which we quote:

"I had been in poor health for some time, my troubles having been brought on by standing, so my physician said, causing serious womb trouble. I had to give up my work. I was just a bundle of nerves and would have fainting spells at monthly periods. I doctored and took various medicines, but got no relief, and when I wrote to you I could not walk more than four blocks at a time. I followed your advice, taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Purifier in connection with the Vegetable Compound and began to gain in strength from the first. I am getting to be a stranger to pain and I owe it all to your medicine. There is none equal to it, for I have tried many others before using yours. Words cannot be said too strong in praise of it."

MISS POLLY FRAME, Meade, Kan., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I feel it my duty to write you in regard to what your medicine has done for me. I cannot praise it enough. Since my girlhood I had been troubled with irregular and painful periods and for nearly five years had suffered with falling of the womb, and whites. Also had ovarian trouble, the left ovary being so swollen and sore that I could not move without pain. Now, thanks to your wonderful medicine, that tired feeling is all gone, and I am healthy and strong."

Nervous People.

Nervous people not only suffer themselves but cause more or less misery to everyone around them. They are fretful, easily worried and therefore a worry to others.

When everything annoys you; when your pulse beats excessively; when you are startled at the least unexpected sound, your nerves are in a bad state and should be promptly attended to.

Nervousness is a question of nutrition. Food for the nerves is what you need to put you right, and the best nerve food in the world is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

They give strength and tone to every nerve in the body, and make despondent, easily irritated people feel that life has renewed its charms. Here is proof:

Miss Cora Watrous, the sixteen-year-old daughter of Mr. I. C. Watrous, of 61 Clarion St., Bradford, Pa., was seized with a nervous disorder which threatened to end her life. Eminent physicians agreed the trouble was from impoverished blood, but failed to give relief. Mr. Watrous heard Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People were highly recommended for nervous disorders, and gave them a trial. Before the first box had been taken the girl's condition improved. After using six boxes her appetite returned, the pain in her head ceased, and she was stronger than ever before. "My daughter's life was saved by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," said Mrs. Watrous. "Her condition was almost hopeless when she commenced taking them, but now she is strong and healthy. I cannot recommend these pills too highly."—Bradford (Pa.) Era.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, May 12, 1899.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—We understand that the primary teacher decided on by our Board of Education got another school; consequently a vacancy exists.

—Andrew Hanseman, Charley Plath and Joe and Troop Muckenheirn are working hard on a new barn for Troop on the old Cal. Stewart place.

—We are prepared to furnish 4th of July bills, as fine as anybody makes, at reasonable prices. Call and find out for yourselves. Cash must accompany order.

—C. R. Carlton, has torn down the old barn on the rear end of the property he lately purchased of Mrs. Dugan. He may build a more modern structure.

—This fine weather has brought out a few of our equestrians. They enjoy it, and for those that like it nothing seems more refreshing than a good horse back ride.

—Fred Brushaber, lately of Minneapolis, has sold out there and moved to Delano. He is building a nice residence on N. River street near that of his mother in law, Mrs. Weldelee.

—The M. E. Sunday School Board met at the church on Monday evening and held the annual election of officers and teachers. The school is in a flourishing condition. After the Board adjourned the Epworth League held an election of officers. The League is in good running order.

—Complaints are constantly being made by those living near several sloughs or low places filled with stagnant water in our village. The authorities should see that the water is drained off or the lots filled. They are unhealthy in their present condition.

—Unless the Philippine war is soon brought to a close it looks as if the people all over the United States would be in danger of fighting among themselves. Some of our citizens grow rather warm on the subject, some from one view some from another. It is rather a touchy question to talk on.

—S. J. Cooper, agent of the Standard Oil Co. here informs us that he has been instructed to report when he receives oil to Editor DeHaven, at Maple Lake, whose district has been made better paying by putting three districts in one. The hungry howlers for the Boss along this line should know that he had to make a trip to the capitol to accomplish this much desired object, in the interest of his organ, even if two other fellows did have to be left with their mouths open.

—Three new members of the Board of Education are to be elected soon. Don't be caught napping. The times of L. M. Maxfield and W. H. Frazee expire and as A. E. Johnson was chosen to fill a vacancy an election to serve out the ballance of the term has to be had. The way to get a goood board is to go and work and vote for good men. Don't stay at home and then complain that school matters are not properly run. Get out to the school meetings and help run them as you are entitled to, and ought to do. Women can vote; also talk.

—The village sprinkler has been turned over to Mr. McRoberts to run, and to collect what he can from those benefited by its use. It is a nice thing to have the streets sprinkled, and everybody within the limits of its use are benefited by having the dust kept down. But other towns let out the contract to the lowest bidder and the pay comes from the village treasury, this seems a more even distribution of the expense. People having a small lot or a small business ought not to be taxed the same as those owning more lots or doing a bigger business. This part of the business should be regulated in some way.

—At the meeting of the Board of Education, Saturday evening, Miss Beatty, of Mankato, was employed as primary teacher. Miss B. comes highly recommended, and it is hoped that she will give satisfaction. It is expected that our new corps of teachers will be an exemplary one, and that all our Delano scholars will make rapid advancement on the road to knowledge next term. Let all be ready to attend the first day and every day during the term. Hap hazzard going to school, like any other business attended to in the same manner, usually does but little good.

—The weather of May seems to suit the oldest, the newest, and even the wandering inhabitants of this section of country. It is indeed fine. Fields are as green, birds sing as joyfully as ever and all nature is doing her grandest to make man happy. But for his own quarrelsome, pugnacious disposition he might enjoy life as well as do the merry songsters of the sylvian groves. There is room enough on God's green footstool for all the people He sees fit to put on it without their destroying each other. While the bravest from some of our western states are thousands of miles from home shooting down people of another nation and destroying their property, God's breath has been blown about their homes and more people have been killed and wounded in a few minutes by cyclones than in some of the so-called battles in the Philippines. God moves in a mysterious way his wonders to perform; but he moves just the same.

—The present prospects for a great wheat yield are so good we presume it will soon begin to influence the price. An excuse will be given that so much is being raised that the elevators can't take care of it all, and cars enough to ship it can't be had. But Jim Hill is building the biggest elevator in the world at Superior, to hold his share. Why can't farmers take up the same plan, and build granaries enough to hold one crop safely? If all did, how soon the middle men, the shippers, and handlers would learn that they could pay a few cents more for wheat, and a very few cents on a bushel would pay many farmers in a little while for lumber even with Page Morris' $2 per thousand tariff on, to build granaries, and if good granaries were built farmers could run their wheat through fanning mills and make it a grade or two better and save dockage for dirt, and make quite good wages for rainy days or cold days in winter. Nothing like a little figuring even among farmers. That's the way Jim Hill and his kind make money. Why can't others?

Miss Vinnie Chance who has been attending school at Little Falls, came home Friday.

Miss Maud Sherry, who spent the winter in Southern California, arrived home Saturday morning.

Mrs. C. G. Halgren, of Watertown, drove over Saturday, to meet her mother who came from Washington.

Rev. M. Sava leaves June 5, for Southern Austria, to spend a few weeks with his aged mother who lives there.

Rev. Bryndleson, a former resident of Delano, now of Buffalo, preached in the Swedish Mission church here Sunday.

Mrs. Baltuff, of Minneapolis, who has been helping care for her daughter-in-law, who had diphtheria, returned home Wednesday morning.

C. G. Roosen who has visited along the Atlantic coast from New York to Washington, has returned home. His family is still at Montreal.

Charles Coolen, of Smith Lake, visited his numerous friends, and others, in Delano, over Sunday. Charley seems to like Delano, or a part of it, real well.

Mrs. Elizabeth Cunningham and her grand daughter, Miss Nellie, arrived Friday evening from Fair Haven, Washington. They will make their home at Watertown for awhile.

Misses Fuller and Ruth Pitt, of Rockford, came over to see Delano Friday afternoon. They didn't stay long as they had rented bicycles until 5 o'clock and wanted to be home by that time.

County Cullings.

Bro. Eaton says: "Who Declared War?". Bro. Satterlee replies: "Technically speaking there is no war."

Canada and the United States don't seem to come to terms on tariffs and such. Possible patriots Buckley and Satterlee could be induced to cross the line and give the Canadians a few lessons in "jack rabbit" shooting.

Editor Satterlee has something to say about Copperheads of '61. If he was anything then he must have been a Black Abolitionist and favored freeing the niggers, right or wrong, but freeing them. Why, then, does he now want to exterminate them, and even go across the Pacific to kill off the dark complected inhabitants of that country?

It is astonishing what a maw the Adyocate has. It swallows all the party pills and pellets put up, Alger, Embalmed beef, cowardly officers of Minnesota Regiments, baby 13th, copperhead parents who want their boys sent home when the war for which they enlisted is over, traitor patriots and statesmen who dare protest against our country expanding for the benefit of capitalists and at the cost of the public treasury and at the enforced sacrifice of so many of the United States best men. Surely so patriotic an editor as that, in the prime of life, should be heartily ashamed to read that only 100 men were enlisted in three of the largest towns of Minnesota and North Dakota last month to go to Manilla while he remains at home to do his expanding. If he is really so "patriotic" as he professes in putting down Philippinoes why don't he take the 8000 miles trip at Uncle Sam's expense, and practice what he preaches?

Glen E. Smith, of Co. I 13th Reg. in the Philippines, writes his parents at Howard Lake after the battle: "Most of the boys did chafe considerably at having to stay in the city; now we are ready to go home just as soon as they can spare us We have had our fight and fought well."

George Kurtz, of Delano and in Co. I, 13th writes the Eagle: "We have been through a hard battle and seen some real soldiering. We got what we have been prayin for a long time and we found that it was not as much fun as we expected." * * * "Just as we turned towards the right I got shot in the heel of my left shoe with a Remington ball. It raised me off my feet when it hit me and made me run a little faster. The bullets were coming pretty thick and I expected to go down any moment." George thinks they will have to remain there till things are more peaceful.

Will Steffes, of the same company, another Delano boy writes home: "We came upon the enemy at 5:30, or just at day break, and then the fun began, and for about two hours and a half there was some of the hottest fighting I ever want to see".

Bro. Saterlee, of the Advocate, says perhaps he might learn manners from the Filipinos, but continues: "We don't think, however, that we need to go to them to learn loyalty to the U. S. government which seems to be lacking in the editorial columns of the GAZETTE." Now if Bro. Satterlee really finds the columns of the GAZETTE lacking in loyalty to the U. S. he should point out the spots to his readers. He should not seek by slurs and inuendoes to make people believe a thing she can't prove. Our readers are too well posted on the patriotism of the GAZETTE to allow Mr. Satterlee to Advocate to them that the GAZETTE is behind any paper in the country in love of country, and liberty, freedom, and the institutions that go to make them and keep them.

Does Bro. S. think that he couldn't learn patriotism from the Filipinos who do their best to defend their homes, their native land, and who die in the ditch or are shot like "jack rabbits" as some of the correspondents put it? Did Bro. Satterlee's patriotism ever get up to a point like that? His patriotism seems to be of a tamer kind. The kind that advocates the other fellow staying out in the jungles an getting all the glory, while he "insults their friends by calling them copperheads. We would suggest that there is a recruiting office in Minneapolis; if Bro. Satterlee is so patriotic, possibly he could get a position.

Among Our Exchanges.

John Nugent the best sheriff in Minnesota, was in our village on Monday. —Maple Lake Messenger.

Editor Schmidt, of Waverly last week got into a fight with Barney McGuire and is said to have won a victory, otherwise "licked" him. McGuire is a bad man and a warrant for his arrest on some charge has been an heirloom in the sheriff's office for some years, having been handed down with the office and the failure to serve it has been used a good deal in politics.—Howard Lake Herald.

Our editors will find one of the best things extant on imperialism, is the speech of Congressman John F. Shafroth, Denver, Colorado, delivered last June in Congress. Though only then discussing Hawaii it foreshadowed the McKinley policy resulting in the Philippine war, which it discussed from three standpoints, political, commercial and military. Send for it.—Democratic Press Bulletin.

Fairday Notes.

Saturday was a fine day and the crowd in to the fair a large, and part of it a noisy one.

Allen Jenkins, of Greenwood, and son James were over to the fair. Mr. J. who was away for treatment has been at home since February. He was up to the fair "getting shaved."

George Washington, of Independence viewed the crowd. He informed us that: "Me and John McGary, two of the most prominent men in Hennepin have been drawn on the jury, and have to go to court next Monday." His son Willie accompanied him to Delano.

C. C. Hohl, John Walker and D. R. Farnham of Rockford were noticed. Mr. Hohl says his vineyard like himself is growing old. But Mr. H. looks as spry as he did ten years ago, and we expect the vineyard is the same. Supervisor Walker was buying calves to stock his farm. He believes in getting the best and said for $10 he had secured one nice little fellow. D. R. Farnham's taste ran to swine, and he had about half a dozen fine specimens he had secured by a liberal distribution of 16 to 1 dollars. Those Rockford folks knows what pays.

Franklin was well represented. There was Conrad Marth, who don't believe "The United States will take Germany next after they have taken the Philippines" even if a prominent Republican did tell him that they would. John Plattner, Herman Otto and other reading Germans thought expansion a poor business for the United States.

Constable Gotlieb Eppler, of Howard Lake, was heard to remark that "Delano is a tough place". We don't blame him for thinking so last fair day. There were people here from Howerd Lake, Minneapolis, Montrose, Loretto, and other places that agreed with him. Some of them contributed to the village exchequer small fines, some of them should have done so, as for Gotlieb we believe he acted as well as if he had been at home.

Traumatic Epistaxis became epedemic at the Delano Fair, along in the latter part of the day. Unless less exciting drinks are furnished there should be a police force large enough to preserve order, and the force should be instructed to see that the dispensers of drinks did not sell to those who already had all the law allows them. Fair days are all right but the drunkenness is all wrong and should be kept within meats and bounds.

Our big booted farmer from Franklin, the next County commissioner from the 3d Dist. was in fair day doing a little shopping.

THE delights of an evening spent around a well-lighted reading table are not half understood. An illustrated magazine with its wealth of illustrations, its stories of adventure and love, its descriptions of travel which carry you to the remotest ends of the earth, and its instructive articles for young and old—these are the first requisites for your own enjoyment and the entertainment and proper education of your children.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal,

Both Together One Year for Only $1.80

In this way you secure your own home paper and an illustrated magazine at a price that is only about a fourth of what some of the illustrated magazines sell for. For three years The Cosmopolitan has undisputedly claimed that it reached the largest clientele possessed by any periodical, daily, weekly or monthly, in the world. It was The Cosmopolitan which sent Julian Hawthorne to India to let the world know the real horrors of famine and plague. It was The Cosmopolitan which established at its own cost a great Free Correspondence University which now has over 20,000 students on its rolls. It was The Cosmopolitan which offered a prize of $1,000 for the best horseless carriage and prizes for best plans for public baths, and best arrangement of sewer and pipe systems for cities. It was The Cosmopolitan which set the presidents of great schools and universities seriously discussing the defects of existing educational systems. It is The Cosmopolitan whose enterprise is always in the lead in advancing the world's civilization.

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

THE COUNTY LINE has reached No. 1 Vol. IV. The present owner, Jeffrey Legh Chapman has been editor for a year. He gets out a live paper.

THE Eagle wants the 13th Reg. to have a sham battle for the amusement of the crowd at a place near the twin cities on the 4th of July. If the expansionist head of the Eagle will agree to play "jack rabbit" we will try to be there to see it.

THE surest way for the administration to have convinced the volunteers and their friends that they wished to keep faith with the people of this country or any other would have been to have sent the volunteers home when their time was out.

Hard Pushed.

One of the "Embalmed Beef" organs says:

"There is a concerted movement in the East and in some portions of the South to formulate a sentiment against the nomination of Bryan next year. The argument used is that it is not good politics to put forward a defeated candidate on the same platform that went down with him."

Yes, that is what the same organs said last year about Lind, but it didn't work. Colonel Bryan is the strongest and best man that can be nominated. In fact, any nomination at the dictation of the gold bugs would mean another term of "Embalmed Beef" and political servility to the combines and trusts under Mark Hanna and Steve Elkins.—Waseca Herald.

Truthful Fellows, Eh?

Every issue of the republican papers since the first of January have proclaimed the "great prosperity which everywhere (as they say) prevails in Minnesota." Prices of labor and of all manufactured goods, they say, have advanced, "and no man who is willing to work is idle."

Now, just think of this grand picture, (not wholly true, perhaps) and then turn to what these same fellows said last fall, the week before election. They then published the following:

"The business men of St. Paul have united in a public protest against the election of John Lind on the ground that such result, as in Kansas and other western states where free silverites have been elected, would prove detrimental to the prosperity of the state. The election of a populist governor of Minnesota would do more to destroy the credit of Minnesota than the total failure of the wheat crop for a year; the classifying of Minnesota as a populist state would turn more immigration from Minnesota than an epidemic of smallpox or a visitation of grasshoppers. These are no political arguments; they are plain statements of fact, addressed to the business men and citizens whose associations have been with the Democratic party. Certainly, this is the case with Kansas and Nebraska as the result of populist rule. Why should it not be with Minnesota?

And yet these defamers, the very day after John Lind was elected, crawled into their holes and commenced to claim that "McKinleyism" had flooded the state with prosperity."

Such falsehoods! ! !—Waseca Herald.

"I don't believe the people in the United States understand the inhuman warfare now being carried on."

"I don't expect to have war without death and destruction, but I do expect that when an enemy goes down on his knees and begs for his life that he won't be shot in cold blood. But it is a fact that the order was not to take any prisoner, and I have seen enough to make me ashamed to call myself an American."—Our Dumb Animals.

Health Officer's Report, 1899.

To the President, Trustees, and Recorder of the Village of Delano, Wright county, Minn.

Gentlemen: Your Health Officer most respectfully makes the following report and suggestions on the sanitary condition of our village:

The village, during the year past, has been comparatively free from epidemic diseases. In September last a corpse, securely sealed, was shipped here from near Walker Minn. Diphtheria was suspected and the State board of Health notified. The sealed coffin having been opened and the corps buried, the coroner was summoned and a post mortem held. Every specimen taken from the throat and nose of the dead boy, examined at the state laboratory showed diphtheria baccali.

In October the Haynes family who had contracted the disease from relatives from Minneapolis, was quarantined.

Nov. 27, John Kuka returned from Montana with one child, having lost two with diphtheria while on a visit there. He was visited and the case enquired into.

Janurary, '99, measles broke out at Gunn's, caught at Montrose.

In May, '99 Mrs. Baltuff had diphtheria; house was quarantined. On report from State Laboratory of no diphtheria baccali quarantine was raised.

Notwithstanding these several opportunities for a spread of diseases none occurred. In every instance the disease being confined to the house in which it made its appearance.

Last Saturday I made the usual annual inspection of the village and found it in better condition as to cleanliness than is usual at this time of year. Each year farmers learn more and more of the benefits to be derived from fertilizing their farms, and manure is hauled away from our alleys much more cleanly than before. Yet several alleys need cleaning more thoroughly and draining, so they may be kept in good condition for travel and more conducive to health.

In my rounds I found but few hogs and they were neatly kept. This is an improvement over the old time unsightly and odorous and unhealthy hog pen of a few years ago.

I think the worst source of disease is the emptying of slops, decayed vegetables and fruits and spoiled meats and fish and similar objectionable articles into alleys or streets or along the river bank. These should be removed from the village.

Some low lots between 3d and 4th streets on N. R R. Ave. should be filled; they are a nuisance.

I would recommend that the lots above mentioned be ordered filled.

That alleys from River to 4th streets N. of R. R. Ave. be cleaned and drained.

That provision for carrying slops and refuse matter from the village, at least during warm weather, be made.

Submitted in the interests of the good health of the village.

DELANO, May 15, 1899.

T. J. CATLIN, M. D., H. O.

The above report was read and accepted at the council meeting held May 15, 1899.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 12 1899.

An extra session of Congress will be called early in the fall, if public opinion does not object sufficiently to frighten Mr. McKinley out of issuing the call. That is the only reason it has not been officially announced. It has been decided upon, but Mr. McKinley wished to appear to follow a public demand, so the announcement was deferred until his friends, who are now talking extra session in every direction, could try to work up the public demand.

Ex-Senator Quay is using the speakership contest to make votes for his admission to the Senate on the appointment of the Gov. of Pennsylvania. That is why the Pennsylvania delegation is unpledged, and why there is talk of putting in a dummy Pennsylvania candidate for Speaker, who the delegation can pretend to support until Quay orders them to vote for one of the other candidates.

Senator Stewart was asked whether he favored an extra session of Congress in September. "No, certainly not," he replied; "nothing would be gained by it that would be useful. It would simply mean three or four months of talk before they got down to business, instead of three or four weeks, which invariably follows the assembling of the first session of a new Congress."

Great efforts are being made to have the Navy Department join in trying to persuade Admiral Dewey to come home by way of San Francisco, instead of by way of New York. A railway company has offered to furnish him without cost the finest special train that ever crossed the continent, to bring him from San Francisco to Washington. The republican politicians are not disposed to help along this idea at all. They are afraid of Dewey as it is, and they don't know what might happen if he was made the hero of a series of popular ovations in every town between San Francisco and Washington. They would much prefer his coming to New York, trusting the rest to his modesty.

Representative Payne, of N. Y., seems likely to fare badly in the speakership fight. Senator Platt has promised to force him to withdraw as a candidate for speaker, in favor of Sherman, and it is understood that Henderson and Hopkins, the two leading Western candidates, have made a deal whereby their strength will be combined to nominate the strongest of the two, and the one who fails to get the speakership shall be made Chairman of the Ways and Means committee and floor leader of the republicans, a position to which Payne was advanced after the death of Mr. Dingley and which he would like to keep, if he can't get the speakership. Should Sherman win the chances are that he would have to promise the chairmanship of the committee on Ways and Means to some other state. So it looks as though Payne was bound to lose no matter who wins.

The Robert E. Lee Monument Association was organized in Washington this week for the purpose of erecting an equestrian statue of Gen. Lee upon a site overlooking Arlington, the old Lee homestead. The site has been donated to the association, and prominent Southern women will undertake the task of securing the money to pay for the statue.

It seems that one of the ways in which our new possessions are to be Americanized is to allow them to be overflowed by Chinese coolies. The order issued several weeks ago, extending the laws and regulations governing immigration to the U. S to all territory under military control, was taken to mean that Chinese coolies would be excluded from Porto Rico, Cuba and the Philippines, but that didn't suit those who are interested in filling those islands with Chinese and they had pull enough with the powers that be to get an official order issued by the War Department saying that the extension order issued did not include that excluding the Chinese.

The gall of the beef contractors is second only to that of Secretary Alger. It might have been supposed that they would have been more than satisfied to be exonerated from all blame for the bad beef, which the report of the Court of Inquiry admits was furnished the soldiers—the report declaring that the beef was all good when it left the hands of the contractors agents—but they are not; they are actually demanding the punishment of Gen. Miles, because he dared, in the interest of the men in the army, to say that the beef was unfit to eat. They are citing the action of the comanittee of the German Reichstag which favored a bill discriminating against American meats as proof of the injury done their business by the charges of Gen. Miles. Alger would gladly have Miles punished, but Mr. McKinley will hardly consent. He fears that Congress will tackle the beef question anyway, but hopes that a Congressional investigation may be escaped by allowing the matter to stand just where it was left by the report of the Court of Inquiry. If the talk of several indignant Senators and Representatives counts for anything, the matter will be heard from in Congress.

Brown Bess

"I WISH I could sell Brown Bess," said Susy Ross, rinsing the dishes she had just washed.

"Oh, Susy!" cried her brother.

"What in the world do you want to sell Brown Bess for?" her mother asked, looking up from the dough she was kneading.

"I could go to the academy, mother, for two more terms," was the answer. "Then, perhaps I could—get the school at the Corners."

"Nonsense, Susy. I need you to help me," her mother said. "Keeping school is a thankless business."

"It's money," said Susy, "and I do long to help myself, and you, too. Money will do everything that needs to be done."

"Yes, that's a fact," spoke up Tom, "and there's lots wants to be done. I'd like to clear that five-acre lot for potatoes and corn, but I can't do it."

"And the house wants shingling," her mother said, plaintively, her careworn countenance taking on another shadow.

"The front door's got a crack all the way across," Tom spoke up again, "and there ought to be a fireplace in granny's room. Then there's the barn; it's all we can do to keep the hay dry."

"I know all that," said Susy. "I know the house is getting to be a scarecrow, and the barn is worse, and that's why I want to be earning. As for the shingles, I should think you could put them on yourself, Tom; yes, and mend the roof."

"Where's the shingles?" Tom asked, in his matter-of-fact way. "Where's the nails? Where's the hammer? The old one is broken past mending. And where's the money to get them with, I should like to know?"

"Sure enough," said Susy, "unless I could earn it. That's why I want to sell Brown Bess."

"And if you do sell her you won't get much," Tom said. "She's so full of her tricks—the craziest colt I ever saw."

"I'm more and more afraid to have you ride her," her mother said. "But if you should sell her, there's the mortgage to be paid in October."

"If I sell her," said Susy, quietly, "it will be to finish my education."

"That's always your cry," her mother went on, in plaintive tones; "no matter what's needed; but I s'pose we must give in. Bad as the roof is, it shelters us. What would we do without a house over our heads?"

"I'd sell the cow, too," put in Tom.

"And then grandma would just about starve," the mother supplemented.

Susy turned away from the table, angry and grieved, but she said nothing, only ran upstairs to her own room.

After helping her mother about the house she donned her sunbonnet and ran into the barn. Tom was rubbing down Brown Bess, whose bright, glossy coat shone like satin.

"Much as I can do to take care of her," said Tom. "She wants a regular groom who would break her of her nasty little tricks. See how she throws her head up, and look at her eyes flashing fire. Are you going to the store? Mother wants sugar and molasses and vinegar—and I've got to go in the field."

"Yes, I'm going," said Susy, "though I dread it, the bill is so large. If I sell Brown Bess that's the first thing I'll pay."

"That and the mortgage," said Tom. "Well, I'll saddle old Dick."

Susy mounted to the back of the slow old cart horse with gloomy forebodings. It was a warm September day. Even in the midst of her anxiety the beauty of the ride to Hillston soothed and delighted her. Every detail of the way was familiar to her, yet when she came to Silver Ledge falls and saw the white spray leaping over granite rocks and dancing among tiny islands she stopped old Dick and sat enjoying the scene as if she had never beheld it before.

"Good morning," a voice said behind her.

"Oh, Charlie!" she exclaimed, with a start, "I didn't hear you coming."

"No? The falls are so loud. I saw you at the bend and followed. Going to town?"

"Yes, Charlie," she made reply, and in spite of herself her voice held a curious tremor.

"You're worried over something," he said, the keen lover's eyes noting the shadows.

"Yes, Charlie, a little—the same old trouble. I want to set things to rights—and—it's hard work," she said, in a low voice.

"I knew it. Why won't you leave all these matters and come with me? The house is waiting for you—and so am I. Susy, darling, make up your mind."

He held out his hand, a look of unutterable love making his rugged face beautiful.

"If father had only lived," she said. "But you know it is impossible now, Charlie. I can't leave mother—not yet—and I must finish the course at the B—— academy, and keep school at least a year before I get things straightened out."

He gave a long, low whistle, then urged on his horse, but stopped again till Susy came up with him.

"You know I'll wait for you, Susy, as long as you say, but it's rather hard on me, as I'm forehanded and ready to marry. Susy, come, make up your mind. My house is a large one. I'll take your mother and granny. Tom can run the old farm, and—"

"What! Let you support me and the family, too? Never!" and her eyes flashed. "I would never permit it."

"Well, Susy, I've declared my willingness to help you, if only you would let me," said Charlie, "but, since you won't, don't look so sad and worried, my darling. It's worth serving and saving for seven years if I can only win you at last for my wife."

"Oh, Charlie!" she said, brokenly, "your love is priceless. Only be patient."

"I'll try, and keep on hoping," he said, and they parted at the store.

The grocer met her with a smile. Everybody liked Susy. No girl more genial than she under ordinary circumstances, but to-day her face was clouded, her manner preoccupied.

"Mr. Lee, I have made up my mind to sell Brown Bess," she said, after getting the things she needed. "Do you know anybody that wants a horse?"

"Dear me! Going to sell Brown Bess! Well, I was thinking of buying a young horse for my Alice. Is she safe for a girl of ten, do you think?" the grocer asked.

Susy grew pale. She had not anticipated a question of that sore, but she answered, after a moment's indecision:

"She is fond of taking her own head sometimes. No, Mr. Lee, if I find it hard to manage her, she would never do for your little girl."

"Ah, I'm sorry for that, Miss Susy," said the storekeeper. "But I know a man who wants a spirited horse. What would you sell her for?"

"I leave that to the purchaser," Susy made answer. "Papa paid $75 for her more than a year ago, and I wouldn't want to take less than that, for I need the money very much," she went on, "and if you will be so kind as to take an interest in the matter—" She stopped, her eyes wistful.

"Why, of course I will," the grocer responded. "I'll send my boy to your house with the groceries, and he can bring the horse back with him. If anything is done in the way of a sale I'll let you know at once."

Susy thanked him and went on her way home. As she came in sight of the house, an old-fashioned, two-story building, where dilapidation was rendered picturesque by a profuse growth of ivy that covered the front porch and much of the exterior walls, she felt more comfortable as she thought over her prospects. In imagination she had her mother quite reconciled to all her plans, her school life assured and all things going on swimmingly. For who knew but Brown Bess might bring her $100, she was so spirited and handsome?

Work and home seemed brighter. The grocer's boy came for the horse, and though it was hard parting with the pretty creature, Susy, in expectation of results, bore the separation bravely.

"Can't we take a little of the money you get to shingle the roof?" her mother asked as the horse was led away.

"I hope so," Susy replied blithely.

"And you still think of going to school? Ain't you too old?"

"I'm not 18 yet," was Susy's answer. "Many girls go to school till they are 20."

"And there's clothes, to think of, dresses and bonnets and shoes."

"Oh, they'll be provided," Susy said, with a little laugh.

"An' winter's comin'—an' it's two or three miles to the 'cademy," her mother went on, each time throwing a more plaintive cadence into her voice. "Tom's clothes are terribly patched, an' mother needs flannels. I ain't so young as I was once, but I ain't sayin' anything about myself, on'y it's kind o' hard to spare you," and the lines in her mother's weak face deepened.

"Mother, I wish you could see it as I do. I must go to the academy," Susy made reply. "It's the opportunity of my life. But I tell you what I will do. If I get $100 for Brown Bess I'll divide even. Fifty dollars would go a long way, wouldn't it?"

"Well, yes, $50 would get everything we need," was the reply. "But you're never goin' to get $100. You'll be more than lucky if you get $50.

"Well, mother," said Susy, desperately, "if I only get $50, I'll divide even. It will be $30 coming in every month if I only get the school."

"I don't see's there's any chance of that," said her mother, with a woe-begone face.

Day after day Susy waited, but no word came about Brown Bess. Tom declared that he believed there was no prospect of selling her, but one day Charlie Grant drove up to the house, his face fairly beaming.

"I thought I'd bring you the news," he said, as he came in the bright living-room.

"Have they sold Brown Bess?" Susy asked, her voice trembling in her excitement to hear.

"Well, yes—that is, if you'll take the price they offer," Charlie made answer.

"Oh, I hope it's a hundred," said Susy.

"A hundred!" laughed Charlie. "Is that what you value her at? Lucky for you that I was in at the bargain. That horse will be worth thousands of dollars before long. The man who bought her trains horses for the race course. He has discovered remarkable qualities in Brown Bess as a trotter, and is willing to give you $1,000 for her."

A thousand dollars! Susy stood for a moment like a statue; then she flew into the kitchen, where her mother was making the daily batch of bread, exclaiming:

"A thousand dollars, mother! we're rich! Brown Bess is sold for a thousand dollars! You won't have to work hard this winter. Tom can get two suits of clothes if he wants them, and buy the five-acre lot. Grandma can have all the fire she needs; the roof shall be shingled, the mortgage paid off and—and—"

"What am I to have?" Charlie asked, as she stopped, out of breath, he having followed her into the kitchen.

She turned round, and, blushing beautifully, held out her hands. He clasped them both and drew her to his bosom.

"What do you think of this, mother?" he asked of the glad-hearted woman at the bread pan. "Susy is to be my wife."

"Why, I think it's a good deal better than keeping school," she said.—Waverly.

Inherited Imperialism.

It is queer that our Delano imperialist, the man of English sympathy and Anglo Saxon ancestry picks Benedict Arnold out to fling at our heads. If he wants to practice imperialistic mud slinging why not take Sitting Bull or some other fellow and sling him along? Arnold, in the war of independence an American officer with British sympathies was bought with British money; found out he fled and our Anglo Saxon cousins put him at the head of a column to fight against our independence from British supremacy. As we warn people constantly to mistrust our dear cousins, as we proved by their acts in the war of sesession their real feeling, it is too ridiculous to compare us with that fellow. We let therefore the golden opportunities slip to compare the acts of the founders of this republic with those of our present rulers.

That a farmer railsplitter can be president and as such turn out to be one of the greatest men of the century, that signifies the rule of the masses.

In the silly prejudice of ancestry, silly because it is no man's merit or fault because he is an Anglo Saxon or a Cossack rests the whole structure of imperialism, the rule of the classes: in England aristocracy and plutocracy mixed, on the continent aristocracy undiluted.

The ancestors of this aristocracy, highwaymen who took by brutal force from the weak, property and liberty and called that the right of conquest the same as our imperialists.—They put now over that relic of barbarism a coat of varnish, consisting of humanity, charitianity and civilization, but rub the imperialist a little, the varnish comes off and the jack rabbit hunter of the Philippines appears. It is sacriligious mockery of christianism to kill human beings who plead to be independent, the same as it is unvarnished barbarism to lynch negroes.

Our boys enlisted on a presidential proclamation declaring that agression was a crime, for the purpose to drive Spain from American soil as punishment for treachery and brutality. That is done. We are not imperialists. We believe there is neither glory nor profit in this war of aggression. We claim that all the volunteers have to do not like to partake in it should be discharged.

This talk about treason is so far interesting, as it shows how the hare runs, what we have to expect if the imperialists get the upper hand.

That is to be decided at the next elections, if the American flag, which is now carried in the track of imperialism for the money power, shall be raised again as the emblem of the people's rule, a menace to imperialism and a star of hope to all downtrodden people on the earth.

Havana is reported to be free from yellow fever, an unusual circumstance at this season. The work of sanitation going on promises to have immediate results.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat, in commenting upon experiments with liquid air as an explosive, remarks that "it will be a cold day for somebody when battles are decided by a liquid registering 600 degrees below zero."

Probably it will be idle to expect a very early settlement of the questions growing out of the late Spanish war. It has not yet been definitely determined whether the British or the Americans fired the first shot at Yorktown.

When an American starts out for anything, he usually gets it. A copy of "The Troublesome Raigne of John," dated 1591, and supposed to have been written by Shakespeare, was sold at an auction in London recently. An American millionaire wanted it, as there are but two copies in existence, and it finally went to him on a bid of $2,500.

The sultan of Turkey authorized our American minister at Constantinople to cable President McKinley Turkey's promise to pay the $100,000 damages due for the destruction of the property of American missionaries during the Armenian massacres. Perhaps the "sick man of Europe" heard that the cruiser Chicago would soon visit Turkish ports.

Bishop Turner, the most prominent figure in the colored church in the south, stated during a recent sermon at Athens, Ga., that the present condition of the negro in the south is unendurable, and that he would much rather see his people again in slavery. He stated that it is his opinion that the question will never be settled until the negro obeys God's manifest will and returns to Africa.

The New York Tribune finds a recent theater play to be a "rigmarole of puerile nonsense, interspersed with songs, dances, horseplay and scenic pictures, formless, brainless, tending nowhere and meaning nothing—unless, indeed, it means to show the depth of vacuity to which the human mind can descend, and what a concourse of admiring idiots it can find at the bottom of the declivity."

The Seattle papers are publishing letters from Washington volunteers which tell of the great luck of the men in that regiment in finding hidden money left by the fleeing Filipinos. One man writes that the members of companies D, L and K dug up $80,000 in the towns of Pasig and Paternos. One private dug up $4,200 in Spanish and English gold, and Mexican silver. Such mining pays good dividends.

The cunning of the natural criminal is nothing short of wonderful. It has been discovered that the gang of convicts in the Colorado state penitentiary have been making counterfeit money in their cells, and have been putting it into circulation through some unknown means. One cannot help but admire the wonderful skill and cunning shown, and to lament that such men do not turn their powers to a better purpose.

The Salvation Army is trying to keep pace with progress. The organization has equipped a bicycle band of 20 pieces in New York city, and Adjt. Anderson in speaking of the idea says: "We recognize the fact that the bicycle has taken a firm hold upon the people, and that it keeps thousands away from church on Sunday. The only way to keep near them is to utilize the bicycle and keep abreast of them, as well as abreast of the times, and that is what we are going to do."

The new destructive weapons of war do not seem to do much destroying after all. We are told of savagely-fought battles in which maxim and gatling guns are used, of tremendous bombardments, of desperate storms of shot hurled against the enemy, and then read that the loss of life on the part of the foe aggregates from 30 to 50 men. And the old-fashioned cyclone goes on its way and mows down hundreds in its path in a few seconds, to say nothing of wiping two or three towns off the face of the earth at the same time.

The exodus of the Cherokee, Creek and Delaware Indians from Indian territory to Mexico is about concluded, and it is said that between 8,000 and 10,000 members of these tribes have taken advantage of the opportunity of seeking new homes. Whether or not the red men have jumped from the frying pan into the fire remains to be seen. Their reason for going is that they have been crowded out of their old haunts, but if Mexico is as rich and promising as we are told it will be only a short time before the Indians will be crowded out once more.

A London dispatch says that at the burning of the Finsburg hotel a man, finding the stairs in flames, jumped from the third-story window and fell on the pavement 60 feet below, but to the surprise of the spectators, who had expected to see the man terribly mangled, he rose and without assistance walked to the hospital. He was injured internally, but would probably live. Wonder if that Mole St. Nicholas correspondent, who used to hear "the thunder of cannonading to the northward," about every five minutes during war with Spain, is located in London?

TO CONTINUE WAR.

Filipino Congress Rejects American Peace Overtures.

Aguinaldo So Notifies the Junta at London — Independence Their Only Aim—Aguinaldo Said to Have Fled.

London, May 16.—The Filipino junta here has received the following message from Aguinaldo, cabled from Hong-Kong under date of May 12:

"The Filipino government, in accordance with the general feeling of the country, has decided to continue the war at all costs until independence is secured.

"The Filipinos energetically refuse the American peace overtures, based on restricted autonomy coupled with promises of subsequent self-government.

"The Filipinos demand a strict fulfillment of the articles of the American constitution and treaties contracted by the American representatives when imploring a Filipino alliance in combating the Spaniards.

"All the Filipino generals support Aguinaldo. Gen. Luna's reported overtures for peace are untrue. Our army is near Manila, simultaneously attacking the whole American line.

"The heat and rains are causing many casualties in the American army. All the hospitals are crowded with sick and wounded. Four hundred of the Cincinnati regiment have been imprisoned by Gen. Otis for insubordination in refusing to fight. The regular troops quartered in Manilla and other towns are quiet. The volunteers are abused and are always at the front, with scanty rations.

"The discontent between the Americans and Europeans is general."

Aguinaldo a Fugitive.

New York, May 16.—A dispatch to the Herald from San Miguel, via Manila, says: It is said that Aguinaldo has fled into the province of Neuva Ecija. On April 29 he retreated by carriage from Balinag through San Isidro, and nothing has been heard from him in the two weeks since. The 5,000 Spanish prisoners who are reported to be held by the insurgents have been carried into a northern province and scattered among small garrisons. They are beyond American succor this season unless a Filipino surrender takes place within three weeks. Five American prisoners were carried through this town last week. Their names are unknown.

Lawton's Advance.

Manila, May 16. — The New York Journal correspondent cables: Gen. Lawton's brigade advanced northward Monday morning and captured Ildefonso without resistance. After posting a guard at the town Gen. Lawton pushed on to San Miguel. The scouts in advance of Gen. Lawton's column were surprised as they approached the city by a fire opened upon them at a range of about 500 yards. Chief of Scouts Young and two privates were seriously wounded. The Minnesota regiment reenforced the scouts and charged the trenches, from which the Filipinos were firing, killing two captains and three lieutenants and wounding 27 of the enemy. The Filipinos retreated before the charging Americans, and Gen. Lawton occupied the city. In San Miguel were found 600 insurgents. Their arms had been secreted.

Pilar Ready to Surrender.

At the Front with Lawton's Column, San Miguel, May 14, via Manila, May 16. —The insurgent Gen. Gregorio del Pilar believes that he has been deserted by the Filipino government, and desires to surrender if he can secure what he regards as honorable terms from the Americans.

DEWEY WILL BE THERE.

Word Received That the Admiral Will Attend "Chicago Day" Ceremonies in Chicago October 9.

Chicago, May 16.—The committee in charge of the Chicago post office corner stone ceremonies has received word from Senator A. J. Beveridge, of Indiana, who is now at Hong-Kong, and to whom the committee had intrusted a special invitation to Admiral Dewey, announcing that the admiral would be here for "Chicago day," October 9. It was also announced that President Diaz, of Mexico, and Lord Minto, governor-general of Canada, would surely be present simultaneously with President McKinley.

New York, May 16.—The Herald says: That New York's welcome to Dewey is to be conducted on a grand scale was shown Monday when the joint committee from the board of aldermen and council decided to call on the municipal assembly to authorize an appropriation of $150,000 for the city's part in the ceremonies. Mayor Van Wyck heartily approves of such an appropriation.

Tragedy at Howard City, Mich.

Howard City, Mich., May 12.—Joe Harvey, 30 years old, employed at the sideboard factory, Wednesday night killed his wife, uncle and grandmother, attempted to kill his baby, wounded his father-in-law, shot at his sister-in-law and a teacher named Miss LaBar, and finally tried to kill himself. Harvey lived with his uncle and grandmother, who had brought him up from childhood, their home being one mile north of town. The uncle's name was Robert Pierson, and Harvey's grandmother was 70 years old. There was no witnesses to the tragedy, which took place after Harvey returned home at seven o'clock. The aged woman was stabbed and the uncle shot, but Harvey claims he killed his uncle because the latter in a quarrel murdered his grandmother.

May Sell Liquor on Sunday.

Washington, May 13.—Judge Kimball, of the police court here, decided Friday that the sale of liquors on Sunday in Washington hotels was legal under the act of 1893. Congress at its recent session enacted a law prohibiting the sale of liquor on Sundays by makers, brewers, distillers or their agents, "or other persons or corporations," and a test case was brought, it being contended that the recent act repealed the law of 1893, which permitted the sale of liquors by hotels under certain conditions. Judge Kimball decided that the act of 1893, as it related to the sale of liquors in hotels on Sundays, was not repealed by the recent act.

Mrs. Crosby Guilty.

Chicago, May 15.—Mrs. Marjorie Helen Crosby, 66 years of age, charged with the murder of Deputy Sheriff Frank E. Nye on December 22, 1898, was found guilty of manslaughter by a jury in Judge Waterman's court and sentenced to one year in the penitentiary. Thomas George Crosby, her 14-year-old foster son, jointly indicted with Mrs. Crosby, and who actually fired the fatal shot, was found not guilty

CONFEDERATE VETERANS.

Gen. Wheeler Makes a Stirring Speech—Old Officers Reelected and Resolutions Adopted.

Charleston, S. C., May 12.—The morning session of the Confederate Veterans' union opened at 11 o'clock with the singing of the doxology, followed by prayer by Chaplain Smith.

The committees on credentials and resolutions were appointed, one member being selected by each state.

A resolution was referred also which declares ex-confederates will aid the government in marking battlefields of the war of the rebellion with suitable memorials in honor of the prowess of American soldiers without regard to section. The resolution also expresses joy that the "sectional discord of other days is ended, and that we are a reunited people, with one country and one flag."

Gen. Gordon then introduced Gen. Joe Wheeler.

The audience went wild with applause, and there were shouts of

GEN. JOHN B. GORDON.

"Wheeler" and "Joe" from all parts of the hall. Every sentence of his speech brought shouts of applause, and he stirred the veterans to a frenzy of enthusiasm. At times it was impossible fgr him to proceed. He spoke strongly in favor of expansion.

"Gen. Wheeler touched upon the question of expansion by declaring that southern soldiers and southern statesmen had ever taken a prominent part in all the movements looking to the enlargement of our territory, and continued:

"The position in which the American people find themselves to-day was not sought by them, but is the logical result of conditions thrust upon the country by a course of events beyond our control. We stand before the gaze of civilization confronted by grave responsibilities. The supreme test of American institutions is involved, and the American system of government is on trial.

"To return to the starting point of a year ago would be to lose what it would take a century to regain. In answer to those who say that the policy of our forefathers forbade the extension of territory I would point to Jefferson and the Louisiana purchase, Monroe and Florida, Polk and Texas and the vast territory acquired from Mexico, and later to Andrew Johnson and the acquisition of Alaska.

"If there be any who contend that we should not permit the island of Cuba to become a part of the United States and its people, if they desire it, to enjoy all the rights of American citizenship, I have only to point to the official declarations of our great statesmen, commencing with Thomas Jefferson and running through almost the entire period of the first half of this century. During all that period our honored statesmen and presidents, from Jefferson to Buchanan, laid down in their messages and state documents the imperative necessity of making the Pearl of the Antilles a part of the United States."

The memorial to Winnie Davis was one of the features of the session. Col. Bennett H. Young, of Louisville, paid a tribute to the memory of the "Daughter of the Confederacy." A resolution was unanimously adopted extending the thanks of every veteran to the people of the north who so tenderly administered to Winnie Davis at the time of her illness at Narragansett Pier.

Charleston, S. C., May 13.—With a spirited and at times stormy session the ninth annual reunion of the United Confederate Veterans was, on Friday, brought to a close. Gen. J. B. Gordon, commander-in-chief, and all the old officers were reelected. Louisville, Ky., was chosen as the next place of meeting, and the question of federal care of confederate graves was disposed of by the adoption of a substitute resolution which declines the president's suggestion, except as to those graves located in the north, and reserving to the women of the south the duty of caring for those in the seceding states and Maryland.

TIE-UP IS COMPLETE.

The "Monthly" Men at the Buffalo Elevators Strike—The Situation Is Most Grave.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 16.—The dock situation is worse than at any time since the opening of the season. The monthly men, the men who work inside of the elevators, are out and have agreed to remain out until the grain shovelers' and the freight handlers' strikes are settled. To-day every elevator here will be idle unless new men can be secured to take the places of the monthly men, which is said to be impossible, owing to the fact that it requires considerable experience in operating the machinery of the elevators. Bishop Quigley and the leaders of the grain shovelers held a conference that lasted until nine o'clock Monday night. The grain shovelers claimed that Mr. Connors had violated all the essential provisions of the agreement that the Lake Carriers' association had made with the union. The bishop summoned many witnesses before him.

Call for a Convention.

Chicago, May 12.—The Civic Federation of Chicago has selected June 26 to 29, inclusive, as the dates for a national conference in Chicago to discuss trusts. The call for the gathering states that its purpose is "to consider the subject of trusts in their relation to economic conditions generally." The discussion will embrace all subjects of industrial, commercial, labor and transportation combinations, their uses and abuses. The big industrial combinations of the country will be invited to send representatives to discuss the problems under consideration.

Found Guilty.

Chicago, May 13.—George H. Hayden, formerly state bank examiner, was found guilty of misconduct in office by a jury in Judge Burke's court Friday afternoon. Judge Burke withheld sentence. The specific charge against Hayden was that he withheld the report of his examination of the Globe savings bank from January 8, 1897, until March 10, 1897, knowing all the time that the affairs of the bank were in a shaky condition. The bank failed on April 5, 1897.

President Loubet, the new president of France, is, if anything, calm, sane, a trifle bourgeois and utterly devoid of sense of self-importance. It is an absolute cure for the worst of all stomach disorders.

What "Kalsomines" Are.

"Kalsomines" are cheap temporary preparations manufactured from chalks, clays, whiting, etc., and are stuck on the walls with decaying animal glue. They bear no comparison with Alabastine, which is a cement that goes through a process of setting, and hardens with age. Consumers, in buying Alabastine, should see that the goods are in packages and properly labeled. Nothing else is "just as good" as Alabastine. The claims of new imitations are absurd on their face. They cannot offer the test of time for durability.

W. H. B. Williams, publisher of The Farmers' Industrial Union, in a recent letter to Dr. Hartman says: "I have used Pe-ru-na as a family medicine for several years. I find it of especial use for myself. I have had several tedious spells with systematic catarrh and before using Pe-ru-na I had tried several other remedies with little or no success. But in Pe-ru-na I found a prompt and sure cure. I always keep the remedy which promptly relieves any attack of the same malady.

"My wife also uses Pe-ru-na. She finds it of especial use for severe spells, to which she is subject. We always keep it in the house as a family medicine. We think it an excellent remedy for the various ills to which children are subject, especially climatic diseases. Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio, for a free book on family medicine.

Marked Down Dollars.

The proprietor of a Woodward avenue grocery store arranged a big oak frame in his window around a board covered with some black cloth. On the board he pinned a lot of new dollar bills. Above he hung a placard reading: "Bookmarks, Only 98 Cents." And, though hundreds of persons stopped before the window and looked at the strange array and stranger sign, but one ventured inside to buy. "It was either one or the other," said the merchant, in speaking of the advertising scheme, "either the people thought they were bills of a 'called-in' series, or were bogus or else they were too lazy to come in and save two cents. Leastways, I didn't sell a single bill.—Detroit Free Press.

Foot-Ease Trade-Mark Sustained.

Justice Laughlin, in Supreme Court, Buffalo, has ordered a permanent injunction, with costs, and a full accounting of sales, to issue against Paul B. Hudson, manufacturer of "Dr. Clark's Foot Powder," and also against a retail dealer of Brooklyn, restraining them from making or selling Dr. Clark's Foot Powder, which is declared, in the decision of the Court, an imitation and infringement of "Foot—Ease," the powder for tired, aching feet to shake in your shoes, now so largely advertised and sold all over the country. Allen S. Olmsted, of Le Roy, N. Y., is the owner of the trade-mark "Foot—Ease," and he is the first individual who ever advertised a foot powder extensively. He will send a sample Free to any one who writes him for it. The decision in this case upholds his trade-mark and renders all parties liable who fraudulently attempt to profit by the extensive "Foot—Ease" advertising, in placing upon the market a spurious and similar appearing preparation, labeled and put up in envelopes and boxes like Foot—Ease. Similar suits will be brought against others who are now infringing on the Foot—Ease trade-mark and common law rights.

LAME DEFENSES

PUT UP BY LEGISLATORS WHO DEFEATED TAXATION REFORM.

Echoes of Republican Legislative Wrong Doing—Set Apologies For Defeat of the Gross Earnings Bill—That of Would-Be-Congressman McCarthy Analyzed. Young Squelched by Auditor Dunn. State Political Pot-Pouri—Will Judge Canty Lay Out Your Uncle Loren in the Fifth District?—Echo Says He Could—The "Tory" Hangers of 1899 "Copperheads"—Republican Press Bureau and "Feenance"—Plain Points on Silver Coinage.

Reform Press Bureau.
ST. PAUL, May 15, 1899.

It is remarkable how few of the Republican senators who defeated the reform of railroad taxation advocated so earnestly by Governor Lind and the reform forces of the legislature, have essayed to make any defense for their act, or effort to stem the tide of indignation which has spread over the state. The "lawyers" have here and there trotted out the "unconstitutional" scapegoat, but except Young of Swift, who was first skinned by the Appleton Press, and next blistered by State Auditor Dunn, for a defense made in the Minnepolis Journal, about the only other senator to "peep" has been Senator McCarthy of Itasca. His defense, going outside of the "lawyer's p'ints," is attributed to an ambition to be the candidate for Congress in the Sixth district, hence the necessity of squaring himself at least with a show of defense, and his may be briefly referred to.

The senator's "firstly" is that because the railroad tax now paid has risen from $800,000 in 1880 to over $1,200,000 in 1898, and may rise at the present rate until in time it pays all of the state's expense, we should have a full discussion of the matter before we surrender our present position. That is exactly what was proposed by the bill which merely submitted the question to the people, to be voted on at the next election.

Second. If the roads accepted the alternative method, the outlying counties like those represented by the senator would receive but a small portion of the taxes, inasmuch as so small amount of property lies in such counties. The question is begged since every intelligent person should know that there is no possibility of the railroads taking the alternative proposition if they know that there will be an absolutely fair valuation, which there will be if the boards of equalization are removed from the power of the corporations to corrupt and control them, as the people may be sure they will be under such administrations as this of John Lind. Next, the view is a narrow and selfish one, and, finally, the benefit would directly inure to the people of every locality by the lowering of the tax rate of the state.

Third, to increase the tax would raise freight rates. This is a long and well-worked bugaboo, worthy of no more consideration than the overworked scheme of having railroad employes protest against railroad legislation on the ground that it will decrease railroad wages. But there is certain protection in the law recently signed by Governor Lind prohibiting the raising of rates without consent of the Railroad Commission. The point, of the same nature, that raising rates would retard railroad development in the northern counties falls equally with the other. Railroads are built where and when it is in the interest of those who control them to do so, and that they are influenced by legal "hampering" is too silly for attention.

Finally, the senator regarded it certain that the state would be brought to a standstill by the roads refusing to pay, and "hampering" it with long litigation. This was exactly the claim made for the Anderson law, and still the wheels have been turning right along, both railroad and state. And, by the way, the greatest, almost the exclusive benefits of that same successful law which was "unconstitutional" the same as the gross earnings increase, go to the same locality of the state for which Senator McCarthy makes his specious and groundless plea.

Said United States Senator C. K. Davis more than a quarter of century ago:

"Justinian abolished the corporations, and 1,600 years afterwards they threaten society as they did the stability of Rome."

Is "Cush" lifting up his voice in these degenerate days of trusts and combines? Not a few.

The strained effort of some of the Republican press to make capital of Governor Lind's veto of the bill to make records of the Railroad Commission final as to findings of fact, falls flat in the explanation which the Governor filed when deciding not to sign the bill. It was this. He recommended such legislation in his message, which the Republicans themselves have defeated by lugging into the bill other matter not necessary, but vicious. "As it is now," said the Governor, "when the commission makes an order there is the right of appeal to either party, and if it is not exercised the order is final. All the courts have to do is to enforce the order. But the measure passed was so framed that the grounds on which the order was based might be reopened when the order to enforce it is before the court," which, the Governor adds, "would allow interminable appeals and lead to endless litigation."

Is it not about time for our German-American citizens of Minnesota to take action on the all absorbing questions of Imperialism and Anglo-American alliances? Missouri has taken action, and also Ohio, in a big meeting at Toledo. It is believed that Minnesota German-Americans to a man will oppose the Republican policy of foreign conquest and entangling foreign alliances.

The Republican Press Bureau has been transferred to Red Wing, though its letters continue to bear the St. Paul date line. The last wrestles with the "prosperity" problem, as applied to the banks, proving the prosperity of the interior of the state by the fact that the country banks increased individual deposits some $700,000 between February and April, and now hold $18,000,000 of such deposits! Learned student of finance, how long since increased deposits were a proof of prosperity, either of the banks or of the owners of the money? That's what our country banks, all banks in fact, are complaining of, that the money is piled up there and they cannot find profitable loans for it. Not loaning it they cannot pay interest on deposits, and business being unprofitable merchants and others cannot afford to borrow money to extend their lines. Circulation of money is what makes business good and times prosperous, not the locking of it up in banks.

National Committeeman Johnson: "I have yet to see the man who helped to make the Chicago platform or who voted for W. J. Bryan who has a thought of regret for either act."

A friend has furnished the bureau a copy of one of the campaign issues of the Republican state central committee, in which they sounded the alarm of the "attack" on the grain department. It is a most amusing composition bearing the signatures of Chairman Steele and Secretary Rasmussen. "Stand by the state grain inspection as you have done before," is one of the appeals. "It is all a Demo-Pop trick to deceive the young and cheat the ignorant," says Chairman Steele. Finally the address promises that if there is anything wrong the Republican party will investigate and make it right, for William H. Eustis has so "expressed himself on several occasions." Well, the Republicans did investigate and they didn't do a thing to Clausen. But that "address." We are going to have it embalmed.

The continued charges that the reform members of the legislature are responsible for the defeat of the anti-fee bills, are scarcely worth attention. The facts are that those members were so uncompromising in their determination to follow the governor's recommendations that they went farther than the Republicans even, in the latter's move against the oil inspector only, when the latter refused to include the Republican supreme court clerk. For when the Republicans in the senate agreed to make the oil inspector bill take effect in two years, protecting the present Democratic incumbent during his term, the reform senators caucused and said no, and voted to make the bill take effect at once.

There is only need to repeat that there is but one responsibility for the failure to accomplish this reform, and that was the Republican determination to save the clerk of supreme court so that office and its extravagant fees would be left for future aid to a Republican machine. It being all they saved from last year's wreck, the Republicans cling to it like a barnacle to one of Dewey's ships.

The Minneapolis Flambeau club which squirts flame on Republican occasions blew out the eye of a Minneapolis lady. They didn't mind a little thing like that, but the lady has obtained a judgment of $4,000 damages. What a pity if this flamboyant Republican adjunct was obliged to quit the flame-squirting and eye-destroying business!

The price of silver has now passed the average price of wheat in the country markets, though lately standing neck and neck. It is a good time to remark that a very few "doubting Thomases," like the bimetallic editor of the Midway News, still fear that legislation cannot change the bullion value of the silver dollar. If so, please consider this: Suppose that on Wednesday last when silver was 64.7-8 cents per ounce, which would make the dollar for that day 50.1-5 cents, Bryan was president and a law was passed and signed making silver coinage a law on equal terms with gold. You could then have taken 412½ grains of silver to the mint and have it coined into a dollar that was legal tender for all debts public and private, without cost to you. Would you then part with that dollar for 50, 60, 80 or 99 cents? Legislation has then changed the value of the bullion has it not? You would not part with any silver bullion that you had, nor anyone else, for less than $1.29 per ounce, because you could have it made $1.29 in coined dollars at the mint without cost to you.

The bullion value has never fallen, never can, and never will fall below the coinage value, under free and unlimited coinage.

Closing the mints to silver caused its debasement, the same as readmitting it will restore its value, and one is as right as the other. If not ,why not?

This was the comment of a prominent state Republican upon the speech of William Henry Eustis and W. P. Roberts proposing the doom of "traitors," and hanging to the nearest lamp-post of all who do not approve of the Philippine war: "What a pretty fix this state would be in with such dizzy brained men as Eustis at the head of its affairs."

This recalls what John Goodnow wrote from Shanghai, a month after election, supposing of course that William Henry was elected: "Well, I suppose Eustis is in by this time and ripping you all up the back." Rumor has it that notwithstanding William Henry will run for governor again, presumably on "war issues," as last time it was on "good roads."

Ex-Senator Washburn agrees with Jadam Beede that a panic is brewing from the trusts and combines, but both stand shoulder to back in support of the trust breeding party.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

A Desperate Deed.

A young woman walking along the street in front of the Guaranty Loan building in Minneapolis astonished the pedestrians by running up to Judge Gilfillan and asking for protection from a young man who was close behind her. The young man came up, and placed a revolver at the girl's head. Judge Gilfillan knocked the weapon up just as it exploded, the ball hitting the building and the powder burning the woman's neck. He started up the street and meeting a policeman, fired at him. The officer dropped and the ball went wild. The young man went to the middle of the street and shot himself the head, causing death.

The youth who committed this desperate deed was Bernhard Golling. For eight years he had been a faithful employe in the Model clothing store. He was 19 years year of age. About a year ago he met a girl named Julia Vettar, at a resort on First street. He became infatuated with her, and last September they were secretly married.

Important Invention.

Efforts have been made by lumber operators and woodsmen of an inventive turn of mind to devise a sort of steam machine that would work as a traction engine on snow roads through the northern forests, and as a result a machine was built the past winter in the woods of northern Minnesota by F. S. Farr of the A. C. Akeley Lumber company of Minneapolis, that bids fair to work as complete a revolution in woods operation as the use of steam has already worked in the hauling of logs by railway. This machine has hauled over an ordinary snow road in the woods eight loads of 30,000 feet of logs, and its capacity is only limited by the power of the machinery. It was built in the woods and is a very crude affair, but a better one will be ready for the coming season. Its unique devices are all patented and lumbermen in all the northern country are on the watch to see its operations with deep interest.

Wounded.

Governor Lind received a cablegram from Manilla stating that James Barret, of Company H, Thirteenth regiment, and Fred Buckendorf, Company L, had been wounded. The former slightly and the latter severely. James Barret is registered on the muster roll as a clerk at South St. Paul, single. His nearest relative is Mrs. Mary Barret, Kenosha, Wis. Fred Buckendorf is registered as a florist of Minneapolis. His nearest relative is W. F. Buckendorf of Minneapolis.

Marry in Minnesota.

Wisconsin young people now come to Minnesota to get married. Bert Jones and Miss Maggie Koonsheen, both of Jackson county, Wis., were married by Judge Buck at the court house at Winona, being the first Wisconsin couple to come to be spliced. The groom stated that they came to Winona because they did not care to wait the five days now required in Wisconsin after taking out a marriage license.

Passed Bad Coin.

Joseph Zopp was arrested at Red Wing by Chief of Police Lee for passing a counterfeit dollar in Axel Erickson's confectionery store. When searched another spurious dollar was found. The authorities believe Zopp is connected with a gang operating a mint in that locality.

Badly Mangled.

Henry Dengel, aged 20 years, was caught on a shaft at Porter's mill Buckman. His left arm was torn from the body, all but a small strip of flesh. His left leg suffered a compound fracture below the knee. One bone in the right leg was broken.

ROSWELL P. FLOWER DEAD.

Former Governor of New York Succumbs to Heart Failure at Eastport, L. I.

New York, May 13.—Former Gov. Roswell P. Flower died Friday night at 10:30 at the Eastport Country club, Eastport, L. I. Mr. Flower was taken ill early in the day with a severe attack of acute indigestion. In the afternoon symptoms of heart failure supervened and he grew steadily worse until the time of his death. The attack of heart failure was accompanied by a fainting spell and Mr. Flower's family in New York city were quickly notified. Mrs. Flower and the former governor's nephew, Frederick S. Flower, accompanied by Dr. Thomas H. Allen, Mr. Flower's physician, left at once on a special train for Eastport. When they arrived there Mr. Flower had somewhat recovered, but at night the attack of heart failure was marked and Mr. Flower became unconscious an hour or more before his death.

TRUSTS UNDER FIRE.

Combinations Are Being Probed by Industrial Commission—One Plan for Prevention.

Washington, May 12. — The industrial commission Thursday heard the first witness to be called in connection with its inquiry into the operation of trusts. The witness was Hon. James W. Lee, of Pittsburgh, attorney for several pipe line and oil companies, and formerly a state senator of Pennsylvania. Mr. Lee's testimony was directed especially against the Standard Oil company.

As a means of prevention of trusts, Mr. Lee suggested a law making destructive competition a criminal offense. He thought the fear of imprisonment would intimidate some of them. Nothing had done so much as destructive competition to prevent progress and fairness. The law could be passed by the states, and in case of prosecution prices charged for years could be used in evidence. He would also suggest that the capital of all corporations except those of a public or quasi-public nature should be limited to $1,000,000. He thought that something of this kind was necessary, and that if a remedy was not found the country would be ruined by combinations of capital detrimental to the public interests. Under the present conditions personal ambition was stifled, and many men were being kept out of business because of the existence of these combinations.

DR. BRIGGS ORDAINED.

Great Crowd Witnesses the Ceremony—No Protest Filed at Any Time.

New York, May 15.—In the procathedral on Stanton street Rev. Dr. Charles A. Briggs, who was suspended for heresy by the Presbyterian assembly, was ordained a priest of the Episcopal church. He was ordained together with Rev. Charles A. Snedeker, and the ordination ceremonies were conducted by Bishop Potter. The little church was crowded with people and the ceremonies were notable for the quietness that prevailed. Those who expected, from the great outcry of the past three or four weeks, some sensational features were disappointed. There was no scene, no excitement, and no protest was filed at the beginning, during or at the close of the ordination. There was nothing notable in the sermon preached by Rev. Dr. George William Douglass.

The ceremonies were very long, commencing at 10:30 o'clock and continuing until late in the afternoon.

The Military Situation.

Washington, May 15.—The following dispatch from Maj. Gen. Otis, giving the status of the military situation as it now exists in the operations against the insurgents, was received at the war department Sunday:

"Manila, May 14.—Adjutant General, Washington: Situation is as follows: Lawton from Balinag has taken Ildefonso and San Miguel to north with slight loss and driving considerable force of enemy; gunboats and canoes accompany 1,500 men under Kobbe up Rio Grande river from Calumpit; depart 16th: MacArthur remains at San Fernando, covering country. * * * Yesterday messenger from Aguinaldo expressing wish to send commission to Manila for conference with United States commission to arrange terms of peace; directions given to pass body representative insurgents to Manila should it present itself. OTIS."

The Latest Engagement.

Manila, May 15.—The "tinclad" gunboats Laguna de Bay and Cavadonga and a launch under Capt. Grant ran into a nest of insurgents concealed in the brush and on both sides of the Rio Grande river, three miles above Calumpit, Saturday afternoon, and were received with heavy volleys at short range. A sergeant belonging to the Utah battery and one private was wounded. Opening with their rapid-fire guns, the Americans killed 20 of the natives and wounded several others, filling the jungle with a hail of shot for a half hour, until the enemy fled.

Funeral of Roswell P. Flower.

New York, May 16.—The funeral of former Gov. Roswell P. Flower took place late Monday in St. Thomas' church, Fifty-third street and Fifth avenue, of which he was a vestryman. The church was not decorated, and the programme for the services was very simple. Rev. Dr. John Wesley Brown, rector of the church, officiated, being assisted by Rev. John Husk.

Rests in Arlington.

Washington, May 12.—The remains of Gen. H. C. Egbert, which arrived here Wednesday from Manila, were interred at Arlington cemetery Thursday afternoon with full military honors. All the available troops in the vicinity of Washington were ordered out by the war department and many distinguished army officers were in attendance.

A REAR-END COLLISION.

Wreck Near Reading, Pa., in Which 29 People Are Killed and Many Others Wounded.

Reading, Pa., May 13.—A collision of passenger trains occurred on the Philadelphia & Reading railroad at Exeter station, about six miles south of this city, Friday night and 29 people were killed. A large number were injured, and three are in such a serious condition that small hope is entertained for their recovery.

The regular express train from Pottsville for Philadelphia connected at the station in Reading with a train from Harrisburg which was crowded with excursionists who had been to the state capital to witness the ceremonies in connection with the unveiling of the Hartranft monument. Many of the Harrisburg passengers at Reading went aboard the Philadelphia express, but it being found all could not be accommodated, it was decided to send an extra train to Philadelphia to run as the second section of the express. The extra train left 20 minutes later than the express.

At Exeter station the express stopped for orders and while standing there the extra train, moving at great speed, crashed into it. Three of the rear cars of the express were telescoped and the first car of the extra train was also wrecked. The passengers in these cars were terribly mangled, many being killed outright, while others had limbs and bodies maimed. Word was at once sent to Reading and a special train with physicians and nurses was sent to the scene as quickly as it could possibly be put in readiness.

United States Senator Boise Penrose and Gen. E. Burd Grubb were passengers in the Pullman car of the wrecked train, and received a severe shaking up, but were otherwise uninjured.

WILL ADMIT WOMEN.

Catholic Knights of America Settle a Vexed Question at Their Annual Convention.

Kansas City, Mo., May 12.—A controversy of ten years' standing was settled by the Catholic Knights of America Thursday when the delegates meeting here in annual convention voted to admit women to the order. Wednesday the resolution proposing this change in the constitution was voted down, failing by 34 votes to receive the necessary two-thirds' majority. Thursday there was a complete change of front. At the afternoon session a reconsideration of Wednesday's action was moved and carried and a vote was retaken without debate. The result was the surprising total of 432 votes in favor of the women to 29 against them. The convention greeted the result with tremendous applause. The Illinois delegates voted solidly against the women, casting 27 votes. The other negative voters were from South Carolina and Wisconsin. Though women will be admitted under the amended constitution, they will be permitted to carry but $1,000 insurance, or one-half the amount that is allowed to men. Women will be permitted to join between the ages of 18 and 40 years.

GEN. BROOKE YIELDS.

Trouble in the Payment of the Cubans Is Satisfactorily Settled.

Havana, May 16.—The hitch in the matter of paying off the troops was settled satisfactory to the Cubans when Gen. Brooke waived the hateful condition requiring the surrender of the insurgent arms to the American officials and assented to their delivery instead to the civil authorities of the districts in which the various commands are now stationed. The custody of these arms is the chief point of contention in the controversy which has arisen touching the manner of distributing the money. Whether the arms are to be given up or not is a question which the American military authorities evade for diplomatic or other reasons. The Cubans, and even Gen. Gomez' friends, say that the arms will be delivered to the various municipalities and kept by the respective mayors as trophies of the war for independence. Gen. Gomez will now resume his position as adviser to the governor general and help in the distribution of the money.

A LAKE DISASTER.

Schooner Sinks on Lake Superior—Nine of Those on Board Reported Lost.

Marquette, Mich., May 15. — The schooner Nelson, in tow of the steamer Folsom, sprang a leak Saturday 35 miles below Deer Park, and sunk with all hands on board, except Capt. Andrew Haganey, who floated ashore on top of boat's cabin. The captain's wife and baby, Fred Haas, a sailor, and six other sailors are reported lost. The schooner was coal laden for Lake Linden. When found to be leaking the crew cut the tow line and turned the boat for shore. She went down in 300 feet of water. All was done so quickly there was no time for the steamer or the schooner Mitchell, also in tow, to lower the lifeboats. This is the first loss on Lake Superior this season.

Big Mills Change Hands.

St. Paul, Minn., May 16.—A West Superior, Wis., special to the Pioneer Press says: The United States Flour company assumed charge of six flouring mills in this city Monday, the filing of the deeds transferring the property being the final step towards putting the trust in control. The properties, which were a few days ago transferred from the mill companies to Thomas McIntyre, were transferred by McIntyre to the United States company for a consideration aggregating $1,280,000.

Ask for a Rest.

Manila, May 8, via Hong-Kong May 13.—The First regiment Nebraska volunteer infantry is taking the unusual step of respectfully petitioning the division commander, Maj. Gen. MacArthur, to temporarily relieve them from duty at the front. The regiment is badly exhausted by the campaign in which it has taken an active part, and not many more than 300 men of the organization are at present fit for duty. On Sunday last 160 men of this regiment responded to the sick call.

Killed His Five Children.

Odessa, May 12.—An insane customs official murdered his five sleeping children here Wednesday night and then attacked his wife, who is dying of her wounds.

SIX THOUSAND MILES OF RAILROAD.

It may be interesting to note the following statement of mileage of the New York Central, leased and operated lines, which shows the total miles of track east of Buffalo as 6,114.81.

It is, of course, generally known that some of the Western lines have a greater mileage, but their tracks run through a number of sparsely settled States, while the trackage of the New York Central and leased lines is all in the densely populated States of New York and Pennsylvania, accommodating, by its numerous trains, millions of passengers each year.

Here is the mileage of the New York Central leased and operated lines:

Joking with an Official.

They tell a good story about an attache of the courthouse on Leavenworth street. Two jokers began "monkeying" with his tellephone the other day, disconnecting it and otherwise bothering the official. Shortly afterward one of the jokers called up the officials from another office and introduced himself as being the chief operator at the central office. "For heaven's sake see what's the matter with your telephone up there," he gruffly spoke to the official. "Whatever's the matter I don't know, but your electric current is flowing like mad into the central office here and there's about an inch of it on the floor already." The official grew pale with fright, and he rushed into the office of the two jokers. "Now you've done it," he began to fume with sincerity. "The main office has just called me up and says that on account of your blamed fooling the electric current is submerging the central office, and the girls are quitting work. Come in here now and fix that up." The two jokers expressed sorrow to the official, went in and pretended to tighten a screw and then went down cellar and took turns in having spinal meningitis.—Waterbury Democrat.

The service of the Nickel Plate Road to New York City and Boston is a demonstrated success. The demands of the traveling public are met by providing three peerless fast express trains in each direction daily. These trains are composed of modern, first-class day coaches, elegant vestibuled sleeping cars between Chicago, New York and Boston, and unexcelled dining cars. Solid through trains between Chicago and New York have uniformed colored porters in charge of day coaches, whose services are placed at the disposal of passengers. If you want to travel comfortably, economically and safely, see that your ticket is routed via the Nickel Plate Road.

WOMEN are assailed at every turn by troubles peculiar to their sex. Every mysterious ache or pain is a symptom. These distressing sensations will keep on coming unless properly treated.

The history of neglect is written in the worn faces and wasted figures of nine-tenths of our women, every one of whom may receive the invaluable advice of Mrs. Pinkham, without charge, by writing to her at Lynn, Mass.

WOMEN WHO NEED MRS. PINKHAM'S AID

MISS LULA EVANS, of Parkersburg, Iowa, writes of her recovery as follows:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I had been a constant sufferer for nearly three years. Had inflammation of the womb, leucorrhœa, heart trouble, bearing-down pains, backache, headache, ached all over, and at times could hardly stand on my feet. My heart trouble was so bad that some nights I was compelled to sit up in bed or get up and walk the floor, for it seemed as though I should smother. More than once I have been obliged to have the doctor visit me in the middle of the night. I was also very nervous and fretful. I was utterly discouraged. One day I thought I would write and see if you could do anything for me. I followed your advice and now I feel like a new woman. All those dreadful troubles I have no more, and I have found Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash a sure cure for leucorrhœa. I am very thankful for your good advice and medicine."

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, May 19, 1899.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Peter Peterson says the feather renovator at the laundry is a success and that business is flourishing.

—Street commissioner Welker is putting in some good crossings at Charley Eppels and the city hall corners. They were much needed.

—Mayor Lohmiller is agitating the matter of having a 4th of July celebration. Delano has the reputation of having had some good celebrations.

—The M. E. S. S. has appointed committees and are making arrangements to observe children's day in an appropriate manner. An entertainment will be given in the evening.

—The Eagle thinks about the coming school election that "perhaps there is a hen on." It's an Eagle hen. Reports have been current that Mike was coaching Joe for a position on the board for some time.

—An interesting letter from Alva, our Manila correspondent, was received this morning but too late for publication this week. He says so far as he knows the Delano boys are all well. The letter was dated April 14.

—John Brandser has purchased a lot on Second street of S. Redmond. Mr. B. has had some filling up done and a fence put up. This will necessitate the hunting of a new place to tie up on fair days for a large number of people.

—Fram the Valley Herald we clip the following: 'Mr. Everson has retired from the management of the Waconia Patriot, and Dr. Deissner has resumed charge." Louey used to be a part of the Eagle force and leader of the Delano band and some of our readers will be interrested in the item.

--Peter Peterson renovated a couple of pillows for us this week. WSere he got such full ticks was what bothered us when he returned them to us. But he says that is the way he does, takes old feathers and puffs them up enough to nearly make two out of one. He says business is coming in all right.

—The West side is shining up for spring. John Plattner is fixing up his house and intends moving in soon, leaving the farm to the rising generation. Mr. Kessler has built an addition to her house and had the whole painted. Will Buck has had his residence painted; others are making improvements.

—On Tuesday last while playing, John Bystrom's four year old boy fell out of a small wagon and broke his left leg above the knee. The fall was so short that his parents would not believe his leg was broke until Tuesday when surgical aid was summoned and the fact demonstrated to their satisfaction. The little fellow bravely bore his suffering, and is now on the road to a rapid recovery.

—We are in receipt of a polite invitation from Rev. J. W. Valentyne, of Buffalo to spread the news that: "We expect Bishop Joyce of our own church with us in Buffalo, on Sunday morning, May 28. All are invited to hear him." Bishop Joyce is one of the leading Methodist Bishops, and it will doubtless be a treat to listen to him. A good big crowd from Delano should drive over on that occasion.

—The Eagle says: "The situation is too funny to get mad about." Dr. Catlin, "tickled to death". Now he can get mad if he wants to, but we deny the charge. We are here in body and we're no spook. Mr. Buckley may think he sees ghosts, but in our case he is certainly mistaken. We again advise him to clear his conscience and he won't be so troubled. It looks as if he was sorry we got the village printing.

—Reports are about that one of the purchasers of produce in our markets cheats on weight and brags about it. This is morally wrong, and we are informed that there is a law on the subject which can and is apt to be applied unless the practice is stopped at once. Farmers, many of them, have scales at home. Don't be fooled into believing your scales are wrong because some sharper uses scales not balanced, or that act so slowly for small weights, that he can deceive you. Look out for the cheating chap.

—The Eagle says. "That mass meeting in Minneapolis last Sunday was quite uncalled for. Nobody doubts the loyalty of the American citizen and the scheme puts the loyalists on the defensive." And only a couple of weeks ago the Old Bird tried to make her readers believe that we were an "American aborigonee" and "unloyal". Has the Eagle editor concluded that he is "nobody", or has he become convinced that his savage article was also uncalled for? On the defensive the Eagle is about as good at getting onto the next knoll as a cayote or as the "jack rabbit". Does the Eagle really believe in an English American alliance? And if so why does she so much dread announcing the fact to her readers?

—The Village council held a regular meeting, on Monday, May 15. All present. A petition was presented for a water main on Third street from R. R. Ave. to Minneapolis road. The petition was referred to the committee on water. A large number of bills were allowed; that for the dynamoes being laid over for an inspection of machines. A. Rewaldt was granted license to use water from Conzet's hydrant. Health Officer's report was read and accepted. Sidewalk committee report was accepted and the Recorder instructed to notify property owners to repair sidewalk. The Buffalo Gazette was made the official paper for the ensuing year. Brandser and Peterson were appointed a committee to see the electrician about charges for overtime and purchasing supplies. Committee on Fire Department reported fire apparatus in good condition. The present council appears to be much more harmonious than some of their predecessors in office.

--The Delano Crickets, after several unsuccessful attempts, got together and held a meeting last Wednesday night. Several committees were appointed to see about getting grounds, collecting money, etc. It was voted to change the clubs name to the "Delano Blacks," the players to have an entire black suit, also to play any organized ball team within a reasonable limit of distance. As last year's grounds were lost, prospects of having games here were not very encouraging, but by a little financial aid from the townspeople suitable grounds can be obtained and the team gotten into running order. According to the treasurer's report there is $4.50 in the treasury, left from last year. Last year's officers were re elected; captain, John Catlin, secretary, Claus Johnson, treasurer, Leonard Dedrick. Meeting was adjourned, to meet Saturday evening, when the committees will report. If the club has good success they hope July 4th to play for the championship of the county.

—The Assessors are around this week seeing what everybody has on which they can pay tax. Valentine Eppel is assessor in the Village of Delano, and William Sturman Jr., in the town of Franklin. Mr. Sturman furnished us with the following list of rates to be observed by Assessors in Wright county:

County Cullings.

The Probate Judge is supposed to let people have their notices printed in their own town papers. It is kind of strange none of our Delano democrats ever have estates to be probated.

The organ of the bosses at Maple Lake, seems to have been instructed that is better not to "agitate" too muck about bosses just at present. She has rather overdone the business.

Speaking of tickets that win how would Alger for president, and Eagan for vice president, on a platform of "Embalmed beef" do? —Journal.

Even the g. o. p. could hardly survive that pill.

You don't hear so much about "Honest" John Lind as you did before election.—Eagle.

You don't hear so much about Windy 'Ennery either. The campaign is not now on.

Some Wright county citizens think that $500 and over bill of the Eagle for printing the Financial statement of the county pretty big. One fellow says he heard it claimed that it was about twice as big as last year's bill.

The eastern press are wondering how Minnesota can manage to get along with Towne absent from the state, and we presume that Towne shares in their general wonderment.—Standard.

His fellow townsmen are having considerable trouble since his departure. Its a wonder none of the papers have thought to attribute the strike to Mr. Towne.

The Buffalo Standard gets off the following treasonable utterances viewed from a machine standpoint. It may mean little or much. If the latter it means that the late legislature failed to do its duty by the people:

"There will be more occasion for the Republican party in the next campaign to apologize for what the late legislature did not do than for what they did do. Some of our esteemed legislators will be "only remembered for what they have not done."—Monticello Times.

And both these papers are supposed to be a part and parcel of the vertebral column of the g. o. p. So long as legislators are elected to sit as a U. S. Senatorial electoral college, so long must we expect to have poor law makers in our legislature.

Some are claiming that the Democrats are split up. We predict that they will be fully as united when election rolls round as will be the g. o. p. Both parties are onto the bosses and have become thoroughly satiated with disgust whenever they think how they stay at home from primary elections and from conventions and allow the same politicians to dictate nominations for both parties. It is a shame, and the way to get rid of such manoeuvering is to turn out to primaries and elect delegates; go yourself if necessary to county conventions, and help nominate men for office with whom you and every other liberty loving citizen will be satisfied, men who will knuckle to no corporation greed or bosses more than they are obliged to.

Among Our Exchanges.

World: Our amiable president, who cannot conquer his own smoking habit teinks nothing of undertaking the tonquest of 8,000,000 Filippinos.

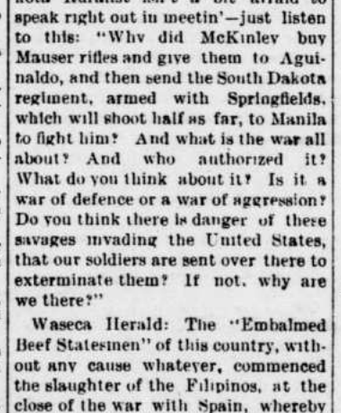
Wabasha Standard: The finding of the beef investigating committee of the war department that the canned beef furnished the army was the same as furnished the trade will not tend to increase the sale of canned meats.

Carver County News: An effort is being made, over in Wright county, to find evidence sufficient to clear Joe Boxell of the murder of his father and step-mother, some years ago. The theory they are working upon is that Fred Kier, who some time ago killed his wife, a sister to Boxell, is the real murderer of Thomas Boxell and his young wife. The case will come before the Wright county grand jury next month.

Valley Herald: The Windom Reporter, a strong republican paper, in a recent article after speaking of Gov. Lind in a highly eulogistic manner said: "A fool republican senate has been trying all winter to help John Lind to another election, and now the party must get together and nominate a candidate known for his sympathy with the struggles of the people." Be careful, Bro. Huntington, or you will have the Register man after you, such language is sacrilege, according to his ideas, and deserves decapitation. He will read you out of the party if you are not careful.—Lester Prairie Journal.

County Line: The editor of the Dakota Ruralist isn't a bit afraid to speak right out in meetin'—just listen to this: "Why did McKinley buy Mauser rifles and give them to Aguinaldo, and then send the South Dakota regiment, armed with Springfields, which will shoot half as far, to Manila to fight him? And what is the war all about? And who authorized it? What do you think about it? Is it a war of defence or a war of aggression? Do you think there is danger of these savages invading the United States, that our soldiers are sent over there to exterminate them? If not, why are we there?"

Waseca Herald: The "Embalmed Beef Statesmen" of this country, without any cause whatever, commenced the slaughter of the Filipinos, at the close of the war with Spain, whereby many of our bravest men have been killed and wounded; and now they are trying to place the blame of this war for conquest and subjugation upon the men who did everything they could do to save our nation from the disgrace of it. When these "Embalmed Beef" officials are requested to stop the destruction of life and property and the squandering of money by offering to the Filippinos the right of self-government (all that is asked) they turn upon the people and call them "copperheads," traitors and tories. How fortunate it is that the "Embalmed Beef" fellows do not yet own the earth, and that their lying, insulting epithets do not frighten any but cowards.



ACTIVE SOLICITORS WANTED EVERYWHERE for "The Story of the Philippines" by Murat Halstead, commissioned by the Government as Official Historian to the War Department. The book was written in army camps at San Francisco, on the Pacific with General Merritt, in the hospitals at Honolulu, in Hong Kong, in the American trenches at Manila, in the insurgent camps with Aguinaldo, on the deck of the Olympia with Dewey, and in the roar of battle at the fall of Manila. Bonanza for agents. Brimful of original pictures taken by government photographers on the spot. Low prices. Big profits. Freight paid. Credit given. Drop all trashy unofficial war books. Outfit free. Address, F. T. Barber, Sec'y. Star Insurance Bldg., Chicago.

St Paul Dispatch

25c per month for Daily. 75c per year for the Weekly.

The St. Paul Dispatch is the best Twin City daily; it has no equal in the Northwest as to size or quality.

The DISPATCH excels in Northwestern news, having a correspondent in every Northwestern town.

THE delights of an evening spent around a well-lighted reading table are not half understood. An illustrated magazine with its wealth of illustrations, its stories of adventure and love, its descriptions of travel which carry you to the remotest ends of the earth, and its instructive articles for young and old—these are the first requisites for your own enjoyment and the entertainment and proper education of your children.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal,

Both Together One Year for Only $1.80

In this way you secure your own home paper and an illustrated magazine at a price that is only about a fourth of what some of the illustrated magazines sell for. For three years The Cosmopolitan has undisputedly claimed that it reached the largest clientele possessed by any periodical, daily, weekly or monthly, in the world. It was The Cosmopolitan which sent Julian Hawthorne to India to let the world know the real horrors of famine and plague. It was The Cosmopolitan which established at its own cost a great Free Correspondence University which now has over 20,000 students on its rolls. It was The Cosmopolitan which offered a prize of $3,000 for the best horseless carriage and prizes for best plans for public baths, and best arrangement of sewer and pipe systems for cities. It was The Cosmopolitan which set the presidents of great schools and universities seriously discussing the defects of existing educational systems. It is The Cosmopolitan whose enterprise is always in the lead in advancing the world's civilization.

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

Three Together One Year for Only $2.35

T. J. CATLIN, Publisher and

Entered as Second-Class Mail Matter, at the Post Office in Delano, Minn

THE 13th Reg. Minn. Vol. is expected to leave Manilla for home soon.

CONGRESSMAN Rosing from the third Minnesota district would look very well in print, and the third would have a man who would look out for the interests of the people. That's the kind of a Congressman to have.

MINNEAPOLIS is to have a grand parade on Memorial day. Preparations have been under way for some time and things are expected to move smoothly. Each year finds a smaller number of the boys of the sixties to participate in these exercises in memory of the deeds of the dead.

WE are in receipt of the Carlton College announcement for 1899 Carlton college was organized in 1866 and is one of the leading institutions of learning in the state Located at Northfield, with an efficient corps of teachers it is sending out some splendid students who are taking their places among the learned of the land.

Very Tired.

The Lakefield Standard (Rep.) remarks that this Bureau makes it very tired. There is no doubt of it whatever. It tires most of the g. o. p.—Democratic Press Bulletin. There seems to be an epidemic of "that tired feeling" among members of the g. o. p. just now. Anything that adheres to the constitution or smacks of liberty and independence seems to act as a nauseant to the well regulated party organ.

'Twouldn't Do at All.

"How would it be for the government to at once relieve the volunteer troops in the Philippines and fill their places by a forced draft of expansionists and imperialists, who are doing a good deal of fighting at home just now in loud talk. Fellows like W. H. Eustis, who the other day in a speech denounced as traitors all who don't agree with and endorse the Philippine policy, should be picked up bodily by a provost officer and set down in a trench on the firing line in the Philippines, and a gun placed in their hands. They would then have a chance to shoot as they talk A few Minneapolis and St. Paul g. o. p. editors would also be greatly benefited by a course of the same treatment."—Litchfield Independent.

That would be practicing what the expansion howlers are preaching except that they are having roaring meetings to try to make President McKinley believe that the sentiment of the country is that he keep the brave boys who went at their country's call to battle for freedom of their neighbors, to shoot "jack rabbits" and "coons" after their time has expired. It would have a tendency to change the tone of the expansionists if they were obliged to have to help expand otherwise than after the style of Windy Eustis. 'Twouldn't do at all Bro. Peterson. Why Windy 'Enery would at once flop over to the side of the majority.

Litchfield Independent: There is no doubt that a good deal of the truth about the Philippine campaign is not known in this country. The strict censorship established by our military government there prohibits the sending of any unfavorable news. A certain amount filters through in the shape of private letters from soldiers to their relatives and friends. What the government expects to gain by this system of deception is not apparent.

Democratic Press Bulletin: As fast as the Minnesota boys are heard from they seem well onto the administration scheme in the Philippines. Will G. Akers of the Thirteenth, Republican editor of the Edgerton Enterprise, writes his father: "It looks as if we would serve out our full two years fighting for the noble (?) cause of civilizing the Filipinos. I am more than ever convinced that the Filipinos are capable of governing themselves. I want to get back to the states before the election of 1900 in order to cast my vote against the Republican party. I guess our government has paid $20,000,000 for a war which will cost it twice that amount before it is ended besides the lives of its sons who volunteered to fight against the oppressors of these people".

PRESIDENT MCKINLEY is figuring on a trip to Minnesota this summer.

Resorts to Lying.

When, in order to uphold the hands of the "government", in other words of the g. o. p. it becomes necessary to resort to such outrageous lying as several of the party organs have, for lack of decent arguments recently done, it is a credit for noble men to be called copperheads, traitors, or anything else that will designate them as separate and distinct in their political views from these modern Annaniases. We reproduce a specimen for your consideration:

Sad Case at Buffalo, Minn.

It is a kindly custom that provides the inmates of hospitals with magazines and daily newspapers; and we desire to enlist the sympathy of our readers for the editor of the Buffalo (Minn.) Journalpop, who is not in a hospital, but is in duer need of fresh news than any invalid in a sanitarium. In his last issue he says:

"The news from the Philippine war continues to be as uncertain and contradictory as ever. It is now well known that the government does not allow the real truth and facts to be published. The rainy season has now commenced and it is known that the president and his cabinet are very uneasy and much troubled over the present condition of affairs. After all the fighting that has been done, it now appears that our army has possession of but a small part of Luzon in the neighborhood of Manila."

Buffalo, Minn. is ninety miles from a railroad, is without telegraph or telephone, and may be reached only by bridal paths or lumber trails. The editor of the Journal, as the foregoing clipping indicates, has been without current news for some six months. Any one having copies of newspapers bearing date of, say, sixty days ago or less will confer a favor on him by forwarding them. Address, "Editor Journal, Buffalo, Minn. (Please forward at once.")—Duluth Tribune.

Now calmly consider what the Buffalo Journal said, as quoted by the Duluth Tribune. Has he made a false or even a misstatement of the facts? When he wrote was not the news from the Philippines uncertain and contradictory? Was it not well known that a censorship had been established over the communications coming to us? Does not every school boy know that the rainy season was expected about this time of year, in that country? And hasn't it been plain to every one that not only the president and his cabinet but all the people in this country were uneasy and much troubled at the condition of affairs? Was there anything wrong in saying that after all the fighting "our army has possession of but a small part of Luzon in the neighborhood of Manila? Luzon is said to be as big as the state of Ohio, and the farthest from Manila that we had seen claimed that our forces had gone was 55 miles after fighting every day for nearly twice that many days. Want, then, the Journals item bear the scrutiny of the most critical eye from Boston or Washington to Manila?

Now just as calmly read the Duluth Tribune's attempt to get rid of the naked truth. Of course at home here, people are inclined to treat such a production as a laughable affair, even though on a very serious subject, but when people in the home of "baked beans", "millionaire law makers" or of "jack rabbits" read an article like that emanating from the hair brain of the excited individual of the Zenith City, where recently somebody has, according to reports, been using dynamite, and where dwells a former resident of Buffalo, who knows better even though he don't deny the charge, they must of course give some credence to the paper for coming somewhere near the truth; but, as a matter of fact when the Tribune says "Buffalo is ninety miles from a rail road," it comes within just ninety miles of the truth. The Soo R. R. runs through Buffalo. When the editor wrote that it is "without telegraph or telephone and may be reached only by bridal paths or lumber trails" he displayed a woeful ignorance of the geography of his congressional district in which the beautiful village of Buffalo, the county seat of Wright county, one of the best counties in the district is; or some other trail of character unbecoming even to a "copperhead", "traitor" "jackrabbit" or "coon". Why Congressman Morris or ex-Congressman Towne, had they been consulted, could have told the editor better than that.

We understand from Duluth papers that the Duluth Tribune is to sue the Duluth Herald for libel for saying that the Tribune lied about its circulation. If the Herald needs further proof of the Tribune's fabrications it seems it will not have a hard time finding them. Away with such arguments to uphold the hands of the g. o. p. or any other party.

Ida County (Iowa) Pioneer: A most peculiar and sudden change of weather took place Monday at about 2 o'clock. During the entire forenoon the air though damp was very chilling, but within a period of twenty minutes a hot wind came up from the south, and the thermometer raised from 52 to 80 in less than half an hour. On Tuesday at 11 a. m there was another reverse change just as sudded and the thermometer fell from 80 to 60 in twenty minutes. Today is a typical June day. Clear, no wind, warm and bright.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 19, 1899.

If the scheme of the Reed chairmen of the most importan committees of the last House to keep their places under the new organization of the House is a success, the next Speaker will find that he is merely at the head of the old Reed legislative machine. The argument put forth by these schemers is little short of ridiculous. If accepted, it would mean that every man at the head of an important committee had a right to stay there as long as he could get elected and his party could control the House. Such a plan would be unjust to the Speaker, who would be little more than a figurehead, if he could not control the make up of the committees, and equally unjust to the members who wish to better their committee positions. The Reed machine says that all the old chairmen who were re-elected should be given the same places, and points to fourteen vacant chairmanships, owing to retirement of the old chairmen, as the only ones that the new speaker should put new men into; also that none of the members of important committees should be displaced. That would give the new Speaker fourteen chairmanships, only four of which are important—Accounts, Banking and Currency, Coinage, and Printing—to distribute among his supporters, and 57 vacancies to fill on eighteen of the important committees. It is said that these holdovers intend to form a combine to prevent the election of any candidate who will not agree to their plans.

Representative De Vries, who will have the honor of being the only democrat from California in the next House, is in Washington. He says the Gov. is going to appoint Burns to the Senate, with the understanding that he is to be seated at the same time Quay gets in, and that the appointment will give the State to the democrats.

General Joe Wheeler returned to Washington this week, but not upon any order from the War Department. He has no immediate expectations of being ordered to the Philippines, because the administration is too busy hoping that the fighting is over to be thinking of ordering officers to go there.

Representative Gaines, of Tenn., is in Washington on business. Speaking of the political outlook he said: "The democrats have only to stand firm, re-nominate Bryan, make some additions to the Chicago platform, and they will sweep the country in 1900. Bryan's renomination is assured, for he is just as much admired in the strongholds of the party as he was in '96. The next platform will declare for free silver, but will also declare against expansion, militarism, and the trusts, which threaten the destruction of the nation. What makes the prospect all the brighter for the democracy is the torn and divided state of the republicans. When Congress meets and the majority tries to enact ironclad gold-standard legislation, it will find out the true sentiment of the country on the financial question."

Representative Henderson's candidacy for the Speakership may be hurt more than helped by the work that is being done in his behalf by the old soldier organizations, which are asking votes for him on the ground that he will organize the committees of the House so as to ensure more liberal pension legislation. It would seem to an unprejudiced observer that the country has already gone to the extreme limit in the matter of pension liberality, and the election of a Speaker who would favor going further in that direction would be regarded as anything else than a blessing outside of those who would receive the money or be directly benefitted by a further increase in the already enormous pension payments annually made by this government.

Kentucky republicans were perfectly willing to have the gold democrats vote with them to carry that state, but they are not willing to have the gold democrats rewarded with Federal offices, and they have, through Senator Debee, filed a vigorous protest with the administration against Senator Lindsay, of Ky. being allowed to name six out of the thirteen Census Supervisors the state is entitled to. Mr. McKinley has lost no opportunity to show his gratitude to the men without whose votes he would have been defeated, and the chances are that the original idea will be carried out, regardless of the protest.

The alacrity with which three of the big headed young office holders, Assistant Secretary Vanderlip, of the Treasury, Assistant Secretary Allen, of the Navy Department, and Assistant Postmaster General Perry Heath, appointed themselves a National committee to receive contributions that are being made all over the country to buy a home in Washington for Admiral Dewey was a little bit astonishing even to the old-timers who are accustomed to the freshness of the office holders of the Ass. brand. However, as their self made credentials seem to have been accepted by the country, the matter is only mentioned to show how easy it is for a man of gall to push himself along after he gets a little start. They were wise enough to elect Mr. Roberts, Treasurer of the U. S., treasurer of the Committee. Present indications are that much more than the price of the most expensive residence in Washington will be contributed.

Jim Dawson's Funeral

By Julia Truitt Bishop.

IT WAS evident to the most careful observer that a funeral was in progress at the Cross Roads church. True, even on preaching days the people sat on logs around the church door, or strayed among the graves and read the inscriptions with an air of gentle melancholy, waiting until the preacher was rounding the bend of the road on his old horse before they straggled into the church. But on this occasion there was a different air about the little group. Uncle Silas Benson sat on his accustomed log, and forebore to whittle as was his wont. Old man Bolivar, beside him, was staring thoughtfully at the ground with the air of one who reflects on the briefness of life and the absolute certainty of death for his neighbors. Mr. Teakwood had brought out a chair, and was sitting tilted back against the church wall, with his large hands clasping his knees. In the graveyard, just behind the church, the women were gathered, staring at that other woman who sat beside an open grave, separated from all except the large, yellow dog beside her.

"If this ain't jest like Jim Dawson," drawled George Smith to the group at the front of the church. "He ain't never been on time at airy appointment he's ever made, and here he is delayin' his own funeral."

"I don5t reckon Jim's in any hurry," returned Uncle Silas Benson, with a dry, inward chuckle. "I wouldn't rush none if I was in his place; I'd jest go slow."

The chuckle found instant response. A ripple of silent grins spread over the faces of the assembled mourners.

"What ye reckin it was that Jim died of?" threw out old Bolivar in a general way, at the same time taking off his hat and gazing mournfully into its depths.

"The man didn't know," drawled Mr. Teakwood, slipping by well-established right into his place of spokesman. "'Cordin' to what the man said, he jest slumped, Jim did. It come over him kind o' sudden—first time anything sudden ever struck him. He was a settin' on a box in front o' Skaggses old store; jest a-settin' there an' lookin' at the landscape like as if he'd made it hisself an' was powerful pleased with it—"

"If that wa'n't jest like Jim!" declared George Smith, with a note of distinct admiration in his voice.

"An' all at oncet he begin to slump, the man said, an' was dead before he teched the floor. So the man came on to let us know, so's we could have the grave ready."

"They was powerful good p'ints in Jim," said old man Bolivar, reflectively.

"Yes; I ain't never saw Jim have a fuss with nobody," ventured Mr. Teakwood. "The nighest he ever come to it, I reckin, was that time Buck Simpkins kicked that fetch-takid dog o' Jim's over at the Cross Roads. Jim got down offen the box he was a-settin' on, an' he looked at Buck for about a minute; an' he says: 'I've got a notion to hit ye!' An' then he clim back on the box, an' that's all they was of it."

"The las' time I seen Jim alive," returned old man Bolivar, "was yistidday mornin' when the sun was about a hour high. He was mounted on that little sorrel nag o' his'n an' was a moseyin' along to'ds town then. 'Hello, Jim,' says I. 'What you goin' to town for?' 'Well, I kinder thought I'd go up there an' look aroun',' says Jim. That's all Jim ever has done ever since I've knowed him. He's jes' been a-lookin' aroun'. But they wa'n't no harm in Jim."

The group of matrons, rounding the corner of the church just then, saw a prospect for diversion, and drew near.

"I wonder what Malviny's goin' to do, now that Jim's gone?" Mr. Teakwood asked of the foremost woman whose sunbrowned face was framed in a pink gingham bonnet. "I reckin she can't live there alone, jest her an' the yaller dog. A woman kinder needs a man about the house—to feed the horses—an' skeer away tramps, an'—seech like," he concluded rather lamely, for the matron's eye was fixed on him.

"Well, I reckon Malviny'll go on doin' the work, jest like she's always been adoin'," was the cutting answer. "I don't want to say no harm o' the dead, but Jim wa'n't no more good to Malviny than a tallered rag."

"Jim wa'n't no great shakes for work," admitted Mr. Teakwood cautiously; "but there wa'n't no harm in Jim—an' anyway, I wouldn't want to speak no harm of the dead."

"I recommember," said Uncle Silas Benson, whetting his knife on the sole of one shoe—"I recommember that when I had my log-rollin' las' spring Jim never got there till the las' log was done rolled and we was a fixin' to set down to supper; but I never laid it up ag'in him; an' anyhow, I wouldn't want to mention it, now he's dead. When a man's departed let him rest, an' pile on all the good you can think up about 'im."

There was a general murmur of assent—a murmur broken by an exclamation from two or three at once.

"They's somebody a-comin' over the hill!"

A moving figure was visible for a moment on the white patch of sandy road that crowned the summit of the distant hill. No doubt it was the advance guard of the approaching funeral. In an instant the group was broken up. Comfortable seats were deserted, and, with one accord, the mourners marched into the graveyard and stood around the open grave, every man with his hat in his hand. They looked half ashamed, as though the dead had found them criticising him.

The woman in the chair stood up and looked around. She had vaguely expected that she would be able to cry when the time came, but now she discovered, with something like disappointment, that she was not going to cry after all. The yellow dog with the cocked ears was listening.

The hoof-beats became audible; the dog gave a low whine and began to tremble. The little minister opened his book at the burial service, and kept his finger between the leaves to mark the place.

All at once the dog broke through the group and went bounding out at the open gate, leaping around and around the solitary horseman that pulled up there. For one awful moment the stoudest hearts among them beat faster. Uncle Silas Benson staggered back until his foot caught in a rope-like root, and he sat down unexectedly upon the heap of dirt that had been thrown up from Jim Dawson's grave. The others retreated to the back fence of the graveyard, taking the mounds in nimble leaps; and a few went skimming over the fence itself. Indeed, it is said that George Smith was seen no more until evening of the next day, when he straggled home, splattered and weary.

'ell, if this don't beat creation, Jim Dawson!" ejaculated Uncle Silas, who was the first to recover himself. "Here, make that blamed dog keep down! What d'ye mean by this, Jim, comin' back here alive when we was a-fixin' to bury ye?"

"I come to," replied Jim Dawson, weakly. It was his only explanation.

"Well, I wisht ye'd a-come to before I blistered my hands helpin' to dig that everlastin' grave for ye!" shouted Uncle Silas, irritably. "I ain't got no use for a man that don't know his own mind, even when it comes to dyin'."

"An' now somebody's got to go to work an' fill up that fetch-takid grave," said Mr. Teakwood, beginning to edge away toward his own horse. "O' course we couldn't leave it there, a-starin' everybody in the face whenever they looked out o' the winders, an' a-makin' 'em think it was a waitin' fur them. Whoa, there, Nance! Hold up your blamed head!"

"Well, I reckin' I'll be gittin' along to'ds home," said old man Bolivar, and he, too, stole off in the direction of his horse. "I promised Mandy I wouldn't be gone long—an' I wouldn't, either, if it 'ud 'a' been any other man than Jim Dawson."

THE HORSEMAN WAS JIM.

With one impulse there was a general move towards the horses and wagons, and, before the dog had ceased his wild jubilation, Jim Dawson and his wife and the dog were alone. Then Mrs. Dawson came into the road and walked swiftly away toward a cabin on the opposite hill.

"If you're a-comin' you'd better come on," she called curtly over her shoulder.

"You've put things off till it's powerful late, an' I've got to go home and git supper."

The rider turned his fascinated eyes from the yawning grave and the heap of red clay beside it, and followed slowly after. The dog trotted beside him, his red tongue hanging, his eyes on his master's face.

Jim Dawson sat down in the door of the cabin while his wife threw things about noisily in her preparations for supper.

"I couldn't help it neither way. Malviny," he began, a tremble of weakness running through his slow drawl. "I was a settin' there, not a-thinkin' of a thing in the world, when all at oncet I jest slumped; an' likewise I was a layin' there, not a-thinkin' of a thing in the world, when I come to. I'm sorry ye had all the trouble about gettin' the grave dug, an' goin' to the fun'ral—"

The timid, yearning note was in the soft drawl, but it brought no response from Malviny. A quicker ear than hers had heard. The dog, whose head had been on his master's knee, suddenly sprang higher and laid his awkward paws on Jim's breast, looking straight into his eyes as only a dog can look.

And then something dawned upon Jim Dawson's troubled consciousness. Surprise and something like exultation was in his voice as he muttered:

"Well, by Ned, the dog's glad I come to!"—Saturday Evening Post.

On a Strange Journey.

As some drivers of the royal artillery were at riding drill one day, one of the drivers' horses bolted with him, and was making his way toward the stables, when an officer met them.

"Where are you going?" inquired the officer.

"I don't know, sir!" shouted the driver, as he flew past. "Ask the horse!"—Spare Moments.

ARE OPENLY REBUKED.

Judge Simpson Tells the Cy Lyons Jury That Its Verdict in the Case Indicates a lack of Discernment.

Gentlemen of the jury, your verdict is certainly very complimentary to the orontory of the attorney who defended the case, but it is one that will cause the average man to have very little confidence in your discernment. You are discharged from further consideration in this case."

It was Judge Simpson who said this to the jury in the case of the state against Cy Lyons, charged with larceny from the person, at a dance at Harmonia Hall, after Frank M. Nye had delivered one of his best talks to the jury in defense, and a verdict of not guilty had been returned. The case had been tried once before and a disagreement had been reached, the majority of the jurors being for conviction.

This is the first case in 10 years that a jury has been openly rebuked in a criminal case by a judge of the district court. Indirectly a jury was rebuked last week, in a case of indecent assault upon a child, when Judge Simpson gave the maximum sentence, after the jury had recommended the prisoner to the mercy of the court, having found him guilty.—Minneapolis Tribune.

Another Version.

MAPLE PLAIN, Minn., May 22, 1899.

BUFFALO GAZETTE, Mr. Editor: "Are Openly Rebuked" is the heading of an article in the Minneapolis daily Tribune of 18th present month. Your correspondent with eleven true and tried men sat as a jury at Hennepin county court house to help try the case of the state of Minnesota against one Cy Lyons, charged with larceny from the person of a fellow by the name of Dodge It was for the taking of a pocket book from said Dodge on the evening of January 11th 1899 said to contain $5.50. The theft is said to have been committed at a bartender's dance given at Harmonia Hall in the city of Minneapolis on the above named evening. After the evidence for the prosecution and the defense was all in and the summing up of the case by the attorneys and the charge given to the jury by the judge we retired to the jury room to deliberate and to weigh the evidence, after a careful and thoughtful manner. After so doing we returned a verdict of not guilty, for the reason the state's evidence was not strong enough to warrant a conviction beyond a reasonable doubt, for which Judge Simpson gave us the following roast if you please to call it:

"Gentlemen of the Jury, your verdict is certainly very complimentary to the oratory of the attorney who defended the case but it is one that will cause the average man to have very little confidence in your discernment. You are discharged from further consideration in this case".

We had supposed we were the jury but one might infer from the above language Mr. Simpson was both Judge and Jury. We have the article filed away for future reference which may come handy in the political campaign of 1900. We could very easily enlarge on this case but it is not necessary. The only thing for us to consider was the state's evidence strong enough to convince us beyond a reasonable doubt of Cy Lyon's guilt, and we said it was not.

It was intimated in and around the court room that Frank M. Nye's oratory had worked an influence upon the jury to bring in a verdict of not guilty. While I have the greatest respect for Mr. Nye as a man, also his ability and oratory, I do not believe his oratory had the least effect of influencing that jury in the acquital of Cy Lyons. I am certain it did not. Cy Lyons had been unfortunate as it so happened, to have served a short term in the states prison at Stillwater, but his previous character was not to be taken in evidence in this case; it was for us to determine by the evidence whether or not he stole the pocketbook.

While on this line it might be well to make mention of the evil influences that surround the youth in our large cities (but mind you we do not introduce this as evidence). People will more or less conform to their surroundings, especially the young. Now if the good people of Minneapolis want to protect society why do they allow such a thing as a bartender's ball to exist, right in the heart of the city to demoralize and fill a whole community with stench and contamination, where they congregate to fill their bellies with liquor poison from the still, and with blasphemous words, swing in the gay dance and blow their vile breath upon the cheek of the fair daughters of Minneapolis?

Now Mr. Editor, I am done, but when the great trumpet shall be blown calling the people to assemble and prepare for the greatest political campaign the world ever knew, that of the year 1900, I will resurrect from my political archives the open rebuke of Judge Simpson to the jury in the Cy Lyons case and paste it upon the lintels of the door posts, so he that runneth may read.

"There is one glory of the sun and another glory of the moon and another glory of the stars for one star differeth from another star in glory." And so the jury in the Cy Lyons case differeth from the Hon. Judge.

Most of the jury had their minds made up when the state rested, and knew they could not convict on that evidence.

ONE OF THE JURY.

In felling a number of magnificent oak trees on the Lawrence estate at Cottage farm, one of the suburbs of Boston, Mass., the other day workmen found imbedded in the wood large quantities of grape shot. Some one wanted to know the opinion of a Cumberland county (Pa.) farmer on the question: Is marriage a failure? His reply was: "I should say not. To the extent of agreeing to an armistice Maj. Gen. Otis has declined to recognize the Filipinos, but he has notified the American commanders to refrain temporarily from aggressive action. Thus he is in a position to resume hostilities at any time. The insurgent commissioners say that they are without power to bind the so-called Filipino government in any particular, and can only refer any results of the present negotiations to Aguinaldo.

Admiral Dewey said before leaving Manila for home: "I believe that we are near the end. The insurgents are fast going to pieces. The sending of a third commission shows that they have had enough."

Fire destroyed the town of Porosow, Russia, and 12 lives were lost and 3,000 people were made homeless.

TO DISCUSS PEACE.

Opening Session of the Conference at The Hague.

Congratulations Telegraphed to the Czar—M. De Staal in the Chair—American Members of Committees.

The Hague, May 19.—The peace conference called by the czar of Russia was opened at two o'clock Thursday afternoon in the hall of the Huis Ten Bosch, or the "House in the Woods," two miles from The Hague.

M. De Beaufort, president of the council, minister of foreign affairs of the government of the Netherlands, delivered the inaugural address and welcomed the delegates.

Congratulations to the Czar.

The delegates decided to send the following telegram to the czar:

"The peace conference lays at the feet of your majesty its respectful congratulations upon the occasion of your birthday, and expresses its sincere desire to cooperate in the great and noble work in which your majesty has taken a generous initiative and for which it begs you to accept its humble and profound gratitude."

M. De Staal, the Russian ambassador to Great Britain and head of the Russian delegation, then informally assembled the presidency of the conference.

Message to Queen Wilhelmina.

After making his address, M. De Staal, in behalf of the conference, telegraphed to the queen of the Netherlands as follows:

"The members of this conference assembled for the first time in this beautiful Huis Ten Bosch hasten to lay at the feet of your majesty their best wishes, praying you to accept their homage and gratitude for the hospitality you have graciously deigned to offer them."

The reading of the message was warmly applauded.

M. De Beaufort was appointed honorary president and the leading Dutch delegate, A. P. C. Van Karnobeck, former minister of foreign affairs and deputy, was appointed vice president.

After the appointment of nine secretaries, M. De Staal's proposal that the sessions be secret was adopted. The conference then adjourned.

The session lasted only 25 minutes, and the apparent unanimity displayed was considered to augur well for the outcome.

McKinley to Nicholas.

Washington, May 19.—The following cablegram has been addressed by the president to the emperor of Russia on the occasion of the opening of the disarmament conference:

"Washington, D. C., May 18, 1899.—To His Majesty, Nicholas II., Emperor of all the Russias, St. Petersburg: On this day of good omen I send my heartfelt congratulations on the opening of the conference at The Hague, which had its origin in the enlightened and generous initiative of your majesty.

(Signed) "WILLIAM M'KINLEY."

Second Day's Session.

The Hague, May 23. — The second sitting of the peace conference took place Saturday morning and lasted 35 minutes.

The president of the conference, Baron De Staal, read the replies of the czar and Queen Wilhelmina to the telegrams sent them by the conference on Thursday.

The president proposed the adoption of arrangements for the committees, which was agreed to without discussion. Baron De Staal further proposed that, although the principle of secrecy should be maintained, communications might be made through the press bureau, subject to the approval of the president. This was also adopted.

American Members of Committees.

The American members of the committees are as follows:

Disarmament—Messrs. White, Mahan and Crozier.

Laws of War—Messrs. White, Newell, Mahan and Crozier.

BLOWN TO ATOMS.

Explosion of a Tank of Nitroglycerin at Aetna, Ind., Kills Three Workmen.

Chicago, May 23.—Three Chicago employes of the Aetna Powder company, at Aetna, Ind., were blown to atoms in the explosion of a tank of nitroglycerin Sunday night. The dead are Frank Ebler, aged 19; Sam Errick, aged 24; Charles Morris, aged 27. A pipe leading from the engine burst, igniting some sawdust and leaves near a flue leading into the room containing the nitroglycerin tank. Not a vestige of the building remains, and up to sundown Monday the bodies nor any portion of them had been recovered.

Near a Settlement.

Havana, May 23.—The Cuban arms question is apparently nearing a complete and rapid settlement. The payment and dispersal of half of the armed bands that have been voluntarily or involuntarily quartered on the country will begin, according to the present programme, next Saturday in this city. Monday Gov. Gen. Brooke and Gen. Maximo Gomez had what both consider a final interview on the question of surrendering the arms. At the end of two hours and a half devoted to the examination of the payment order, Gen. Gomez said he was entirely satisfied, and felt convinced that the order met all the objections which had been raised, not only by himself, but also by those outside his councils.

Pana Trouble Settled.

Pana, Ill., May 20.—As a result of the meeting of the coal mine operators, the state board of arbitration and United Mine Workers' officials, an agreement was formed late Friday afternoon which will settle the long drawn-out struggle between union miners and operators. A complete settlement, by agreement, which was signed by all members of both factions, gives the union organization recognition, and decides that all negroes shall leave the city, and only union men be employed.

Death of a Veteran.

St. Louis, May 23.—Brig. Gen. Christian D. Wolff, a veteran of the Mexican and civil wars, is dead, aged 71. He was one of the oldest and best known citizens of St. Louis county. In the Mexican war he served with distinction, and when the civil war broke out he organized a company of volunteers. Before the close of the war President Lincoln appointed him a brigadier general of volunteers.

HOMEWARD BOUND.

Admiral Dewey and the Flagship Olympia Leave Manila Amid Cheers and Salutes.

Manila, May 22.—Amid the booming of big guns, the cheers from thousands of lusty throats and the strains of martial music the cruiser Olympia, with Admiral Dewey aboard, sailed from Manila Saturday afternoon on its homeward voyage. Merchant ships and the big British cruiser Powerful joined in the noisy demonstration, while the forts at Manila and Cavite roared out farewell salutes to the man who had one year ago defied their deadly fire.

The Olympia will proceed to Hong-Kong, where she will be docked, cleaned and generally overhauled. With her war paint covered over by the coat of white, the official color of the United States warships, she will resume the long voyage for home, by way of the Suez canal.

Just before sailing Admiral Dewey said if he could have consulted his inclination he would have remained here till peace was established. His health, however, demanded his return. One of the things that touched him most among all the expressions of feeling from the people at home, he said, was the raising of a subscription in his native state to build a bronze statue of himself to be placed in the state house at Montpelier, opposite a statue of Ethan Allen.

Speaking of the situation, Admiral Dewey said: "I believe that we are near the end. The insurgents are fast going to pieces. The sending of a third commission shows that they believe that this commission means business."

SWEPT BY FIRE.

Flames Destroy Property Worth $2,000,000 at Dawson City, Alaska—Buildings Burned Number 111.

Victoria, B. C., May 22.—The main portion of the city of Dawson was destroyed by fire on April 26, causing a loss of about $2,000,000. In all 111 buildings, including the Bank of British North America, were burned. The news was brought down by L. S. Hume, a son of Mayor Hume, of Seattle, J. Toklas and a third party who left Dawson on April 27 and made their way out by canoe to Lake Lebarge and then over the ice, having a most perilous trip.

The fire consumed everything from Timmons' Royal cafe down to opposite the Fairview hotel, this building being as dry as tinder. The flames spread with such rapidity that the citizens appeared panic stricken and unable to save anything in the way of furniture, goods and clothing. The fire was caused by a drunken woman upsetting a lamp in a notorious house.

About $1,000,000 in gold and paper money is said to have been lost by the two Canadian banks, the fireproof vault of the Bank of British North America having belied its name. There is a probability, however, that much of the gold will be recovered, for before the ashes had time to cool the manager of the bank secured miners to search them.

CURRENCY REFORM.

An Outline of the Scheme Agreed Upon by the House Republican Caucus Committee.

Washington, May 22.—It is understood that the house republican committee appointed to frame a scheme of currency reform has agreed upon a measure along the following lines:

The redemption of all obligations of the government in gold on demand.

Greenbacks, when once redeemed for gold, to be reissued only for gold.

Permitting national banks to issue notes to the par value of their government bonds deposited in the treasury, instead of 90 per cent., as at present.

Permitting the minimum capital of national banks to be $25,000, instead of $50,000, as at present.

This plan is much less comprehensive than ardent advocates of general currency revision have urged, but was adopted because harmonious agreement on it was possible, which was not the case when more radical measures were suggested.

Model Town to End.

Chicago, May 23.—By circuit court decree Pullman's Palace Car company has five years in which to dispose of the 1,200 residences in the model town of Pullman, the 16 acres of vacant lots in the town, the 50 acres of streets, alleys and parks, the gas, water and sewerage works, the Hotel Florence, two churches, the theater, the Arcade building and the market hall. The company is given one year in which to cease to exercise all municipal functions—that is, the operating of water, gas, steam and sewerage plants. Within one year also it must dispose of the Pullman Iron & Steel company.

Refuses to Withdraw.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 22.—Dr. A. T. McGiffert, of the Union theological seminary, by letter presented his compliments to the Presbyterian general assembly and refused to comply with its request of last year. That request was that he should modify his attitude on doctrinal matters expressed in his "Christian Church in the Apostolic Age," or else withdraw from the church. Instead of modifying his views he declares that he is in accord with Presbyterian doctrine on all vital points and far from withdrawing declares that he cannot withdraw.

Warship Reported Sunk.

Washington, May 22.—The president discussed Sunday night with Secretary of State Hay a report which reached the white house from an unofficial source that the Detroit had been fired upon in Nicaraguan waters by a war vessel, said to be a Nicaraguan gunboat, and that the Detroit promptly responded and had sunk the Nicaraguan vessel. Secretary Hay had not heard the report officially and could not throw any light on the rumor.

Declared Off.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 23.—The grain shovelers' strike has been settled. The agreement signed late Monday night by a subcommittee representing the strikers, of which President Keefe, of the Longshoremen's association, was a member and Contractor Conners, has been approved by the full committee of the Grain Shovelers' union. The strike is to be declared off and the men will return to work Wednesday morning.

Famous Actress Dead.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 23.—Word was received Monday of the death of Mlle. Rhea, the well-known actress, in Montmorenci, France.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Decides Against the State.

The secretary of the interior has decided a claim of Minnesota to sections 16 and 36 on ceded Indian reservations.

The contention of the state through the state auditor and through the written statements from Senators Davis and Nelson was that sections 16 and 36 were never intended as part of the Indian reservations in Minnesota; that by virtue of constitutional provisions the state is entitled to these sections for school land purposes.

Secretary Hitchcock holds that under existing treaties with the Indians and under the congressional enactment of 1862 the United States is under obligation to the Indians who relinquished these and other lands of the reservation under the terms of the Nelson act. It is further claimed by the department that at the time the treaty was first made the lands were unsurveyed and that the state could have no legal claim to them; also that there are precedents showing that the government is bound to keep inviolate its stipulations under their provisions of treaties with the Indians.

This decision will not settle the controversy. A test case is now being prepared and will be brought in the courts.

Weekly Crop Bulletin.

Warm weather till the 11th, and very cold since then, with frost on the morning of the 13th, the full effect of which was probably much modified by the high wind. Notwithstanding the fact that thin ice was formed in sheltered spots, it is thought that there has been little injury. The apples and plums are in full bloom, and some correspondents fear they may be seriously affected, but it is generally accepted that the fruit germ in an open and dry blossom will survive quite low temperatures. There were rains in nearly all parts of the state on the 9th, and showers on following days, but the rains were all local in character. The heaviest rains were in parts of the Red River valley. Snow flurries occurred in northern counties on the 12th. The soil of the Red River valley continues to be very wet, and although there were from two to four days' seeding last week, large areas will remain unseeded to wheat, so that the acreage of spring wheat will be much reduced.

Pastures are yielding sufficient grass to support cattle. All the early sown small grains have a good stand, and they are stooling; they look well.

Many Applications.

The request for loans made of the state board of investment at its recent meeting aggregated $150,000. This includes the counties which desire to bond their floating indebtedness, as well as municipalities and villages after loans for permanent improvements such as electric lighting plants, water works, schoolhouses, etc. The sale of school lands has brought the balance on hand in this fund to nearly half a million.

The board includes in its membership the governor, the state treasurer, the chief justice of the supreme court, the state auditor and the president of the board of regents of the university. It is given entire responsibility for the management of the permanent school fund.

Buys a Railroad.

The main line of the Wisconsin, Minnesota & Pacific, running from Red Wing to Mankato, has been brought under the control of the Chicago Great Western.

President A. B. Stickney, of the Great Western, and a few associated capitalists have just completed negotiations for the purchase of the property, and will take possession June 1.

The road was owned by Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific interests, and is operated at present as part of the Minneapolis & St. Louis line.

The main line is 93.7 miles long, and is considered a valuable property on account of its large local business, especially in dairy and agricultural products.

Judson N. Cross.

The Minnesota State Forestry association nominated Judson N. Cross of Minneapolis to be its representative on the state forestry board, under the new forestry reserves law. The other members of the board will be the chief fire warden, the professor of horticulture at the university, and three members to be named by the university regents. H. B. Ayers stated that the losses by fire in this state, especially west of the Mississippi, had been heavier than had been appreciated.

News in Brief.

Mrs. Martin Trzebiatowski was instantly killed by throwing herself in front of a train on the Milwaukee road just as it was entering Winona.

Dr. Charles A. Wheaton, of St. Paul, has resigned his position as professor of surgery at the state university.

The young son of Carmen N. Smith was drowned at Lake Minnetonka.

Congressman Tawney has appointed James G. Beyers, of Winona, as cadet to West Point, and Fred G. Budlong of Rochester as alternate. In percentage Beyers was really not as high as Bedlong, but the fact that he served in the Spanish war was in his favor.

It is reported the Minneapolis & St. Louis road will put in a town about two miles from Triumph, on the Northwestern road.

Ora Harry, a brakeman, was thrown from the top of a car at Fosston and his right leg was nearly severed above the knee.

Mail messenger service has been established at Wyle, Red Lake county, Minnesota, and at Bancroft, Kingsbury county, South Dakota.

The supervising architect has notified Congressman Fletcher that the plans for the addition to the Minneapolis postoffice would be ready by June 1.

The contract is closed with Goodspeed & Zook of Bloomfield, Iowa, for a fifty-barrel flour mill at Hayfield, to be in operation by Oct. 1.

The Redwood Falls roller mills are now being remodeled and the capacity increased from 75 to 150 barrels of flour daily.

The Old Settlers' Association of Stearns and adjoining counties will meet in St. Cloud on June 6. It will be the fourth annual meeting, and much interest is centered on the occasion.

Trafford N. Jayne, lawyer and trustee for several estates in Minneapolis, is missing, and a large shortage remains. Mr. Jayne was prominent in church work, and stood high in the community.

The Blind Goddess.

Intensely modern is the new murder story by Randall Irving Tyler, entitled "The Blind Goddess." There is, it seems, evolution in murder stories as well as in everything else.

Those who read Tyler's "Four Months After Date," and said the book was clever though perhaps weighted down with business transactions, will find in "The Blind Goddess," just issued, a novel drawn in a new vein, but full of dramatic climaxes. To bring home the thoughts it contains to many who never read murder stories, incidents are used familiar to all who have followed the recent poison cases.

The prosecuting officer's theory of the crime, the appalling accusation of the innocent daughter of one of the murdered men, the web of circumstantial evidence around and against a man of unblemished character, who is also accused, the defenseless position both of these people occupy before the coroner, the subsequent indictment without a hearing before a magistrate—all these things make the reader think.

The underlying motive for the crime introduces a diversion in the person of an adventuress, for whose presence no apology is offered, as it turns out that she is the real culprit.

The occasional glimpses of an exclusive social circle, the charming heroine Helen Brownell, the strong willed but intensely human Sanford Crane, offer opportunities for Mr. Tyler's ability in character sketching which he has not neglected; even the adventuress challenges admiration at times by the boldness and coldness of her method.

The title, as will be readily understood, applies to the more serious side of the novel, which has to do with prosecution for capital crime; but the well-handled romance running through it all and the satisfactory denouement make "The Blind Goddess" a marvelously entertaining book, running over with surprises in its movement and its literary style. It is more than absorbing; it is compelling. Stuyvesant Publishing Company, New York; cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

When a Vase Is a Varse.

"Fifty cents for this beautiful little vase," called the auctioneer; "going, going for 50. Do I hear 55 for this beautiful little vase?" and no one thought anything about the auctioneer or the vase which went for 50 cents until another one was put up, an immense affair of cloisonne. "Now we will show you an exquisite piece, not to be duplicated in this country," he went on. "An exquisite cloisonne varse—" and there the Wellesley girl said excitedly to her companion: "Now, that is what I call true Boston culture. Would you expect a man of that kind to make such a delicate distinction? He must have been educated at a woman's college. When he is selling a 50-cent article he says vase in the ordinary way, with the long sound of 'a,' but when he comes to a big piece of cloisonne, it is varse, with the broad 'a' every time. That is according to rule. Over ten dollars in price you find a varse, but under that nothing but an ordinary, everyday vase."—N. Y. Times.

GENTLE showers, and sunshine fair,
Ask of Earth her blossoms rare.
Zephyrs, whisper in her ear
Words which she will wake to hear.

Sunbeams, warm her loving breast
Till she grant us our request:
Tell her 'tis the month of May—
Month of our Memorial day.

Flowers we ask—for soldiers brave.
Flowers to strew on every grave:
Now your choicest garlands lend,
Gifts to father, brother, friend—

Husband, son and lover—all
Who marched forth at Freedom's call.
Flag and blossom, prayer and tear,
Smiles and songs, from year to year,

In their memory will be brought,
Telling of their battles fought,
Till the last grand reveille
Wakes their shouts of victory!
—Pearl Marie Dunn, in Midland Monthly.

GOOD morning, Capt. Baker; I thought I'd come over and see you," and Dorothy came dancing up the path to the narrow porch where the old soldier sat. "I've just moved into the big house across the street, and somebody told me you used to be a soldier, so I thought I'd come over and ask you how you enjoyed the war?"

The captain looked somewhat taken aback. "Well, I don't know as I can exactly say as I enjoyed it, Miss—Miss—"

"Dorothy—Dorothy Seaton," interposed his caller.

"Miss Dorothy; but I stood it as well as I could until I got a bullet in my leg," and the captain chuckled at his innocent joke.

"Oh, how dreadful!" Dorothy cried: "did the bullet hurt?"

"Well, bullets mostly do hurt," admitted the captain. Just then a figure appeared in the open doorway behind, and Dorothy looked up.

"How do you do, Mrs. Baker," she said, politely: "I thought I'd come over and call on the captain this morning."

Mrs. Baker laughed. "Why, he ain't a captain," she cried, in surprised amusement.

But Dorothy's equanimity was undisturbed. "I know he isn't," she answered, calmly; "but I was asking mamma what people were called that went to war, and she said generals and privates and colonels and captains. I thought captain was the prettiest name, and I didn't believe Mr. Baker would mind if I called him that."

"No, I guess he don't mind," his wife agreed, grimly.

"He was telling me some stories about the war and the bullet he got in his leg; it must have hurt him awfully."

"Now don't you go to tellin' that child any stories about all the dreadful things that ever happened to you." Mrs. Baker suddenly turned upon the lately titled captain, who murmured, hastily: "I wa'n't goin' to," for the captain's pride would have kept him silent about his cork leg, even had he not with his own sympathetic nature understood a child's sensitiveness.

"The captain's leg must have hurt him very much, but it's nice he didn't get killed in the war," Dorothy suggested, desiring to say something propitiatory to the formidable Mrs. Baker. But this was evidently not exactly the right thing.

"Well, if he'd died somebody might 'a got that pension money he didn't seem to know how to get," and Mrs. Baker sniffed over Dorothy's head at her husband.

"Now, Miranda, that wa'n't my fault," the captain protested; but this, instead of quieting Miranda, only started her, to Dorothy's great dismay, with new vehemence on this most distressing and confusing subject. It was not until the captain said, with gentle but impressive dignity: "There, there, Miranda, that'll do before our neighbors," that his wife subsided and went into the house.

Dorothy breathed a little more freely when she was gone, and tried to think of some fitting and comforting remark.

"It's too bad you haven't got a little girl, captain," she said, after a healing silence since Mrs. Baker's retirement.

"I did have one once; I'll show you her picture," and the captain drew from his worn vest pocket a little black case and displayed to Dorothy a picture. The little girl represented was not exactly pretty in Dorothy's estimation, and her hair was done in a most wonderful manner.

"Is she grown up now?" Dorothy asked.

The captain sighed and slipped the case back into his pocket. "No," he said, "she died while I was off at the war."

"Mrs. Baker must have felt dreadfully bad, too," Dorothy ventured, rather doubtful as to the effect of grief on one of that lady's temperament.

"Oh, she wasn't Susie's mother." Then in response to Dorothy's surprised look he went quickly on: "Her mother died right after the war and I married again." Why did the captain sigh? "The present Mrs. Baker," he added, loyally, "is a very fine woman and a hard worker. She does a great deal for me, and I ought to be very thankful."

"Oh, yes, of course," Dorothy responded, in quick sympathy. "I think she seems very fond of"—she hesitated—"of talking."

A sudden twinkle came into the captain's gentle eyes, but he heard a step in the hallway and hastily changed the topic of conversation.

"I hope you'll come and see me real often; I git kinder lonesome sometimes," he said, and Dorothy, who had also heard the step, rose hastily to go.

"Yes, I'll come and see you," she said, nodding brightly at him. "Mamma said you couldn't walk very far, so I'll try and come most every day." A prompt acceptance of all invitations was one of Dorothy's marked characteristics.

Mrs. Baker stood in the doorway and Dorothy turned upon the lowest step to say in her sweet voice: "Good-by, Present Mrs. Baker," then lightly went down the walk, leaving to the captain the demanded explanation of his wife's new title.

"I've got a new friend," Dorothy announced at luncheon, for at luncheon Dorothy had conversational right of way; at dinner time it was different. "He's an old soldier and he's got rheumatism in one leg and a bullet in the other, but he's very pleasant and he wants me to come and see him every day. Once he had a little girl he loved very much, and he says she looked like me. Her picture isn't very pretty and her hair's done up in funny little braids, but he says she was a very nice little girl, so of course I'm glad I look like her. He's got a wife, too, the Present Mrs. Baker," with great empressement, "and she's rather—rather exhaustin' when she talks, and she doesn't like it 'cause the captain doesn't get any pen—pencil money. What is pencil money?" After receiving a simple explanation of the pension system Dorothy went on. "She says it was his fault he didn't get the pension money, and they need it dreadfully to make both sides meet, and she has to work her fingers to the bone—really she looks quite fat—'cause"—but here Dorothy was silenced and told that if she gossiped about her captain neighbor she could not go to see him any more.

The acquaintance that Dorothy had begun grew more delightful and intimate as time went on. Dorothy became very fond of her captain for a number of reasons; first, because he told such wonderful stories; then because his wife was not more polite, because he had a bullet in his leg and could not get a pension, and last, but not least, because he always called her Miss Dorothy, which seemed flattering from a man of his age and war experience.

THE CAPTAIN'S LEG SEEMED COMING TOWARD HER.

Mr. Baker's love for Dorothy was founded on quite as good reasons. In the first place, everybody loved Dorothy, and a tender-hearted old man could prove no exception to this rule; then she reminded him of his lost little girl, was a solace to him after the stormy ways of Present Mrs. Baker, and, finally, it was undeniably delightful to an humble private to be addressed as captain.

But there came a sudden interruption to this friendship one fair spring day. The captain had taken his usual constitutional within the limits of his small garden and was removing his rubbers on the front porch—for he was a careful man, and always wore both galoshes despite his cork foot, partly for appearance's sake, partly because he feared lest some dampness traveling up his cork leg might surreptitiously enter his rheumatic system. Now the captain being also a stout man was finding great difficulty in removing his footgear and was puffing and laboring when Dorothy appeared walking up the path.

"Oh, Capt. Baker," she cried, "how red your face is! Let me help you!" and before the breathless captain could remonstrate she was sitting on the step below tugging bravely at the obstinate rubber. But for some strange reason it was hard to remove and Dorothy exerted her strength, which was by no means small, for a final effort. She heard something snap, the captain called, "Take care!" and horror of horrors! Dorothy found herself pulling off not merely the rubber but the boot, and indeed the captain's very leg seemed coming toward her. With an awful shriek Dorothy sprang to her feet and fled down the garden path; she heard Present Mrs. Baker come to the door and what seemed like a malicious burst of laughter was borne after her as she sped up the drive to her own home.

She burst into the reception room and flung herself on her mother with wild sobs. "Oh, mamma," she cried, "send for the doctor, quick, quick! The captain's leg was cracked in the war and I've broken it right off! I believe his wife's glad, 'cause she'd get the pension money if he should die. Oh, my dear, dear captain, don't let me kill him! Oh, send for the doctor! do send for the doctor!" And Dorothy's words ended in a long crescendo wail.

It was some time before explanations could be given, and Dorothy ceased her cries and understood that the captain had lost his own leg in the war and now had a cork leg, which was strapped on every morning and taken off every night, and that perhaps the strap was old and broken and Dorothy's sudden tug had loosened or broken it.

It was supposed she would soon run smiling over to call on the captain, but for some time Dorothy neither visited nor spoke of him. When she went by his house and saw him in the garden or on the porch she would nod and smile gravely, but she no longer socially tripped up the path and seated herself familiarly on the steps.

But as the soldiers' day drew near, Dorothy felt as though there must be a reconciliation between herself and her captain friend. Decoration day, as a rule, was not made much of in this small town. But this year was to be more impressive. A dignitary from Washington, who chanced to be visiting near, was to make an open-air speech by the soldiers' monument, and since he was afterward to be entertained at Dorothy's home there was much said about the coming celebration.

Of late Dorothy had not had her usual conversational opportunity at luncheon, so that it was rather difficult for her to accomplish her desire to carry the flowers she had picked to the town hall, where they might be taken in charge by the committee. But on Decoration day, at the last moment before the procession started for the cemetery, her mother sent Dorothy with a message to her father at the hall, and Dorothy seized this opportunity to take her great bunch of apple blossoms and garden japonica in the carriage with her. There was much bustle when she reached the hall; boys were running hither and thither and men were looking businesslike and hurried. Dorothy was not intending to intrust her commission to any boy; she walked straight up to the most distinguished person to be seen, a great man in brass buttons, gilt cord and gold lace, and smiling in sweet consciousness offered him the flowers.

"If you please, I should like to have these flowers put on Capt. Baker's grave," she said.

The man smiled back into the wide, brown eyes below the flowered hat brim. "And who was Capt. Baker, my little lady?" he asked, graciously.

Dorothy did not notice the change of tense. "He's a great friend of mine," she said, in happy pride, "and he lives right near my house."

The gentleman stared at her in amazement. "Why, I thought you wanted to put these flowers on his grave?" he exclaimed.

"Oh, yes," Dorothy hastened to explain, "but not on the grave of the whole of him; he only lost part of him in the war. I thought if you remembered the people that were all killed you ought to remember the others that were some killed. I wanted you to put these flowers on his leg's grave."

The gentleman was smelling the flowers and did not answer at once.

"You see," Dorothy eagerly went on, "he's quite an old man, and he couldn't be a farmer after he had a cork"—a bitter memory returned—"a cork leg, and they didn't even give him a pension, and they ought to, for he's a very nice man, and needs it more than lots of folks that get it, papa says."

The gentleman lifted his face from the flowers now. "But where is his leg buried?" he asked.

Dorothy looked disappointed. "I don't know," she answered sadly. "I asked mamma once, and she said she didn't know, but I thought some of you would be able to find it."

"Why, Dorothy," said her father's voice behind, "where did you come from?" Then Dorothy gave him her mother's message, and when the gentleman said he was coming to her house after the celebration and would talk about the captain and his pension, Dorothy rode home in a very contented frame of mind.

She gathered another great bunch of white, wide apple blossoms and bright scarlet flowers, and started for a visit to the neglected captain. He sat by the window this Decoration day in a most despondent mood. It was quite true, as Mrs. Baker said, that if he had had more push and assurance he might long since have obtained his well-deserved pension, and now made much more impression on the army men of this town; but the captain was always a retiring man, and sickness and age had not made him more self-confident. What with his physical pain from his rheumatism and his heart's sorrow at his lack of ability, he was beginning to feel like a very old soldier now, and he answered with unusual impatience to Mrs. Baker's twentieth twitting remark: "I wish to gracious I was dead with the rest of the soldiers."

Then he went out on the porch, and there was Dorothy coming across the road with her beautiful bunch of flowers. She came straight for his gate and up his garden path, and the face of the old captain brightened like the face of one thankful for a long and happy life.

"How do you do, Capt. Baker," Dorothy's sweet voice said. "I thought I'd come over and joyful you up, 'cause it's Decoration day," and the little lady held out her hand as a sign of forgetfulness and reconciliation.

The captain shook it warmly. "It's real good of you to remember an old soldier, Miss Dorothy," he said, heartily.

"That's more'n anybody else does," Mrs. Baker murmured sourly from the door.

Dorothy turned toward her with a bright smile. She had learned to appreciate the present Mrs. Baker's excellent qualities despite her fondness for talking. "It's a very pleasant day, isn't it?" she questioned, cheerfully.

Mrs. Baker nodded and smiled faintly.

"There's a man that lives in Washington coming to our house to-night, Present Mrs. Baken, and I'm going to talk to him about the captain's money pension."

"I think this gentleman will see about it, I really do," Dorothy added in eager interest, "and papa thinks you ought to have it, Capt. Baker."

Capt. Baker flushed. "Well, I don't know," he said.

"Now you jest keep still," Mrs. Baker said, as she went into the house, and from force of habit the captain was silent.

"Wouldn't you really like to have it?" Dorothy questioned; "I think it would make Present Mrs. Baker feel real pleasant."

The captain nodded thoughtfully. "So it would Miss Dorothy," he admitted, "so it would."

"I was sorry you couldn't go to the cemetery and see them decorate the graves," Dorothy said, in abrupt change of subject. "Some folks think it's very interesting."

"Why didn't you go?" the captain asked, suddenly.

Dorothy flushed. "I—I thought p'r'aps you might be lonesome."

The captain coughed spasmodically. "Bless my soul!" he cried, huskily, "bless my soul!" and then he got up and limped to the end of the little porch.

"Oh, captain," cried Dorothy, "see the procession! They're marching right down this way. Oh, do come and see!"

The captain came to Dorothy's side to look at the advancing column. Dorothy dashed into the house to call Mrs. Baker, and together the three stood, Dorothy waving her flowers, Mrs. Baker her apron and the captain his stick as the soldier boys came down the road. They marched on for a little distance, then suddenly lined up on either side of the street with a salute.

"Oh!" cried Dorothy, "they're stopping right in front of your house, Capt. Baker. Isn't it lovely?"

Then down between the ranks of men came the carriage bearing Dorothy's father and the chief man of the day, and stopped directly in front of the captain's little house. Mrs. Baker hid in the doorway, and the captain himself would have run away, but for his game leg and Dorothy holding him fast. Then the great man from Washington stood up in the carriage and spoke about Soldier Baker's bravery in the war, and how it would be more materially rewarded. ("That means the pension," Mrs. Baker whispered from the doorway), and how he had lost a leg in the service of his country—(Dorothy was afraid that might hurt the captain's feelings) and the speech ended with the words: "Though today be a memorial of the dead, let it also be a time of honor for the living." And then some boy in bright uniform came to take from the carriage a bouquet, and walking up the path, presented it to Capt. Baker with a military salute, which the captain returned in excellent fashion. "Oh," cried Dorothy, when she recognized the bouquet she had taken to the hall. "I'm afraid they didn't find the grave;" but nobody heard the remark, for a deafening shout arose as the troops gave three times three for brave Soldier Baker. Thereupon the great man rose again, and it was the captain's turn to prevent Dorothy from running away, for they cheered for little Miss Seaton with a hearty will. Then the carriage moved on and the soldiers formed into line and marched away, saluting as they passed, and leaving three flushed and smiling people on the captain's little porch.

"Now I call that real nice," Mrs. Baker said, enthusiastically, and there was a suspicious moisture in her hard eyes.

The captain drew a great breath and sank down into his piazza chair. "They didn't forget an old soldier," he said, holding his bouquet tightly.

Dorothy laughed happily. "I must go home now, Capt. Baker," she said, "I haven't been to see you very much lately, but I'm coming oftener now. I brought you these other flowers because—because you lost your little girl when you were in the war, and they will remember you of her."

"Bless my soul!" ejaculated the captain, "bless my soul!" Then as Dorothy went down the path he muttered, nodding between his two great bouquets: "I declare if I ain't glad I'm a live soldier, after all."—Frances Bent Dillingham, in Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

OUR DEAD.

Origin of Decoration Day.

In the early years following the close of the civil war, it became customary for the returned soldiers to gather in the cemeteries and place flags upon the graves of their fallen comrades. This was a patriotic and appropriate remembrance of the heroes of unwitten history, though, naturally, it affected but a limited portion of any community. But this ceremony, followed year after year, in due time was united with the efforts of citizens to show their appreciation of martial bravery. Flowers were introduced, while citizens and soldiers joined in a parade, where flying flags, the fife and the drum, with varied public exercises, made an appeal not alone to sentiment but to the patriotism of all.

UPROARIOUS APPAREL.

That Worn by the Young Man of the Period Would Make Solomon Look Like Thirty Cents.

Some hopeful people had an idea last summer that the limit had about been reached in the loud colors of men's attire, in shirts, ties, hosiery and soft hats, and that this summer might see a return to more placid and subdued hues and patterns as a sort of reaction. The advance styles in the windows of the haberdashers' shops indicate that such hopes are vain and that linen and things will this year be even more startling than last season, if that be possible. Some of the shirts on display in the windows seem to actually shriek through the glass at the observer, and the width of the stripes is of the general style and pattern so long popular at Joliet penitentiary. These conversational shirts have gradually grown worse and worse each year until now the pessimists do not see how anything worse can happen than the things which are now on sale.

The red hat affected by the college boy last year and its side partner, the blue crush hat, have a rival this year in a pale white hat, with the under side of the brim and also the band of deep blue, making a striking contrast of color, which seems to be what is most particularly desired.

All the flashy patterns in hosiery, the plaids, the reds and yellows and greens in combination, are once more to the fore, and when the young man of the period gets himself up in all the colored trimmings he can buy, with red and blue barred shirt and cuffs, a white collar, a red hat and plaid hose showing above his low ties, he will make Solomon in all his glory look like 30 cents.—Chicago Chronicle.

AN EVEN EXCHANGE.

The Fortunate Outcome of a Bank Messenger's Heart-Breaking Blunder.

"I was carrying $100,000 worth of government coupon bonds from Washington to Cleveland," said the bank messenger, "and the wisest thief couldn't have told whether I had bonds or old clothes in the satchel. How the change was effected I could never figure out, but in leaving the car I picked up the wrong satchel and had carried it half a mile before the mistake was discovered. You may guess what my feelings were when I realized what an awful blunder had been made, and for ten minutes I lost the power of speech entirely. I was a trusted man, but there was $100,000 gone and the doors of state prison yawned for me. When I shook myself together I made tracks for the Wendell house, and I'll be hanged if the first man I ran across wasn't a German who was taking on at a great rate because somebody had changed satchels with him. I was the one, of course, and the way he went for me was a caution. He had a dress suit in the satchel, and was to attend a wedding that evening. I had to treat him to four beers before he would calm down, and as we made the exchange he waved his arms about and shouted:

"'Mein Gott, my friend, but if I don't get mein satchel back I vhas damaged more ash feefteen dollars in my feelings.'

"He did not know the contents of mine," laughed the messenger, "or it might not have been so easy to effect an exchange."—Chicago Evening News.

Joke on the Major.

The major, just returned from Boston, tells in strict confidence this story:

"I had engaged my berth, and was standing on the rear platform five minutes before the train pulled out of the Park Square depot, when a middle-aged woman and a handsome girl, both ladies, passed me and entered the car, accompanied by a gentlemanly-looking chap who carried their baggage. A moment later this fellow pushed up to me and said he was in a most embarrassing position, had his sister and mother aboard, and had lost his mileage book. He would introduce me to them and give me any security for $25. I said I needed neither introduction nor security, but would give him ten dollars—all I had to spare. He insisted on giving me his diamond scarfpin, and then rushed into the station to see if he could get more cash. As the train pulled out without him, he came running wildly after it, but had to give it up.

"Then the porter approached me tentatively. 'Was that man annoying you?' he said. I told him no. 'He insisted on carrying the baggage of two ladies inside, sah, an'—an'—did he get any money out of you?'

"'Of course he didn't,' said I; 'but I took the first opportunity of examining that pin. It was worth about five cents.'"—Buffalo News.

The Power of Storm.

The Cayman Islands in the West Indies were nearly overwhelmed by the recent storm. Even apparently secure things are not safe. Even if you have health be on your guard. Disease works stealthily—it undermines and trouble occurs where it is least expected. An occasional dose of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will keep the bowels regular, the stomach sweet and disease at bay. If you have indigestion and constipation try it. It cures.

Each Thought the Other Had Them.

Two farmers had been enjoying a festive evening with another farmer, and both of them "had done themselves remarkably well," to use an expressive phrase. They had a drive of five miles before them, and it was a very dark night, but the horse knew the way. Side by side they sat in the cart, and went along at a spanking pace. At length they swung round the sharp turn which led to the house in a most alarming manner, only just missing the gate-post by an inch or two. "Gently, George, gently round the corner, old man," murmured Bill. George grinned. "What! haven't you got the reins either?" he said.—Answers.

WOMAN'S DEVOTION TO HOME

A woman in New Matamoras, Ohio, MRS. ISABELL BRADFIELD, tells in the following letter how she fought with disease of the feminine organs until finally forced to take to her bed. She says:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I feel it my duty to write to you to tell you that I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and think there is no medicine in the world like it. I suffered for nine years, and sometimes for twelve weeks at a time I could not stand on my feet. I had female troubles of all kinds; backache, and headache all the time. Seven different doctors treated me. Some said I would have to go to the hospital and have an operation performed. But oh! how thankful I am that I did not, that I tried your Vegetable Compound instead. I cannot say too much in its praise, nor thank you enough for what it has done for me. I want you to publish this in all the papers for the good of other sufferers."

The wives and mothers of America are given to overwork. Let them be wise in time and at the first indication of female trouble write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for her advice. This advice is promptly given without charge.

The present Mrs. Pinkham's experience in treating female ills is unparalleled; for years she worked side by side with Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, and for sometime past has had sole charge of the correspondence department of her great business, advising and helping by letter as many as a hundred thousand ailing women during a single year.

A Talk to Teachers.

In July next the N. E. A. for 1899 meets at Los Angeles, California. This should mean a great deal to you because it affords an opportunity for travel to the most interesting part of our continent at a wonderfully low rate. It goes without saying that you ought to take advantage of such a chance and in taking advantage of it, see all that you can.

I wish to make a suggestion. During the last few years I have been brought into quite close relations with many teachers and schools through our series of wonderland books issued annually. I am anxious that our teachers should reap the full benefit of this meeting at Loss Angeles and the low rate at which they can travel. The finest scenery in California and the Northwest is found on the Shasta-Northern Pacific route via Portland, therefore, go north when the convention adjourns, see Mt. Shasta, the Sacramento Canyon, the Siskiyou range, visit Puget Sound, and also if you desire, Alaska. You can by doing this see also Mts. Hood and St. Helens, and from the Sound country, Mt. Rainier, and perhaps Mt. Baker. Then when on the Northern Pacific eastward bound, Mt. Adams can also be seen. These mountains are the finest glacial peaks in the world—this is true—and range from 10,000 to nearly 15,000 feet in hight and are seen for their entire elevations.

By thus returning via the Northern Pacific, the climax of the trip, the greatest educational as well as scenic feature of the entire journey is yours—Yellowstone Park. No other railway touches the Park. Remember that.

Make up your minds to return home as I have indicated—via Shasta-Northern Pacific, and you will always be glad you did so.

If you have not a copy of our Wonderland '99, send me—Chas. S. Fee, St. Paul, Minn.—six cents, and I will sent you one and also a Park map folder.

For other information, rates, etc., address Geo. D. Rogers, D. P. A., St. Paul, Minn., and your letters will have prompt attention.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, May 26, 1899.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—4th of July meeting at the City Hall tomorrow night.

—Bishop Joyce at Buffalo, Sunday morning. A nice drive for Sunday.

—Photographer Carver has secured a nice tent and expects to set up in business at Hanover about June 1.

—The Ladies Aid of the M. E. church, held a very pleasant dime sociable at the City Hall last evening.

—The patriotic bird, in name, up street, must have it horribly. It mixes up its "jack rabbits" with a wedding dance.

—We received a copy of the Minneapolis Journal's almanac and year book this a. m. It looks as if it might be useful.

—Joe Bauman has just completed laying a very substantial oak sidewalk in front of his mothers residence on S. second street.

—Wash Raders new residence on S. Third street is going to be a fine one. It is already enclosed and is being rushed to completion. J. McDonald is doing the work.

—Frank A. Cramer has tired of single blessedness and intends getting married June 14. He has rented Mr. C. A. Kerrick's residence on N. Third street where they will keep house.

—We are in receipt of the Newspaper Blue Book for 1899. We notice the GAZETTE is mentioned as the best paper in town. The Blue Book is published in Chicago by the 20th Century Press-Clipping Bureau.

—Bishop Joyce, of Minneapolis, will preach in Buffalo on Sunday, May 28 at 10:30 a. m. He is one of the favorite Bishops of the M. E. church, and is said to be an uncommonly pleasant speaker. It is a good place to go Sunday.

—Sylvanus A. Merriman, formerly living near Lyndale, now of Woodston, Rooks county, Kansas, sends us his dollar for a year's subscription and says he enjoys our paper very much there. He is an old time Jackson Democrat and knows Democracy when he reads it. He writes that it is dry in Kansas and they may have a crop failure as they did last year.

—The Eagle has finally announced to her readers that she "doesn't believe in an English-American alliance in the general acceptation of the term, but it does believe in fostering a good feeling with a nation to which we have become deeply indebted during the past year." We believe in entangling alliances with none as the best way to have the most friends among the nations of the earth, as well as among our own people.

—One of the road districts in Franklin has offered the village a dollar a day for the use of the road grader. By all means let them have it. It pays to have good roads leading to Delano. The saving of time in travel over good roads as compared with bad roads is quite a considerable item in the course of a year. Alexandria is said to have appropriated $500 to build good roads leading to that thriving city. We could well afford to furnish the grader free if an experienced manager will take charge of it, to our country friends.

—People in this school district are becoming more interested in who shall be members of the Board of Education than they have for years. In order to have our reputation as a town of good schools kept up, it is necessary that some things be attended to, and in order to have them done right the best Board of Education possible should be elected. Half of the members, Messrs Maxfield and Frazee on account of expiration of term and Mr. Johnson because he was appointed to fill a vacancy which now has to be filled by an election are the retiring members. We predict one of the largest and liveliest school meetings that our district ever seen. Let everybody that has a vote be there and use their vote to the best advantage of the district.

—What do you think of a health officer who is also a practicing physician disinfecting (?) himself with a feather duster and a tumbler of cold water after visiting a diphtheria patient. Isn't he a peach?—Eagle

It all depends Brother Buckley. Did any body catch it? "But then, what can you expect?" from one of "the Aborigines of North America!"—[The quotations are from recent numbers of the Eagle.]—The Aborigines are said by history to have been great fellows for feathers and water before the distinguished ancestry of the illustrious editor introduced "fire water" and other civilizing influences among them. Nauw, he's no peach. Ee must be your North American Aborigenee, don't your know" But, by the way Brother B. that don't explain that county printing bill at legal rates when you offer others 50 per cent off.

—Mrs. Amanda Weiber, Assistant State Superintendent of the Children's Home was in town last Sunday and Monday and spoke in the German Evangelical, Presbyterian and Methodist churches. She was here a year ago and is known to many of our citizens. She has a boy seven years old along with her for whom she would like to find a good home. She is working in a good cause and faithfully seeks homes for the little homeless boys and girls that come under her care where there is no drinking and where the people are religious and will train up the children properly and care for them well. The Association has found homes for more than 1380 children since it began work. It is nonsectarian and works only to find the best homes possible for its charges, and picks up all the children who have no homes of their own that it can get hold of, who are not sick and subjects for other institutions.

—Rev. R. R. Atchison, P. E. of the Willmar Dist., while in town this week pledged $200 toward paying the debts of the M. E. church at this place. He thinks he can raise still more. A subscription list is being circulated for the purpose of raising the balance. This old debt has been a hinderance to the church for years. Let us pull together and wipe it out. When called upon don't say no; but do the best you can for a good cause. The membership here is small and most of the members poor, so that people who are not members, but who like to see churches prosper in our midst will be expected to help lift the mortgage and free the church from debt. A town without a church in America would be considered a poor town. A town with a church in debt is next to one without a church. Everybody is expected to help that can do so and everybody is welcome to come to church whether they help pay the debt or not.

—Thomas F. O'Hair, of Wheaton formerly a citizen of Delano, who visited Honolulu last fall, says before he went there he was inclined to be an expansionists so far as that country goes. But the trip cured him completely. He says Queen Lil is beloved of her people. Her charities are very great and he thinks things would have been safe in the hands of the rightful owners of the island. He says years ago missionaries went there and did good work, educated the people and christianized them. But the old missionaries have passed away. Their descendents having come into possession of all the best lands through the natives giving them to the missionary society which in turn gave them to the decendants of missionaries who are immensely rich and ride about in closed carriages. If a man landed there with fifty cents Tom thinks he might stay ten years without increasing his wealth. Things are in the hands of a few hundred people who run it to suit themselves.

The Advocate has expanded and absorbed the Post at Annandale. Now it is the Advocate Post.

The June term of Court convenes at Buffalo, Monday, June 5. Judge Giddings, of Anoka, will preside.

The Maple Lake Messenger don't let on to understand Wright County politics. It appears to us to track in the path of its inspirer, who when electioneering is what suits the voter, and when he wants an office is what suits the distributer of offices, and who gets gold bug delegates elected by free silver conventions and goes to state conventions and works against party interests and party principles. It will, we predict, require considerable oiling to have such tactics amount to much in the next campaign. We don't accuse you of "getting the oil inspectien" we think the Gold Bug President of the Minnesota Sheriff's Association is the oily individual that did the "getting" for you. Now oil up the machine and let her go. We believe in The Chicago platform of '96; anti-trust and anti-expansion; and in 16 to 1 and that the sooner our party rids itself of men who do what they can to knock out Bryan and Bryanism the better for the party and the people. If you are satisfied with your inspectorship, and our politics, all right; pour on the oil of gladness, and aim your charges at the enemy, perhaps then your gun will kick less.

Among Our Exchanges.

St. Cloud Times: Keeping the volunteers in the Philippines isn't half as objectionable as the deceptive methods by which it has been done.

County Line: McKinley's instructions to Otis are to "capture or destroy every warring Filipino." Oh, we're going to "civilize" every mother's son of 'em—or we won't leave enough of 'em to swear by!

Litchfield Independent: It costs 5½ cents to get a bushel of wheat from Litchfield to Minneapolis, 67 miles, and 8 cents to carry it by all rail from Minneapolis to to the Atlantic ocean, 1500 miles. Is it necessary to make comment?

Anoka Herald: The president has agreed to meet the Thirteenth regiment when it comes back from the Philippines. He will do well if he leaves Alger at home, however, despite the friendliness of the St. Peter Tribune to that incompetent.

Litchfield News Ledger: The beef investigation has put a cloud on two prominent American officers—Miles and Eagan, while those who canned the bronchos sit back and quietly calculate how much more they would have been ahead if they had only worked the hide and hoofs into the cans with the meat.

Anoka Herald: Alexandria has appropriated $500 to be used for the improvement of roads leading into that city, provided that the county commissioners appropriate an equal amount. Anoka should make an offer like this to the commissioners, directed toward the building of a road to the town of Burns. This is one of the most populous and richest towns in the county and yet Anoka gets only a small share of its trade because it has no passable road connecting the two towns, while Elk river has built fine pikes to the county line. This trade belongs to Anoka and would come here but for the one obstacle mentioned. If this city should follow the example of Alexandria in this matter, it would receive in return each year ten fold on its investment.

Courier Journal: The latest indignities put upon George Washington must be credited to the English sparrows of Boston:

"One colony recently built nests under the tail of Washington's horse in the public gardens. Having securely established its habitat the colony made public proclamation of its spring opening so clamorously that another colony has constructed an elaborate edifice in the cocked hat of the General. The news spread with such rapidity that all the sparrows from Commonwealth avenue to Saugus Four Corners and Danvers Plains have made the statue their stamping ground and are walking all over the Father of His Country, as well as his steed, in quest of eligible sites for breeding purposes and family reunions."

Perhaps this treatment of Washington by the sparrows may explain the sudden cessation of Boston's war upon them.

From the Philippines.

GUIGUINTO, LUZON, P. I.
April 14, 1899.

Father:—In one of my previously written letters I said something about writing the nex time we had a fight and sort of describe it to you (to do the best I have a map drawn on back of this page). Co. B went up to support Co. F on the night of the 10th about 4:30 we were ordered to Guiguinto where we formed as skirmishers and were under cover of the railroad grade and also under the protection of four cars two of which carried two guns each, one 6 pounder, one revolving rapid fire Hotschkiss (2 pounder) and two Colts automatic. All of our batallion were here, also Co. H, holding the track till dawn, then throwing out A, H, and F, on a skirmish line through the woods. The insurgents fell back to the north and the three compaies made a swing going toward the right, Co. I pushing the car and advancing toward Bigaa but when passing this small town and being joined by the other companies we saw the insurgents falling back out of the woods near Co. C., forming a skirmish under Major Diggles, (by the way all this time Gen. Wheaton was in command in person) we advanced toward Santa Maria going within 2,000 yards of that city, driving the gugals from the woods near Co. C, east, falling back into camp at the station where Co C has been quartered for the night, to await some artillery and Oregon boys. Next morning at dawn movements began by throwing out two skirmish lines with Oregon on the extreme left. A couple of shots of artillery, a few volleys and the fording of the same river twice we succeeded in capturing this strong town and before we were through it she was on fire.

Some incidents: Peanuts (Spalding) the litter bearer, captured four Chinamen and pressed them into service.

Somebody found a tag of one of the men of the Oregon outpost that was surrounded and three killed. This made the general so angry that he gave orders to Col. Ames to secure a detail to burn the town and hand in an itemized account of what was left. The Col. said that he didn't need to hunt up a detail as they were here, so he and some more of his officers and men around, completely destroyed the city.

The 1st batallion and Maj. Diggles were placed under Major Bell and we went to the edge of Marguena valley where we could look across the valley to the mountains as all of this fighting is not more than ten miles from the mountains. Looking across this valley is the finest scenery I have ever seen; with the large mountain in the back ground, and a well shaped cloud hanging over the top. All through the valley are small bunches of wood and all between green with grass, and in all the openings one could see the insurgents tearing for the hills, some by good order while others were in utter confusion, then the long train of supplies etc., also many driving heards of buffalo (or water cattle) and horses: then occasionally a large volume of smoke would lift high in the air and add to the grandure. This alone would well pay one for the 20 miles he had to hike during the day, returning to camp at Guiguinto, resting with satisfaction during the night.

One could go on forever at any distance, but when it comes to retreat your steps it is Hell. We run after the enemy some 8 or 10 miles, then march back.

Three or four days before, the 6th, we marched into the interior till we saw a flag, suspected it to be a red cross flag, then returned.

13th, 1 Co. relieved Co. F.

On the 14th a scouting party went North toward a river. I was with this party which consisted of a doz. men from Co. B. Passing through the woods and nearly crossing the rice field we were fired upon by an insurgent outpost. They were on the bank of the river and under cover of the trees and houses. They fired several volleys before we began to fall back. We were about a mile and a half from camp and it didn't seem more than ten minutes before Co's. B and F were on a skirmish line at our rear. We fell in on the left, recrossing the field, drove the gugals about five or six miles and then returned to camp.

On the 9th Henry Foss was wounded below the knee, flesh wound.

On the 11th Harvey was wounded in hand.

Bill Oble received some slight wounds in the left ear, not bad.

Meggison received a recceshay on the back.

Heaulen, a slight wound in shoulder.

Brackett received a slight wound in each hand.

1st Lieut. Keiler was stung by a piece of steel from the rail but did not draw blood. Foss and Harvey are the only two that is more than a scratch. Both have been taken to the hospital.

All of the above list are Co. B men.

Houses are now burned here as free as straw stacks at home and thought less of.

Closing till some more news is manufactured,

Your son,
ALVA.

P. S My address does not change with the camp because all that is necessary is Co. B. 13th Minn.

MARRIED.

OTTO, KLAPPERICK.—At the Catholic church Tuesday, May 22, Mr. William Otto and Miss Katie Klapperick, of Independence.

DIED.

ORR.—At West Superior, Sunday, May 21, Mrs. Mary, wife of William Orr. The remains were taken through Delano on Tuesday to Watertown for burial.

OBITUARY.

Died, of pneumonia, at her home in the township of Franklin, at 2 o'clock last Saturday morning, after an illness of fifteen days, Mrs. Wilhelmina Kespohl, one of the early settlers who was much admired and beloved by a host of friends for her Christian virtues and kind disposition. The deceased's maiden name was Mealey and she was born at Attenberg, Saxon, Germany, Feb. 28th, 1831. In 1844 she emigrated to New York and there married Louis Kespohl in 1850. Mr. and Mrs Kespohl moved to Pennsylvania in 1852 and to Minnesota in 1856. They resided in St. Paul for several years after which they made their home in Watertown, subsequently buying the farm which she lived on until the time of her death and where her husband died March 8th, 1882, of heart failure. Mrs. Kespohl was the mother of eleven children—seven boys and four girls. The surviving members of the family are: Mrs. Mary C. Stein, of Delano; Mrs. Emma Schlessner, of Buffalo; William Kespohl, of Duluth; Albert Kespohl, of Floodwsod; Mrs. Laura Price, and Louis and Fred C. Kespohl who made their home on the farm. The funeral was held at 1:30 p. m., Tuesday and was attended by hundreds of people from far and near. In fact the church could not accommodate one-half of those who desired to pay a last tribute of respect to the departed. The arrangments were directed by the Oddfellows, Rebekahs and Woodmen, the Rebekah lodge furnishing the floral offerings which were especially beautiful. The services were held in the German Methodist church near the home of the family and were conducted by the Rev. Geo. Fritze, the resident pastor. The opening prayer was offered by Rev. Roetke, of Duluth, and appropriate remarks were made in German by the Rev. Weiss, the presiding elder of the district, also by the Rev. Mr. Bower, of Minneapolis. The Rev. Leonard, of Minneapolis, spoke in English and prayers were offered by other ministers present. Mrs. Kespohl had been a faithful member of the Methodist church for over thirty years and passed to the keeping of her Maker with every hope of eternal rest and reward.

St Paul Dispatch

25c per month for Daily. 75c per year for the Weekly.

The St. Paul Dispatch is the best Twin City daily; it has no equal in the Northwest as to size or quality.

The DISPATCH excels in Northwestern news, having a correspondent in every Northwestern town.

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

The public is a gentle joy
To any crafty man;
Just fix it up some little toy
As simple as you can,
Then to its operation join
A mystery profound,
And we will gladly pay our coin
To see the wheels go 'round.

Don't waste your time on useful things
To benefit your race;
Procure a lot of cogs and strings
And set them into pace,
And men will come for miles away,
Your praises they will sound,
And cheerfully their money pay
To see the wheels go 'round.

'Tis not required that you shall know
Mechanich and the like;
If into statesmanship you should go
Success you'll often strike
By fitting empty phrases in
And letting noise abound,
And making people pay their tin
To see the wheels go 'round.

FOR some unexplained reason we have not received the Globe for several days. What can the matter be?

MAJ. A. M. DIGGLES of the 13th reg Minn. Vol. died at Manila from wounds received while at the front.

SOME of our Republican friends are getting anxious about a candidate for Governor to beat John Lind; others are content to throw Peas at him.

CITY expansionists are having a heap to say about where the 13th Minnesota Reg. shall be mustered out. Bring them home. That's what's wanted.

NEWSPAPERS are publishing so many differen stories about affairs in connection with the Philippine islands that it is next to impossible to get at the facts. It seems to us if the government would take a little pains to let the people know what is going on as if things would be more satisfactory all around.

No wonder the Filipinos have no faith in promises made by the U. S. authorities when they know our volunteers who enlisted in the cause of humanity are being kept after the close of that war to fight for "criminal aggression" against people they had understood were fighting for independence.

REPUBLICAN candidates for office from the sixth Congressional district seem more numerous than usual. The idea of the powers of the G. O. P. appears to be to get all the candidates nominated for state offices possible from the sixth district and then inform Mr. Nelson that it will be of no use for him to try for the Senate again as the sixth already has more than its share of officers.

JUDGE CANTY, of the Supreme court is liable to supersede either "Your Uncle Loren" in the 4th Dist. in Congress, or the Hon. Knute Nelson in the U. S. Senate. Judge Canty has risen to his present high position as a friend of the people, and if the people have anything to say about it, he is much more than likely to represent them in the Legislative Halls of our country.

CONGRESS enacted a law that regiments in the army were to consist of a certain number of men as a minimum, and a certain other much larger number as a maximum; now the administration is to take advantage of this by reducing the regiments in America to the minimum number and taking the men to the Philippine islands to fill regiments there to the max mum. Recruiting offices for regulars are to be kept running.

THE Elk River Star News thinks the 13th Reg would be a good candidate for governor on account of popularity and notority. It says: "It is and will be for the next three months, the whole thing in Minnesota." Why? Isn't the President coming? The latest reports from the Philippines say the 13th is again on guard along the railroad. There don't seem to be any certainty about the 13th being in the State within three months.

"THE memorial address delivered in St. Paul by attorney Thomas R. Kane, a Verbatim Report of an Instructive Oration" is the way the St. Paul Dispatch heads the eloquent address of the secretar of the Democratic State Central Committee, delivered at the auditorium under the auspices of the G. A. R. The address appears in the Dispatch of May 31 and well deserves reading. It is an earnest appeal for the institutions of freedom as well as an able historical document and eloquent tribute to the patriots of the past, present, and future.

ACCORDING to city dailies Rev. J. S. Montgomery is having a discussion with the Hamline Prohibition Club because of his saying, at the meeting recently held to uphold the administration of President McKinley, that "the best man among us does not love peace, honor, and purity more than William McKinley". We presume the main objection to this sentence, by the Prohibition Club, is that the Attorney General decided canteen's could be run along with the army, and the Prohi's want the president, the commander in chief of the army to put his foot on the canteen and crush it out entirely.

SOME of our exchanges that have been abusing people and calling them copperheads, traitors and other names because they were not in harmony with the benevolent assimilation going on are now announcing themselves as not favorable to meetings like that recently held by the late candidate for governor Eustis and others to uphold the hands of McKinley; nor in favor of an English American alliance; and actually inform their readers that "A big mistake was made in sending the peace commission to Manila to parley with them." What can have happened? Are they turning "Benedict Arnolds", traitors to the old flag? How dare they spread "seditious doctrines"? It would look more Christianlike if they would stand by the government, and uphold McKinley and his peace commission and not help arm one nation to kill off another and another to exterminate that, and keep our country's volunteers in foreign lands through all the wars to help expand our commerce. The genuine Benedict Arnolds are those willing to sacrifice patriotic American citizens for British gold, while they formerly were strong patriots themselves.

BECAUSE some men in Lake City, S. C. murdered the negro post master and fired on his family, it don't seem just right for the postal authorities to abandon the office and deprive innocent people of their postal privileges. If President McKinley felt called upon to recognize the colored man he could have done so in some northern town where race fighting is not so bitter. It is hard to appoint a man to a position where the probabilities are that he will meet a violent death.

The Pioneer Press claims the whole community about Lake City are participes crimines or accessories after the crime, because they will not assist in ferreting out the murderers. If that was the feeling toward the appointment made, it certainly ought not to have been made. This is a very strong argument that the people who are patrons of a post office should elect their own post master. If a majority of the people wanted the appointment made and members of the minority afterwards killed the appointee it don't look as if the whole community should be charged with being criminals, as the Pioneer Press charges them, nor punished as such as the postal authorities are punishing them. If the editor of the Pioneer Press should go to Lake City and the people are all as great criminals as he tries to have his readers believe they are we don't think he would be there long before he would either follow the negro post master or fall into line with the rest of the community. As has been recently pointed out by prominent Southerners it is such wholesale and indiscriminate charges as those preferred by the Pioneer Prees against the community at Lake City that incites the murder of negroes and provokes the people to resist laws. We don't believe for a minute but that there are as good people, and as loyal as the Pioneer Press editor, living in Lake City, and who are as much entitled to have their mail delivered at their town, and they should all have their mail. Just imagine what a howl there would go up from the Pioneer Press building if someone would shoot the St. Paul post master and the mail was not passed out for one day even, to say nothing of the woeful wails that would rend the air if he non distributing was continued a week or, as at Lake City, all summer.

Give the people their privileges, and find your criminals some other way.

Trusts Double Faced.

From Bryan's speech at St. Louis, as given in the World, we take the following:

"To say that the government is impotent to prevent the organization of trusts is to say that it has called into existence a fictitious person and that the fictitious person created has become greater than the creator.

One of the difficulties which has been encountered in opposing trusts is that the trust hides behind the Federal Constitution when attacked by state legislation and shields itself behind its state charter when attacked in the Federal courts."

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 19, 1899.

That another serious mistake was made by this administration when it instructed the American delegates to the Czar's disarmament conference, now sitting at the Hague, to join the British delegates in working to secure an agreement of the nations represented for international arbitration, is believed by many close students of international politics. Should such an agreement be entered into the U. S. would be likely to get the worst of every question submitted to arbitration that affects European interests, for the very simple reason that a majority of the arbitrators would necessarily be European, possessing the natural prejudice that every man feels against the the inhabitants of another hemisphere.

Senator Stewart, whose wide experience in public life and close study of history makes his opinion entitled to consideration, says that we will live to deebly regret it, if we enter any arbitration agreement with the European nations; that every decision under such an agreement would certainly be anti-American, and that we will be all the time fighting a hostile combination from which we can expect neither justice nor fair play.

Ex-Gov. Evans, of S. C., who has just returned from Cuba, where he was serving on the staff of Gen. Ludlow, who is in command of the city of Havana, hasn't a high opinion of the Cubans. He says the talk about the patriotism of the Cuban soldiers is all bosh; that there is no such thing in existence; that, with few exceptions, they were actuated by desire for plunder and to hold office. He also says that Coxey's army was a band of aristocratic gentlemen by comparison with the followers of Gomez and that would be a far greater crime against civilization to allow these men to control the island than it would have been to have left the Spaniards in control, and that property owners over there are unanimous for annexation.

Secretary Wilson, of the Department of Agriculture, who has just returned from a southern trip, is inclined to grow enthusiastic over what he believes will be accomplished by the Southern people in the near future. He says, among other interesting things, that they will in the course of time grow all the tea consumed in this country and manufacture practically all the cotton they grow, and of the people: "The universal sentiment in the South, so far as I could observe, was that they welcome every northern man of education, enterprise or means."

John Sherman has stirred up the administration once more. On his way to Ohio he gave out an interview at Pittsburg, which caused a sensation in administration circles, when it was telegraphed to Washington. The old man jumped on the Philippine policy of the administration policy with both feet, so to speak, declaring it to be wrong from beginning to end, or at least, to where it has got. Mr. McKinley fears that this interview will do the republicans much harm in Ohio, and is trying to bring influence to bear upon Mr. Sherman to get him to repudiate it outright, or, if he cannot be made to go that far, to say that what he said was exaggerated by the reporter.

Notwithstanding official denials everything points to the correctness of the press reports from Manila, stating that there is a clash between the military and civilian members of the Philippine Commission as to how the Philippines should be dealt with. In the first place, if these statements had not been absolutely correct they would not have been allowed to pass the strict censorship at Manila. It is stated upon good authority that this clash was of such a serious nature that Gen. Otis appealed to Mr. McKinley, and intimated as strongly as a military man may with propriety to the commander-in-chief of the army that unless he was sustained in the controversy he would ask to be relieved of duty in the Philippines. It is understood that Mr. McKinley decided to uphold Otis, and that was why the official denial of any clash of authority in the Commission was given out.

Although two of the Speakership candidates—Hopkins of Ills., and Sherman, of N. Y. are in Washington, as well as numerous other politicians, politics had to take a back seat this week to give the people a chance to enjoy the three day Peace Jubilee, which closed tonight with a mammoth concert in Convention Hall. Everybody, from President to the humblest individual, have tired themselves out with parades on three successive days, fireworks on a big scale for three successive nights, trotting around to see the sights, which included some of the handsomest decorations ever put up in Washington, and they are doubtless better off than if the time had been spent in discussing Speakership possibilities.

CHUMLA, THE BRIDE OF FLOWERS

By Michael Gifford White.

IN a village of the Hindoo tribe of the Kadava Kumbis in the province of Gujarat, there once dwelt a young girl by the name of Chumla Soman, who, having arrived at the mature age of 12 summers, was considered by her parents to have remained even too long without a husband, especially as they had in view a most eligible party—a venerable rajah reputed to possess one lac of rupees.

Chumla was a tall, gracefully formed girl, not without decided pretensions to good looks, a fact which young Motilal, the poor village brazier, had discovered to his cost; for on presuming to address Chumla's parents with matrimonial intent, his advances were received not only with scorn but with blows. "Chumla marry such a one, when the noble rajah had deigned to look with favor in her direction!" scornfully ejaculated that young ladies' parents. "It was more than presumption; it was an insult. Beat the fellow well if he dares to show his face again."

As to what Chumla herself thought about a matter in which she was so deeply concerned, that was, of course, of no consequence. She would give her hand first and then, as the case might be, her heart afterwards. Such had been the custom of her people for ages reaching back into the days of which even legends do not speak. Her opinion was neither given nor sought.

It was, in fact, all well arranged. The rajah having made inquiry into the purity of Chumla's caste, which he found to be entirely satisfactory, announced that he was quite ready to make her his wife in the ensuing month of May, it being an auspicious time of the year.

It was then that a serious obstacle first presented itself to the Somans. They were not rich, and feared the expense of the wedding—the fine clothes, jewels and trinkets with which Chumla must be adorned as a dowry befitting her new station.

Now, for just such a contingency as this the Kadava Kumbis have a custom by which the bride-elect may be first married either to another person upon the distinct understanding that she will be released or divorced immediately afterwards, or to a bouquet of flowers, which, being subsequently cast into a ditch, is presumed to die; in either case the girl, becoming a widow in the eyes of their law, goes forth upon her second marriage without adornment or display.

Much disturbed over the matter, the Somans sought the rajah, explaining their difficulty, when the latter, presumably not caring about the few things Chumla might bring as her dowry, so far fell in with their views that he consented to her being married first of all to a bouquet. It would appear that he was sufficiently jealous of his future wife to object to her being married, even temporarily, to another man.

Overjoyed that the rajah had so readily acquiesced in their plans, the Somans thereupon, with due form and ceremony, married their daughter to a bouquet of flowers culled from the rajah's garden, and which they subsequently cast into a ditch at the foot of their compound.

Now, the poor Motilal, though driven off with abuse and blows, had by no means relinquished all hope of obtaining the hand of Chumla, but having observed all that was going on in the Soman household from a safe distance, he fully comprehended that if he purposed acting further in the matter he must do so quickly. Then, as he watched the casting away of the bouquet impersonating a husband for Chumla, an idea as bright as the blossoms of the hibiscus bush behind which he was screening himself occurred to him.

Waiting patiently until the bridal party had returned into the house, he stealthily crept forth, and gathering up the discarded flowers, quickly bore them off into the jungle.

For some time Motilal searched about in the forest until, having found a secluded spot apparently suitable to the purpose he had in mind, he proceeded to clear a patch of ground. Then, having carefully trimmed off the sprigs of the bouquet as would be likely to take root, he planted them in four little rows, watered them from a brook near by, and covered them over with a trellis work of small branches and leaves to protect them from the rays of the sun or the feet of any chance animals. This done, he returned home, screening his path as he went.

That night the Somans were in high spirits, for they felt confident of the remarriage of their daughter to the rich old rajah at an early date, and with little expense; but their spirits were low in comparison to those of Motilal three days later, for in the taking root of the majority of his plants he beheld the success of his plan.

"She can never marry the old rajah now," he cried, as he danced with joy round the patch. "She can never marry anyone as long as all these husbands live, and I alone know where they are. Chumla shall be my wife yet." Then he spent two days within himself solving the problem how further to act.

Shortly a strange rumor began to circulate in the village to the effect that the flowers to which Chumla, the affianced wife of the rajah, had been married, were not dead at all, but had been carried away by spirits into the jungle, where they had been planted and were growing apace; and that as a consequence she was by no means a widow.

At first both the rajah and Chumla's parents affected to laugh at the report, until a particular cutting left one night at the former's door put a different complexion upon the matter and brought consternation into the Soman household.

It appeared that among the flowers culled for the bouquet out of the rajah's garden was the blossom of a plant not found in that neighborhood, but from which it would seem the cutting had been taken, until, on the plant being closely examined, it was found that it bore no signs of a recent bereavement.

Then the rajah, believing that there might be some truth in the report, determined, if possible, to set the matter at rest by a search of the jungle in the vicinity of the Soman bungalow, at the same time privately making up his mind that whether the plant were found alive or not he would refer the whole matter to a Brahmin of great astrological reputation, in order to decide if it savored of enchantment, because in that event nothing in all Hindustan would induce him to marry Chumla.

You see, the rajah, like many people elsewhere, was inclined to be superstitious.

So, accompanied by his servants, the rajah set out to search for the flower, but the party had not proceeded far when a cat in hot pursuit of a bird sprang directly across their path.

The rajah paused for a moment, as that was an unlucky sign—a cat crossing the path in connection with matrimony; but at length, proceeding, they had not gone far when a cobra glided out from the bush and disappeared on the opposite side in the rank vegetation.

At this second ill omen the rajah halted abruptly and was debating the advisability of a hasty retreat, when the appearance of a fox a short distance ahead settled all doubts, and sent the party home in great expedition.

With three such ill omens, a cat, a snake and a fox, taken in conjunction with the mystery concerning the flowers, the rajah could not be expected to carry out his part in the marriage with Chumla, perhaps no very great hardship when it is considered that he had already six other wives. So it was promptly broken off, with the consequences falling upon the not unusual head.

ANOTHER UNLUCKY SIGN.

Disappointed and enraged, the whole Soman family, parents, uncles, brothers, and sisters, set to work to abuse and beat the unfortunate Chumla.

"Unlucky creature!" they cried. "You have disgraced us all. You are bewitched; but we can, at least, beat the devils out of you."

Poor Chumla's appeals for mercy fortunately did not fall entirely upon unsympathetic ears. Young Motilal, near by, appeared upon the scene just in time to receive a blow intended for her.

"Why do you beat her thus?" he demanded.

"Because she is bewitched," replied one of the uncles. "She was to have married the great rajah, but now he will not have her on account of bad omens. She is disgraced thereby in all men's eyes, and we shall never be able to marry her. But we suspect, rascal, that you know something of this," and he threateningly flourished the stick over young Motilal's head.

"I do know something," boldly retorted the other. "I know it is a fact that her flower husbands live."

"Oh, you do!" came a chorus of rejoinders. "Where are they, then?"

"That I shall not tell you, unless—"

"Unless?"

"Unless she is promised to me as a wife. Then I will kill all the flowers and marry her. I alone know where they are. See the proof?" and he held up a sprig of the rajah's plant.

"Take her, by all means," cried Chumla's father, "and may she bring for you better fortune than she has brought us, the unlucky daughter of evil."

So Motilal rooted up all of Chumla's husbands, and exchanged them for the person of Chumla herself—a bargain which, so far as anyone knows, he never repented, for the youthful Hindu maid, on this occasion at least, gave not only her hand, but her heart.—Atlanta Constitution.

A Sabbath Breaker.

We find in a report on Sabbath observance, just presented to the free presbytery of Lorne by Rev. Mr. Macleod, of Oban, this statement: "The queen and royal family, it is deeply to be deplored, have not shown a happy example to the people in the matter of Sabbath observance. Her majesty's recent journey to France and arrival there on a Sabbath day must have been a grief to every enlightened Christian subject of her own and pernicious in its influence over the giddy and godless French."—Westminster Gazette.

How He Manages Her.

"How is it that your wife is so tractable?"

"Why, I told her when we were married that she could do just exactly as she pleased, and so of course she finds no pleasure in doing it."—Chicago Post.

Exploding Humbug.

As a a rule our newspapers live and thrive on showmanlike exaggeration of facts. Nobody understands it better to create a mole hill in his brain and transform it for his readers into a mountain, as the American editor. You remember the flood of high flown enthusiasm which was poured over us about these Cuban patriots, heroes, martyrs, etc. There was not a virtue that was not their own. They needed only our moral support to annihilate the Spanish power. They turned out to be, in the vast majority a set of treacherous, thieving ignorant bandits and if it was not for the destruction of the Maine and that these islands strengthen our defensive line against Europe, the Cubans are not worth the American blood that is spilled for their liberty.

Then comes Miss Cisneros. Do you remember? The duchess, the princess, the Judith, the Jean d'Arc, the Charlotte Corday, who, after her liberation from prison was carried on a triumphal tour through the United States, that before the shrine of that girl the shoddy aristocracy of New York, Washington and Chicago did homage. She was a laborers daughter. She wrote a letter to a Spanish officer inviting him to a nightly visit. It was the plan to ambush and assassinate the officer on the road to her. The police got wind of it and arrested the girl. It was all right to claim her liberty but that triumphal tour and her adorations were overdoing it, ridiculous in the extreme.

Further appeared on the political horizon a big cloud, consisting of an an alliance of European powers to interfere between us and Spain, pushed on by our dear cousins to pose as our protectors. It was in vain that our government strenuously denied an alliance. It was in vain that our ambassadors in Europe and the ambassadors of these powers in Washington denied it. That cloud suited our editors with English sympathies, exactly. If it did go down a little they used all their wind to blow it up again. They painted red streaks in it so people got frightened. It looks as if it settled on the brain of some editors yet. Let me destroy that feeling by stating that an alliance between France and Germany for any power is an impossibility; that the naval power of Germany and Austria combined is about half that of the United States, and after the lesson Dewey has given the European powers about our fighting qualities, no European ruler will attack us with a navy inferior to ours. That would settle the question. Dewey needed no protection of the English admiral against those four German vessels in Manila. I believe that Dewey would have mastered these four ships without any help if he was allowed to do that. But we were just then in the act of transfiguration from the champion of people's rights into an imperialistic butterfly and McKinley knew that. All the kicking of the European land grabbers would stop as soon as that transfiguration was performed, and his re-election would be liked by all European rulers from the Tzar of Russia to the Queen of England.

INDEPENDENT.

Rotten Railroad Lobby.

The Minneapolis Journal quotes from Senator Miller's paper, the Rock County Herald, quite a hot article on the defeat of the Gross Earnings Bill.

Senator Miller was in the last legislature and his opinion is worth something. Here are a few of the quotations:

"Why not meet the issue squarely then, and put the responsibility where it belongs—on the damnable rotten railroad lobby and the men who served its purpose for their own private gain?"

After admitting that the question is not one sided he further says: "But after all this is admitted, the essential fact remains that the bill was not defeated on its merits. No one familiar with the history of the proceedings in the senate will make any pretens of denial that if all the members of that body had acted according to their convictions and their sense of duty, if they had all voted as they knew they ought to vote, and as they wished to vote and as they would have voted if they had been free from the influence of the railroad lobby, the bill would have been passed by a large majority, as to the truth of this statement there can be no possible question.

"The Herald has no desire to do injustice to any one in this connection, but it believes that in the interests of justice and the public welfare, and likewise in the interests of the republican party, the real facts in the case should be known."

Last year was one of great activity in the life saving service, and again the great value of the organization was shown. There were 767 disasters, involving 3,987 lives, and only 22 were lost. The value of property in danger was $7,368,095, of which $6,588,355 was saved. These admirable results were attained by an expenditure on the service of $1,400,000.

In writing a book which is not to be published until 100 years after his death Mr. Samuel L. Clemens, better known as "Mark Twain," sets an example which will be hailed with enthusiasm by a long-suffering public. If about 99 per cent. of contemporary authors can be persuaded to do the same thing this will become a pretty good world to live in.

Each month the treasury publishes a report of the money in circulation and an estimate of the national population. On May 1, according to this authority, there were 75,875,000 people in the United States, an increase of 138,000 for April, and of 545,000 for the four months of the calendar year. Counting new possessions, the census next year will be in the neighborhood of 85,000,000.

It is reported that a Swedish inventor has introduced what he terms a "radiator," which produces butter from milk without churning. It combines the principle of the well-known separator, so far as removing the cream from the milk is concerned, but the butter is produced from the cream, the whole operation of pasteurizing the milk, separating the cream and converting it into butter being done at the same time with the one machine.

Queen Victoria, whose eightieth birthday was recently celebrated, was born in a year of great babies. The year 1819 had almost as many distinguished births as had 1809. Among the other personages born in 1819 are John Ruskin and Julia Ward Howe. Victoria is the oldest both in years and in service of all the sovereigns of the world who are alive to-day, and she is the best known and most highly respected of all of them. "The Victorian period" will ever stand as one of the most prosperous and joyful in England's history.

Only Mrs. Ellen Hardin Walworth and her daughter, Miss Reubena, were left, however, and there being no sons to carry on the record of patriotic service the mother volunteered as a nurse and served throughout the war, dying of typhoid fever.

Rebels Attack San Fernando.

Manila, May 27. — The insurgents made a daring attack upon San Fernando at three o'clock Friday morning. The attack was one of the few during the insurrection in which the Filipinos have boldly attacked any number of American troops. They have set upon small scouting parties or outposts where they greatly outnumbered the Americans, but they have seldom attacked a large command, as they did Friday morning. They had crept back to the trenches from which they were driven by Gens. MacArthur and Funston on Wednesday last, and made the early morning attack upon the city which once was Aguinaldo's capital. The Montana regiment, under Gen. MacArthur, at once left San Fernando and formed a skirmish line along the railroad. This quick move surprised the insurgents, who fell back, but all the time of the retreat returned fully as heavy a fire as the advancing Americans poured into them.

Few Call for Cash.

Havana, May 29. — Although the American officers waited from early morning until into the evening Saturday to pay the $75 each to Cuban soldiers, only seven insurgents proved their claims, and not one of these surrendered arms. Gold and silver to the amount of $39,000 was ready and a strong guard of soldiers had been put about the paymaster's office to manage the expected crowd. It is the belief that the insurgents everywhere will follow the same course.

ROSA BONHEUR NO MORE.

Famous Woman Painter of Animals Died at Her Home at Fontainebleau, France.

Fontainebleau, France, May 27.—Rosa Bonheur died at 11 o'clock Thursday night.

Rosa Bonheur was born 77 years ago, the daughter of a painter, Raymond Bonheur, and during her time refuted the complaint that a woman's genius has not the degree of recognition accorded the genius of men. Her first public exhibition was in 1841, and long years ago her fame as the world's master painter of animals was assured. Her master-piece was "The Horse Fair," now in the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York. In laying the foundation of her knowledge of animals she visited the abattoirs of Paris, disguised as a boy, and there, with the bodies of lifeless creatures lying all about her, she made her studies of the living and on the canvas wrought such wonders that the whole world stood and looked in admiring awe.

She was a tireless worker and in the last five years of her life executed some of her best paintings. Animals she loved and at By she maintained a vast menagerie, where she reveled among lions, tigers and every other kind of wild beast. The beasts loved her. The sound of her voice would, it is said, allay the furious ravings of the most savage specimen.

Years and years ago Rosa Bonheur was one day visited by the empress of the French.

"The emperor has sent you a trinket," said her majestly, sweetly.

The "trinket" was the cross of the Legion of Honor, bestowed by Napoleon III.

PERISHED BY FIRE.

Man, Wife and Seven Children Burned to Death Near Hardeeville, S. C.

Savannah, Ga., May 29.—Advices from Hardeeville, S. C., report the burning to death of Jacob Solomons, his wife and seven children in a fire which destroyed their home. The house was located on the Oestricher farm, near Hardeeville. It had been damaged by a storm and Solomons built fires on the floor to keep warm. It is supposed a fire which was left smouldering after the family had retired was fanned into a blaze and ignited the structure. The verdict of the corner's jury in each case was that they came to their deaths through the culpable negligence of Jacob Solomons in neglecting to build a chimney.

Circumstantial and expert evidence showed that Murray was murdered. Novak had $27,000 insurance on his life and disappeared the night of the tragedy. He eluded the officers until July 12, 1897, when he was arrested by a detective in the Klondike, brought back and convicted.

St. Johns, N. B., May 26.—Fire that broke out in a building adjoining the general warehouse of P. Nase & Sons, Main street, North End, Thursday afternoon, did enormous damage. A leading underwriter estimates the loss at $500,000, and the insurance at $300,000. The area burned over comprises 15 blocks, or portions of blocks, and the buildings destroyed number 150. Probably 1,000 persons are homeless, a majority of them laboring people. Two deaths are to be set down to the fire. Fire on Coney Island.

New York, May 27.—Coney Island property to the value of half a million dollars was destroyed by fire early Friday morning, 20 acres in the heart of the summer resort section, the district known as "The Bowery," being reduced to ashes. The 200 buildings burned were located between the Bowery and the ocean, Tilyou's Walk on the west and the old iron pier on the east. These buildings ranged in size and importance from a wabbly bathing "pavilion" to the handsome five-story Hygeia hotel, including theaters, concert halls, dancing pavilions, stores of various kinds, restaurants and hotels of every grade. The fire made shelterless for a time a native and transient population of about 3,500, including 500 men and women, classed as comedians and soubrettes, employed in the district, and silenced no less than 100 pianos which have for years assisted in merrymaking at Coney Island.

Patience and Practice.

A clever young physician here, who, like so many of his brethren everywhere, has had a weary time trying to build up a practice, nevertheless meets his hard fortune with smiling gayety. Like Warren Hastings, his motto is "Nitor in Adversitum."

In company with a friend, he had occasion the other day to go into the Hibernia bank, where, owing to the throng of customers, he could not get his business transacted at once. After considerable delay, his companion, a nervous little man, complained irritably of the inconvenience to which they were subjected.

"Doesn't this put you out of patience, Doc?" he asked.

"My dear sir," returned the medico, gayly, "to be out of patients is my chronic condition. I haven't had one for a week."—San Francisco News Letter.

Exasperating.

Mrs. Higgsley—Clara, I must insist that you send young Mr. Granley away earlier. It was long after 11 o'clock last night when you closed the front door after him.

Clara—I know it, mamma, and I have made up my mind a dozen different times to make him leave early, but he has a way, somehow, of always giving the impression along after the shank of the evening has passed that he is just about to say something one has been waiting for. It's awfully exasperating.—Chicago Evening News.

The Maid and the Miracle

Miss Lucy Tucker, the daughter of a prominent farmer of Versailles, Ind., was the victim of nervous prostration. Most of the time she was confined to bed, and was on the verge of St. Vitus' dance. It was a pitiful case which medical science failed to conquer. Finally a doctor prescribed Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Her father said:

"We began giving the pills at once, and the next day we could see a change for the better in her. We gave her one pill after each meal until she was entirely well. She has not been sick a day since. We think the cure almost miraculous.

The Case in a Nutshell.

Alabastine is a permanent coating for walls and ceilings, designed to take the place of kalsomines and wall paper. Alabastine sets with the wall. It is practically a stone cement, as hard and smooth as paint, but much less expensive, and is applied just as easily by anyone. It can be mixed with either cold or hot water, and applied with a kalsomine brush. It is clean, healthful, and economical. Every one of the strong points of Alabastine, proved to be such by the test of twenty years, is picked up by every new manufacturer of ordinary kalsomine and claimed for his goods. These claims are absurd on their face. Alabastine alone can prove its durability by the test of time. It is sold by paint dealers, in 5-lb. packages, properly labeled.

APPROVAL

OF THE PEOPLE FOR THE DEPARTMENTS OF THE LIND ADMINISTRATION.

Reform Press Bureau.
St. Paul, May 29, 1899.

Warm words of approval for his efforts for good government for this fair state constantly reach Governor Lind, and no doubt encourage him in the arduous labors which confront him daily. As a specimen, testifying to the results attained by the dairy and food department under the administration of Major J. M. Bowler and his excellent corps, as now completely organized, the following, which is but one of numerous approvals of the department, is well deserving of a reading throughout the state. It is from one of the large Twin City commission houses, the co-operation of which, so cordially pledged, will be gladly received. The letter, addressed to Governor Lind, is as follows:

Minneapolis, May 20, 1899.

Hon. John Lind, Governor, St. Paul:

Dear Sir—We desire to express to you our appreciatisn of the work of the State Dairy Commission in this city during the past few months, and sincerely trust this work may be extended over the entire northern part of the state.

We are satisfied artiffcial butter is being used illegally in the lumber and mining camps and in many of the restaurants and hotels of our state to the great injury of our dairy interests.

We notice that through the active work of the commission a large number have recently pleaded guilty to the infringement of the oleo law right here in Minneapolis, and we can assure you that the produce commission men of our city are in hearty sympathy with the efforts of the State Dairy Commission to protect the dairy interests of our state.

We shall be glad to aid the commission in any possible way, and beg to remain,

Very sincerely,
Longfellow Bros. Co.,

Wonder by what means those people who think that Governor Lind goes slow with appointments, can be made to comprehend the almost insurmountable obstacles encountered at almost every step of the administration. Will not these remember that every single board in the state was under Republican control, as all have been ever since their creation. Scarcely an appointment under any board is made by the governor but by the board itself. Thus, in the grain department, where a clean sweep has been clamored for, regardless of the interests of the service, the governor has not the making of a single appointment, but the board makes every one. Under the law appointments to the board positions can only be made as terms expire, the law maintaining the same relative proportion as between the political parties as heretofore prevailed, and the change from Republican to Reform control being impossible except as terms expire, even if the governor were inclined to radical action, which he would not be, because he is at all times actuated by his conscientious convictions of the needs of the public service. The state's interests are at all times paramount to those of the individual.

Nor can it be known what is the condition of the several boards until such control is obtained. As fast as the inside has been learned, however, almost without exception, deep and flagrant wrongs have been discovered, to the remedy of which the people may be sure proper efforts are directed. But here again it depends on the boards and, as in the case of the St. Cloud Reformatory, if the board fails to act on the Governor's earnest demands, what can be done but wait? In that case the supposed reform majority refused to remove Superintendent Houlton, although the proofs were piled high that he had used his office for personal benefit and been guilty of cruelty and inefficiency. There was proof that the Superintendent sold numerous bills of lumber in the name of his foreman; that he used the institution funds to carry on his bank at Elk River, and that he schemed to sell land owned by his family to the state at a big figure, and the like. But Houlton still holds on and is likely to, unless there is a public sentiment aroused throughout the state which can move the board which he continues to control. And yet supposedly well informed persons are to be heard asking why Lind don't "put that man Houlton out."

When people hear such comments, or feel inclined to make them, let them consider the situation, as to the boards and the departments where the "enemy" is still entrenched, and then such as honestly desire reform throughout the state, and the appointment of men of that policy, go out and kick themselves for not having voted to change each and every department, and promise to do so the next time.

Apropos of numerous references by the state press of the operations of shyster storm, hail and other bogus insurance "companies," we see frequent words of approval of the efficiency of the Insurance Department as conducted by Commissioner O'Shaughnessy.

Those who are worried at the status of Colonel Ames, Lieutenant Colonel Friedrich or other officers or interests of the Thirteenth regiment need not tear their summer clothing. Governor Lind and Adjutant General Lambert will see all properly protected.

In some recent appointments Governor Lind has recognized the ability and public services of some well known newspaper men. In the appointment of Swan J. Turnblad of The Swenska Amerikanska Posten to the Reformatory Board an able business man was secured, and recognition given to the powerful Swedish newspaper which is now being sought for in all parts of the country for extending this work in the interest of the common people. Senator Pettigrew, while here recently, made arrangements for extension of The Posten in South Dakota. Another able editor and business man to be called to the Governor's staff for good government is Ed O'Brien of the Minneapolis Irish Standard, who will succeed Chief Weighmaster C. M. Reese June 15.

Thanks to G. O. P. Managers Merriam and Bixby, those two Minnesota Dromios of Has Beens, ex-Labor Commissioner Powers and ex-Examiner Kenyon have gotten upon Uncle Sam's payroll. When these meet in the census and the Cherokee Indian hustings how they will slobber over each other in contemplation of their mutual public worthlessness compared with their success in keeping engrafted upon the body politic. They make me think of two mean, stingy, uncharitable church elders down East, Brothers Waite and Meacham. On one prayer meeting occasion on their knees they had made their usual responses to the sentiments of others, in suppressed groans and deep sighs; each had prayed long and fervently. At the conclusion both raised their heads, commencing to rise, when Elder Waite, looking at the other over his spectacles, said with great solemnity: "Brother Meacham, ah! you and I can make a tol-ler-a-ble good prayer without and par-tic-u-lar assistance from the Lard! M-mm-m-m-m-m!"

To which Brother Meacham responded: "Yea, brother, bless the Lard! M-m-m-m-m-m-m!"

When Johnny Goodnow comes marching home frcm Shanghai, watch the fellows who abused him and said "good riddance" when he went away run to cover. Goodnow means Hanna, and he may run the 1900 campaign in Minnesota, he and Bixby, managing the Merriam census corps of G. O. P. strikers.

The Republican Press Bureau informs the dear people that the "few lone Democrats who hope to make a campaign cry out of anti-expansion will find themselves among the insignificant minority." Beside which we will place the prediction that the Administration policy responsible for the seizure of the Philippines and the stifling of the spirit of human liberty there, will be utterly and completely repudiated in 1900.

That bureau also notes that the anti-trust law passed by the late Republican legislature "has attracted a good deal of attention." It does not appear to have attracted sufficient "attention" to lead to any moves by the Republican state attorney general or other Republican officials to enforce it.

And that bureau finds great comfort in the recent article in the Minneapolis Times which made some strictures upon Governor Lind, referring to the paper as "the always Democratic Times." The Times "always Democratic." Don't that jar you?

The hunt for a Republican "elligible" for Governor, is simply amusing. "Some one who can beat Lind," is the standing pattern. Heatwole, Clapp, Van Sant, Evans, Morris, Eustis—yes Eustis, Eddy, Tawney, Collins, and last but by no means least, ex-Governor McGill, have one after another been passed in review with varying degrees of doubt and indecision. The idea that it better be an "old soldier" has aided Collins, but there is the warm feeling for Van Sant in the way, and besides, another thing to be considered is that the number of "old soldiers" who approve their old party's administration are becoming beantifully less.

A very patent fact is that the "old soldier," besides having learned a good lesson on the value of political independence, is on the edge of open, bitter and uncompromising revolt against the McKinley administration, on account of conduct of his pension department. This feeling is more bitter, it is stated on the inside, than it was in the worst days of the Cleveland administration, and the veterans didn't do a thing to Cleveland.

When your imperialist neighbor who defends the new colonial policy of conquest and imperialism, with all that the terms involve, tells you of the eminent divines, like Dr. Henson of Chicago who recently declared that there "was never a greater falsehood palmed off by the devil than that all governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed," please ask him to read the following from the writings of Abraham Lincoln:

"No man is good enough to govern another man without the other's consent. When the white man governs himself that is self government; but when he governs himself and also governs another man, that is more than self government—that is depotism. Our reliance is in the love of liberty which God has planted within us; our defense is in the spirit which prizes liberty as the heritage of all men, in all lands, everywhere. Those who deny freedom to others deserve it not for themselves, and under a just God cannot long retain it.

This extract was most crushingly used in Chicago by Professor Laughlin, who was invited to take dinner with some imperialistic friends. While the discussion was under way Professor L., who has taken so righteous a stand on this question as to redeem himself from his despicable course in 1896, quietly passed the extract around for his expansionist friends to read, and their faces, it is said, were a study; and, moreover, no one has answered, and none can, the noble sentiment in its application to the question of the hour. MINNESOTA NEWS.

Crop Bulletin.

There was decidedly cool weather the first half of the week, with light frosts on the morning of the 18th; the the latter part of the week was warmer, but hardly warm enough to promote a rapid growth of vegetation. All parts of the state but Kittson and Marshall counties were visited by rain the 15th, which was light except in the southern tier of counties, where it was locally heavy, and in a few places accompanied by severe hail. Wheat seeding has gone on in the Red River Valley under much improved conditions, and it is probably that all will be seeded, will be put in by the 25th. The seeding of oats, barley and flax is going on also. Potato and corn planting is finished in many places; some are planting, and a few are still waiting for warmer soil. Grasses and pastures are doing fairly well, and the pasturage is generally sufficient for the cattle. Encouraged by last year's experience, an increased interest is being taken in sugar beat culture within the freight limits of the factory; beet seeding has begun in Sibley county. It is not thought that the fears of injury by frost to fruit and barley, mentioned by several correspondents, will prove serious.

The Thirteenth.

Several inquiries have been received in Minneapolis relative to the muster-out of the 13th Minnesota regiment. There seems to be an idea prevalent that Minnesota boys will lose from $75 to $100 each if they come home before receiving their final statements from the army accounting officers. It has been pointed out that a muster-out on the Pacific coast would mean about $73 in cash to each private, and that he would receive this money and be free to return to Minnesota or go elsewhere, as he chose. It is not believed that a regiment so closely identified with the state, that has made such a gallant record and maintained the reputation established by the old First Minnesota at Gettysburg, will vote to be mustered out within 2,000 miles of home, after coming 10,000 miles on the way; nevertheless, it might be well for the Minnesota folks to cable the boys a word of caution in this regard, for the policy of the department passeth all understanding.

State Fair Features.

At the last meeting of the fair managers arrangements for the principal evening events were practically closed. The main spectacular feature will be a nightly production, "The Burning of Manila," put on by the Minneapolis Fireworks company. It will be on the same order and fully as elaborate as the Paine pyrotechnic spectacles, several of which have been given in connection with the Minneapolis exposition. There will be the usual theatrical setting, with soldiers, civilians, Filipinos and ballet girls in profusion. Shells from Dewey's fleet will be thrown in ad libitum and the climax will be a conflagration extremely realistic and thrilling in effect.

Leech Lake Improvements.

The acting secretary of the interior has before him the plans and specifications for a school building at Leech Lake. These plans have not been acted upon. It is understood that the plans were held up until provision could be made for a manual training department in connection with the building. The architect for the Indian department says that he can make the plans satisfactory to the requirements of the secretary, and the latter will then approve the plans. At the last session of congress an appropriation of $20,000 was made.

It appears that someone was throwing stones at his house. He armed himself and went into the street and near the place he met Ide and a companion. Raising his revolver he fired without warning, the ball taking effect in the mouth of Ide, shattering his teeth and breaking his jaw. Ide is an innocent party.

As delegates there will be members of the alumni of the National college, Washington, and state superintendents.

BRAVE YOUNG WOMAN.

She Got Away with the Oysters But Not in the Usual Manner.

A young girl from the state of Washington who came east to visit a western senator's family last winter, had an experience she hasn't forgotten yet. The first few days of her stay in the capital were spent there, and her meals were sent to her room. On the very first evening she ordered oysters for dinner. Now, she knew nothing of a real, life-sized oyster, having spent all her days on the Pacific coast, where oysters are not oysters at all, but something altogether different. She was young and exceedingly unexperienced, and she said to the waiter:

"Bring me 50 oysters."

The waiter gasped.

"Is that all?" he said.

"Oh, no," she answered, cheerfully. "Bring me—well, dinner, too."

She says herself that she had to shut her eyelids tight to keep her eyes from popping clear out of her head when she saw the 50 oysters.

"Isn't that more than 50?" she asked.

"No, miss," answered the waiter. "Shall I take some away?" and he grinned. It was the grin that did it. Her western blood rose at it.

"No," she said, coolly. "It's not too many. I'm hungry."

She locked the door after the astonished waiter, and opened the window. It was a dark night, but she could see the roofs of the adjoining houses almost within arm's reach beneath her window. Only a narrow alley separated the buildings. She took a fork, and deftly and dexterously, one by one, she flung the oysters as far as she could. She could hear them fall moistly, softly, flabbily upon the roof opposite. When the waiter returned, two oysters lay on her plate. His eyes rolled wonderingly at her.

"Was—was the oysters good?" he asked, and he did not grin.

"Fairly good," she made answer, calmly; "but I wasn't really hungry, after all."—Washington Post.

TOO MUCH FOR HER NERVES.

An Experience That Caused the Lady Clerk to Go Into Another Business.

"I used to work for a collecting agency in one of the northern cities," said a woman perfumery drummer, "and my experience was tolerably exciting. My duty was to sit at a roll-top desk in the office and impersonate the proprietor. Light work, did you say? Just you wait. All day long men would come in to hammer the boss. 'Where's the fellow that sends out these blackmailing letters?' was the usual salutation. Then I would smile sweetly and say: 'I am the proprietress; what can I do for you?'

"At this the visitor would look dazed, utter things under his breath and walk off. Occasionally the real proprietor would peep through an inside window to see whether I was still alive, for I must admit our letters were calculated to give a man the homicidal mania.

"Well, things went along all right for nearly a month. There was one day a little wiry chap walked in carrying a thick cane. 'Where's the boss?' he said. I gave the usual fairy story. 'Don't believe a word of it,' he replied, 'still, I can't beat a woman.' He thought awhile, and something in his eye made me feel creepy. 'I'll have to take it out of the fixtures,' he said, finally, and upon my word, he broke up every blessed thing in the shop.

"He did it quickly and systematically and you never saw such an awful ruin! I screamed murder, but it did no good and he went right ahead. As a windup he smashed the chandelier and bade me a polite good-day. When the proprietor came in he had a fit. It was after that I went into the perfumery business. The work is harder, but it is much less trying on the nerves."—N. O. Times-Democrat.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, June 2, 1899.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Some of our citizens are preparing to visit Buffalo next week and see how court runs.

—We seem to be getting our April showers in May this year. They are frequent and some of them quite heavy.

—An epedemic of weddings seems to have struck Delano all at once. The Cramer family have been the hardest hit so far.

—John C. Arup is proprietor of one of the newest sidewalks in town. Johnny is bound to keep along with the procession.

—Rev. R. R. Atchison P. E. of this district was orator of the day at Maple Plain Tuesday. He gave satisfaction to a large audience.

—Rev. J. R. Davies, of Excelsior, preached at Montrose and Delano Sunday. He delivered the memorial address at Montrose Tuesday.

—John Cunningham announced on the evening of May 30 that "on Memorial Day, one year from now, there will be a celebration in Delano."

—Walter Burrows, a former Delanoite, is building a house on his farm, on the Buffalo road, in Rockford town, near the home of G. A. Ruckoldt.

—Mr. Litfkin, of Watertown, is having rock hauled onto his Bridge street property in Delano, for a foundation. Nothing like improvements.

—The rain seemed to dampen the patriotism of Delanoites last Saturday evening and they did not turn out to hold the meeting to arrange for 4th of July.

—Notices numerously signed are posted, asking for a vacation of the the road in Rockford and Franklin town, leading to the Ed Ziebarth bridge.

—The village council, it seems, did not consider it their duty to close saloons on Memorial Day from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m. even if the other places did do so and it was the law. It is better to go by the law.

—John E. Borsch is having some improvements made on his lots recently purchased from John Haffner. He intends building a commodious modern residence where stands one of the pioneer houses of Delano.

—Recorder Peterson was proudly exhibiting the skin of a lynx one day this week which he intends having made into a nice rug. His Uncle John shot the animal in the northern part of the state, where he lives when at home.

—The cistern on R. R. Ave., near the depot, once used for fire purposes, as the Eagle says ought, for safety, to be filled up. The brick of which it is built might pay for dirt to fill the hole. The old town well should be cleaned and fixed up for use.

—A chivarie of the old fashioned kind, except with the addition of guns like a small battle, was given for the benefit of George Cramer, Wednesday evening. Such a practice ought to cease in this enlightened age; especially the artillery should be left at home.

—The village council did a very foolish piece of business from a sanitary point of view when they filled the old cemented fire cistern with manure, to rot and create poisonous gasses for a generation or two, unless some other council removes the stuff, and replaces it with material of a different kind.

—Owing to rain and muddy roads Delano people did not go to Buffalo last Sunday to hear Bishop Joyce. It is hoped they may have another chance nearer home soon, as talk of getting him to come to Delano has been going on for some time past. It would be a treat to many people for him to preach in Delano.

—Memorial Day was observed by a few driving out to neighboring towns, where exercises were held. One flag was displayed in the village and that was in front of the GAZETTE office. Where, oh where is the patriotism of some of the loud mouthed money makers, commerce spreaders and expansionists, that they couldn't find time to observe the day, nor even a small flag to display.

—Examinations are being held at the public school this, the last week of the school year. A few of the scholars are passing the state examination. A good many complain that they don't pass. Perhaps they didn't attend school every day or neglected to study their lessons. It requires constant and hard study to accomplish much in the way of becoming a ripe scholar.

—The Rebeka lodge gave a grand dance and supper Friday evening. During the night some tramps got too boisterous about the place and one was sent to the lock-up until morning. Others broke into the hall after all parties had gone home, and helped themselves to the "goodies". A couple of them left a horse blanket, probably borrowed from a neighboring barn, beside the round elevator where they had likely slept a part of the night.

—John Sutton who has been sick for several weeks was taken to Minneapolis Monday morning and operated on for the purpose of evacuating a pus cavity near the kidney. But in his weak condition did not recuperate, but died Tuesday at 11 a. m. The funeral was conducted by Rev. William Wilkinson, of Minneapolis, and was held in the Presbyterian church. A large number of friends from Minneapolis and other places were in attendance.

—The reception given in the City Hall last night by the High School scholars, in honor of their teachers Misses Arnold and Smith, was a grand success. Those making up the party were the H. S. scholars, the Alumni, teachers, and school board and families. Every class of the Alumni was represented and two classes were there in full. Refreshments were served on the stage. In the later part of the evening all present gathered on the stage and posed for a couple of flash light pictures.

—The teachers and scholars of the two upper rooms of the High School went to lake Independence last Saturday and put in the day at boat riding and all the other recreating amusements that are indulged in at an old fashioned picnic on the shores of a beautiful lake. The two rooms went separately, but held their picnics at the same place. Wagons, bicycles, and buggies were pressed into service, and some, at least returned on the evening passenger. The weather was fine, and the day all that could be desired. The picnicers must have had more than the usual amount of sport as they all say it was the best time they ever had.

—A number of farmer teams from the road district leading to the Ziebarth school house from Delano were busy yesterday hauling gravel for that road. We understand they had the village road grader and have rounded up the road and are graveling it in good shape. That is what is needed. Let the good work go on. If an experienced man handles the grader it can do a big lot of good work in a day and the traveling community will bless those that make good roads. And the town that has the best roads leading into it, all things else equal, will surely draw the largest and pleasantest trade. Let the village authorities see that our streets leading to the very edge of the farthest suburbs are at least as good as the farmers make for miles beyond.

—Not for years have we heard so much about the coming school meeting as we do this year. Some complain that taxes are too high for school purposes; some that too much is paid for teachers; some that teachers are not always as good as they should be; some that the morals of the board might be bettered. Some have one cause of complaint, some another. Taxes have to be pretty high in order to pay interest and a thousand dollar bond every year. The board for the last three or four years have managed to keep something in the sinking fund and there has begun to be signs of reducing the debt and eventually the high tax, if the people turn out to school meeting and help elect a board that will look to the finances some. Of course we must have certain grades and qualified teachers in order to secure the appropriation from the state for High Schools, and in order to get good teachers, as in every other business we must pay good prices. The board should, of course be respectable, and voters who don't attend school meetings can't well complain of school officers elected while they are not there, as some of them do.

Personal.

County Cullings.

Next week, Buffalo, our thriving county seat, will assume its periodical airs and entertain the legal fraternity from judge to the humblest law student in the neighborhood; the array of peace officers from the sheriff and his corpse of deputies to numerous constables, jurymen, witnesses and other interested parties, not forgetting prisoners. The village hotels, eating houses and drinking houses will do a lively business for awhile. Several important cases will be on hand to be disposed of.

It seems a hard matter for our law makers to cover up the tracks they made while at the capitol. Last winter a bill was introduced by temperance people for county option. The Minnesota Issue, a red hot temperance paper, has taken the pains to look up how the vote stood, and gives a complete list of what Senators and Representatives voted for and against the bill as well as those present and not voting, and those absent. It is interesting to look over the list. We find in the House as voting to advance the bill for passage, Frank Swanson, of Wright county; to indefinitely postpone the bill, G. P. Boutwell, Wright county; in the Senate, to indefinitely postpone the bill, Edwin Y. Chilton, Wright county.

It beats all how many cases the railways have in Wright county. The June term to begin Monday has on the calander:

Elmer Gilchrist vs. Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste Marie Railway Co.

Helvin Olson, administrator of estate of Gustaf Olson, deceased, vs Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste Marie Railway Co.

State of Minnesota vs St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba R. W. Co.

State of Minnesota vs St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba R. W. Co.

Levi Cochran vs Great Nortnern Railway Co.

Thor G. Reed vs Great Northern Railway Co.

Ann Powell as administrator of the estate of Edward Powell, deceased, vs Great Northern Railway Co.

Ida Tuchtenhager by guardian vs Great Northern Railway Co.

Jarold Comer vs Great Northern Railway Co.

Among Our Exchanges.

Litchfield Review: Affairs in Cuba are not so tranquil as they might be. It is barely possible that Gen. Brooke is not the right man for the place.

Sherburne County Times: French says we are a liar without any qualifications. It's better to be a plain every day liar than to be not only a liar but a purgerer.

Waseca Herald: State Auditor Dunn's paper says: "There is a rumor that it cost the railroads $125,000 to defeat the increased taxation bill. It will cost the common people of the state several times that amount.

Duluth News Tribune: A New York man is dead from the effects of a practical joke, and an Iowa man has succumbed to the effects of a secret order initiation. Peace bath its terrors as well as war.

Anoka Herald: Jerry J. writes from Washington that John Goodnow will return to Minnesota in time to take a hand in the next campaign. The general will be able to give the party some good advice, a thing it needs very badly just at present.

Wabasha Standard: A suit recently begun by George F. Spinney against the St. Paul Globe is letting light in upon several dark places. It shows that J. J. Hill is the owner of that paper. The Globe was the leading supporter of John Lind last fall. And now Gov. Lind is repaying in every possible way his benefactor, J. J. Hill.

News Ledger: It is said that John Goodnow is coming home to talk a little Chinese to the republican party of this state before the next campaign. Better make it Scandinavian, John, as it is a heap more familiar tongue in these parts.

Valley Herald: The Filipinos are fighting harder than ever, and the end is still a great way off. Gen. Otis says it will take an army of 30,000, or more men to enforce peace. How many more lives it will cost is hard to say. However we hope for a speedy ending of an unfortunate war.

Waverly Tribune: Yes we believe in the referendum. Let the 13th decide where they are to be mustered out.

Buffalo Journal: The old version: All just governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed. The new version: Death or unconditional surrender.

Dr. J. F. Fulton and A. T. Hall, of St. Paul, accompanied by their wives, spent Sunday fishing here. The day was bad but they took home about fifty pounds of bass.—Howard Lake Herald.

The gentlemen and their wives should do their fishing on some other day than Sunday. It would read lots better in the papers in a christian country.

Goes By Opposites.

There are some singular features to the career and character of President William McKinley which, we may hope, the youth of the land will not seek to emulate. However good and great he may be, in his own proper person, it cannot be denied that like the irishman's dream he goes by opposites." Note the record. He was pre eminently a man of peace. He is the war president.

He was urgently supported by the A. P. A. as an American Catholic ousting official. He has made a Catholic Arch-Bishop his confidential adviser. He was anti-British in all his professions. He is the great advocate of an English alliance. He did not favor but was opposed to Cuban annexation and guaranteed to Cuban autonomy and independence. He is conducting matters with an evident purpose to annexation. He was the greatest American advocate of protection. He is closed on that subject and may be expected to comply with the wishes of the trusts; and advocates reciprocity with England.

He professed and professes to believe in bimetalism and makes no effort to prevent the gold standard being fixed upon the nation.

He is the champion of greenbacks. He would kill them by insisting that when they are once received into the treasury they shall not again be issued except for gold. He discriminates against the greenbacks—slanders it—and pretends that men will give pampered and petted gold dollars for it. He knows better.

In short, President McKinley is all pretension. He even pretends to be president although everybody knows that the real president is Mark Hanna.

He kills everything he professes to believe in by the process of "benevolent assimilation." Such a president was never before seen, and if he were not controlled by others he would be entitled to the distinction that he out-Tallyrand's Tallyrand who said "language is made to conceal ideas."—Broad Axe.

"OLDEST AND BEST"
With the SPECIAL CABLES
OF THE NEW YORK HERALD

THE delights of an evening spent around a well-lighted reading table are not half understood. An illustrated magazine with its wealth of illustrations, its stories of adventure and love, its descriptions of travel which carry you to the remotest ends of the earth, and its instructive articles for young and old—these are the first requisites for your own enjoyment and the entertainment and proper education of your children.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal,

Both Together One Year for Only $1.80

In this way you secure your own home paper and an illustrated magazine at a price that is only about a fourth of what some of the illustrated magazines sell for. For three years The Cosmopolitan has undisputedly claimed that it reached the largest clientele possessed by any periodical, daily, weekly or monthly, in the world. It was The Cosmopolitan which sent Julian Hawthorne to India to let the world know the real horrors of famine and plague. It was The Cosmopolitan which established at its own cost a great Free Correspondence University which now has over 20,000 students on its rolls. It was The Cosmopolitan which offered a prize of $3,000 for the best horseless carriage and prizes for best plans for public baths, and best arrangement of sewer and pipe systems for cities. It was The Cosmopolitan which set the presidents of great schools and universities seriously discussing the defects of existing educational systems. It is The Cosmopolitan whose enterprise is always in the lead in advancing the world's civilization.

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

DO IT, SAY IT.

If you've any task to do,
Let me whisper, my friend, to you,
Do it.

If you've anything to say,
True and needed, yea or nay,
Say it.

If you've anything to love
As a blessing from above,
Love it.

If you've anything to give,
That another's joy may live,
Give it.

If some hollow creed you doubt,
Tho' the whole world hoot and shout,
Doubt it.

If you've any debt to pay,
Rest you neither night nor day,
Pay it.

If you've any joy to hold
Near your heart, lest it grow cold,
Hold it.

If you've any grief to meet,
At a loving Father's feet,
Meet it.

If you know what torch to light,
Guiding others in the night,
Light it.

ONE of America's greatest plagues of today is the use of intoxicating drinks.

IF anything is going on in the Philippines that the administration is ashamed of it, and not the news should be suppressed.

IT is claimed the ants in the Philippine islands are so fond of paper money they eat all they can get. Coin is to be used there in future.

GOV. LIND has appointed Captains Masterman and Robinson of the 13th Regiment to be Majors, to fill places made vacant by promotions and by the death of Major Diggles.

IT appears that Goldbug democrats are working industriously and harmoniously with republicans to defeat the nomination of William Jennings Bryan for President. The friends of Mr. Bryan should be ever on the alert. They should be sure that nothing is done to intertere with the choice of the people.

WE are of opinion that the United States soldiers have, by actual fighting, demonstrated sufficiently to the world that they can whip the Filipinos in battle. Why then keep on and on demonstrating the fact? Why keep losing men almost daily chasing natives around among their native hills with a few American soldiers? Is there sense or reason or Christianity in it? Or is it only to expand our commerce?

THE annual announcement of the Gustavus Adolphus College, for 1899 is out. This a good college, supported knd controlled by the Minnesota Conference of the Evangelical Lutheran Augustana Synod of North America. The buildings are good, situated at St. Peter, one of the healthiest and most picturesque cities in the state. The moral as well as the mental and physical man is the object of the institution.

DULUTH people are rejoicing over the prospects of a good stage of water in the lakes. Lake Superior is said to be six inches higher than the average at this season of the year. It seems strange to people living inland that six inches more or less water in a great lake like that should make any difference, but it seems it does. Wait until Secretary Alger's new drain gets to running and the surplus will dubtless be reduced some.

PRESIDENT MCKINLEY is said to have cabled his approval to President Schurman, head of the Philippine commission that "The president earnestly desires that bloodshed cease and that the people of the Philippines at an early date enjoy the largest measure of self government compatable with peace and order." If President McKinley, commander-in chief of the American forces desires that bloodshed cease. We don't think it would require much time for him to have it cease. But the object seems to be to conquor the natives with a few thousand of soldiers.

SUNDAY base ball playing received, as it should, a black eye, when President Northrop refused to grant a diploma to a member of the graduating class who was leader in Sunday base ball games. What else could the President of a great University, in a Christian land do? Is he not to grant diplomas only to those of good moral character? And is a man, even though he be a member of the graduating class to be considered of good moral character when he breaks the rules of the University, the laws of our state, the usage of Christian people for ages, and the ten commandments by desecrating the Sabbath day? Morals as well as other branches should be taught in our University.

THE American Economist quotes from a trade paper that, "makers and jobbers of bathing suits had already, although the season is still in its infancy, done as much business so far in 1899 as they did during the seasons of 1897 and 1898 put together", and goes on to argue that "since the Dingley Tariff, 'good times for all' have come in". Have any of our readers purchased a bathing suit? Do they know any of their neighbors who have purchased bathing suits?

C. H. Howard who, it is claimed has succeeded in having saloons in Rochester, N. Y. closed during Sundays and other hours prescribed by law is to visit Minneapolis this summer and work on the same plan. The Tribune says: "Mayor Gray will be told that unless he gives orders to this effect steps will be taken to impeach him on the ground that he is violating his oath of office in not enforcing the laws governing saloons. This is one way of going at the business which appears to be a business way, and the results of which are at once plainly to be seen when the plan is properly operated. Let the good work proceed. Success to the plan.

GEN. LAWTON'S VIEWS.

Compares Civil War Conditions With Those in the Philippines.

Maj. Gen. H. W. Lawton, of the United States Army, in the Philippines, replying to a congratulatory letter written him by an old comrade of the war of the rebellion, living at Wabash, Ind., makes comparison of the service in the conflict with the Fillpinos and that of the civil war. He says:

"Your very kind letter was received, and I cannot tell you how much I appreciate it. There is nothing in the world that can be done, no reward that can be given me, that I appreciate one half so much as I do the approval of my old friends in the war of the rebellion. As you say, 'they are tolerably qualified to judge, and I feel that with their approval I can claim some right to consideration. You ask me to give a comparison of the two wars. There is no comparison to be made. The war of the rebellion was one of the greatest conflicts the world has ever known; the war with Spain is probably one of the least, so far as actual operations are concerned, that have ever been fought, but the results are greater, perhaps, than any war we have ever had. The fighting qualities of the men are the same. The American soldier is one with courage, nerve, and grit. He has been just the same at all times, as he always will be, a courageous and brave soldier. The exposure of our campaign for a few days was very trying, but it was nothing to compare in time nor conditions to our war. We had a deadly climate to contend with; worse in that respect, than anything we had to contend with in our war. The improvement in firearms, of course, cannot be a matter of comparison. Our rations were better than anything we ever had, or believed it possible for an army to have, in our war. It is true that for a few days we were short, but that was for lack of transportation, and then we were never without some portion of the ration, and that portion more than our soldiers had at the best during the civil war. I want to thank you for your kind and flattering expressions, and want to say to you that I wish you would take the trouble to thank all the old soldiers who have been good enough to express their satisfaction and approval of my work, and say to them, as I have said to you, there is nothing that makes me feel as proud or as happy as their good opinion." —National Tribune.

The Beecher family is one whose branches are very many and whose lines of work are as varied as the individuals. It is a grandniece of Henry Ward Beecher, Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Stetson, who is at present very much to the fore in relation to the economic emancipation of women. In the July number of The Cosmopolitan Mrs. Stetson will wage a pen warfare with Prof. Harry Thurston Peck over an article in the June number of the Cosmopolitan, "The Woman of To-day and To-morrow." Mrs. Stetson has something in the June number -a four line poem on "Queer People." The illustrations by Oliver Herford are themselves queer.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 19, 1899.

More men, more blood, and more money for the Philippines. That is the cheerful outlook. Mr. McKinley has become convinced that Aguinaldo successfully played the role of br'er fox in his dealings with the blue-coated and red-trousered American civilian Commissioners by staving off active military operations against him until the rainy season, while he was preparing for another campaign in the fall. He has also become convinced that any further delay of the volunteers in the Philippines who wish to come home will be dangerous. Convinced of these two things there was nothing left for him to do except to decide to issue a call for volunteers to go to the Philippines, under authority of the army act of the last Congress. He has made that decision, but, in keeping with his usual custom of giving the public an excuse for his every important act, will defer issuing the call for volunteers until he gets a cablegram from Gen. Otis saying that more men are imperatively needed over there. It has been found impossible to get any considerable number of the volunteers now in the Philippines to re-enlist, although each man who does so is given travel pay amounting to about $60.

The Spanish flag is for the first time in more than a year flying in Washington. It flies over the hotel in which the Duke de Arcos, the new Spanish Minister, and his American wife, are guests. The new Minister called on Secretary Hay and presented his credentials and later was presented by Mr. Hay to Mr. McKinley, and diplomatic relations are again established with Spain. The Minister has many personal friends in Washington, which was the home of his wife when he first met her and for many years afterwards.

U. S. Commissioner of Patents Duell is making a record as an efficient official. He has the work of the Patent Office in such good shape that Washington's most successful firm of patent lawyers, C. A. Snow & Co., announce that they can procure patents in from four to ten weeks from date of application. They have procured more than 20,000 patents, and it would be impossible to find a city, town, or village in the U. S. which has no client of theirs.

Although the negotiations have not been formally broken off there is practically a dead lock over the Alaskan boundary. Months ago it was charged that Great Britain did not wish this dispute settled, and it begins to look as though those who made the charge knew what they were talking about, although it is apparently Canada that has brought about the deadlock in the negotiations.

Since getting the consent of Boss Hanna, the Henderson-Sherman speakership combine have been rushing things so rapidly that they have already apparently got all the other candidates distanced. In the rush the Henderson wing of the combine has taken the lead to such an extent that they are claiming that Henderson is as good as elected, and there appears to be good ground for the claim, but appearances in this sort of a fight are often deceptive. It seems certain, however, that the combine will win, and that either Henderson or Sherman will be Speaker.

Republican assistance is being secretly given to the schemers who are wording to prevent the renomination of Col. Bryan and the re-adoption of the principles of the Chicago platform by the next democratic National convention by securing more than one-third of the delegates to that convention. The scheme is to get men elected delegates who can be controlled by the schemers, if they are not instructed. The practical result of this scheme is likely to be that many delegates will be instructed, who under ordinary circumstances would not be. The rank and file of the democracy know what they want and also how to get it.

Subscriptions to the Dewey Home fund are coming in so slowly that daily statements are no longer issued of the amounts received.

The administration is much worried by the failure of the Cuban soldiers to surrender their arms and accept the $75 per capita sent over there for them. They had supposed that the poor, ragged devils would jump at the chance of getting $75 apiece, more money than probably three-fourths of them ever owned at one time in their lives. They don't know what to make of the refusal, but they fear that it means trouble of some sort, and their fears are likely to be true.

CAPRON, OF THE FIRST ARTILLERY

A Brave and Picturesque Officer, As Seen by a Volunteer at Santiago.

AFTER the close of the Santiago campaign, Capron's battery was returned to the United States and was sent to Jefferson Barracks, St. Louis. A volunteer contributes to the New York Sun these interesting reminiscences of a brave and picturesque officer:

The army officer whose personality most impressed me during the Santiago campaign was the late Capt. Allyn Capron, Sr., of E battery, First artillery. From July 8 until early in August my company was camped on "Misery Hill," as we called it, right alongside Capron's battery. I saw a great deal of him and his men. Capt. Capron was a short, stout, broad-shouldered, stockily-built man with iron-gray hair. Evidently between 50 and 60, he was straight as a ramrod. He had a neck like a bull, the back of a wrestler, and a head that was a cube. His men danced when he gave a command, but never tired of bragging about him. One of his privates said to me:

"When a thing goes wrong the old man may cuss the entire battery into a hemorrhage, but he never sticks a decent man into the guard house or gets him fined."

A few days after the San Juan engagement I met an artilleryman whose enlistment had just expired. I forget his regiment and battery. I remarked that I supposed he would get back to the states as soon as possible and bid good-by to soldiering.

"You bet!" he replied, and then added: "Unless I can get in Capron's battery. I'm on my way to see the old man now."

One of the yarns that traveled the rounds of the encampment before Santiago went this way: It was one of the three days of the San Juan fight. Capron was leading his battery up a road toward the front when he came upon a battalion of men lying down along the roadside. While the rest of the regiment went on, a faint-hearted major had kept this battalion back. As Capron rode stiffly by paying no heed to the drop shots that fell around him, the quaking major got on his feet, and, saluting, asked:

"Lieutenant, what shall I do with my men?"

"Damn your impudence!" thundered Capron, "are you so badly frightened, sir, that you cannot see that I'm a captain? Tell your men to go to the front, and then by ——, sir, go home, sir, and get under the bed, sir!"

One morning on Misery Hill I witnessed a sample of Capt. Capron's methods with his men. It is a time-honored custom in the regular army to give a rookie, or new recruit, much more than his fair share of fatigue duty. The regulations protect each man, but it takes the recruit some time to learn his rights. On the morning in question Capron's men had received orders to build their entrenchments higher. A corporal had put a lone private at work carrying gunnysacks of sand and piling them along the battery trenches. The poor fellow staggered back and forth with the heavy bags, fairly dripping with perspiration. The other men of the battery were scattered about in the shade of the trees, taking their ease. Capt. Capron emerged from his tent, and, with a grim smile, surveyed the scene. Then he shouted:

"You, sir! Come here, sir!"

The rookie marched up, sack on back. As he said himself, "he was scared stiff." Capron looked him over sternly:

"Drop that sack, sir!"

The recruit dropped it as if it had been red hot.

"Stand at attention, sir!"

The order was obeyed with evident apprehension as to what was coming next.

"Don't you know your rights, sir? Because you are a willing horse they are working you to death. One man, sir, doesn't do all the work of a battery. The first sergeant will instruct you. That will do, sir."

By the time Capron had completed his reprimand and reentered his tent a dozen privates had carried a sack each to the trenches, and the rookie's morning task had been completed in about three minutes.

At the engagement at Las Guasimas Capt. Allyn K. Capron, of the rough riders, son of Capt. Capron, Sr., was killed. His body was left for a time where it fell. His hat was placed to cover his face, and a black rubber poncho thrown over the body. Only the rough, mud-clotted shoes protruded from beneath the poncho. Word was sent to Capt. Capron, Sr., and he soon reached the scene of the engagement. White-faced, but upright, he stood for a moment, looking down at the black, forbidding outline in a by-path, all that remained of the last of three promising sons. Stooping, he lifted the hat from the dead boy's face, and, gazing at him with moist eyes, said:

"Well done, boy!"

Then replacing the hat he turned on his heel and marched stiffly away.

During the bombardment of Santiago I was in the trenches right beside Capron's battery. Overhead the Spanish shells were humming and screeching. I could occasionally see the glint of one in the sunshine as it passed over. About our ears a bumble bee's nest of Mauser bullets was zinging and zooing. There was Capt. Capron, field glasses in hand, and erect and inflexible as ever. One of his gunners, who had just thrown a shell wide of the mark, stood beside him. An unusually low shot from the enemy made the gunner involuntarily dodge. Capron looked at him impatiently.

"Who in blank are you bowing to, you cockeyed dancing master?" he demanded. "Can't you see a blockhouse right on the end of your nose? Look through these glasses. See it? Now, try it again."

The next shot landed fair on the mark.

"Now, shrapnel!" shouted Capron as the Spanish survivors began to pour out of the blockhouse. "Give it to them!"

And give it to them they surely did.

I shall not soon forget the first fresh beef I had in Cuba. It was a red-letter day in my career. Capron's battery got it, and we were told that everyone would save some the next day. But I was so hungry for it I couldn't wait. So I went over and watched the battery men cut up theirs, and managed to make a trade for a piece big enough for myself and a bunkie. I asked one of the commissary detail how they got it when we didn't.

"Oh," he said, "the old man worked it. He came into camp and told the sergeant there was some beef at commissary headquarters, but not enough to go around. He said: 'Take a detail and go down and take some! Take it! If anyone objects, say that I said to take it. Don't be a blanked hog or impudent to anyone, for if you are I shan't help you out—but take some beef.' We obeyed orders."

So far as I could learn, the balance of the beef, after Capron's men got theirs, went to officers only. The next day, however, every one had it.

I was down in the roadway at the foot of Misery Hill the day that Capron's battery pulled out to go to their transport. Capron rode ahead on horseback. Once in awhile he turned in his saddle and gave a command in a roar that made the little valley echo. The guns came clanking down the hill behind him. The road was barely wide enough for two wagons to pass. Just at the foot of the hill Capron rode square up against a wagon loaded with supplies coming the other way. A teamster and some volunteer major were in the wagon. Capron looked black as a thunder cloud.

"Get out of my way, sir!" he exclaimed.

The teamster looked puzzled and the major scared.

"How will we do it, sir?" asked the major.

"What do I care how you do it, sir?" shouted Capron. "Get out of my way,

"WHO ARE YOU BOWING TO?"

sir!" Then, looking around a second, he fairly roared, "Get into the bushes, sir."

The major grabbed the reins and whip from the teamster and lashed the mules out into the thicket to let Capron pass. The one wore a major's and the other a captain's straps. Capron's men smiled grimly under their campaign hats and silently rode on.

Capt. Capron always appeared pleasant with the enlisted men of the volunteers. He usually had a cheery "good day" for them. He would stop and respond to a remark or question that was respectfully put. But he did not seem to consider them in the same class with his own men. His attitude toward the volunteers was as if he looked on them as a lot of promising young cubs. In fact, he said of the lads who loafed around his tent:

"The cubs have stuff in 'em. I wouldn't mind whipping some of the whelps into shape myself."

But his own men he treated as if they were a herd of full-grown roaring lions seeking that which they might devour. His simplest order was delivered in a hoarse bellow. Not that his men were a noisy lot, for they were singularly silent and self-contained. But they one and all seemed to approve of Capron's attitude toward them. Big, brawny and hairy-chested, they were in comparison with the volunteers like a lot of untamed grizzly bears beside a litter of white mice. And they seemed happy to be treated as grizzlies by Capron.

In my memory of the men and events of the Santiago campaign there will always stand out clean-cut the image of Capt. Allyn Capron—man and soldier. His Creator forgot to put a hinge in his back. And he deserves from his countrymen a monument inscribed:

"Well done, Capt. Capron!"

Not to Be Wondered At.

An absent-minded German professor was one day observed walking down the street with one foot continually in the gutter, the other on the pavement. A pupil, meeting him, saluted him with: "Good evening, Herr Professor. How are you?" "I was very well, I thought," answered the professor; "but now I don't know what's the matter with me. For the last ten minutes I've been limping!"—London Answers.

Not the Time to Leave Her.

"Do you mind if I go into the smoking compartment of the car a few minutes?" he asked.

"You'd better not go just now," she replied suggestively. "We're coming to a tunnel in a few minutes."—Chicago Post.

Gather: Delighted to have received a letter from you. We are all well here, speaking of Delano boys in our regiment. Haven't seen nor heard of Perry or Orley since the out break occurred; never heard of them being wounded, but I guess they are all right. I saw a list of N. D. Killed, some 6 or 8 from Co. There is hardly any news here. We have only had five scraps this month, the 11th 12th 14th 20th 21st. We are on the firing line eating mangoes which are very good. I got up about an hour early this morning, and eat five before breakfast and two at breakfast. They must be picked about 3 or four days before they are ripe. I also have a bunch of bannas with three yellow ones on it. The rest are green yet.

We do duty every other night now, (out post, camp guard, or bridge guard) I am on tonight.

I was surprised this morning to find my gun in good shape, usually it is yellow from one end to the other, being exposed to dew and rain. As I was laying on my back last night, something run the length of me and turned two or three summersaults in mid air as he passed my face. I pronounced him an acrobat and turned over.

I must close till some other time.

It is not likely that Maj. Gen. Lawton ever essayed the great feat of eating 30 quails in 30 days, but winning 22 fights in 20 days is quite as praiseworthy.

It is stated that the English language is growing faster than any other, past or present. That is because those who use it have a great deal to say in this world.

England is experimenting on the frontier with a petroleum gun carriage. It is said to work so easy that an ordinary kitchen girl can fire it without difficulty.

And now a "relief" expedition is to be sent to the north pole to the relief of Lieut. Peary, who went to the relief of someone, the scientists have just now forgotten whom.

Now that liquid air and wireless telegraphy have been achieved, it would seem to be only a matter of time before somebody gets up a syndicate for the control of the atmosphere.

Experiments in wireless telegraphy prove that moving craft at sea can communicate with each other at a distance. Ships that pass in the night hereafter may at least exchange compliments.

An Italian duke has started for the north pole, carrying in his supply train a steam piano and 1,000 bottles of liquor. Curious people will at once begin to wonder why he should burden himself with so much piano.

The estimated loss of $1,000,000 in the burning of Dawson, Alaska, sounds queer, when it is known that the place was but a collection of log houses. But that is a country where a plain, every-day door costs about $50.

Only four independent states remain in Africa. They are Abyssinia, Morocco, Liberia and the Orange Free State. The slicing up of Africa by Europe is nearly complete, and Asia is fast undergoing the same operation.

The Medical Record calls the following "more or less good advice for doctors," and, it may be added, for their patients also: "Drink less, breathe more; eat less, chew more, ride less, walk more; clothe less, bathe more; worry less, work more; waste less, give more; write less, read more; preach less, practice more."

A backbone is worth $10,000. At least that is the finding of the superior court of Massachusetts. Antonio Bartolomeo, a laborer, sued a contractor for damages, alleging that because of the contractor's negligence a trench caved in, buried the plaintiff and permanently injured his spine. The court awards the laborer $10,000.

The organisms of hailstones have been investigated on two occasions by F. C. Harrison, a Canadian bacteriologist, who has found numerous bacteria and molds, including a bacillus and a coccus hitherto undescribed. The character of the germs confirms Bujwid's theory that surface water is carried up by storms and frozen, producing hail.

In a criminal prosecution recently tried in a Nebraska town the jury, after a brief deliberation, returned the following verdict: "We, the jury in the above-named case, do not believe one word that the witnesses have sworn to; neither do we believe that any of the attorneys have spoken the truth, nor that either of them could do so, even if he should care to take the trouble to try."

In naval tactics the word fleet means any body of warships numbering 12 or more ships of the line, namely, battleships and first-class cruisers. A fleet is divided into three squadrons, known as the van, the center and the rear. The senior flag officer, under the fleet commander, commands the center, the next in command the van, and the third the rear—whence the term rear admiral.

The officer of the wrecking company who superintended the raising of the Reina Mercedes in the harbor of Santiago says he could raise every Spanish wreck at Santiago if the government wished, but he does not think it would pay. He says there is so much lye in the water at Santiago that the machinery and boilers of the vessels are pitted and eaten away, besides which the heavy armor plate on the vessels would have to be removed and the vessels replated at great cost.

Justice is ofttimes snail-like in its movements, but from New York comes the news of an instance of slow justice that is a record breaker. After 26 years' battling in the courts, it has finally been decided that the city owes William A. Brickill $894,633 for an invention which the fire department has been using for 30 years. Brickill spent his life fighting for his rights, but died in poverty three years ago, and now final settlement of the case finds Mrs. Brickill in absolute want. If there were more justice and less law in the courts lawyers would not be so corpulent.

Memorial day was celebrated this year on both sides of the world. Before morning dawned in the United States the notable ceremonies at Manila were nearly over. The graves of Americans in Cuba were covered with flowers and festoons of laurel were placed on the wreck of the Maine in the harbor of Havana. One year has brought striking changes, carrying the flag westward across the Pacific, and a thousand miles to the east in the Atlantic. The observance of the day was general, and the marks of sympathetic interest were never more impressive.

A monument is to be erected in Kensico cemetery, New York city, in honor of the unidentified dead who perished in the Windsor hotel fire and are buried in that cemetery. The monument will be of granite, 21 feet high, with a life-size bronze figure of Grief standing beside three columns. One of these columns will be perfect, to represent those who escaped from the fire; the second will be partly broken, to represent the identified dead, and the third will be broken off at the base, to represent the unidentified dead. The monument is to be erected at a cost of $7,500.

REBELS RETREAT.

Manila, June 5. — A vigorous campaign was begun on Saturday against Gen. Pio Del Pilar's force of 2,000 Filipinos in the foothills at the mouth of Laguna bay and in the towns of Cainta, Taytay and Antipolo, under the supervision of Gen. Lawton. Gen. Hall, with 2,500 men, moved southeast from the pumping station, and Col. Whalley, who relieved Gen. King in command of his brigade, proceeded east from San Pedro Macati, the two divisions approaching each other. Col. GIVEN ANOTHER TRIAL.

Court of Cassation Orders a Second Court-Martial of Dreyfus—Will Probably Be Freed.

Paris, June 5.—The verdict of the court of cassation, given Saturday, makes Dreyfus, for the time at least, a free man, for until the second court-martial pronounces him guilty—a contingency now undreamed of in Paris—he is a captain in the French army, entitled to wear his uniform and the cross of the Legion of Honor.

The court of cassation's review and declaration that the captain is suffering for a crime he never committed leaves little chance for another conviction.

The decision says that the prisoner is to be retried on the following question:

"Is Dreyfus guilty of having in 1894 practiced machinations or of having had communication with a foreign power or its agents with a view of facilitating acts of hostilities in the case of a war with France, or having furnished the means therefor, by furnishing notes or documents retraced on the bordereau?"

St. Louis, June 6.—A special to the Republic from Lebanon, Ill., says: Miss Ruth Jepson, of Lebanon; Miss Florence Spies, of St. Jacob, and Miss Hallene Jack, of Beaucoup, ill., students of McKendree college, were drowned in Silver creek two miles north of here Monday afternoon. The young ladies were members of a party of six who had planned a trip to Blue Bend, on Silver creek, about two miles north of Lebanon. They were in bathing, when Miss Jepson got beyond her depth. The other two girls went to her rescue and all were drowned. Miss Annie Smith, another of the party, made a heroic attempt to rescue her comrades, but her strength failed and she almost lost her own life in the struggle. The bodies were recovered after an hour's search and a futile attempt was made to resuscitate them.

Havana, June 6.—A dispatch from San Antonio des Losbanos says that Jose Labraget, a notorious agent of Gen. Weyler, who outraged defenseless women and killed children, arrived here Sunday. His appearance was the signal for a gathering of relatives and friends of those whom he formerly persecuted. The excitement continued throughout the day and night. About midnight a crowd surrounded the house where he was and began to threaten him. He attempted to escape and, on meeting the demonstrators, emptied his revolver, wounding two persons. The crowd closed in and captured him, and he was lynched in the public square.

Paris, June 2.—The civil and military authorities and a big crowd of people went to the railroad station at Lyons at one o'clock in the morning to welcome Maj. A tremendous shout of "Vive Marchand" announced the arrival of the popular idol's train at 9:10 a. m. A victoria was sent by the minister of marine, M. Lockroy, to convey the major to the ministry of marine, where a lunch was given in his honor.

The carriage was literally covered with flowers and had a tri-color flag at each corner, while the coachman's whip was tied with tri-color ribbons.

Delirious enthusiasm marked every step of Marchand's progress along the Boulevard Dideret, to the Henri Quatre bridge. On either step of the carriage stood a policeman who kept the explorer's frantic admirers from entering the vehicle.

A dramatic scene occurred at the Military club in the course of the evening. Maj. Marchand, in response to loud cheering, appeared upon the balcony with the minister of marine, M. Lockroy, and the minister of war, M. Kraatz, on either side of him, and shouted "Be united. Vive la France. Vive la republique." The throngs went wild with excitement.

D'ARCOS IS RECEIVED.

New Spanish Minister Formally Presents His Credentials to the President—Cordially Greeted.

Washington, June 5. — Diplomatic relations with Spain, broken off April 21, 1898, were formally resumed at 11 o'clock Saturday, when President McKinley greeted Duc d'Arcos, the newly accredited minister to the United States, in the blue parlor of the white house. Simultaneously, in Madrid, Bellamy Storer, the New United States minister to Spain, was being presented to Christina, the queen regent during the legal minority of his Catholic majesty Alphonso XIII. It was a notable occasion in the world's history—the resumption of friendly relations between two nations which had been at war and in the brief struggle had changed the map of the world.

The speeches were plain spoken and devoid of the usual hazy diplomatic phraseology.

At their conclusion the president stepped forward and shook hands cordially with the new minister and they engaged in conversation in a low tone for a minute or two. The president gracefully inquired after the health of the queen regent and the king. He courteously referred to the duc's former residence in this country and his many friends here and repeated the assurances of the concluding words of his formal greeting, that every one here would unite in making the minister's stay in this country pleasant and satisfactory.

Train Robbers Use Dynamite.

Omaha, Neb., June 3.—A special to the Bee from Laramie, Wyo., says: The Union Pacific transcontinental westbound mail train was held up, dynamited and robbed at one o'clock Friday morning near Wilcox, a lonely station on the Wyoming division. The hold-up was accomplished by waving a danger signal a short distance east of Wilcox bridge. It is not known at this time the amount secured from the express car safe. The hold-up occurred in a district where escape to the mountains is comparatively easy.

Salt Lake City, June 3.—A special to the Tribune from Rawlins, Wyo., says the robbers at Wilcox obtained $36,000 in money and about $10,000 worth of diamonds, and that a large amount of money in bills was destroyed by the explosion.

A Cloudburst.

Redding, Cal., June 5.—As a result of the cloudburst in the southwestern part of Shasta county, Duckett creek, ordinarily a placid stream, was transformed into a raging torrent and overflowed its banks, submerging all the adjoining lowlands. The water flowed over many acres of land which had been under cultivation, ruining the growing crops and washing away outbuildings and fences. An entire band of sheep was swept from the pasture field and drowned.

Vienna, June 5.—Johann Strauss, the famous composer, died here, aged 73 years. He was a most prolific writer, and the Strauss dances now number nearly 500. RETIRES FROM THE CONTEST.

Mr. Hopkins Withdraws His Name as Candidate for Speaker in Favor of Henderson.

Chicago, June 3.—Congressman A. J. Hopkins Friday afternoon withdrew from the national speakership contest in favor of Col. D. B. Henderson, of Iowa. Nine of the 14 congressmen in the Illinois delegation were present at a general round-up meeting held at the Grand Pacific hotel Friday afternoon. After four hours of discussion behind closed doors it was decided to withdraw Mr. Hopkins' name and support Henderson. The conference was perfectly harmonious. Mr. Hopkins made a statement, in which he declared that to further prolong his candidacy might result in embarrassment to the successful candidate in the proper administration of his office, and that his withdrawal at this time would conduce to harmony in the party. His withdrawal and the subsequent action of the Illinois delegation had been without the knowledge of Col. Henderson or any of his supporters.

Yankton, S. D., June 2.—Congressman Gamble made public announcement that he was in favor of Col. Henderson for speaker. His colleague, Mr. Burke, has so far not committed himself, but from a recent interview it would seem he favored the Iowa candidate. South Dakota may therefore with reasonable certainty be placed solidly in the Henderson column.

Chicago, June 6.—Congressman David B. Henderson received further evidence of support Monday night in a message from Gen. Henry H. Bingham, of Pennsylvania, who notified him that 13 congressmen of that state were for him and that he might secure 20. Gen. Bingham was one of the candidates for speaker. Col. Henderson left Monday night for his home in Dubuque, Ia., feeling satisfied that developments since he came to Chicago have assured him the speakership.

INSULT LOUBET.

Violent Demonstrations Made Against the French President While Attending the Races.

Paris, June 5.—President Loubet, accompanied by the premier, M. Dupuy, and the chief of the military household, Gen. McBailloud, drove to the Auteuil races Sunday afternoon, closely followed by Mme. Loubet in a second landau. As they drove along the Avenue des Champs Eylsees the crowd bowed respectfully, but on arriving at Auteuil they were met by a violent demonstration, evidently organized and directed against the president. There was a storm of hoots, yells and cries of "Panama!" "A bas Loubet!" and "Vive l'armee!" A few shouts of "Vive Loubet!" were drowned in the clamor. A strong force of police kept order and arrested many of the disturbers, including a man who tried to force his way to the president's carriage.

At the crisis of the excitement, while shouts of "Vive l'armee!" and "Vive Deroulede!" were heard on all sides, Count Christiano rushed toward the president, brandishing a stick, and directed a blow against him, striking his hat. The crowd rushed upon Christiano, who only escaped severe handling by being taken under police protection. President Loubet remained all the while quite unmoved, talking to the premier, while the officers of his military household were defending him against violence. Finally, after 30 arrests had been made, the prefect of police ordered the republican guards to surround the presidential stand.

Police Inspector Grilliere had his head seriously wounded in the melee, and President Loubet has since decorated him with the cross of the Legion of Honor in recognition of his devotion to duty. On returning to the Elysee palace M. Loubet received many sympathizing callers.

THE BABY IS FOUND.

Marion Clark, the Kidnaped Child, Discovered in a Farmhouse Near Sloatsburg, N. Y.

Garnerville, N. Y., June 2.—Marion Clark, the 21-months-old child kidnaped from her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Clark, of New York city, on May 21, was discovered two miles south of Sloatsburg, a village about eight miles from here, Thursday afternoon. She was found at the farmhouse of Charles Youmans and was in custody of Mrs. Jennie Wilson, who took the baby to that place during the early part of last week.

Mrs. Wilson and a man claiming to be her husband were arrested and taken to New York.

New York, June 3.—Carrie Jones, the nurse who helped to steal Marion Clark, was found near Summit, N. Y. She is a country girl and swears she was led into the scheme to steal the children by George Beauregard Barrow and his wife Jennie, who were arrested Thursday. In this confession she tells that the child was stolen to demand ransom for her, and relates how the kidnaping was accomplished.

Sent to Jail.

New York, June 6.—Mr. and Mrs. Barrow, accused of kidnaping little Marion Clark, waived examination before Justice of the Peace Herbert at Garnerville, Rockland county, Monday, and were committed to the county jail to await the action of the grand jury, which meets in October. All efforts of the New York county authorities to obtain possession of the prisoners have failed thus far, and unless Gov. Roosevelt should interfere the New York authorities cannot get the prisoners until after they have been tried in Rockland county.

SONG OF THE SHIRT WAIST.

It Arises When the Airy, Fairy Favorite of the Ladies Makes Its Appearance.

Hark! the pipes of Pan are pleading—like a sweetheart interceding—in behalf of lazy fellows nowadays—for the proud and painted tulip—and the meek and minted julep—are a-bloom again along life's arid ways!

Yes, it works a chap's unloading—when he knows that nature's wooing—from the uplands and the lowlands and the meres—When the noontide glows in splendor—when the nights are soft and tender—and the captivating shirt waist reappears!

When the liver-pad is writing—and the lily-pad is tilting—on the breeze bedimpled bosom of the pool—When the ripe red rose comes pleasing—and the ripe red nose stops sneezing—and the little boys play hookey from the school.

It is lawful to be lazy—when each dear, old-fashioned daisy—breathes a message from the fragrant yester years—When the fields are sweet with clover—and (be still my heart) moreover—when the airy, fairy shirt waist reappears!

When the violet blossoms happy—on the coatlet of the cappie—When we hustle out the old mosquito bar—When the tipsy holds wassail—in his honeysuckle castle—when the troubadour is tuning his catarrh.

When that tired, transcendent feeling—into every heart comes stealing—sweetly pensive, like a sunny maiden's tears—When the bird choirs lift their voices—when, in short, all earth rejoices—and the immemorial shirt waist reappears!—N. O. Times-Democrat.

Those Absurd Names.

"What ridiculous names they have over there in the Philippines," said the man who had just walked up to the counter and been assured by the clerk that he could have the best room in the hotel. "There's Calumpit, for instance. That name would make a horse laugh. Who ever heard of anything so absurd as to give a town such a postmark as that?"

Then he took the pen that the clerk had been holding out toward him and wrote upon the register:

"J. Crawford, Woonsocket, R. I."—Chicago Evening News.

Dewey Bought a Ticket.

When Commodore Dewey left Washington in November, 1897, to take command of the fleet in the Pacific Ocean, he did not ride on a pass or a half-rate ticket. Being a personal friend of S. B. Hege, General Agent of the Baltimore & Ohio passenger department in Washington, the now famous sea fighter bought two first-class tickets from Washington to San Francisco via the B. & O., Chicago & North-Western, Union Pacific and Southern Pacific lines. Lieut. Brumby accompanied the admiral and they departed on November 27th.

Some time ago Manager of Passenger Traffic D. B. Martin, of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, set out to collect the coupons of the ticket and only recently secured all of them. He has had the ticket, containing Dewey's signature, lithographed, and is issuing fac-similes as souvenirs.

ST. PAUL, June 5, 1899.

During the past week the financial question has died some more. Besides renewed pledges by the Democracy's national committee the bimetallic organizations of the four states of Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and Illinois have met at Louisville, not a member or an organization lost, and their declarations more reassuring than ever. Kansas has a Republican revolt, ex-Governor Eskridge bringing out his paper, the Emporia Republican, against the gold standard, as the "parent of trusts, the paralyzer of industry, as commercial cannibalism, as serfdom for the masses, as the headwind against transportation lines, as the undermining rat of Republican institutions. Governor Erskine's revolt is the sensation of the day. He has been prominent in the Republican party since Lincoln's time. And the church, as well, is aroused. The synod of the Reformed church in session in Ohio denounced the gold standard and consequent evils as sapping to the life of the nation, destroying moral as well as material progress.

Oh, yes; free coinage is dead!

Municipal ownership of utilities is also marching on. The city of Glasgow earned net, in 1898, from such control, $374,500, after paying all expenses, and giving the people the cheapest street railways, gas, water, parks, gardens and concert halls—all of which the city conducts—in the world. The Twin Cities could do the same, but what would poor Colonel Lowry do without his $30,000,000 property which is taxed as $1,500,000.

As fast as the truth is revealed by publication of suppressed official reports the underpinning is knocked out of the administration's course toward the Filipinos. Dewey cabled Aguinaldo to "Come as soon as possible," and he came and joined forces against the Spanish. When Spain was crushed, Aguinaldo formally requested the United States forces to "assume protection of the Philippines for at least long enough to enable the inhabitants establish a government of their own," acquiescing in which, such remained the attitude of our forces, land and sea, until Aguinaldo learned of the purpose of Washington to seize the country by purchase, and govern it by arms. When the situation, from the just supicions of the Filipinos became strained, Aguinaldo proposed the establishment of a neutral zone until the issues were settled, which was officially declined by Otis. The latter's official report shows that our men fired the first shot, one of MacArthur's outposts firing on and killing a Filipino.

This much creeping out from the press censorships, probably when the whole truth is known the whole Western world will not afford the like of the outrages we as a nation have committed in the name of "liberty." What a day of reckoning will that be when the responsibility is fixed for what it has cost of beloved dead, who have carried out the orders of superiors without questionings, and what it will cost in blood and treasure before the wretched end is reached!

Are those who are so glib about calling people "copperheads" aware of the distinguished and patriotic men who comprise the Anti-Imperialist League of America. Take their officers: Hon. George S. Bontwell is president, and the vice presidents are: Grover Cleveland, George F. Edmunds, John Sherman, Henry Copman Potter, H. S. Pingree, Samuel Gompers, John G. Carlisle, Andrew Carnegie, Charles Francis Adams, Carl Schurz, Beverdy Johnson, Samuel Bowles of the Springfield Republican, Edward Atkinson, James C. Carter, John C. Bullitt, Patrick A. Collins, Herbert Myrick, Theodore L. Cuyler. The League treasurer is Francis A. Osborne, the secretary Erving Winslow and the executive committee, besides the officers, Winslow Warren, William Endicott, Jr., James J. Meyers, Albert S. Parsons, David Green Haskins, Jr., and J. P. Munroe. Pretty good "copperhead" associates, these, and quite a prominent list for the scaffold when Hangman Eustis commences on his job.

Twin City Memorial Day observance had few special features, though more than the usual deep interest. Here and there a few breaks were noted, where such as speakers uttering sentiments at variance with the principles of freedom and personal liberty for which the veterans of the War for the Union fought, in referring to the Filipino war. Of course the "glory of the flag," pride in our victorious arms and the might of our nation easily lead to exultations. But the moment it is remembered that the Filipinos are fighting for country as they desire and understand it, we come to our sober senses. There's ever our Declaration of Independence: "We hold these truths self-evident. That all men are created equal; that they are endowed with certain inalienable rights, among which are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." Imperialism requires a new Declaration of Independence. Out upon it.

Of the many addresses touched with the true fire none is more highly praised than that of Hon. T. R. Kane, secretary of the Democratic state central committee, delivered in the St. Paul Auditorium to a magnificent audience. Of Memorial Sunday addresses one of great power and ability was that delivered by Rev. Dr. Helwith, First Presbyterian church, Minneapolis, before Rawlins post, G. A. R. The post obtained the address for publication and for the post archives.

A flamboyant Republican orator began an address at one of the Twin City schools, on Memorial day, "As I look into the smiling faces sitting before me," and the children commenced to giggle. They hadn't gotten over their amusement at the idea of sitting on their faces when he commenced to speak of the glorious war on the Filipinos, and that orator actually went away believing Superintendent Jordan's pupils tainted with "copperheadism."

It has remained for the Republican school board of Minneapolis to take the first "crack" at the free text book law, its rule requiring children to purchase their own pencils and paper. That's right. Restore the burdens to the poor that big salaries and expensive administration may be maintained.

Among excuses for defeating the gross earnings bill made by Republican senators none is more inventive than that given by Senator Shellbach of Granite Falls. Assuming the change from the present to the direct method of taxation, the senator says that nearly all the assessable railroad property would be found in the Twin City counties, and as for the country the assessors would be able to find only a "narrow strip of turnpike, two rails and a couple of muddy ditches." "The fast mail and even the crawling freight would be too swift for the assessor." Let the senator have the credit that here is a reason not laid down in the "tract" of Solicitor Grover.

The hunt for some one "to beat Lind" goes on. Eddy is the latest consideration. But wait till next year and Hanna and Goodnow will come up and settle it.

Minnesota's Republican congressional delegation, having had pointers from Hanna that either Henderson or Sherman would be "acceptable to McKinley and me," our patriot "Seven" have been together and endorsed Hendersn. If influence counts the other fellow should win.

Speaking of the "influence" of our "seven," probably Minnesota never had a delegation of so aggregate "light weight," and that is saying much. Think of the comparison of "Tricky" Tawney with William Windom, Mort Wilkinson, Mark H. Dunnell, Judge Thomas Wilson or Captain W. H. Harries; or McCleary with John Lind, H. B. Strait or Ignatius Donnelly; Heatwole and his "good looks," with Eugene Wilson, "Bill" King, W. D. Washburn, Colonel Strait, Judge J. L. McDonald and O. M. Hall; Stevens with S. R. J. McMillan and Edmund Rice; Your Uncle Loren himself and Frank Eddy with those who have given Minnesota standing in the nation, and been more than mere clerks and wirepullers to worm places for the importunate out of the overworked departments. And finally Morris, with Hon. Charles A. Towne. But comparisons are odious. Peace to the "seveen." They will dwindle to less than a pair if the people are wise in 1900.

While the Minnesota "seven" were declaring for Henderson, five tornadoes were on deck in Iowa celebrating the Henderson boom. Was this Your Uncle Loren's work?

Of course everybody will be glad if the "seven" get committee promotions from Henderson, but how short lived it will be anyhow.

And they do say that the "seven" turned a deaf ear to Chairman Steele's appeal to the congressmen to "loosen up" up for the state campaign. How the Eustis chairman does get it in the neck.

And they do say that Your Uncle Loren Fletcher has taken to the sleep walking habit, and talks as he walks, and is heard to say, "Canty, Canty. Will they run Canty agin me? I can beat any one but Canty."

On Thursday last the Minnesota Old Settlers' association met with "old settler" Colonel Allen, at the Merchants hotel, St. Paul. Said one member to another: "Bill, do you know that for the 41 years that we have been attending these meetings, we never before had one under a Democratic governor?" "You bet I do know it, John," answered the venerable William, "and I never felt so good at a meeting before." Then they went and had an old fashioned "smile," for William is a Democrat. He had been up to call on Governor Lind earlier in the day.

Judge Collins' candidacy for the Republican nomination for governor having reached the explanation stage, the prospect is not rosy for the genial judge. He is charged with not having supported the Republican judges and with deblaring that he could not bear to have "Eustis slobbering over him." If lukewarmness last year is condemnation where is the g. o. p. going to get its candidates anyhow?

He Had Reason to Run.

The man came out of an office building on the run and started down the street.

"Here! Here!" cried the policeman on the corner. "What's your hurry?"

"There's a man back there trying to sell me a book on 28 weekly installments of $2.33 each!" cried the victim.

The policeman instantly released his hold.

"Run!" he cried. "Run like a whitehead! Maybe you can get away from him yet."—Indianapolis Journal.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Back Pay for Minnesota Volunteers.

The last legislature appropriated $30,000 for the payment to the enlisted men of the National Guard, who were subsequently mustered into the volunteer service, of the difference between the pay received by them for service at Camp Ramsey, prior to muster in the United States service, and the rate of $1.50 per day allowed by the state under the provisions of the military code.

The adjutant general has made up the several payrolls and forwarded them to the ex-captains of the volunteer companies for signature. But a limited number of men can be reached in that manner, and it will be necessary for those who have not received the payment or signed the payroll to send their name and address, giving the designation of the company and volunteer regiment to which they belonged, to the adjutant general of Minnesota, who will send them the proper receipts to be signed and returned, and will then proceed to pay under the law.

In order to facilitate this payment, it is desirable that those who know the postoffice address of comrades residing or now serving outside of the state, communicate the information in their possession to the adjutant general, thus enabling him to reach the absent ones.

The law also provides that the arrears due a deceased soldier shall be paid to his widow, or father, or mother, or next of kin, in the order named, and blanks for that purpose will be furnished by the adjutant general upon application by the party entitled to such payment.

Stock Company Formed.

E. T. LeClair and F. C. Barrows have returned to Minneapolis from the Rainy Lake mining country more firmly convinced than ever that that district will soon see some of the richest gold mines in the world.

Not only is Mr. LeClair convinced of this, but he has succeeded in convincing several Eastern people that there is money in the ground about Rainy Lake, and at Rat Portage last week there was effected the organization of the Boulder Gold Mining company of Ontario, with a capital of $2,000,000.

The property owned by the company is one of the richest about Rainy Lake and was discovered several years ago by one of the LeClair brothers. It is situated about 55 miles southeast of Rat Portege. Its shaft is now down 225 feet, and the work is being crowded to the 500-foot level. On the 200-foot level cross cuts have exposed 60 feet of milling pay ore, a most remarkable showing. When the 500-foot level is reached a 30-stamp mill will be erected.

Climate and Crop Bulletin.

There were showers, except on the 22d and 23d, though they were somewhat local as regards place and amount; those on the 26th and 27th were much heavier in the south, where there were thunder storms, which in the extreme southeastern counties were accompanied by high winds and excessive rainfalls, which filled the creeks.

Most of the week was very favorable in the Red River valley for healthy growth, and for finishing the wheat seeding. The flax, some barley and a little oats are still to be seeded, but because of wet weather and delay earlier in the season, large areas of undrained counties will not be seeded this year. All the small grains are reported in splendid condition; and the stooling of wheat and oats continues. Winter rye is generally thin and it is heading short. Corn planting is nearly finished, and in favorable localities it is coming up slowly.

Death of Maj. Diggles.

Major Arthur M. Diggles, junior major of the Thirteenth Minnesota regiment at Manila, who was recently wounded in the head, passed away on May 26, at Manila.

Major Diggles was one of the best known officers in the old First regiment, Minnesota National Guards, having served as an officer in that body for seven years. Eight years ago he joined the state militia as the captain of company B, and he remained with that company until the regiment was called into the field by Gov. Clough, a year ago, when he entered into the service of the country, at the head of the men whom he had trained for so long a time. While in Camp Ramsey he received the appointment of major, which position he held until his death.

Beats Former Records.

The crop year of 1898-9, ending July 31, will be the banner year for wheat receipts in the history of the Minneapolis grain trade. The record will be broken by the great total of 85,000,000 bushels of wheat received in 12 months.

In the calendar year of 1896, Minneapolis received 79,568,870 bushels of wheat, but the 80,000,000 mark has never been passed in either calendar or crop year. There has been received in Minneapolis since Aug. 1, 78,019,016 bushels of wheat, and it is not unreasonable to expect 7,000,000 more in the next two months. Of this total of receipts, Minneapolis will grind nearly 65,000,000 bushels in her mills. The city remains the great primary market of the country.

News in Brief.

Gov. Lind gave a short address to the inmates of the state prison on Memorial day.

Rev. J. C. Hull, formerly a well known Methodist minister, who was sent to prison from St. Paul for poisoning his wife, died in the Rochester insane asylum.

The territorial pioneers will make an excursion to the Dalles of the St. Croix, June 15.

For the first time, the saloons of Minneapolis were closed on Memorial day during the parade.

John J. McTeague, 20 years old, a telegraph operator employed by the Western Union at Minneapolis, was drowned in the Mississippi river where it is joined by the Minnesota.

Lightning destroyed the barn of Henry Schmuelz at Perham.

Gun No. 11 of Admiral Cervera's flagship, the Maria Teresa, has been harbored in what will be its future home—Minneapolis. The loan of the gun to the Minnesota Association of Naval Veterans was secured through the joint efforts of Congressman Fletcher and Admiral J. F. R. Foss, of the Naval Veterans. To make the gun look real warlike while on exhibition, a six-inch United States projectile, loaned by Kennedy Bros., will be used. This is not the exact size, as the 5½-inch projectile is used in the Spanish navy.

Future Hardships.

"What do you think of this wireless telegraphy?"

"I think it's one of the worst things that ever happened. It's an imposition, that's what it is. Pretty soon it'll be so that the man who goes into the woods 19 miles from the nearest postoffice for the purpose of getting away from his business may receive a message at any moment calling him home to attend to something that, in case it had gone wrong in his absence, he could have blamed somebody else for."—Chicago Evening News.

NOVEL CORN PLANTER.

This Machine Is Described as a Great Labor Saver in Planting a Silo Crop.

Make a frame (a) like a wheelbarrow frame three inches larger than the pan used. Take a tin pan and put on the axle of the wheelbarrow against the wheel (b). The hols in the bottom of the pan must be in the center and must fit the axle. Cut into the flaring side of the pan inch openings, the shape of the end of your thumb, only do not remove the piece of tin. Leave one side hanging so that you can spring this tin open or push it shut, to regulate the dropping of the corn. Make these openings three or four inches apart, then open and shut them according as you wish the corn dropped. By wheeling this barrow along in your marked field it can be easily adjusted to drop the corn just as you may wish it.

For filling the pan, bore a two-inch hole (c) in the board wheel and have a cork, or, better, have a swing slide (d), held on by a screw, as seen in illustration.

The corn may be covered with a harrow across the rows, but it is better to use a Planet junior cultivator having the roller attachment and follow the rows. Take the two oblong teeth and turn them to throw the dirt inward, and the roller coming along behind flattens the earth down upon the corn.

A mistake is sometimes made in allowing the machine to drop too much corn. To avoid this, count the number of kernels dropped the first three or four feet when beginning a new field. This machine is a great labor saver in planting for silo or other use, and is a good working machine.—Orange Judd Farmer.

IMPORTANT CANAL.

Its Completion Will Prove of Considerable Benefit to the Wheat Growers of Our Country.

Canada has begun the construction of a canal which is likely to have an important effect on American commerce and the interests of American wheat growers. The canal is to be a short waterway from the St. Lawrence to the upper lakes, avoiding lakes Erie and Ontario. The canal already built between Montreal and Ottawa is to be extended along the line of the Ottawa river to Lake Nipissing. Thence the route will follow French river to Georgian bay and Lake Huron.

When this canal, which is to be twice the depth of the Erie canal, is built, grain laden barges and steamers will be able to pass directly from Duluth, Port Arthur and other points on the upper lakes to tide-water. Later it is intended to deepen the canal so as to allow the passage of ocean steamers. When this is done, steamers may be loaded with grain at Duluth and proceed to Liverpool without breaking bulk.

From Chicago to Liverpool by the new route will be 700 miles shorter than by way of the Erie canal. The saving in time will be even more than this comparison of distances indicates; for the artificial waterway by the Ottawa route will be only 30 miles as compared with 360 miles by the Erie canal. When allowance is made for the delay in transshipment, it is probable that grain will reach Liverpool from Chicago by the new route a week sooner than by the Erie canal. The new waterway will somewhat disturb American commerce. On the other hand, it will be of great value to American farmers in the increasing competition with other wheat growing countries.—Youth's Companion.

BEEKEEPING DON'TS.

Don't tinker at your bees every day.

Don't allow any colonies to run short of feed.

Don't raise a herd of careless drones to eat up the profit.

Don't expect the supply dealer to fill all orders in one day.

Don't tear open the brood nest unless there is a real necessity.

Don't put off making or buying hives until the swarms hang out.

Don't encourage swarming unless you can sell bees at a profit.

Don't expect anything from weak colonies with poor old queens.

Don't expect each colony you have to give you a 200 per cent. profit.

Don't think black daubed sections of honey will bring as much as lily white.

Don't wait until the honey flow is on you before ordering surplus supplies.

Don't think good extracted honey can be produced for much less than comb.

Don't imagine if you made $10 from one colony you can make $1,000 from 100 colonies.

Don't spread the brood nest in the spring by inserting combs or frames of foundation.

Don't invest big money in new fangled traps to catch moths or keep them out of the hive.

Don't think bees will do just as well in an old keg or box behind the garden in weeds ten feet high as your neighbor's kept spick and span.—American Gardening.

SHEEP ON THE FARM.

They Will Get the Owner Out of Debt and Enable Him to Save Something for Old Age.

The value of sheep to the farmer is a matter upon which there exists some divergence of opinion, but it is a fact beyond question that where soil and situation are suitable, few if any, sections of the farmer's business lead to more satisfactory results. A Canadian farmer writing on this subject has apparently great faith in sheep, and says: "A flock of good sheep of the right sort well managed, will get the farmer out of debt, keep him out of debt, lay him up something for old age and leave the farm fertile, clean and productive for those who come after." This reminds me of one great benefit of keeping a ewe flock on an arable farm, for after the crops have been gathered by running over the stubble they will eat up no end of the seed pods of weeds, etc., and will at the same time consume and make into valuable manure a very large quantity of remnants of the grain crop and annual weeds that would otherwise be left unconsumed or utilized in any way except being turned in by the plow. Good sheep of the right sort are to be found in every breed, though one must study the land on which they are to be kept, but the best should be aimed at whatever the breed. Profitable sheep-keeping can only be assured when first-class sheep are kept; these cost less to keep, thrive better and their aptitude to rapid development and power to assimilate and apply the food they consume in a profitable way are certain to give a larger profit for the food consumed than sheep that are of an inferior type. Of course we do not mean to say that only pure-bred varieties should be kept, for there is probably not a more profitable sheep for the ordinary grazier than that of the first cross between two pure breeds. Tests innumerable and show-yard results have shown that this is the case. Indiscriminate selection, however, will not do and the parents should be well bred and of a good thriving type.—Prairie Farmer.

CELLARS UNDER BARNS.

They Are Very Useful and Should Be Far More Popular Than They Are at Present.

New England is the home of the barn cellar. The farmers of this region have found them so advantageous that their use ought to be much more widely extended. Contrary to the opinion of many, the land need not slope greatly in order to make a farm cellar possible. It is an advantage to have more of the cellar walls above the surface of the ground than it was formerly regarded as expedient. This gives a chance for larger cellar windows, giving more light and better ventilation. The diagrams accompanying this show how a cellar can easily be made on even very gently sloping ground. Fig. 1 shows the slope. Fig. 2 shows how the cellar is constructed, the earth excavated in the section marked "A" being placed in front of the barn (not in the rear, as is usually the case) in the section marked "B." This gives a gradual rise to the great doors in the front of the barn, and at the same time allows plenty of room for the cellar below the barn.—N. Y. Tribune.

HOW TO MAKE THE CELLAR.

Preserving Eggs by Liming.

Liming eggs is both a practical and simple way of preserving them, and we don't know of a better, unless you keep them in a cold-storage house at a temperature always above freezing—say 38 degrees to 40 degrees—when they will keep six months with safety. There are many formulas for making the lime solution. One of the best plans is packing in jars. Care should be taken to select a receptacle from which the eggs can draw nothing; hence glass jars or stone crocks are preferable. Six gallon glass jars will hold 20 dozen eggs. Slack about a peck of lime; to this add six pailfuls of water and three quarts of salt. This should all be dissolved, and when settled is fit to use. Pour the thin limewater into the jars, cover them with cloth, and on this spread a coating of the thicker limewater. The solution must stand in the jars so as to cover the eggs. A peck of lime will be enough to preserve about 100 dozen eggs.—Rural World.

Breeding from One Strain.

It is well known that the best mode of preserving the beauty of plumage, and retaining the points of excellence, is by inbreeding. But this can be done in a way so as not to be too severe. The aim should be to breed from one family. If new blood is to be introduced let it be done by selecting a hen from some other yard, and mate her with the best cock you have, keeping the young cockerels of the union only, and disposing of the pullets from the same, but do not make any change of blood in the pullets of the strain kept. By this mode the blood of the cocks is partially changed every season, thus permitting of a system of in-breeding that may be continued for several years. — American Gardening.

When Clover Grows Slowly.

Should clover make slow growth it is usually an indication that the soil lacks potash or lime. An application of a ton of unleached wood ashes per acre will be found serviceable, as ashes contain both lime and potash. In procuring ashes, however, care must be exercised, as they vary in potash according to the wood from which they are produced, and there are many inferior grades on the market, the leached ashes being used to adulterate the unleached.

French Daintiness.

A French woman makes her toilette for the night as carefully as if she were to die before morning. No matter whether she is young or old, a well-bred daughter of France brushes and arranges her hair, brushes her teeth and perfumes her mouth with some antiseptic, aromatic wash, dons a beribboned robe de nuit, and composes herself to sleep with the deliberation of a girl dressing for a ball.—Housewife.

A FLAT DWELLER'S THEORY.

After Going Through an Ice-Making Plant He Was Onto His Steam Heater.

"Mister," said the man who had been going through the plant where they make artificial ice, "I'll never forget this visit. I'm much obliged to you. You have given me a hint that'll probably be worth hundreds of dollars in doctors' bills."

"You don't say so."

"Yes, sir. Now, let me understand it all clearly. Those pipes carry the gas which circulates all around the water and freezes it up so tight that any bouquets and things that happen to be floating around can't possibly get away until they're thawed out."

"That's the scheme, simply stated."

"Well, I'm glad to know about it."

"It's a very interesting process."

"It's more than interesting. It shows the way in which a man will go on thinking hard of his fellow man, when mebbe it was all a mistake. I'm glad to feel that I have been doing some one an injustice, and that I can go forth and candidly own up that I was bearing malice where it was not due."

"Are you interested in an ice plant?" inquired the attache, suspiciously.

"No. But I've studied temperature. All I've got to do now is to call attention to the mistake and have it corrected. That's the kind of pipes the man got into our flat under the impression that he was putting in a steam heater."—Washington Star.

"Go out, Edie, don't you see I'm busy?"

It is needless to add that mamma granted a respite.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

I was a broken down woman, had no appetite; what little I did eat did not agree with my stomach. It is now seven years past that I used Pe-ru-na and I can eat anything."—Mrs. Eliza Wike.

A Happy Mother's Gratitude

[LETTER TO MRS. PINKHAM NO. 26,785]

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I have many, many thanks to give you for what your Vegetable Compound has done for me. After first confinement I was sick for nine years with prolapsus of the womb, had pain in left side, in small of back, a great deal of headache, palpitation of heart and leucorrhœa. I felt so weak and tired that I could not do my work. I became pregnant again and took your Compound all through, and now have a sweet baby girl. I never before had such an easy time during labor, and I feel it was due to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I am now able to do my work and feel better than I have for years. I cannot thank you enough."—MRS. ED. EHLINGER, DEVINE, TEX.

Wonderfully Strengthened.

"I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Blood Purifier and Liver Pills and feel wonderfully strengthened. Before using your remedies I was in a terrible state; felt like fainting every little while. I thought I must surely die. But now, thanks to your remedies, those feelings are all gone."—MRS. EMILIE SCHNEIDER, 1244 HELEN AVE., DETROIT MICH.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, June 9, 1899.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Plums promise to be a bountiful crop this season. Last year there were but very few.

—The old fire cistern has been filled and a pile of gravel now stands where once was a big hole in the ground.

—Worms destroyed many currant bushes last year in this vicinity. They are back now after the balance of the bushes.

—Peter Klich had a crew of men at work Monday replacing the old board sidewalk at the Third street railroad crossing with a more substantial one of cinders.

—Mrs. Frank Gaspar and daughter, Mary, went to Delano Monday to attend the wedding of Miss Katie Klepperich, which took place Tuesday. The groom is William Otto, also of Delano.—The County Line.

—Frank Swadner is remodeling and rebuilding the residence on the corner on River street diagonally opposite Schaffer's store. He lately purchased the property and intends, we understand, soon to move into the house.

—Prospects for a big crop of wheat must be good in the Red River Valley this year, judging from the full train load of Minneapolis threshers that passed through Delano Monday on their way to that country. It will require thousands of dollars to pay for the machines to say nothing of running them through harvest.

—The Delano M. E. church has services every Sunday evening at 8 o'clock. Everybody is welcome. Villagers are not attending services as freely as they might. Several families from the country come occasionally. Now, when roads are good, the weather fine, and people have good conveyances it is a nice thing to drive into church, Sunday evening.

—Our Mayor says the law don't require saloons to close up in towns, where no memorial services are held on Decoration Day. Chapter 213, laws of 1897 does say that saloons shall not be kept open nor sports indulged in, likely to attract attention from memorial services being held within halt a mile. As Delano patriotism was not sufficient this year to celebrate the day with Memorial services of course the Mayor was correct.

—The village authorities ought to purchase a respectable flag and have it hoisted on the City hall, on patriotic and other occasions. The little thing raised for the purpose of drawing pay as an election board by last year's officers looks too much like patriotism had ebbed to about the last notch. Delano deserves at least one decent flag of its own; and the City Hall should indicate to the people by its flag when patriotism should be displayed as well as when the village board wants to draw pay for holding an election.

—We understand that a hot time was had on June 1, at Buffalo, before the county commissioners concerning the vacating of the county road which crosses Crow river at Ed Ziebarth's place. It seems if it is vacated as a county road it still remains a township road, but the county could not build a bridge; still Mr. Z would have a road out which no one wants him to lose. The necessity of two iron bridges so near together, unless there is more travel don't present itself to many people. If the county is so anxious to build an iron bridge across the Crow it would accomodate perhaps hundreds, to have it at the north end of Delano where it would be used by one at the place in question.

—We are in receipt of a communication as follows: The Methodist people of Buffalo are very enthusiastic over the success of their meeting on Sunday May 28. Though on account of the storm the large attendance expected was not realized yet a congregation of fully two hundred and fifty people assembled. Bishop Joyce preached a great sermon to the delight and profit of all present. His bright, happy face and warm, sympathetic heart won the affections of all. Rev. H. J. Van Essen and a number of others were present from Monticello and proved their true brotherly spirit by splendid material aid. During the day five hundred and fifty dollars was subscribed toward the parsonage fund. This meets all the obligations of the church.

—Rev. J. L. Farber broke loose on sin in great style last Sunday evening. He hit the devil some hard blows in several weak spots. He says statistics tell us that crime is on the increase, that Sabbath breaking and the drink custom and murdering, thieving and other crimes are being done more frequently than ever. He thinks the church should keep awake and do its best to guard against such things. Sermons like that of Sunday night would do much toward keeping the Delano congregation awake; and the field is large and needs cultivating. Hit them some more Elder. A public sentiment against the spread of sin is what must be got up before sin can be throttled. So long as the church and christian people sleep, or close their eyes to the deep dark ways of transgressors around them, and do nothing to oppose or even to show their disapproval sin will increase. When the church unitedly oppose sin, and lose no opportunity to make it known, then will people begin to live more in keeping with the laws of man, and of God.

—Delano Fair tomorrow, June 10.

—Children's Day exercises at the M. E. church Sunday evening, June 11.

—Several letters and papers from Manila were received by friends of the Delano boys there, this week. They were written in April, so of course do not give very late news. Alva's letter appears in another column.

—Wire fences got in the way of a horse belonging to Fred Lindsley and of one of James Dunn's team, severely cutting them. Wonder if damages caused by wire fences in Wright county wouldn't build nice board fences in their stead about every five years?

—At the 4th of July meeting held at the City Hall last night an Executive Committee was elected to make further arrangements for celebrating our National Birthday in an appropriate manner in Delano. The committee is John Lohmiller, A. L. Mealey, C. H. Green, John McDonald and Thomas B. Rader. A big time is expected.

—An unusual fatality seems to have come upon brood mares this season. Quite a number have reported the loss of colts, mares or both. Louis Kunkle Jr., E. Schwerin, John Teichnor, and Dr. Catlin each lost mare and colt; Charley Stein, a mare; while Ed Wood lost a colt, Bucks two colts; Bernecks two colts, and we don't know how many more. At that rate horses must soon be worth considerable money.

County Cullings.

When Wright county has to foot a few bills like that for boarding prisoners since last term of court $837.22 it seems as if it would pay to have a boarding house of our own in our own county. That's for only half a year. If the next half is as costly it will be $674.44, for the year; enough to run quite a respectable hotel. Then there is transportation for prisoners and officers, and clothing, doctor bills, and other incidentals that might be had at home. We believe in patronizing home institutions for such things where we can as well as not and it comes out of the taxes we pay. Why not Wright county have a jail of its own?

On Tuesday we visited the county seat. Court was in session. Judge Giddings presiding with as much dignity as any of his predecessors. He appeared to weigh well all questions and decide them as fairly and impartially as possible.

Through the kindness of Clerk of Court Vorse and his obliging deputy, William Cochrane, we obtained a few notes concerning the make up and doings of the court.

Sheriff John C. Nugent with his corps of deputies, William McKnight, John Tracy, John C. Nugent Jr., Joseph Reems and D. W. Flannigan, was paying attention to juries, witnesses, prisoners, and others.

County Attorney Pidgeon requested the Judge to appoint as assistant County Attorney, E. S. Oakley. The judge so ordered.

Geo. C. Starr is court senographer.

The first case tried was that of Joseph Ferrell & Co. vs Leslie McClay. Plaintiff did not appear and judgement was rendered for defendant for costs.

Thomas C. Merriman vs Owen Gratlen, et al, jury trial.

The Grand Jury was working on several cases.

The term seems bound to be a long one.

Although politicians when asked, invariably answered that "all is quiet," "there don't seem to be much going on," the political kettles are even now sizzling in great shape. Some of the old time standing candidates, and usually successful ones, are in a regular stew. It is well known that Wright county anti Republican forces are solid for Bryanism and for William Jennings Bryan, and the job of landing them in any other camp is rather a ticklish one. It is apt to react in great shape upon the heads of those with the temerity to try it. We advise our readers to secure a copy of the Democratic platform, adopted at Chicago in 1896, the Bryan platform, and to familiarize themselves with it, and when they meet a man calling himself a Democrat that tries to talk them out of supporting that platform to look out for him, be shy of him. If any man wants your support in the next campaign don't be bashful. Ask him pointedly to tell you whether or not he is for the platform. Principles we want for our platform and honest men to uphold our principles.

Commissioner's Proceedings.

Board met at Court House, June 1. All present. An order was issued for the formation of School District, No. 132.

Petition of S. L. and B. F. Remington to be placed in school district No. 6, rejected.

Time of hearing set for petitions for change school districts, July 10 of John Erickson, P. Bergquist, H. Otten, Nils Nilson, Carl Nilson, and Ole Oleson et al.

The board appointed the full board to meet at Ed F. Ziebarth's bridge to consider the petition to vacate the road.

Petition of John Brall for locating a highway in Victor and Woodland, rejected.

It was resolved: That this county pay one-third of the wolf bounty provided by law and will pay an additional bounty of $3 for full grown wolves during the months of January, February, March, April and May and will pay an additional bounty of $5 during all other months of the year.

Request of Harriet Nichols, rejected.

Request of Robert Geiser, laid over.

Road appropriations were made; Middleville $200, Marysville $113, French Lake, $125, Franklin $200, Buffalo $175.

A long list of bill were allowed, the six biggest being: New Prague Mnfg. Co. unpaid half of steam plant $650, P. F. Mogaarden, care of county prisoners, $337.22, J. C. Nugent, Sheriff's fees $268.50, Oesterman & Moody, labor and supplies $226.19, Eagle Printing Co., printing etc. 178.00, O'Leary & Ash, supplies etc. $134.85.

Board adjourned to meet June 10.

Among Our Exchanges.

Wabasha Standard and Democrat: As the democratic party is now constituted a national campaign without W. J. Bryan as leader upon a free silver platform is entirely out of the question. Bryan and free coinage is the entire foundation of the present democratic structure.

St. Cloud Times: The Journal Press flag was raised on Decoration day, and lowered next day. And still, Bro. Alvah has declared that once raised the flag shall never be hauled down.

Anoka Herald: It is said that the liquor traffic has been greatly increased in the Philippines on account of the war: since the United States decided to pay a part of its war debt in revenue stamps the licker traffic has also grown considerable in this country

Aitkin Age: A Chicago man has just had his stomach removed to cure a cancer therein. How would it do to remove the eosophagus of some of these fellows whose beer thirst seems to be incontrollable?

The County Line: Perhaps it will interest some of our readers to know that the Indiana supreme court has decided that Sunday base ball can be prohibited

St. Peter Free Press: Possibly the expansion policy as now seems to be contemplated by the government may be endorsed by the people, but this is by no means a certainty and until then everybody should be accorded the right to express his opinion upon this matter without being subjected to insolent derision or put down as an enemy to his country.

Backbone: When the vote was taken in the National House of Representatives on the Alaska liquor bill, Messrs Heatwole, Stevens, Fletcher and Eddy, of Minnesota voted for the repeal of prohibition, and the remaining three representatives were absent or did not vote. Mark that!

Goes By Opposites.

There are some singular features to the career and character of President William McKinley which, we may hope, the youth of the land will not seek to emulate. However good and great he may be, in his own proper person, it cannot be denied that like the Irishman's dream he goes by opposites." Note the record. He was pre eminently a man of peace. He is the war president.

He was urgently supported by the A. P. A. as an American Catholic ousting official. He has made a Catholic Arch-Bishop his confidential adviser. He was anti-British in all his professions. He is the great advocate of an English alliance. He did not favor but was opposed to Cuban annexation and guaranteed to Cuban autonomy and independence. He is conducting matters with an evident purpose to annexation. He was the greatest American advocate of protection. He is closed on that subject and may be expected to comply with the wishes of the trusts, and advocates reciprocity with England.

He professed and professes to believe in bimetalism and makes no effort to prevent the gold standard being fixed upon the nation.

He is the champion of greenbacks. He would kill them by insisting that when they are once received into the treasury they shall not again be issued except for gold. He discriminates against the greenbacks—slanders it—and pretends that men will give pampered and petted gold dollars for it. He knows better.

In short, President McKinley is all pretension. He even pretends to be president although everybody knows that the real president is Mark Hanna.

He kills everything he professes to believe in by the process of "benevolent assimilation." Such a president was never before seen, and if he were not controlled by others he would be entitled to the distinction that he out-Tallyrand's Tallyrand who said "language is made to conceal ideas."—Broad Axe.

"OLDEST AND BEST"

With the SPECIAL CABLES

OF THE NEW YORK HERALD

THE delights of an evening spent around a well-lighted reading table are not half understood. An illustrated magazine with its wealth of illustrations, its stories of adventure and love, its descriptions of travel which carry you to the remotest ends of the earth, and its instructive articles for young and old—these are the first requisites for your own enjoyment and the entertainment and proper education of your children.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal,

Both Together One Year for Only $1.80

In this way you secure your own home paper and an illustrated magazine at a price that is only about a fourth of what some of the illustrated magazines sell for. For three years The Cosmopolitan has undisputedly claimed that it reached the largest clientele possessed by any periodical, daily, weekly or monthly, in the world. It was The Cosmopolitan which sent Julian Hawthorne to India to let the world know the real horrors of famine and plague. It was The Cosmopolitan which established at its own cost a great Free Correspondence University which now has over 20,000 students on its rolls. It was The Cosmopolitan which offered a prize of $3,000 for the best horseless carriage and prizes for best plans for public baths, and best arrangement of sewer and pipe systems for cities. It was The Cosmopolitan which set the presidents of great schools and universities seriously discussing the defects of existing educational systems. It is The Cosmopolitan whose enterprise is always in the lead in advancing the world's civilization.

St Paul Dispatch

25c per month for Daily. 75c per year for the Weekly.

The St. Paul Dispatch is the best Twin City daily; it has no equal in the Northwest as to size or quality.

The DISPATCH excels in Northwestern news, having a correspondent in every Northwestern town.

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

Three Together One Year for Only $2.35

THE Eagle's "Jack Rabbits" in the Philippines are growing monstrous savage lately.

IF Gen. Otis is afraid to stay in Manila after the volunteers are allowed to come home, perhaps he might be allowed to come back to America too. This country has had enough of his "taking them in reverse."

TUESDAY'S Minneapolis Tribune says two Minneapolis boys, Walter Ryberg and William P. Christian, who were members of the 13th Minnesota, returned home recently, looking well. The paper quotes Ryberg as saying: "They are all anxious to get back. There is not a man in the entire regiment who is not sick of soldiering. They are willing to stay and do their duty, but would much rather be home. I speak of course for the rank and file, not for the officers".

The war authorities may have thought they were doing the proper thing when they kept the volunteers there to fight another war after that for which they had enlisted was finished. But they certainly have learned a dear, to them, lesson from it. Had they returned the volunteers to their homes, when they should have done so, possibly they could have induced others, may be some of the volunteers, to enlist for service in the Philippines But with their hiding their plans under a bushel; working in the dark; with the Vanderbilt idea of "The public be d—d" and similar ways they have succeeded in making the Filipinos suspicious of them, they have made the volunteers feel that an unfair advantage has been taken of them. While they have provoked volunteer's friends at home to express themselves in no flattering terms of the way their sons have been used.

Some of them claim that the 'babies' can come home if they only ask to be excused. What an idea! Do the boys wish to forsake each other and ask to be sent home individually and alone? They wanted to come when their contract ended, when the war with Spain closed. But say some they enlisted for two years or during the war. Everybody understood what that meant. It meant when the war was over inside of two years they would be sent home. If the war with Spain continued more than two years, they would be sent home at the end of the two years. Do these one sided patriots claim now, that as they have been fighting in the Philippine war they will have to remain there until the war closes? Maybe ten years! Away with such arguments. An administration is surely not blameless, which gives even an opportunity for the controversy and hard feelings concerning the usage of the volunteers in keeping them in the Philippines when they should have been sent home.

Gen. Otis has been reported, all along, as wanting only 30,000 men to clean out and subdue the island, while he sits at Manila. Gen. Lawton and others on the firing line, at the same time claiming that it would require 100,000 men to accomplish that object. Later reports, with the firing line much nearer Manila, where Gen. Otis makes his headquarters, indicate that he meant 30,000 men could take the island but it would require more to hold it.

"Patriotism" for the present war seems to have "waxed and waned" with "Windy Enery" and a few more of his ilk, who a few weeks ago wanted not only the Filipinos wiped out of existance but patriotic people of our own land who didn't approve of the war and had milk of human kindness and love of liberty enough to say so, hung as "copperheads" "traitors" and a few more pet names the ex-candidate for Governor wanted to practice on before a crowd so he could hurl them with the most telling effect against the poor help less Sweedes who elected their countryman Governor last fall, when he comes round speaking next campaign.

Now hadn't we better bring home our volunteers entitled months ago to come, and straighten up, far as possible our crooked ways; and remove from our countenance this ugly sore, behind which so much corruption lurks.

Would it not, even now, be the right thing, as the rainy season has come on; our soldiers decimated and redecimated time, and again, and tired out; with a majority of our people opposed to expansion of our domain, at such a cost, to come home as honorably as possible? This certainly would compare from a patriotic point of view pretty high, as against drafting men to fight for "criminal aggression" on the far away islands of the Pacific, and our expansion howlers are not around when the recruiting officer is, like they are when "sick him Tige!" is all there is to say.

Among Our Exchanges.

Gen. Otis still insists that he wants only 30,000 men in the Philippines, notwithstanding the repeated assurances of our Aunties that he needs 100,000. When Gen. Otis says he wants 30,000 men he does not mean that he wants 30,000 Aunties—Courier Journal.

Gen. Otis has had more than 30,000 men in the Philippines and now he begins to claim that he must have more, enough to hold the country he takes. Has he found out that some of his men are "Aunties" or why does he now want more? Was he green enough to think the country he took would stay "took" without help? From authentic accounts most of the volunteers and many of the regulars are anti-expansionists.

Courier Journal: The Sugar Trust, which has been built up by the legislation of both the Republican and the Democratic parties, must laugh when it reads the anti-trust resolutions and speeches which the politicians of both parties are racing with each other to get into print.

Anoka Herald: This is a mighty good time for Republican papers to stir up the Republican animals, if the object is a continuance of Lind in the office of governor. Respectfully referred to the Minneapolis Tribune for mastication.

World: The fighting in the Philippines Saturday, the 125th day of the war with the insurgents, was at San Pedro Macati, three miles from Manila by water or six miles by road.

Minneapolis Times: "The administration has been concealing the facts in regard to the Philippines and has made a grevious mistake in not rising to the situation before. It is not probable that direct disaster will fall upon our arms, but that is not the question at issue. The people of the United States want peace and they desire it soon." The Times then argues that force enough must be sent to "prove that the United States is a great power not a Spanish imitation" but where will the United States get its great force? Will the Times editor enlist or wait for the draft?

St. Paul Dispatch: (Hot Tamales) "O, if Gen. Funston would only swim into Boston Harbor and empty his Winchester on the insurgents of that stronghold!"

Aint that fine? And just to think how the warlike author fared when he tell into the hands of young Mr. Koerner a few weeks ago. Wasn't he a hotter tamale about that time?

Minneapolis Tribune: Not long ago a caustic military critic made the comment that Gen. Otis had won all the battles and skirmishes in the Philippines, but had lost the campaign. This would seem to be true if the insurgents, who have been so often defeated and driven inland are now pressing our troops closely at Cavite and in fact approaching so near the shore that our gunboats and warships have to be used to drive them away. Now the work will have to be done, but the delay makes our position in the Philippines a little too precarious and unnecessarily prolongs the agony."

Why, when the people are so opposed to having the authorities there for the United States rule over them must the work necessarily have to be done? Where will the Tribune get its big force to compel the natives to submit? Will the Tribune editor gracefully stand draft, and be one of those compelled to go and compel the Filipinos?

Of Interest to Inventors.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 19, 1899.

When the influences which were brought to bear in his favor were considered, the ease with which Henderson, of Iowa, knocked out all the other candidates for Speaker and made his own election certain had nothing wonderful about it. It was a simple case of cause and effect. The principal factor in his speedy success was the tip given out by the administration in his favor. That tip was a little bit puzzling at first, because it had been understood that the administration was rather inclined to favor Sherman when Reed's retirement first became known. There were several reasons for the transfer of the favor of the administration from Sherman to Henderson. Mr. McKinley was jealous of the influence that Tom Reed would have with Sherman, wished to jolly the West by aiding it to capture the Speakership, and was most anxious, of all to put a man in the speaker's chair who could not become a candidate For president. Henderson's birthplace was Scotland. The great personal popularity of Henderson made it easier to engineer the stampede to him than it would have been to any other man who was named as a candidate. While no man in Congress is a stronger partisan than "Dave" Henderson, no man in Congress has fewer personal enemies than he. What his policy as speaker will be is yet to be ascertained. As a member of Reed's committe on Rules he always helped to carry out the Reed programme.

The most interesting bit of political gossip of the week is that in addition to practicing law in New York, Mr. Reed intends to retain his seat in the House and to take an important part in all discussions that will give him a chance to pay off an old score or to push himself to the head of his party. Although this is only a rumor, with the probabilities strongly against it, there is alarm in administration circles on account of it. There is no doubt that Mr. Reed could make a lot of trouble for the administration should he set up as a free lance on the floor of the House, as he is known to be opposed to the policy of the administration on a number of important questions. Mr. McKinley would much sooner have Reed in the Speaker's chair, where his party responsibility would act as a restraint, than to have him on the floor armed with a club and looking out for heads to crack, with no responsibility to anything except his constituents. This gossip is likely to continue until Mr. Reed resigns as a member of the House, which nobody seems to know when he will do, if at all.

Boss Hunna is trying to enact the role of the boy who has to be begged to play. He says he doesn't wish to remain at the head of the republican National Committee, during next year's campaign, because his health, for which he has been ordered to Europe, isn't what it was, and because there is so much work attached to the position that it allows him no opportunity to indulge in recreation and diversions. He gave the whole snap away by adding that the position might be forced upon him again, in which case he would take it, but he wanted it known that he would do so against his wishes. Tommyrot every word of it. Hanna would throw a series of fits if he thought any other man would be put at the head of the republican committee. Owing to his numerous trust connections, he is making a grandstand play, interior to convince jays that he doesn't wish to manage the campaign.

Ex-Congressman Follett of Ohio, is sanguine that the democrats have more than a fighting chance to carry that State this year. He said: "The democrats of Ohio have solid grounds for believing that they can elect the Governor this year. The revolt among the republicans who dislike Senator Hanna and his methods, and who are dissatisfied with the nomination of Judge Nash, will split the republican party asunder. In fact, the breach between the factions is too wide to be healed, and all talk of harmony is for effect. The Ohio democracy is going into this campaign united, confident and enthusiastic, while the opposition, conscious of the division in its ranks, is timid and and dubious of the result."

A handsome and life-like marble bust of Hon. Wm. J. Bryan, made by order of a number of Washington democrats to be presented to Mrs. Bryan on her birthday, is on exhibition in Washington.

The difference between enthusiasm and cold cash is being exemplified by the slow growth of the fund for the purchase of a Washington house for Admiral Dewey. Subscriptions come in slower and slower and the total is still less than $7,000.

No official news from the Philippines has been given out this week, although it is known that long dispatches have been received both from Gen. Otis and from Mr. Schurman, President of the Philippine Commission. It is also known that those dispatches did not agree in conclusions reached. Replies were sent to both, and Secretary Hay made public an official denial of the report that the civil commissioners were to be ordered home.

A LYNCHING BEE SPOILED

Too Much Attention Paid to the Etiquette of the Occasion.

"I DON'T take the personal interest in lynchings that I used to," said Uncle Atkinson, as he sat on the veranda of his hotel at Fresno, Cal., talking over the recent lynchings in the south. "It isn't entirely because I am getting old, but the last lynching party I took part in disgusted me with the whole business. You see, Pete Lansing stole a horse and we got a party together and started out after him. Pete gave us quite a chase, but at last we struck a hot trail near Pine hills, and then we gained on him so fast that when our little party of vigilantes swept around the curve at the foot of the hills Pete was only half a mile ahead and pushing his horse at a gallop across the prairie. We called to him to stop. Of course, he couldn't hear us at that distance, and as he knew we wanted to hang him for horse stealing, he wouldn't have stopped if he had heard, but it was the first time since we organized that the Diamond Center Vigilantes had been called out, and we wanted to do things in proper style. So we formally summoned Pete to surrender. Dick Evans, our leader, wanted everything done exactly right, but I and some of the other boys think he was too particular on this occasion. A swell bon ton society affair is one thing and a lynching bee is another, and there isn't any use trying to combine them.

"However that may be, after we had called upon Pete to stop we thought we had done all that 'etiquette,' as Dick called it, required, and we began to pump bullets at him. Pretty soon one of the bullets struck his horse and it tumbled over. Pete knew there wasn't any use running after that, so he lit a cigarette—he was a sort of a dude in some ways—and waited for us to come up.

"'Guess we've got you this time, Pete,' says Dick.

"'Looks that way,' replies Pete, as calm and unconcerned as if he didn't have any part in the show. 'What is the next thing on the programme?'

"The nearest trees were about half way up the pine hills, and we allowed the first thing to be done was to take Pete to where the trees were. 'After we reach a tree we won't have much trouble finding out what to do next, Mr. Pete Lansing,' said one of the boys in an ugly kind of way. The man who spoke had lost three or four good horses that season, and was feeling kind of sore over it, but Pete looked quite hurt at being talked to in this kind of fashion, and Dick Evans spoke up:

"'That'll do for you, Tom. That's no kind of a way to speak to a man who is almost dead.'

"But our troubles had only begun. Pete's horse was dead and he swore that he wasn't going to walk to the pine hills. 'Nobody ever heard of a man tramping a mile to his own hanging. You fought me fair and square,' says Pete, 'and I don't kick on that, but I ain't going to hoof it across this prairie. A man in my position ought to have a little politeness shown him.'

"Jim Haly, who runs the Crescent saloon, happened to have a deck of cards in his pocket and he proposed that we throw around and the low man give up his horse to Pete. We all agreed to this, and Pete being in one way our guest we let him deal. That made a delay, for Pete dealt himself the low hand, and as he didn't have any horse we had to deal again. One of the boys got stuck this time, so Pete took his horse and we started out for the pine hills.

"It was pretty dark when we reached the hills, but one of the party got out a rope and we thought the business would be over in a few minutes. But here Pete made another kick. For a man who was going to be hanged he was the most particular, bothersome fool I ever ran across.

"'I don't want to be hung right here alongside of the road where everybody will see me. Take me a little ways into the woods and do the job there.'

"'But we want your body to be an example,' says Dick Evans, sort of doubtfully.

"That made Pete mad. 'Example,' he snarled. 'I take a horse, you boys catches me and strings me up. So far all right. But I don't want my body used as the tag end of a Sunday school lesson. Besides, what kind of a thing would that be to show strangers thinking to invest their money in the growing town of Diamond Center? You fellows ain't got any patriotism. Example! Example be hanged!' says Pete, scornfully.

"There seemed to be a lot of sense in what Pete said, so we pushed on about a hundred yards into the woods. It was pretty dim outside by this time, and in among the trees it was really dark, but Pete was riding in the middle of the party, and it didn't look as if there was any way in which he could escape. Pretty soon we reached a tree with big boughs hanging low down, just the tree for what we wanted.

"'I guess this will do all right,' says Dick, who was riding ahead.

"We stopped, and one of the boys threw the end of the rope over the bough of the tree, while I fixed the noose about Pete's neck. Pete had been riding with his head down, as if he was thinking pretty hard, and not paying much attention to what was going on, but when he felt the rope about his neck he looked up sorrowfully and disgusted, rather than angry.

"'I guess that this is the first time any of you boys have ever taken part in a festivity of this kind,' says he, sort of sarcastic like.

"We allowed it was.

"'Well, it is a good thing you have me, a resident of Diamond Center, to try it on first, for you would make the camp a laughing stock if you acted this way with a stranger. I wish I had time to give you a rehearsal,' says Pete, kind of regretfully, 'but it's growing too dark. Why, I actually believe you fellows would jerk a man over the pearly gates without giving him a chance to say a few last words and speak a little prayer.'

"We all was silent at this, for we had forgotten all about that part of the programme. So Pete dropped off his horse and went over to a little bush a few feet away from the tree we had thrown the rope over. Then he began to pray. I don't claim to be an authority on prayers, but I have always said that was no slouch of a prayer. Pete began with the Diamond Center camp and recommended every man, woman and child in it to the Lord. Most of them needed it, but it made a long prayer. Then he prayed for the sheriff of the county, and after that for the governor of the state. From the governor he went to the president. Then we thought he was through and everybody drew a long breath and prepared to get down to the regular business of the meeting.

"But Pete opened his eyes and looked at us reproachfully, and then started in as if he was just getting his second wind. The queen of England, the emperor of Germany, all the big foreign ducks Pete could think of were remembered to the Lord, and then, just as we were getting so impatient we couldn't have stood it much longer, Pete polished off his prayer with a general sort of blessing which took in all the parties he hadn't mentioned by name. It was a good prayer and covered the ground, but it took an awful long time.

"There didn't seem to be anything to interfere with 'the work we had assembled together to perform,' as Pete styled it in his prayer, when all of a sudden Pete cried out:

"'My God, boys. The woods are on fire.'

"We all looked as hard as we could, but didn't see anything.

"'Yes, they are,' said Pete. 'Look, you can just see the blaze away off to the northwest.'

"Now, Pete had sort of entered into the spirit of the occasion so cheerfully and seemed so anxious to have the first lynching of the Diamond Center vigilantes go off just right that none of us suspected him of being the treacherous hound he really was. We all looked off to the northwest as hard as we could for a minute or two.

"'Your eyes are off, Pete,' says I, turning around to where he had been. But there wasn't any Pete, only away down the gully we could hear some one tramping down the bushes and running for all he was worth.

"We all rushed into the underbrush, but it wasn't any place for horses; besides, it was too dark to see much of anything. That thief of a Pete Lansing had run away from us in the first place until his horse was shot, and then he said he couldn't be hung anywhere except on the pine hills, and then, all the time pretending that he was anxious for the credit of the camp, he had prayed until it was too dark for us to see anything. He was nothing but a hypocrite, and played it low down on the boys who had always treated him right and were trying to send him off in good style. What became of him I don't know and don't care. None of the Diamond Center boys ever heard of him again.

"Two or three times since then the boys have wanted to get up lynching parties on appropriate occasions, but I have always said: 'No; if you catch a man cheating at cards or stealing a horse, shoot him. If you don't catch him, tell the sheriff. But as for lynching parties, count me out. I am disgusted with them.'"—N. Y. Sun.

M. Zola emerges from the Dreyfus business with flying colors. But he has lost a good deal of his frankness—in fact, he is short about 5,000 francs.

Indian corn has become an ingredient of smokeless powder, and is turned into a substitute for rubber. Europe has also discovered the merit of corn cakes with maple sirup. There is an expansive future for maize.

The American Steel & Wire company has closed a contract at Chicago for the four largest steel ships ever built on fresh water. Each will be 500 feet long and have a cargo capacity of 8,000 tons, and all will be engaged exclusively in the transportation of iron ore. The country seems to be entering on a new iron age.

In each of the six new protected cruisers to be added to the United States navy room will be provided for 800 tons of coal, which will give a greater steaming radius than has been secured by any former ships of the same class. Coal capacity has been recognized as one of the vital points of naval operations.

A Boston man named Dewey, who has just returned from Europe, says his name was a passport everywhere. In Rome several bankers called at the hotel the day after his arrival to pay their respects and in one instance the managers of a steamer line held the boat an hour for him. He is convinced there is something in a name.

The total contributions to education thus far this year amount to $20,340,684, as compared with $13,086,150 for all of last year. This immense sum has been divided as follows: To colleges and universities, $17,770,684; to academies and seminaries, $143,000; to art institutes, $1,500,000. There has been nothing corresponding to this in any previous year.

The American citizen who goes to a post office to buy a money order for a small amount does not know that he is contributing to a business that amounts to more than $200,000,000 a year. Last year the money order business of the country amounted to $205,000,000, and recent estimates by the post office department place the business for the current year at $230,000,000.

Every time a new invention comes out you say: "How simple!" and "Why didn't I think of that!" An Arkansas man has just invented a device for ventilating railroad cars without opening doors and windows. A small metal wind-wheel on top of the car furnishes the power for driving an exhaust fan placed at one end of the car, and the air is purified and changed without creating a draught.

The total postal receipts for this year are estimated at $100,000,000, against $87,640,000 last year. New York stands at the head of the list, $15,000,000, and Alaska comes last, $15,000. In the table showing the average amount contributed by each inhabitant of each state to the postal revenues, which constitutes a pretty fair gauge of the intellectual development and activity of the people, Massachusetts stands at the head, with an average last year of $2.30 per inhabitant.

Man is unable to conquer nature, but he comes very close to it. The Russian government has issued a report relative to a trial of Admiral Makaroff's ice-breaking ship, which was built for the purpose of defying nature and keeping the Finnish gulf open for navigation during the coldest of winter weather. The report says the vessel is a success in every way, and that on its way to Kronstadt it went through 30 inches of ice for hours at a time at the rapid speed of nine knots an hour.

In response to a request from F. W. Peck, America's commissioner at the Paris world's fair, Thomas A. Edison, "the Wizard" and probably the greatest inventor the world has ever known, is to make an immense electrical exhibit at the fair next year. The spectacle will be nothing short of marvelous, and Mr. Edison has promised a new invention or two that will be nothing short of startling. The exhibit is to be made at his own expense, and because of his love for our flag. He wants to show the world that electricity has its master in the Yankee.

Probably the fact is not generally known that Texas was for many years called the "New Philippines." The first settlement in what is now Texas was made by French emigrants in 1685. During the next 25 years there was an intermittent struggle between the French and Spanish for supremacy, resulting in favor of the latter, and in 1814 the name of the New Philippines was given to the country. This was its official name in Spanish records for many years and until the name of Texas, from a tribe of Indians, gradually came in vogue.

The difference between the French and the American wife was convincingly and signally illustrated in the case of the spouse of the French duelist, Mendes, who was fatally wounded in the recent fight resulting from the petty quarrel over the obesity that should characterize the character of Hamlet. The French woman sat in a carriage near by and waited while her husband was slashed at by his more skillful opponent. An American woman would have walked in and stopped the fight or whipped her husband's adversary herself.

Earlier Account.

Stillwater, Minn., June 13.—Last night was a terrible one for New Richmond, Wis., the beautiful little village being almost wiped out of existence by one of the most severe cyclones that ever visited that locality. It carried ruin and death in its path, and at this hour it is impossible to give even a partial list of those who are seriously injured and it is thought many are dead.

The news of the disaster was brought here by J. A. Carroll, a traveling man from Portage, Wis., who was stopping at the Nicollet house, when the cyclone struck. He saw the funnel shaped cloud as it came up the principal street, and he took refuge in the basement of the hotel, which was completely wrecked, together with every other business house in the city.

In terrible sheets of rain following the cyclone, Mr. Carroll and his comrades succeeded in recovering the proprietor, Charles McKennon, wife and one child from the debris, and they also removed the laundry girl, who was so seriously injured that she will probably die. They also removed two men named Barrett and Newell, who were very seriously injured. Mr. Carroll drove to Stillwater by team for relief, and the train left with doctors at 12-15. Mr. Carroll further says that fire followed the cyclone, and that what is left is rapidly being destroyed by the fire fiend. Many people are doubtless killed, and the damage will run into hundreds of thousands of dollars. Other villages in this vicinity have also suffered severely.

The entire business part of the town was destroyed. Both banks, the postoffice, Nicollet hotel, Omaha depot, both printing offices, water works and electric light plant were demolished. Fire is raging in the debris. Every building on both sides of Main street from the river south for four blocks was leveled. The fire started at Williams' store, burning north. Many bodies buried in the cellars are burned, unidentified. Scores of residences were swept out of existence.

A funnel-shaped cloud passed over the village from southwest to northeast, attended by inky darkness and torrents of rain.

Gulmer Bros.' circus exhibited there yesterday and many country people in town took refuge in the stores, and are thought to have been killed. Telegraph and telephone poles were twisted off like straws, and the entire system is demoralized.

New Richmond is in St. Croix county, Wis., 18 miles northeast of Hudson. It has a population of 1,408. It is on the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha railroad and on the Wisconsin Central. It is to a great extent a shipping point of agricultural products and was one of the most thriving towns in that section.

Bad at Winona.

Winona, June 13.—Despite the efforts of the various railroads, Winona is still cut off from the outer world and the prospects are that it will practically remain so for the next three days. During yesterday this city and locality was visited with a perfect deluge of water, the resultant floods causing damage that will reach thousands of dollars in extent.

Not a railroad in the country escaped, their tracks being torn up for miles and left in a condition that it will take days to repair into temporary condition.

CHEERS FOR LOUBET.

Great Popular Demonstration Accorded the President of France in Paris.

Paris, June 12.—President Loubet has had his revenge for last Sunday's outrage at Auteuil. When he drove to Longchamp Sunday to attend the Gran Prix he was the hero of a great popular demonstration, expressing itself in one form or another along the whole route from the Elysee palace to the race course. He remained only a quarter of an hour, just long enough to witness the race, and, having congratulated the owner of the winner, returned to the Elysee, where he arrived at four o'clock without special incident.

The revisionists and socialist organs summoned their readers to assemble along the thoroughfares to be traversed by the president and his party, and from the hour of noon thousands of demonstrators set out from Montmartre, Belleville and other working-class quarters in big organized bands, all wearing a small, artificial red flower in the buttonhole, and marched across Paris, taking up positions along the Avenue Des Champs Elysees and the Avenue du Bois de Boulogne. They gave M. Loubet a tremendous ovation, confining their cries almost entirely to "Vive Loubet" and "Vive la Republique." The president did not hear a discordant cry.

Although the visit passed off quietly, the government was prepared for every eventuality, the whole district between the Elysee and Longchamp literally teeming with troops and police. A policeman was stationed every dozen yards along the whole route and there were squadrons of dragoons armed with lances and mounted Republican guards at all important points, while through the green foliage of the Bois, on each side of the avenue, could be seen heavy masses of red and blue, denoting the presence of detachments of soldiers, awaiting orders. Longchamp resembled a military camp. Battalions of infantry, squadrons of dragoons and Republican guards were distributed all around the course. It is estimated that there were 15,000 soldiers and police under arms. M. Loubet practically drove through a double hedge of steel. A line of infantry even stood around the race course between the public and the course, on which no one was allowed to walk between the races, while several Republican guards patrolled the course itself.

A CYCLONE'S WORK.

Farmhouse in Iowa Demolished—Three Inmates Killed and Three Badly Injured.

Minneapolis, Minn., June 12.—A special to the Tribune from Sioux City, Ia., says: A tornado at 5:30 Sunday afternoon struck two miles southeast of the little town of Salix, 16 miles from here, and killed three people outright and one more will die. The dead are: John Malloy, farmer; Mrs. John Malloy, his wife, and Harry Malloy, a 16-year-old son. Miss Bessie Malloy, the 18-year-old daughter, had her skull fractured and is not expected to live. Thomas and Pat Malloy are badly hurt. None other members of the family of father, mother, seven sons and daughter were injured. So far as can be learned no one else was killed or injured.

The family was at supper when the funnel-shaped cloud was first seen, and Dick Malloy told his parents to go to the cellar. He ran to the home of Mrs. Hassell, widow, across the road, to warn her and her seven children. He took them to the cellar and the house was whirled away, injuring no one. He had to hold one boy by the legs as he was being drawn up by the suction of the wind. But the Malloy family across the road only remained in the cellar about five minutes, and the father suggested that the cloud was only rain. They came up, and in an instant the house was demolished.

The dead and injured members were scattered among the ruins. The conductor of a freight train saw the cloud and stopped his train before it got in the storm, and when he reached the town he held his train long enough to bring the injured to the hospital in Sioux City.

Wild rumors are afloat of more damage in Woodbury county, but this cannot be verified. At Homer, Neb., a revival tent was blown over and an unknown woman was fatally injured.

A BEER TRUST.

Plans Forming to Combine All Breweries in America—Will Require Capital of $1,000,000,000.

Indianapolis, Ind., June 12.—The trust mania has reached the brewers, and it is said on the best of authority that a scheme is on foot to form a trust with $1,000,000,000 capital and buy up all the breweries in the country. It is said that the scheme, which is at present only in its inception, received impetus at the national convention of brewers at Detroit, when plans were discussed secretly. While, as stated, the trust is only in the formative stage, enough men of capital are behind it to warrant the belief that the American beer drinker will soon have no other alternative than to quench his thirst on the product of a trust.

SHOT HIM DEAD.

Hidden Assassin at Manchester, Ky., Kills Tom Baker, Leader of a Famous Faction.

Manchester, Ky., June 12.—Tom Baker, the recognized leader of his faction, was shot and killed in the courthouse yard Saturday evening. The shooting was done after Special Judge A. King Cook had granted the Bakers a change of venue and the prisoners were to have been taken to Barbourville, bail having been refused. Manchester is wild with excitement. The Bakers and Howards have scores of friends in the country and there is no telling now where the trouble will end.

It has not been ascertained who fired the shot that killed Baker, but the consensus of opinion seems to be that it was fired from the house of Sheriff Beverly White, directly opposite the courthouse.

When the court adjourned Saturday afternoon Judge Cook had rendered his decision and there was no indication of trouble. The crowd was orderly and there was no visible excitement. At 5:30 o'clock the correspondent mounted his horse and set out for London. When about a hundred yards down the road from the courthouse the crack of a rifle was heard and a thin cloud of smoke hovered in the air behind the house of Sheriff White and the courthouse.

There was a sudden quiet. The lull was of short duration. A cry went up that Tom Baker was killed. It was true. Tom Baker lay dead flat on his back in front of the guardhouse tent. There was no need of sounding the assembly.

Instinctively the soldiers loomed up with fixed bayonets and charged across the steet and surrounded the White residence. At the same time the gatling gun was hurried out and brought to bear on the place.

Meanwhile the wildest confusion prevailed. A rush was made for the courthouse, but the soldiers were already out, and fearing a volley, the crowd hurriedly pushed down the hill again.

Up to the time the correspondent left Manchester no arrests had been made. It will be a difficult matter to ascertain who fired the shot, and the belief that it was aimed from the White residence is itself conjecture, though the position of the smoke seemed tell-tale evidence.

London Depot, Ky., June 12.—The Howards and their allies, the Whites, are in possession of the ground at Manchester in the Baker-Howard feud and few Bakers or Baker sympathizers are left to molest them. After Tom Baker, the head of the Baker faction, met his tragic death Saturday at the hands of an assassin whose deed stands alone the coldest-blooded in the history of Kentucky feudal wars, the state militia, under Col. Williams, with Wiley, Jim Dee and Al Baker, shorn of their arms, left over the mountain road for Barbourville, where there the charges of murdering Burch Storrs and Wilson Howard will be tried on a change of venue granted by Judge Cook.

Baker, when shot, was in his tent and within 75 feet of the assassin who fired from the porch of Sheriff Beverly White's house, diagonally across the street. Baker told his wife that he was tired and would stand up for fresh air, and when he did so a bullet pierced his breast. Col. Williams sounded the assembly and the battalion of militia charged White's house. They found the gates locked and the doors barred, but the boys in blue broke the locks and bars and found inside nothing save a stock of Winchester rifles. Upon examination one of these guns was found to contain a freshly exploded cartridge, and it is this which sent the leaden missile through the heart of the fearless feud leader.

The people of this place and along the road to Manchester are wild with excitement. Sympathy for the Bakers is expressed on every side. The troops are powerless under Kentucky law to protect or execute the simplest duty, being subject to the orders of the county sheriff, who in this case is not in sympathy with their purpose. John G. White, of Winchester, Ky., a brother of Sheriff Beverly White, with two guards passed through here Sunday, going to the scene. It is stated that special Judge A. King Cook will order a special grand jury and attempt to indict the slayers of Tom Baker, but the fact that Judge Cook is not the regularly elected judge may delay this matter.

Barbourville, Ky., June 12.—Since the change of venue was granted at Manchester, Clay county, Saturday for the Baker murder trials to be held here in the Knox county courts, this city has been in a state of excitement. It will be impossible in this place, which has a population of between 2,000 and 3,000 inhabitants, with good officers, for such a tragedy to occur as that at the village of Manchester Saturday under the shadow of the court, when Tom Baker, the principal defendant, was shot dead while a prisoner of the court. As Tom Baker had killed William White, a brother of Sheriff Beverly White, of Clay county, and as the crowd saw the rifle fired from a window in the sheriff's office at the time Baker fell dead into the arms of his wife it is thought that there may be another trial soon for a change of venue to this place.

Brings Daly's Remains.

Southampton, June 12.—The remains of Augustin Daly, who died in Paris on Wednesday, arrived here from Havre. The casket was inclosed in a case marked "A. D. New York." It was quietly removed from the steamer and placed in a railroad vehicle, which transferred it to the Empress dock for shipment to the United States by the American line steamer New York, which sailed Saturday. Mrs. Daly is a passenger on the same steamer. Only Hon. Mrs. Eric Farrington, a friend of the family, accompanied the remains from Paris.

Bank of England Buys Gold.

London, June 12.—It is understood the Bank of England has bought £500,000 ($2,500,000) in American eagles to strengthen its reserve, to which end most of the gold now on its way hither will be devoted. The report that Russia is a buyer of gold in New York is regarded here as being significant.

One Hundred Men Slain.

Bombay, June 12.—Serious riots have occurred in the Tinnevelly district between opposing religious sects. Villages have been attacked and plundered and a hundred murders have been committed.

MISSING THE JUBILEE.

There Was One Woman Who Seemed to Be Ignorant of the Fact That Peace Had Come.

It was in the midst of the peace jubilee and the editor was the busiest individual in town, but the visitor got in on him, and, what was worse, sat down and showed other signs of remaining, none of which the editor encouraged.

"Excuse me," said the visitor of his own volition, "but can't I ask you an important question?"

"What is it?" responded the editor, without looking up from his work, which is always a sign that anybody ought to understand.

"Ain't this a peace jubilee we're having in this town?"

"It certainly is."

"And the peace jubilee is a celebration of peace, ain't it?"

"Exactly."

"And peace means that war is off, don't it?"

"Of course it does."

"And that the olive branch is hanging low, and that everybody is falling on everybody else's neck, and that everybody is glad the war clouds have rolled by, and that good fellowship is now prevailing everywhere, and that every bosom throbs responsive to the gentle coo of the dove, and that everybody is wearing white wings, and that there won't be any more scraps, and that everybody is kissing and making up; it means that, don't it?"

"Exactly," responded the editor, pleased to discover so comprehensive a knowledge from such an unsuspected quarter.

"I thought so," said the visitor, rising. "I'll go back home and tell my wife about it. When I left there an hour ago I don't believe she knew it had happened. Good-morning." And the visitor went out before the editor had time to extend his sympathy.—Washington Star.

[LETTER TO MRS. PINKHAM NO. 69,186]

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—Two years ago I began having such dull, heavy dragging pains in my back, menses were profuse and painful, and was troubled was leucorrhœa. I took patent medicines and consulted a physician, but received no benefit and could not become pregnant. Seeing one of your books, I wrote to you telling you my troubles and asking for advice. You answered my letter promptly and I followed the directions faithfully, and derived so much benefit that I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound enough. I now find myself pregnant and have begun its use again. I cannot praise it enough."—MRS. CORA GILSON, YATES, MANISTEE, MICH.

FOUR LINERS

ON TWIN CITY, STATE AND NATIONAL POLITICS,

With a Preliminary Reference to the Meat and Pith of the Silver Question. Why Silver Restored Means Dollar Wheat and More—A Nut Which the Gold Press Cannot Crack—Gold Begins to Go Abroad Again—Twin City Letter. Business and Politics—Mayor Gray's Work in the "Old Stiff" Yards—Points Here and There in the State Reform Administration—G. O. P. Hustling for Next Year's State Candidates—Knute Nelson's "Fighting Face"—Mr. Towne With Moreton Frewen—Anti-Imperialism to the Front—State Note and Comment.

Reform Press Bureau.
ST. PAUL, June 12, 1899.

Thr gold standard press are very "flip" in sneering at this Bureau for remarking that "dollar wheat and more is what we are after," but not one of them can show why free coinage will not accomplish it, nor answer the following:

Free coinage would, as it formerly did, destroy the destructive competition with us in the world's markets of great nations that now do and will continue to do business with a money cheaper than gold. With free coinage it would no longer be possible for their growers of wheat to sell it for 50 cents a bushel in gold and take this gold and buy a dollar's worth of silver and coin it into that much of their money, with which they can then pay double the debts, taxes and fixed charges that our farmers can pay with their bushel sold in foreign markets. The closing of our mints to silver is responsible for this enormous difference in the debt paying power of a bushel of wheat for our own farmers and those of silver using countries, whose product of which regulates the market price of every bushel sold in the United States. The discrimination between the two metals has forced the dollars apart until gold buys twice the silver that it did and should now. When an ounce of gold would buy 16 ounces of silver instead of more than 30 as now, then 50 cents in gold would buy just 50 cents in silver, and the power of the bushel of wheat to pay debts, taxes, and the fixed charges would not fall with the prices of products, such, for instance, as are fixed by the trusts and monopolies, custom and law, but would be the same everywhere. Is this not true?

The wheat growers of silver countries, who are our principal competitors abroad, can sell a bushel of wheat for the same amount of silver they always could, for they can get it coined into about as much money as formerly. But we can't get it coined into money at all any more, and can convert it only into one-half of the gold money we could once. This gives them their old profitable price and gives us the ruinous half prices of recent years, and has made this mightiest of our farm industries very unprofitable, unless we happen to have the unprecedented crops of the last two years and they have a wheat famine at the same time. We can destroy this ruinous competition only by open mints, for thereby and thereupon, the old ratio between gold and silver would be restored. Is not this also true?

And the foregoing are among the reasons why the money question is not dead, neither sleepeth.

When anti-imperialists are feeling badly at being called names, let them read this:

"When I die I wish but two words written on my tombstone: 'Infidel-Traitor.' Infidel to a church that can be at peace in the presence of sin, traitor to a government that is a magnificent conspiracy against justice."—Wendell Phillips.

The Chicago Democrat thus concludes a most just and charming comment on our great leader, and the certainty of Bryan's nomination and election next year:

"William Jennings Bryan is not only the logical candidate of the Democratic party—he is the ideal American manhood, a worthy successor to Washington, Jefferson and Lincoln."

When last heard from Hon. Charles A. Towne was in London, guest of the great English bimetallist, Hon. Moreton Frewen. Mr. Towne is said to be making a great success of his foreign mission and may be expected to bring home material of great value. Especially will he no doubt be posted on the Indian mints question.

The managing gentlemen are profuse in their assertions that no politics is expected, in the coming of McKinley to greet the return of the Thirteenth. Well, why not make it certain by inviting Mr. Bryan?

Let no one be disturbed about Colonel Ames and Lieutenant Colonel Friedrich. Both will come marching home, in their proper places, with the noble Thirteenth.

With 50,000 census appointees next year, most of them Republicans, and with 10,000 strikers let loose by the McKinley blow at the civil service, it will behoove the people to be up and doing to offset their work for "Me and McKinley."

There is a marked similarity between the present situation with the Ohio Republicans and those of Minnesota last year. Nominations have been made under false pretenses of "harmony," and everybody has gone home to sulk and vote for the other fellow at the polls. Why not the opposition all unite on Golden Rule Jones?

An Ohioan has survived a broken back, and is able to walk with an alligator skin jacket as the only artificial assistance. Here is hope for Your Uncle Loren Fletcher, after his coming tussle with Judge Canty.

To encourage such promise of success in Ohio, there is a wide open bolt of several prominent Republican leaders from the Hanna-Cox bossism. When such men as General John Beatty, lifelong Republican, are out against the McKinley administration, there is hope for the Democracy in Ohio.

The Republicans now say that an income tax will destroy the trusts and that they will favor it, but in 1896 they declared that supporters of the Chicago platform were anarchists because it declared for income taxation.

And the same as to government by injunction. Now they condemn the courts for upholding trusts in their decisions. Republican consistency is not of the "jewel" variety.

Merriam, Powers and Kenyon are at the front to do the "me and McKinley" work for Hanna in Minnesota next year. This is rough on "Lieutenant Commander" Tim Byrnes.

When Republican papers leave State Printer Expert Colonel Whitney out of the count of candidates for Secretary of State it simply proves that "Republics are ungrateful."

Of course when the ink trust begins operations in Minnesota the Republican Attorney General will but need to wave a copy of the Tawney anti-trust law and say "Out damned spot," and the trust will "out."

Judging from past generations of state Republican blunders, the Grand Rapids Magnet (Rep.) declares that the late legislature should have created the office of official explainer.

The Honorable Chauncey Despew, United States Senator and LL. D., from his Lunnun view of American politics sees Gorman the Democratic candidate and Bryan shelved. Depfew!

Ex-Commander Paul Vandervoort of the G. A. R. has offered to raise a colony of old soldiers to settle in our foreign "possessions," if the government will distribute the $3,000,000 of Cuban money among the colonists instead of the Cuban soldiers. A similar idea is offered by Major Hotchkiss of the Preston Republican, that the $20,000,000 of Philippine purchase money had better been distributed among the Filipinos.

The national bank statement shows that from Feb. 4 to April 5 loans increased but $104,368,000, while deposits increased $205,000,000. Since May, 1898, loans have increased $306,300,000 and deposits increased $438,000,000.

The aggregate of the deposits piled up in banks, given by the report mentioned, is $2,500,000,000, bringing little or no interest. If this enormous sum is "out of business," how much money is actually in "circulation?"

Oh, yes, there is "plenty of money." No need of more, and especially no need of free coinage. And yet the McKinley-Hanna plan is to authorize the national banks to issue 10 per cent more—the full value of their bonds held for circulation.

The gold market has again reached the export mark, and the anticipated exports have commenced. Of course, this is independent of the millions taken over by American nabobs like Chauncey Despew.

Suppress the state dairy and food department! Now it has jumped on the big packers, Swift, Armor and Cudahy, for selling adulterated lard under unlawful labels. All are being prosecuted. Also, the department prosecuted the American Biscuit company for the same offense, causing a fine of $25 to be paid, and securing the assurance of the company that the law would not again be violated. That's what comes of having a department officered by men of the right kind of stamina.

Adjutant General Lambert has not completed the organization of the governor's staff as yet. Nearly a dozen appointments remain to be made. The annual encampment opens next week at Lake City.

The candid statement of the Twin City business situation is that the "bulge" in April and May, caused by the sudden bursting of delayed winter, is over. Collections are "hard," and margins closer than ever.

In all office situations there are many more applicants for places than men wanted. The scarcity of men for ordinary labor is over. The latter demand has in some part been filled by men in higher employment forced out of places.

Up to this time Mayor Gray of Minneapolis has been engaged in cleaning out the old 'stiffs" in the municipal back yard and they lay several deep. But Mayor Jim will get there.

There is no longer doubt but that Senator Knute Nelson has arrayed against him the whole power of Hennepin county. The combination which by the appointment of Steve Lovejoy as postmaster would keep Fletcher and his friends in line for Nelson has apparently failed.

Charley Pillsbury, the Minneapolis flour king, is to be the anti-Nelson candidate, provided present plans do not miscarry. It is the outlook now that Nelson must face solid opposition from Hennepin county.

In the first place, the Reform forces expect to carry the county, and in the next, if any Republicans squeeze through, they will be anti-Nelson. The senators hold over, but only one of the Republican four is believed to be for Nelson.

Speaking of "fighting faces," who has seen Senator Nelson's since he heard the Pillsbury news from Henepin?

Burglary in the Future.

"Curse me luck!" hissed the burglar, and fled into the night. Bear in mind, if you please, that all crime was now disease, merely, and all diseases the work of germs. The burglar, perceived, in the cellar window where he tried to enter, one of the latest electric automatic spraying devices, and endeavored to avoid it. But fortune was against him. A click in the dark, and almost before he knew it he was drenched with germicide and cured of his malady.—Detroit Journal.

ADVANCE OF LAWTON.

It Puts an End to Rebel Rule in Province of Cavite.

Important Towns Are Captured—After Battling Fiercely All Day Filipinos Take to Flight at Night.

Manila, June 12.—The Filipino occupation of the province of Cavite has been broken and, as the result of the present movement, the Americans now control the important coast towns of Paranaque and Las Pinas, while a long line of insurgent trenches facing our south line has been cleared.

Artful Dodgers.

The insurgents have again proved their facility as dodgers. Between 3,000 and 4,000 warriors, who seemed destined to be captured, having disappeared, the majority sliding away under cover of the night, after fighting the Americans all day. Some others came to meet our troops, with protestations of friendship.

Our Losses.

The Thirteenth infantry lost one man killed and six wounded; the Ninth infantry, one man killed and five wounded; the Fourteenth infantry, three wounded, and the First Colorado volunteer regiment, 11 wounded.

Saturday's work was the hardest our army has seen. The battlefield stretched out across the entire isthmus, from Laguna de Bay to the harbor. While the troops were advancing, the army gunboat Napidan, in the river near Taguig, shelled the enemy, killing several of them. The monitor Monadnock and the gunboat Helena shelled Paranaque and Las Pinas all day with the full power of their batteries. The rebel sharpshooters kept in hiding until the American lines had passed and then attempted to pot stragglers from the trees. Thanks to their poor marksmanship, this was without result.

The whole country proved to be a succession of small hills, with boggy ground between the high, thick grass and bushes in the hollows, which greatly added to the difficulty of the advance, but gave shelter that saved many from the enemy's bullets. Our men threw away their blankets, coats and even haversacks, stripping to the waist and trusting to luck for food. Water could not be obtained, and there was much discomfort after the canteens were emptied.

The Advance on Paranaque.

At six o'clock Sunday morning Gen. Wheaton advanced upon Las Pinas with a troop of cavalry, the Twenty-first infantry, the Colorado regiment, part of the Ninth infantry and two mountain guns, crossing two streams and entering the town without firing a shot. He then advanced upon Paranaque. The women and children, and, for that matter, many men remained in the towns. No housese were destroyed, though many were torn by the shells from the warships. Everywhere the Americans found white flags fiying.

Losses of the Enemy.

So far as can yet be ascertained the Filipino loss is about 50 killed, about 350 wounded, and 20 taken prisoners. The whole country is networked with trenches, and the enemy scurried from shelter to shelter.

To-day long trains of commissary wagons are carrying provisions to the United States troops along the road, which only Saturday was the stronghold of the enemy, and the natives who on Saturday were probably carrying guns are now doffing their hats and groveling before the Americans with effusive greetings of welcome.

The Colorado regiment returned to barracks in Manila Sunday. As the ragged and dusty men marched past the Luneta, the fashionable gathering place for Manilans, they were heartily cheered.

Otis Reports.

Washington, June 12.—The war department on Sunday received a report from Maj. Gen. Otis, of the military movement Saturday to the south of Manila for the purpose of clearing out the rebels in that section. It shows that the movement was a great success, and that the enemy's loss was considerably greater than stated in the press dispatches. Gen. Otis' cablegram is as follows:

"Manila, June 11.—Terrific heat yesterday did not permit troops to reach positions at hours designated; it enabled a majority of the insurgents to escape in scattered organizations south and westward, which they effected during the evening and night. Movement great success, however; enemy disorganized and routed, suffering heavy loss; troops resting to-day at Las Pinas and Paranaque. Navy did excellent execution along shore of bay; but many insurgent detachments retired in that direction, protected by presence of women and children, whom they drove along with them. Our loss, four killed and some 30 wounded. Report of casualties later. Conservative estimate of enemy's loss about 400.

"OTIS."

Big Sporting Event.

Dubuque, Ia., June 12.—The tournament of the Central Scheutzen Bund of North America, to be held here June 22-25, promises to be one of the largest sporting events of the year. About 1,000 sharpshooters from various points between the Ohio river and the Pacific coast will contest for the $5,000 or more offered in prizes. The association includes 35 societies, with a membership of nearly 4,000.

Two Drowned.

Fulton, Ill., June 12.—William and Herman Loffman, Chris Gropp and Henry Albright, excursionists from Sycamore, Ill., went sailing on the Mississippi river Sunday afternoon. The boat capsized, and Herman Loffman lost his life with Albright, whom he tried to save. Loffman's body was recovered. Both leave large families.

Seventeen Miners Killed.

Cape Town, June 12.—Seventeen native miners were killed and 30 injured Sunday in a mine at Kimberley, in Griqualand West, by the explosion, it is supposed, of a dynamite magazine.

Wisconsin Bank Fails.

Milwaukee, June 12.—An Evening Wisconsin special from Stoughton, Wis., says: The Dane county state bank, doing a general banking business, suspended Saturday. The bank was capitalized at $60,000, and one of the only two in this city. O. M. Turner was president and O. N. Falk cashier.

Killed by Lightning.

Frankfort, Del., June 12.—George and Ida Truitt, stepchildren of John S. Rogers, and aged respectively 20 and 18 years, were killed by lightning during a heavy storm which passed over here.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Climate and Crop Bulletin.

Except in Kitton county there have been very heavy rains, occurring as showers, which fell for the most part on May 30th and June 2d. There was hail in many sections, but it was severe only in a few limited areas, in which small grains, fruits and gardens were badly injured. In the Red River valley the wet weather of previous weeks has retarded work so that all the barley, oat, flax and potatoes are not yet planted. In other sections on the high lands small grains are growing very vigorously, and in some places they are too heavy. Barley is beginning to shoot in Wabasha county, and winter wheat and winter rye are heading. The wet weather has made some corn look sickly, and it has prevented cultivation, so that the weeds are getting a strong hold. Potatoes are growing fast. Fruit prospects are good, but there will be little wild fruit.

Adulterated Lard.

Through the efforts of the state dairy and food department it is not improbable that the use of adulteated lard, in the manufacture of bread, hard biscuits and crackers, may be done away with. The department found that the American Biscuit company was using adulterated lard in making its product, and an investigation revealed the fact that a large quantity of the stuff was being sold under the name of "compound lard." This is strictly in violation of the law which specifies that such lard must be labeled "adulterated" or "substitute. It is as much against the law to use this stuff as it is to sell it, and the American Biscuit company at Minneapolis was taken to task, pleaded guilty and paid a fine of $25. The manager of the company assured the department that the law would be strictly complied with in the future.

Sections 16 and and 36.

Legal proceedings will at once be instituted by the state against the interior department at Washington enjoining the secretary from issuing patents to lands in sections 16 and 36 on Indian reservations. This was the decision reached by State Auditor Dunn, Attorney General Douglas and ex-Attorney General Childs at a recent conference, and resulted from the determination of the Washington department that the two sections in every town for school purposes did not apply to land situated in the Red lake Indian reservation. The state demands the right to dispose of these lands under the law of Feb. 26, 1857, authorizing the organization of the state government out of the Territory of Minnesota. The decision of the interior department means the loss of a million and a half of dollars to the school fund of the state.

Postal Notes.

Pursuant to orders issued by adjutant General Lambert, the national guard of the state will go into camp at Lake City as follows: Second regiment, Col. Bobleter, June 22 to July 1; Third regiment, Col. Van Duzee, July 5 to July 14; First artillery, Maj. Libby, July 17 to July 26; Fourth regiment, Col. Hamlin, July 17 to July 26. There has been no encampment for two years and the great majority of the guardsman who go down this year will be strangers the place and service.

A Savage Rooster.

The one-and-a-half-year-old son of C. C. Fowler, living four miles west of Donnelly, met with a peculiar accident. While playing in the yard he was assailed by a big Plymouth Rock rooster, which punctured the boy's scalp twice with his spurs and then left one of them imbeeded in the skull in the back part of the head. The injuries are proving quite serious for the little one.

THE ANGLER.

It Does Not Eat Much in Captivity, as a Rule, But It Sometimes Takes Big Mouthfuls.

Big and clumsy as it is, and lacking in sensitiveness as it may seem, the angler is difficult to keep long alive in captivity, one reason being that it is hard to get it to eat. Anglers have been kept at the aquarium in this city six months, but that is believed to be record time. While as a rule the angler in captivity refuses food and can be brought to eat only after a long time and by persistent effort, there comes in occasionally an angler that has not quite left its appetite behind it. There is a 30-pound angler at the aquarium now that has been there about ten days, and began to eat within two or three days after its arrival, taking for its first meal a flounder weighing about a pound.

The flounder is, in its shape, well adapted to fit the angler's mouth, which is, in proportion to the size of its body, even bigger than the mouth of the alligator. The angler is of a very different shape from the alligator, being more scow built, and with its forward end rounding like the end of a great stubby-shaped platter. Its mouth, which opens from side to side, extends back for about a third of the length of its body, making it, instead of long and deep, like the alligator's mouth, broad and deep, or more on the cellar-door pattern.

A day or two after eating the flounder this angler took a two-pound hake, whole, and, as it prefers its food alive, the hake, impaled on the end of a rod, was held down in the water and shaken gently, to give it the semblance of life. It was held thus for a moment in the angler's open mouth and presently the angler dropped its trunklid and shut the hake in and gulped it down.—N. Y. Sun.

London's Atmosphere.

The atmosphere of London is particularly bad for statuary. It covers everything with a layer of black and even corrodes stone. This was recently noted on St. Paul's cathedral, where the heroic statues of the apostles on the coping are in a very bad state of decay. A close examination reveals the fact that they are pitted as if eaten by insects, and three of them were in such bad condition that they had to be firmly clamped and braced to prevent them from falling to the street.—N. Y. Sun.

SHE PREFERRED DEATH FIRST

Would Brave the Horrors of the Deep Before She Would Make a Fright of Herself with a Life Preserver.

She was a very plump woman. There are people who say they would like to be just as plump, but the woman herself is always thinking of ways and means by which her appearance of diameter and circumference may be reduced, and anything that will apparently increase she regards with a dislike that is little short of abhorrence. But if there is one thing that she dislikes more than her comfortable plumpness, it is the water. So, when one day, on a steamer in a fog, there was a collision, she was even more unhappy than most people are under such circumstances, though it was related afterward that she behaved with great coolness. There was fortunately no more serious result from the collision than several hours delay, but no one was quite sure in that time what the next minute would bring forth. The husband of the woman with the comfortable plumpness, like the good husband that he was, immediately after the accident found life preservers, and in a matter of fact way started to assist his wife to put one on. But she recoiled with such horror that for a moment he was not sure but the shock had deprived her of her senses.

"Put on one of those things?" she almost shrieked. "Never! Just look at that fat woman over there with one of them on. She looks a perfect sight."

And she didn't put the life preserver on, and it was her good fortune that she had no reason to regret it.—N. Y. Times.

WHEN A MONKEY IS A DOG.

How Buckland, the Naturalist, Got Some Good Pointers on Animals.

A good story of an amusing altercation which once took place between Mr. Frank Buckland and a booking clerk is revived. The naturalist had been in France, and was returning via Southampton with an overcoat stuffed with specimens of all sorts, dead and alive. Among them was a monkey, which was domiciled in a large breast pocket. As Buckland was taking his ticket, Joko thrust up his head and attracted the attention of the booking clerk, who immediately—and very properly—said: "You must have a ticket for that dog, if it's going with you."

"Dog?" said Buckland, indignantly; "it's no dog, it's a monkey."

"It's a dog," replied the clerk.

"It's a monkey," retorted Buckland, and proceeded to show the whole animal, but without convincing the clerk, who insisted on five shillings for the dog ticket to London.

Naturally nettled at this, Buckland plunged his hand into another pocket and produced a tortoise, and, laying it on the sill of the ticket window, said: "Perhaps you'll call that a dog, too?"

The clerk inspected the tortoise. "No," said he, "we make no charge for them—they're insects!"—Windsor Magazine.

A Dainty Summer Bath.

For a refreshing summer bath use soft water. Make a dozen or more cheese cloth bags. Fill them with oat meal, and finely-shaved Ivory Soap, add a little powdered orris root, mix well, and tie up securely. One bag in a tub full of warm water will make a delightful, cleansing bath, and render the skin soft and smooth as velvet.

His Practice.

"Say, you knew Deacon Hardway's boy Hen, who went up to the city to study medicine, didn't you?"

"Oh, yes; I knowed Hen well. What about him?"

"He killed himself day before yesterday."

"You don't say! What was the matter? Couldn't he git no outside practice?"—Chicago Times-Herald.

An Irritating Phrase.

"Are you seriously ill?" asked the well meaning friend. "Oh, no," answered the dyspeptic, with a jarring, sarcastic laugh. "I hurt all over and don't care whether the sun rises to-morrow or not. But I'm not seriously ill. I'm jocosely, flippantly and farcically ill. I'm going through all the symptoms, but don't mean one of them."—Washington Star.

What to Say About the Baby.

The United States a Power for Good.

A distinguished historian writes, while referring to this nation's advent as a colonizing power, that we represent the "century's political conscience," and that our influence for good over European spheres will be immense. This result was just as inevitable as is the cure which follows the use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the great remedy which is found in every home and drug store throughout the country. It cures indigestion, constipation, overworked kidney and liver, allays nervousness, and tones up the whole system.

From poisons that are always found in constipated bowels.

If the contents of the bowels are not removed from the body each day, as nature intended, these poisonous substances are sure to be absorbed into the blood, always causing suffering and frequently causing severe disease.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, June 16, 1899.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Latest news from Manilla says the 13th Reg. will leave Manilla for San Francisco this week.

—August Sieloff, of Delano, visited his uncles, John and Will Reckten-wald yesterday.--St. Cloud Times.

—Rev. Kerze, of St. Thomas College, is filling the appointments of Rev. M. Savs, during the latters visit to Europe. Rev. Kerze speaks fluently in English or German.

—The Minneapolis papers say that Sam Briley, of Maple Plain, fell from his wagon while in Minneapolis, Thursday, and was picked up for dead; but afterwards revived.

—Quite a number of Delanoites are fixing to be present at the Old Settler's meeting, at Buffalo, June 17. That's right. Nothing like a genuine old fashioned family reunion and talk over over old times.

—Our 4th of July committee could not very well hire the Delano Cornet Band. Its defunct. The boys should have re-organized and been in the field before now; they would have been the choice of the committee, more than likely.

—We never did and do not now approve of the village council donating $50 or any other sum out of the Village Treasury, for the purpose of having a 4th of July celebration, or any other celebration, not directly connected with the individual interests of the village as a village. Patriotism don't ask for such things.

—4th of July preparations are moving quietly on. If each committe does its duty there should be a big celebration. An industrial parade is one of the features of the day. The floats should be artistically and beautifully fitted up, and observe order in the procession, business be classified so as to look best in procession.

—Members of several base ball clubs in this vicinity must have abandoned hope, if they ever had any, of graduating at the State "U" or any other first class institution of learning. They had rather play ball on Sunday. Poor deluded mortals! And poor weak kneed christians who help swell the crowd of Sabbath breakers, that furnish the encouraging audience, while the boys do the hardest work, for them, of the week.

—One of the musicians of our village claims that he and three other band men were present at the first meeting of the 4th of July Committee, where the 5 members of the Executive committee were chosen, and offered to furnish music for the day, of course for remuneration, and that their offer was not considered. With so many bandmen in town and vicinity it looks as if the proposition should at least have been considered enough to learn what the home talent would do and for how much.

—Some of the boys have been doing a little detective work on their own hook lately, and report some very unwise, and indiscreet actions on the part of a couple of married people belonging to different families making nightly runs through alleys, into barns and in one instance it has been claimed that the male hurriedly went through the manure hole of another man's barn. The boys surely ought not to talk like that unless it is so. If half of it is true the wheels of Justice should be set in motion and our village relieved of such doings.

—Our farmers, many of whom belong to the too too class, but some of whom are not so easily scared, have begun to complain that we are getting too much rain. It is customary with many to offer up complaints every time they meet a listener, that "it is too dry" "too cold," "too hot" or "too wet". These, people have become familiar with. Now farmers usually not given to complaining are saying that they think, especially corn, would be better if they could give it a good plowing which, on account of wet they have been unable to do.

—On Monday evening a couple of men were locked up at the jail on the demand of officers of Long Lake and Maple Plain, as suspected of being engaged in train wrecking. On the arrival of a detective from the city the men were released. They should be remunerated for their time and injury to feelings and reputation. It is pretty hard when anybody can be arrested on suspicion when they happen to be away from home and thrown into jail. In order to equalize things a little money consideration to those suffering from the suspicions should be handed out to help heal the wounds.

—It seems Delano has a High School still. It was supposed there was no one to graduate this spring. But since school is over it turns out that Eddie Brown, who has been a hard student for several years has secured more papers than others who have graduated. He is a little timid and feared he would not pass in some branches, but came out successful. He has made application for a diploma and says the State Examiner of High Schools, George B. Aiton, encourages him in believing that he will be granted the desired parchment soon. It would have looked better of course if our school board had found this out and not waited for the pupil to come around demanding his rights. By all means give the boy his diploma.

—Read an account of the terrible cyclone at New Richmond, Wis., Monday night, on the inside of this paper.

—Our citizens who depend on the Dispatch for their evening news complain considerably when from one to three evenings in the week it is not put off as outside mail, but is delivered next morning from the post office.

—Our fellow townsman, Otto Marr has an article in the Globe of the 14th inst., headed "Power of the Trusts." Mr. Marr is a good Democrat, except that he advises the silver question should be left out of the Presidential campaign.

—Our local weather bureau had passed out the news Monday afternoon that never since the St. Cloud cyclone had his barometer been so low. That evening we had a bad hailstorm and over in New Richmond, Wis., they had a severe cyclone killing about 100 people and demolishing the town.

—Get up a float, represent your business in the procession. You will feel kind of cheap to see your neighbor who has a smaller business of the same kind, with a big display for the town full of folks to look at, and you have none. Nothing like advertising. The town will be much more favorably advertised by a good turn out than by a poor one.

—The roads were so muddy and there was so much of them to travel to get to St. Michaels Wednesday that few from here attended Frank A. Cramer's wedding, however much they would have liked to do so. This is a warning to young men about Delano who contemplate matrimony to find partners nearer home. However we offer our congratulations to the new family. They will live in the Kerrick residence on North Third street.

—Peter Berg, of Lyndale, reports the loss of a sack of about 130 pounds of flour from his granary on Monday night. The staple had been removed, likewise the flour. The staple was nicely readjusted, stronger than before; but the flour was not. This is rather a curious freak to attribute to the storm that had just passed over, so Peter simply says "someone must have got hungry after the storm" and lets it go at that.

—W. D. Freeman who moved from here to Cincinnati last year surprised his many Delano friends on Monday last, by arriving in their midst very uncerimoniously. He says the natives nearly froze to death in Ohio last winter. Some blamed him for bringing the unusual cold spell. He must have been to blame, as the Delano folks can testify that the hardest hail storm we ever had, occurred was while W. D. was awaiting the belated train, to return to Minneapolis Monday evening He expects his family here next week to occupy rooms in the Grafft House on North Third street. He is awfully tickled at getting back to Delano.

—A good lively hail storm visited Delano and vicinity Monday afternoon. Hails as big as good sized hen eggs were quite numerous. Most people who had glass windows looking South, lost more or less glass. Hundreds of dollars worth went to smash in about ten or fifteen minutes. The most valuable one we have heard of was a fine plate glass, $28, in Len Dedrick's restaurant, and a couple worth $5 each in his saloon. Offices, churches, school house, residences, all suffered more or less from the pelting. Fruit was knocked from trees, plumbs and apples came down numerously. Tuesday morning farmers began driving in and buying glass also. The storm seems to have extended about 1 mile north and 4 south, and to have gone in a North Easterly direction.

—A base ball game is booked for the Delano Crickets at Maple Lake, on Saturday, June 17; with the Maple Lake Nine. One at Monticello, with the Monticello Club, on Saturday, June 24. We have a pretty distinct remembrance of a game played between the Monticello and Delano clubs, at Buffalo, something less than a quarter of a century ago. We would most respectfully call attention of the Monticello people that the Crickets is a different club from that they met in the blue-grass upon that occasion. We are tempted to be at Monticello when the game comes off hoping the Crickets will not let the Monticello Club get a thing but the biggest kind off goose eggs. If Tiff Mealey would pitch as good ball as he did that day the youngsters might be treated to an exhibition of how it used to be done.

—The large audience in attendance on the Children's Day exercises by the Sunday school, at the M. E. church Sunday evening was highly pleased. The ladder of life, in particular, was much enjoyed. Singing by several little tots is much praised. In fact everybody seemed to enjoy the exercises as much as the children themselves. People feel much more fatherly and motherly, and happier when they accompany their children on such occasions, than they do when they spend an evening with cards or dancing and oblige the little ones to sit all evening in a foul or dusty room and see or hear much their parents don't approve of, or to be left at home with the "best they can get". The children are much better for the company of their parents and society generally feels better for the Sunday school gatherings. If some of the parents would attend Sunday school and church regularly, we don't believe they would feel that they had belittled themselves by doing so, and the children would enjoy having them there, and their example would be good for their own families and might even be considered worth copying by neighbors. Nobody would want to live in a town without a church long. They would consider themselves disgraced by doing so. Encourage the children to live better lives than this generation is doing. Set the best example you can.

A Rockford friend informs us that A. G. Calderwood, Secretary of the State Prohibition committe will lecture on "Christian Citizenship and the Saloon" at the Presbyterian church in Rockford, at 8 p. m., June 23. The gentlemen should be given a good audience. There is much to be said on the subject chosen for the lecture. Hear him.

Some of the politicians that trotted gracefully along in the Boss harness last year are awful kickers now, and by the time the next campaign opens up, it looks as if there would be a sort of a sorry time in the boss camp. The day of bossism in politics must end. It looks as if it was already doomed. The people hold the power. If they turn out to primary elections, or what used to be caucuses, they can quietly cast their ballots for the best men for delegates to conventions and that will soon do the business.

Monday, June 26, has been set for the trial of the Boxell murderers to begin. This will, undoubtedly, be one of the hard fought trials of the state, from present appearances.

Howard Lake voted $10,000 bonds to build a new school house This ought to give them a first class house well equippee for the business. The vote stood 96 for and 87 against bonds.

The Grand Jury completed its labors was discharged Tuesday. It was in session eight days. They found six indictments: four for murder in the first degree, against Joseph and John Boxell and George Taylor their brother-in-law for murdering the father and step mother of the Boxells, and against Frank Kier, for murdering his wife. Two were for assault.

The Grand Jury reported commending the commissioners for the new steam heating apparatus, and the janitor for his diligence in keeping things in good shape.

St Paul Dispatch

25c per month for Daily. 75c per year for the Weekly.

The St. Paul Dispatch is the best Twin City daily; it has no equal in the Northwest as to size or quality.

The DISPATCH excels in Northwestern news, having a correspondent in every Northwestern town.

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

T. J. CATLIN, Publisher

Entered as Second-Class Mail Matter at the Post Office in Delano, Minn

THE Willmar Tribune got out an extra large paper this week, with accounts of the Indian Massacre of '62, in that section of the country and at Norway Lake. It was an Old Settler's Edition and gave the names of the Old Settlers and many of their experiences and hardships in early days.

IT is stated that the rate of Finnish immigration to the United States has increased fifty percent since last year as an outcome of Russian oppression. It is not an immigration of paupers, but of the prosperous, well clad youth of the country. There are many large parties preparing to come.

GOLD BUGS may squirm and wriggle all they please about swallowing the Chicago platform of '96; and do their dirtiest to switch off the party from its platform; but the probabilities are that William Jennings Bryan will be the nominee for President, all the same, and that on the genuine Democratic platform of 1896.

Gen. Otis the Scapegoat.

When Gen. Otis assumed command of the Philippine forces, the great daily papers vied with each other in telling who he was, what he had done, and in predicting what he would do. The historical narratives seemed strange to us. We began to think possibly we had overlooked this great man in our reading; but when we saw his picture in the papers with the English cut of whiskers and learned who his backers were we began to think him much overrated by the papers.

When Gen. Lawton was sent out and so soon reported that 100,000 men would be required to subjugate the Islands, and Gen. Otis was at the same time claiming 30,000 was all he wanted, while he was then in command of about 40,000 we thought the papers were puffing him for a purpose; to give soldiers and civilians confidence in him, a thing much needed even then. But when Gen. Shafter gave out that "I have never met Gen. Otis" but that he believed Lawton knew what he was talking about Otis stock went still farther down.

Now, it is ridiculous to read what these same lauders of Otis have to say about his incompetency. They can't find language strong enough to condemn him for not taking Aguinaldo and all his followers "in reverse". He has been fighting the men, himself safely guarded, we understand, in Manila, almost daily since February 5, nearly half a year, and a few days ago had one of the fiercest engagements, almost in the suburbs of Manila. We have had frequent reports of McKinley telling Otis to carry the war on through wet and dry seasons. Stop for nothing. And the few gallant men charging around through the rough country and mud, and marshes with poor food, and continually on a strain expecting any moment to be fired on, many overcome by heat, suffering for want of water, many wounded and killed, and all for what? To expand our domains.

Now, these expansionits who told us that Otis was such a noble warrior, brave man, and who now tell us that he is incompetent must have been misinformed one time or the other or have willfully falsified matters, either is bad enough. But they keep up the cry for whipping the Filipinos, and want Otis retired and another warrior put in charge and the country filled with soldiers to shoot down the natives and take the country. If it is necessary to draft men to expand our country we had better wait until it isn't necessary to dratt before we expand.

If trade is all we want, if we would remove our tariffs we could soon get the trade. But it don't look well to build a protective tariff wall about our country and then send men out to make the people of lands across the ocean trade with us.

It looks from the tone of the city dailies as if Gen. Otis is to be made a scapegoat to bear the sins of the administration concerning the Filipino war. Its no use boys, you can't lie and fool all the people all the time.

Wonderful Advancement.

Since the present administration took upon itself the arduous duty of transforming this great, free, liberty loving and liberty giving country from her plain path of duty, as a champion of freedom and popular liberty, into an imperialistic land grabber and oppressor; since the thoroughly American motto "Agression is a crime" was thrown aside and its expounder became the agressor; since this agressor and his colaborers maintained that all men are not created equal, and that they are not endowed by their Creator with the inalienable rights of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness, there has been a great number of false excuses, illusions, and misrepresentations given out for the people, mainly by means of the daily press. Where one of our mighty dailies stood by our free institutions and remembered the circumstances under which our country was born, a number rabidly denounced all anti-expansionists, no matter how illustrious their political career had been, as "copperheads" and traitors, and declared the Declaration of Independence, the rock of liberty, to be out of date, behind the times, and to have been written by old fogies, and ought not to be binding on the wonderful advancement of the United States.

The excuses for this remarkable change in national attitude were various: right of conquest, destiny, advancement of civilization, promotion of commerce, and maintanence of national honor, figured prominently with many others. There was an excuse for every class of citizens, but all shallower in themselves and backed by shallower and sillier reasoning.

The reasoning and conscience of such prominent republican statesmen as Reed, Sherman, Hoar, Vest and others, placed them in opposition to the national policy, but their statesmanship was thrown aside for that of Marcus Hanna, "E. B." Alger, and other illustrious illusionists.

By our Imperialistic policy we overthrow every principle on which the U. S. government was founded, and change our entire front as a nation to one like that from which our forefathers fought to dissever us.

Is the Declaration of Independence out of date or are its enemies, especially for citizens of the United States? We supposed its enemies had ceased to exist since the time of the Tories.

Do you believe that "Agression is a crime" or that oppression is the advancement of civilization?

Do you believe that all men were created equal and have the right of "life, liberty, and pursuit of happiness" or is one man made to make laws for and govern the other?

Do you believe the statesmen above mentioned are incorrect or insincere in their belief, or are their opponents misguided or misguiding?

Do you believe in government without the consent of the governed?

Are you an Imperialist or an Anti-expansionist? AMERICAN.

Among Our Exchanges.

Norwood Times: There is considerable talk throughout the state about democratic organization, etc. Now, why all this hub bub about reorganizing the party? It is already organized and the old guard will call and conduct the primaries or should do so. A new deal will let in a lot of fellows who are not square on the Chicago platform and disrupt the party rather than do any good. The party is organized, the ranks are ready for new recruits or to receive into its forgiving arms those who wish to return: but let the leaders of 1896 lead in 1900, they are better trained for the fight than those who might accidently or otherwise bob up in a new organization.

Bryan and Trusts.

Col. Bryan is a power before the people. In reply to the goldbug Cleveland democrats who pretend to wish to throw the money question aside and take up the trusts, he said: "If you gold democrats want to join us in fighting the trusts, I want you to understand that we gave you a chance to fight the trusts when you had a gold democratic administration. If you gold republicans want us to help you fight the trusts, I want to tell you you have the chance now with your gold standard administration." * * "We stand ready to oppose a gold standard system until our people are able to agree on a financial policy satisfactory to themselves. But when they want us to turn our fight away from the money question onto the trust question. I remind them that we are fighting the trust question as we did in 1896, when they were helping to establish the trust in power, and I want to show you that in fighting the trust question we fight the same people that we were fighting on the gold standard."—Waseca Herald.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 16, 1899.

Having sanctioned a policy for the sending of soldiers to the Philippines that is a clear case of what used to be called "whipping the devil around the stump," Mr. McKinley has gone off on a ten day pleasure trip, with the very important object of seeing his niece graduate from a Massachusetts female college. Meanwhile private advices from Manila say that instead of ending the war Gen. Otis is likely to find himself and his army confined to Manila and its outskirts, before the rainy season is over, unless he is heavily reinforced. Mr. McKinley fears the political effect of issuing the call for volunteers, although he has several times decided to do so, and adopted the plan of sending a sufficient number of regulars to Otis to give him a total of 35,000 men. This is to be done in a way to bamboozle the public. Portions of regiments are to be sent and portions retained in barracks. And to the latter all the men enlisted at the recruiting offices are to be sent to be broke in, and nobody outside of the War Department will be able to know whether the regular army is over enlisted or not. As early as last week every U. S. recruiting office was ordered to hustle and to keep it up until further notice.

The boldest witness who has testified since the Industrial Commission began the investigation of trusts was Henry O. Havemeyer, the president of the sugar trust, who was heard this week. After reading a carefully prepared essay, in which he claimed that trusts, and especially the sugar trust, were public benefactors, he said: "We are not in the business for philanthropic purposes. It is policy, sometimes, to divide our profits with the public, and we conduct our business on business lines. We have tried to sell so low as to shut out all competition, but up to the present time we are in it up to our neck. Trusts are a natural growth. They are regulated by the laws of trade, and neither you, nor the Federal government, nor any other power, can alter these laws, and the sooner you find it out and cease these useless investigations, the better for the country." Now that is a fine picture, isn't it? The head of one of the most notorious of the trusts which are driving individual enterprise to the wall and slowly but surely getting possession of the whole country, standing up and boldly telling the representatives of the U. S. Government that they are engaged in a useless investigation of trusts, and that neither the Federal government, nor any other power, is strong enough to stop the growth of trusts. Mr. Havemeyer was mistaken. There is a power strong enough to stop the growth of the trusts, and sooner or later it will do it. That power is wielded by the people, who pay the enormous profits of the trusts.

Representative Sherman's friends try hard to conceal their soreness over the Henderson bunco that he ran up against, but they do not succeed very well. For instance, read the following remarks made by ex-Representative Southwick, of New York, and it is easy to see that he does not believe Sherman was given a square deal: Mr. Sherman accepts his defeat for the Speakership with the utmost philosophy, and isn't in the least sore over Henderson's record-breaking victory. He never knew in advance of others that Mr. Reed contemplated retiring from the House, and his declination of the Customs Appraisership was not made public to his knowledge of Mr. Reed's intentions." That sounds very much like pleading the baby act, as it was generally believed that Mr. Sherman did know in advance, and that he was Mr Reed's choice for the Speakership. In fact, it was Mr. Sherman's declination of an office that he had sought which gave the public the first intimation of Mr. Reed's intention to retire. Again, Mr. Southwick indicated his belief in bunco practices by the Henderson men when he said: "When the Illinois people put up Hopkins instead of Cannon, who would have had a large following outside his own state, they picked a fore-doomed non-winner. Had Joe Cannon been their candidate the result would never have been settled in advance of the meeting of Congress." When the Committee chairmanships are announced the Sherman men will understand still better how they were knocked out.

Ex-Gov. Bookwalter, of Ohio, who has lately returned from a three year's trip through Russia and its dependencies, has some new ideas of the Czar's country. He said: "I enjoyed the trip to Russia thoroughly, and arrived at the conclusion that Russia is a woefully misjudged country. Nowhere have I seen a more pronounced tendency on the part of a government to promote the interests of its poor people. I think the prevailing delusion in America concerning the alleged tyranny of the Russian government arises from the fact that it will not tolerate crime. Justice there is swift and severe, but are we in a position to say that it is too swift and severe? "Mr. Bookwalter says that Russia is bound to be the dominant power in Asia and that if this administration carries out a blundering it has, unless he reads the signs wrong, to get into the Asiatic mix-up, the people of the U. S. will deeply regret it.

ELECTRIC LIGHTED & STEAM HEATED

Bill's Number One

By Robert Halifax.

"BILL!"

"Yus?" Bill jumped almost guiltily. He had gulped down his supper, stored away the unsold vegetables, washed down as far as the ring round his neck, sneaked into the bedroom, and was lost in round-eyed contemplation of the five-weeks-old pink atom in there, when that queer sort of whisper came through the doorway.

"Bill!" She edged in farther. "Don't yer love me? Ain't you got the loveliest boy ever a man longed for? Or are you going to think more o' the child than me now?"

"You'll wake him! What d'yer mean, gal?" gasped Bill, taking the cutty from his mouth.

"What do I mean? Ah! you know well enough. But we don't want no words about it. There's the boy—is he to go all his life with a number, like a convick? I don't think! I s'pose you do know he's got to be named and registered before another week—or didn't you?"

"Lumme," said Bill, staring. "So he has. Blowed if I hadn't—"

"Bill, you know you'd forget your head, you would. But that don't matter; there's the child, and you know now." She folded her arms, and looked up at the crack in the ceiling. "As I said, we don't want no words, we've been so nice together; but I s'pose I may speak in my own house. I only ask what's the dear mite's name to be?—his name, wot'll mean one thing or t'other for him through life."

"Him? Why, Bill, of course—Bill Simmons," said he—or rather, faltered it. "Didn't I settle that long ago—so's we needn't change the name on the barrows."

"Oh! you did? Well, then, there never ain't no telling, is there?" and Mrs. Simmons tittered a little hysterically, as she fumbled behind the picture of Garibaldi. "There, I think it's his mother's place to settle that. So when you go to the registrar, you'll take this bit o' paper, and see he puts it down prop'ly. Here it is—and no words; er—Ermyntruda Marmaduke."

"Erming—what?" Bill swayed up, his eyes goggling. "That boy?"

"That boy. Why shouldn't he have a duke's name as well as anyone? You didn't care; I did. Me and Mrs. Pippleton found that name in a paper, and we ain't going back on it."

"You—give it here!" said Bill, huskily, making a snatch. "Blimy, it's a plant! You've left it till now so as—Mrs. Pippleton? Who's she? I'll break her blooming neck. I'll—"

"That's it! Send the baby into a fit, along of your beastly temper. I knew how it would be. As sure as you stand there, Bill, that's the child's name, and so there."

"Ermyntruda Marmaduke," he spelled out, incredulously. "What, a kid that's going to sell carrots on the kerb along o' me! Oh, yes! ain't we springing up in the world. 'One pennorth o' tunnip-tops, Mister Ermyntruda Marmaduke, and no stalk!' Yus; I'll see about that. Bill he was born, and Bill he sticks."

"So you say! Allow me to tell you, Mr. Simmons, that child's not going in the carrot line, nor any other; he's going in the civil servidge, or not at all, where they go up and take their money and walk out again; either that or a beerhouse, so now! And as for Mrs. Pippleton, the best friend the child's got, if you go down those stairs and make words between them, he—he shan't have no name at all! And I'll let him know every day as his own blessed father sat down and conspirated to ruin him. Now!"

She swung out. Bill stood staring at the paper—a morsel torn from "The Bandit of Blue Gulch." Ermyntruda Marmaduke—he sweated even now at the very thought of being asked the nipper's name. Ermyn—Stewed eels and gin! It was past bearing. He caught up his cap and went down the stairs—quickly enough to catch Mrs. Pippleton edging off. She had been listening, then. He clenched his fist as she snorted and clattered her fireirons.

"Yus; for two brass pins I'd down yer," he said, in a whisper.

"I know you would; but there's only one in the house, as it happens. Hark who'll do the downing! P'raps you'll get off my oilcloth."

Bill strode down the street, his neck red and puffed, to the pub at the corner; Pippleton was calling for a pennorth of shag when he felt his ear pulled.

"What ho, Bill! what's yours?"

"Yus, I know all about that; I'll buy my own. Now, what game's this—you and your missus? D'yer see that there?—my kid's name. That's what you've bunged into her head between you; but it won't come off—see?"

"Ermyn——" Pippleton stared. "Not me, Bill. Take my oath I ain't heard nothink about it. Lumme! They've been and 'cocted it between 'em. Why, it's a gal's name, ain't it?"

"No, yer fool, it's a duke's name; and I'm to go to the registrar's and spit that out. Me! Swop my bob, Pip, I don't want no row, but I've got to have it out with your missus or someone before I've done. It's all her; my Harriet can't even read back'ards; you know that. I'll—"

"Don't you do nothink o' the silly sort, mate. Wimmen are wimmen—don't forget it. You're that dry—half old six with a head on, Miss! Now look here, Bill; I've got no kids, so I ain't never had no bother; but they've got this idea into their heads. Well and good; you was a fool to kick. Go houfe and say it's the loveliest name you ever heard tell on, and you won't have no other at no mortal price. Then, tomorrow dinner time, you and me—"

The rest died in a dramatic whisper; but enough that they nudged each other, and that Bill rubbed his hands, stood drinks all round the bar and went home singing "'What's in a name?' says Shakespeare."

Sharp as one o'clock struck that next day, Bill left his stall to itself and ran to meet Pippleton at the corner. Five minutes later they were pausing nervously outside the registrar's office.

"It's all right," Pippleton whispered. "How'll they know? You met the registrar tearing along with a summons for not doing it sooner, and he wouldn't have that Ermingtrooda at no price—stuck out it was a duke's patent fam'ly name; and jest at the very last minnit you thought of 'Bill.' Who's he? Come on."

Bill spat on both hands; they took off their caps, and walked into the presence of the great man, where he sat among his awesome volumes. They nudged and pushed each other forward; and then at last Bill got rid of his lump and began.

"'Appy New Year t' yer, sir!" ("I'm sure," echoed Pippleton.) "Er—we've just called in to put down the buth of a newborn male child—not his, mine. Yus."

"You mean a boy," said the registrar, testily! "We only speak in that fashion when referring to a demise. Any date?"

"Date?" Another nudge and stare, and scratching of heads. "Well, there, now, blowed if I—oh! yus, fust o' December—you know, Pip; I brought down the rent fourpence short. Yus. Name? Bill Simmons, sir—B—i—l—l. Ah, of course, William, I should say. I a in't used to this, guv'nor; don't take no notice o' me. Bill Simmons—that's my name, too; 4 Fountain court, Shoreditch. 'Tater salesman."

"In-deed?" The registrar glared himself, flicked a few pages, and threw down his pen. "Upon my word, I don't know whether you people with your babies think the public records are kept here for a joke! Your child, sir, was registered three hours ago by its mother under the name of—of—ye-es, Ermyntruda Marmaduke Simmons—sex apparently of no consequence. Exactly; two women came, if you remember. You see how unnecessarily you waste my time? Too late? My dear man, the child was only born once, I suppose? I have provided one certificate of birth, don't I tell you?"

"IT'S ALL RIGHT," PIPPLETON WHISPERED. "HOW'LL THEY KNOW?"

Deep into the silence the soft sarcasm sank. Goggle-eyed they stood for a minute. Bill white and Pippleton red. Then their feet started shuffling, and next moment they somehow found themselves gasping outside.

"You—you done this!" choked Bill, swinging his fist. "No lies; I say you done it. Lumme, I'll—"

"I never, Bill! Me? Strike me lucky if I've said a word it was in my sleep, when you never don't know. The missus says to me, she says: 'Ah, you can larf—so can we.' Swop me bob, Bill, I hadn't opened my blessed mouth that much—Bill, you're never going off that ratty over nothing? Can I help my missus? Ain't I had all my vegetables off you since when? Well, there!"

"What did you marry her for?" asked Bill, hotly; but he stopped. "For two pins I'd go and kick a copper an' get run in, I would. To think my nipper—let go!"

"Shan't! He's all right—fat as butter! Now, choke it down and come on. Why, here, you chump, you can get your own back over this a knock-art. Ha, ha, we never thought of that! Lumme, Bill, we've got 'em set!"

"Have we? How? More o' your kid?"

"My kid? No, you mug, can't you see? Why, next time—"

A whisper, a wink, and the two went off roaring.—St. Paul's.

An Epitaph.

The following is a good epitaph story. An old Yorkshire farmer died. The funeral being over, the widow decided to have a tombstone that should do credit both to the deceased and herself. To the local stonemason she explained her wishes: "I don't want nothing out of th' way, but handsome and simple, like this: 'William Wilson, died October the fourth, 1896. Aged eighty-five. "The good die young." '"—Academy.

One by One.

Mr. Newgarden (on his return home)—Why, Mary, what in the world are you doing? You look tired to death!

Mrs. Newgarden—I am absolutely exhausted! I have been all day planting these grass seeds, and have only done about three yards. The seeds are so awfully small!—Puck.

The Ohio Campaign.

The state campaign in Ohio this year will be one of more than ordinary interest to the honest masses of the whole country, in that it will be managed on the side of the g. o. p. by Hanna and Cox, the former a national and the latter a state boss, both of unsavory reputation in manipulating political contests.

The Enquirer will in its usual fearless style champion the side arrayed in favor of honest government, fair dealing with the public and greatest good to the greatest number, as opposed to boodle methods an official robbery.

Note what Mr. Whitelaw Reid says of boodle methods, as a manufacturer of public opinion through the news papers, at a gatheaing of journalists:

"There is no such thing in America as an independent press, unless it is out in the country towns. You are all slaves. You know it and I know it. There is not one of you who dares to express an honest opinion. If you express it you would know before hand that it would never appear in print. I am paid $150 (a week) for keeping honest opinions out of the paper I am connected with. Others of you are paid similar salaries for doing similar things. If I should allow honest opinions to be printed in one issue of my paper, like Othello, before 24 hours my occupation would be gone. The man who would be so foolish as to write honest opinions would be out on the streets hunting for another job. The business of a New York journalist is to distort the truth, to lie outright, to pervert, to villify, to fawn at the feet of mammon, and to sell his country and his race for his daily bread, or for what is about the same thing, his salary. You know this and I know it; and what foolery it is to be toasting the independent press. We are the tools and vassals of the rich men behind the scenes. We are jumping jacks. They pull the strings and we dance. Our time, our talents, our lives, our possibilities are all the property of other men. We are intellectual prostitutes."

As all readers of the Enquirer know it receives no aid from corruption funds and depends upon the honest, well meaning class for its support, we anticipate a greatly increased demand for it during the Ohio campaign.

That it may reach the largest possible number of readers we make a short term rate for the occasion, assuring all that only the entire truth and all the facts will appear in its columns.

We will send the Weekly Enquirer
Four months for only 25 cents
Three months for only 20 cents

And a free copy to club agents sending in clubs of three.

Marie Wainwright, the actress, has married the gentleman who was her leading man last season, and who hopes to continue to be that same.

That was a touching display of family affection, not to say affliction, at Salt Lake City when eight widows of the late Brigham Young united in celebrating the anniversary of his birthday.

One of Uncle Sam's Alaskan islands can boast the largest stamp mill in the world. It has 540 stamps and crushes quartz enough daily to give $8,640 in gold, which the other mills in the plant increase to $14,000.

The "bordereau" so frequently mentioned in the Dreyfus case is the memorandum, the word meaning, in French, a list of things to be noted. The "secret dossier" is nothing but a big bundle of papers relating to the case.

Spain's sale of islands to Germany includes a total area of 610 square miles, for which the price agreed upon is about $13 an acre. The $20,000,000 paid by the United States for the Philippines is in the neighborhood of 27 cents an acre.

All kinds of bunting are steadily advancing in price, in anticipation of Dewey's home-coming. The visible supply is only 25,000,000 yards, and as every man, woman and child will want at least ten yards the deficiency will be something enormous.

Mrs. Jane Williams, aged 102, of Galena, Kan., has joined her lot to that of James Morgan, aged 70. This is one of those cases in which parental opposition would be of little use, and it is to be supposed that the bride's father sensibly bade the young folks go and be happy, if he said anything about it at all.

There is a rumor current in Washington that Admiral Dewey cabled from Hong-Kong to a friend that he should decline to accept a house if it were tendered him and that he would prefer the money should be invested in a home for sick and disabled sailors. A Dewey home of that kind would be a monument to be proud of.

Mountain View, the terminal city of a new branch of the Rock Island in Oklahoma, broke another record in town enterprise. The town was recently built in less than 24 hours, and now it has bought outright a rival town, 1½ miles away, and the rival Oakdale is being moved on wheels to become a part of Mountain View. The purchase price was $134,380 in cash.

The war department has awarded a contract to a New York firm for the construction in Manila of a refrigerating plant to cost $500,000. It will provide cold storage for 1,200 tons of beef, 200 tons of mutton, 100 tons of potatoes and onions and 50 tons of butter, besides 50 tons of dainties and luxuries for the hospitals. The plant will also be capable of turning out 40 tons of ice each day.

During the discussion on tuberculosis by the American Medical association at Columbus, O., it was stated that during last year slightly less than 7,000 of the people of the United States died of war wounds and disease contracted in the military service, while in the same period 150,000 died of consumption. This is sufficient justification for all the efforts scientists are making to discover and destroy the tuberculosis germ.

A gigantic scheme is on foot to buy up the vast timber and mineral lands throughout West Virginia and eastern Tennessee and build railroads to all the principal points to open them up to trade. There are millions of dollars interested in the project. There are thousands of acres of the richest lands in the world lying idle in that section because of the lack of railroad facilities. Northern and English capital is back of the scheme.

Kent county, Md., has the distinction of having what State Entomologist Johnson declares to be the monster peach tree of the United States. The big tree is at Napley, the fine estate of Alan Harris, in the tenancy of Robert Wickes. The trunk is 67 inches in circumference, 22 inches in diameter or about the size of the ordinary kerosene barrel. Three of the limbs are 22 inches, 29 inches and 30 inches in circumference, respectively. The tree is 25 years old, is vigorous and in full bearing.

The new Japanese torpedo boats have received names entirely out of keeping with their modern style and destructive purposes. These names are very poetical and picturesque, and belong to the vocabulary of pure old Japanese words which are rapidly passing out of common use. The following are examples: Dragon Fly, Full Moon, Moon in Clouds, Sea Beach, Peewit, Lightning, Thunder, Dawn of Day, Clustering Clouds, Daybreak, Ripples, Evening Mist, Dragon's Lamp, Falcon, Magpie, White-Naped Crane, White Hawk.

The Bulletin of Pharmacy tells of a remarkable experiment made with liquid air by a physician. He placed a dog in a room in which the temperature had been lowered to 100 degrees below zero by the use of liquid air, and left him there ten hours. When released the dog had a ferocious appetite and was greatly stimulated. The physician then tried it himself, and after ten hours an intense appetite was created and he felt exhilarated. He says the combustion required to keep the body warm is so great that the extraordinary appetite is created.

Revised figures prepared by the Railroad Gazette show the total mileage of new roads built in the United States in 1898 to be 3,625 miles. These figures do not include second track and sidings. This is an increase of some 400 miles over estimates made at the beginning of the year. But even these latest figures are probably too small to represent the entire increase in mileage made in the whole country last year. In 1897 the mileage of new roads amounted to 2,109 miles, which was only a little in advance of the records for the previous three years

TRADE REVIEW.

The Business Situation as Seen by American's Leading Commercial Agencies.

New York, June 17.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: "It is one of the frequent paradoxes of business that the one thing which now makes prices rise is the only thing that clouds the future. They rise in iron and wheat because scarcity is feared, but the scarcity, if prolonged and real, would much impair prosperity. In wheat it does not seem to be real nor in iron lasting, and meanwhile other elements of prosperity continue potent. It is a great thing that exports of gold have caused no apprehension, because recognized as mere borrowings by foreign bankers, the May return of foreign commerce showing exports $25,000,000 larger than imports, in spite of a decrease of 59 cents in the export price of wheat, and a large increase in imports. In 11 months the excess of merchandise exports has been $495,000,000 and the bankers estimate that $260,000,000 worth of securities have been returned from Europe, with so few in recent months that the amount remaining to be dislodged is probably small.

"The scarcity of iron is real, in spite of the greatest production ever known in this or any other country, 256,062 tons weekly June 1, against 250,695 May 1, for stocks were reduced 7,092 tons in May, indicating a consumption of 1,190,866 tons, against 1,000,000 tons per month last year, the greatest ever known. Consuming demand does not seem to diminish and appears greater because it falls upon works crowded for months ahead with contracts at lower prices, but some of it is speculative and would cease with prospects of lower prices. With more furnaces going into blast, ten last month, production will overtake the demand after a time, and the largest buyers of finished product for implements and car works and railroads are taking nothing to cover next year's needs.

"Failures for the week have been 126 in the United States, against 223 last year, and 18 in Canada, against 20 last year."

Bradstreet's says: "Advices as to distributive trade are in the main very favorable. Hot weather has stimulated retail business and orders for fall delivery are reported in larger volume and earlier than for years past. At some centers, in fact, less than the usual effect is looked for from seasonable midsummer influences. This is, however, best illustrated in the iron and steel trade, which displays unexampled activity as regards summer production and consumption, limited only by the obtaining of supplies. Advances all along the line are again a feature in this trade."

ROUSSEAU DECLINES.

Undertakes to Form a New French Cabinet But Finally Relinquishes the Task.

Paris, June 20.—It is announced that Senator Waldeck-Rousseau has declined the task of forming a new cabinet. The failure of M. Waldeck-Rosseau is due, it is said, to the refusal of Camille Krantz to accept the portfolio of public works, which he considers inferior to the portfolio of war, held by him in the retiring cabinet. But for this the Waldeck-Rousseau slate was complete.

The failure of M. Waldeck-Rousseau makes the situation exceedingly difficult. Both M. Casimir-Perier and Gen. Brugere declined to enter the cabinet. It is quite uncertain whom M. Loubet will now summon. Possibly he may call upon M. Sarrien or Paul Deschanel, president of the chamber of deputies.

Killed Himself.

St. Louis, June 20.—Dr. Thomas Osmond Summers, late major surgeon in charge of the fever hospital at Santiago and a noted yellow fever expert, shot himself through the head here Monday evening. Despondency caused by fancied lack of appreciation of his services by the government during the Spanish war is assigned as the cause for the act.

Bold Robbers.

Philadelphia, June 20.—A gang of masked robbers, probably ten in number, Monday morning raided the receiving office of the Fairmount Park Transportation company at Belmont in Fairmount Park and after holding up the receiver and five other employes of the railway, blew open the safe, securing $4,000, the company's receipts for two days.

MOB FIGHTS POLICE.

Riotous Scenes at the Street Car Strike in Cleveland—Several Persons Badly Hurt.

Cleveland, O., June 19.—At 12:30 o'clock Saturday the most disastrous riot of the local railway strike took place at Pearl street and Clarke avenue. Two cars loaded with nonunion men, patrolmen and deputies were attacked by a mob of 5,000. As a result of a charge made by the police under Capt. Hutchinson and Lieut. Felhaber many persons were severely and some possibly fatally injured. The first car to reach the scene of the trouble was met by the mob and a shower of bricks and eggs. About 50 feet behind the first car was a second car loaded with nonunion men, deputies and police. This car also was compelled to come to a stop. Before the police could step from the cars a fusillade of stones and bricks crashed through the windows, striking several of the nonunion men.

Within five minutes after the cars had arrived nearly every patrolman and nonunion man had been the mark for one or more eggs, and every window in both cars was quickly smashed. Several vicious attacks were made by the mob, and in order to protect the lives of the nonunion men the police were compelled to charge. Capt. Hutchinson gave the word, and the police dashed through the crowd swinging their clubs. Dozens of people were injured by being struck by stones and clubs. The mob could not withstand the terrific onslaught of the police, and all sought safety in flight. A scene of wild confusion followed. The fight between the police and the mob continued for nearly 15 minutes, but the former finally gained the victory. The mob was partially dispersed, and the cars were run back to the Lakeview barns. As the cars passed through the public square they attracted considerable attention, it being easy to determine from their appearance that there had been another serious riot. No further attempt was made to operate cars on the Holmden avenue and South side line.

The usual lesser riots took place in various sections of the city during the day, and many arrests were made. All negotiations for a compromise settlement of the street car strike have been dropped. A conference between the company officials and strikers had been arranged for Saturday morning, but it was abandoned at the last moment because the former refused to recognized delegated union leaders as otherwise than individual employes.

TO FIGHT TRUSTS.

The Farmers Will Combine to Defeat Corporations Acting Against Public Interest.

New Carlisle, Ind., June 19.—Aaron Jones, of this county, master of the national grange, says in an interview that the proposed trust of the farmers of the United States will be consummated and will make itself felt in due time, and such trusts as are against public interests will have arrayed against them a force that is pretty certain to accomplish its purpose. The methods of warfare will prove effective, Mr. Jones says. A force of 1,000,000 organized farmers can make it exceedingly uncomfortable for trusts formed to practice extortion.

Many Miners Slain.

Halifax, N. S., June 17.—According to an official account of Friday morning's disaster in the Caledonia mine of the Dominion Coal company, at Glace Bay, Cape Breton, there were two explosions, the first killing six men and the second five. Fire started near what is known as the deep pump, the cause being unknown. Six men who were on their way out were overcome by an explosion of fire damp and suffocated where they fell. Three-quarters of an hour later a party of men were on their way to the scene of the fire, headed by Thomas Johnston, the underground manager when an explosion of gas occurred, by which they were killed instantly.

Reciprocity Treaty Signed.

Washington, June 17.—A new treaty between the United States and Great Britain, covering reciprocity with the British West Indian colony of the Barbadoes, was signed at the state department Friday afternoon. This is the first reciprocity treaty under the reciprocity clause of the Dingley tariff, as the previous agreements have been under a section allowing "reciprocity arrangements," by proclamation and without the formality of a treaty. It is the first of the series of treaties which the British West Indian colonies—Jamaica, Guiana and Bermuda—are seeking.

Prices to Be Advanced.

Grand Rapids, Mich., June 17.—The largest table manufacturers in the country have organized here under the name of National Dining Table association. They will at once order an advance of 15 per cent. on all grades of tables, while some special grades will be advanced 20 to 25 per cent. The new chair trust has also ordered an advance in price of 15 per cent. and indications are that these advances will be followed by furniture makers in all other lines when the July sales begin.

The World's Wheat Crop.

Washington, June 16. — The agricultural department issued a circular giving the substance of reports received by it up to June 10 on the condition of foreign crops. It says a British commercial estimate tentatively puts the world's wheat crop of 1899 at 2,504,000,000 bushels, against 2,748,000,000 bushels in 1898—a reduction of 244,000,000 bushels, or nearly 8.9 per cent. Another estimate makes a reduction of 352,000,000 bushels.

Watson Takes Command.

Washington, June 16. — Admiral Watson has arrived at Hong-Kong, and being on his own station, took command of the Asiatic squadron, relieving Capt. Barker, of the Oregon, who has been in charge since Admiral Dewey sailed from Manila.

Dingley's Successor Chosen.

Rockland, Me., June 20.—Charles E. Littlefield, republican, has been elected to congress to succeed the late Nelson Dingley, defeating John Scott, of Bath, by an overwhelming majority. Scott polled a smaller vote than when he stood against Mr. Dingley in the 1898 election.

BLAND IS DEAD.

Noted Missouri Congressman Passes Peacefully Away at His Home Near Lebanon.

Lebanon, Mo., June 16. — Hon. Richard Parks Bland died at his home near here Thursday morning peacefully, and without apparent suffering.

Mr. Bland returned home when congress adjourned in March and soon suffered a relapse from an attack of la grippe. For more than two months he had been confined to his home and his health has gradually declined. He thought he would not survive the attack from the first, and showed his thorough knowledge of his condition. On the 3d of the month Mr. Bland suddenly grew worse, and his sons, who were in school, were summoned home and for the first time the public was informed of his critical condition.

From time to time since then the patient showed signs of improvement, but the physicians in charge would offer very little hope to his family and friends. He continued to lose his vigor and grow weaker. On Sunday and Monday he presented an improved condition and his family took new hope, and late Monday afternoon there were many expressions that Bland was getting better.

About ten o'clock Tuesday night, however, he fell asleep and continued in that condition until death relieved him.

Lebanon, Mo., June 19.—Congressman Richard Parks Bland was laid to rest here Saturday. The town was crowded with thousands of his friends who came to honor his memory. The funeral services were participated in by the ministers of all denominations that are reprsented in Lebanon. The discourse was delivered by Rev. W. K. Collins, of the Methodist Episcopal church, and was followed by the ritual of the Knights Templars and masonic fraternities. William J. Bryan had a seat on the stage.

Richard Parks Bland was born near Hartford, Ohio county, Ky., August 19, 1825. He was left an orphan at an early age. With the money which he earned during the summer months he was enabled to attend school in winter. In this way he secured an academic education. When he became of age he taught school and earned money to continue his education. While he was teaching school he studied law and was admitted to the bar.

In 1855 he left Kentucky and went to Missouri. He remained in that state but a short time and again moved. This time he went to California and later to Virginia City, Nev. In 1869 he settled in Lebanon, where he followed his profession.

In 1873 he was elected to the Forty-third congress and was returned to the Forty-fourth, Forty-fifth, Forty-sixth, Forty-seventh, Forty-eighth, Forty-ninth, Fiftieth, Fifty-first, Fifty-second and Fifty-third. He was not a member of the Fifty-fourth congress, but was elected to the Fifty-fifth as a silver democrat. He was also elected to the Fifty-sixth congress.

In 1896 he was a candidate for the nomination for president before the democratic national convention. He was defeated by William J. Bryan. Mr. Bland was one of the original silver men and was the author of the famous Bland bill.

To Erect Monuments.

Springfield, Ill., June 17.—A meeting of the Illinois Shiloh battlefield commission was held Friday in this city, and a committee was appointed to select designs for monuments to be erected on the battlefield to the Illinois troops participating. Gen. John A. McClernand, of this city, presided, and Maj. George Mason, of Chicago, is secretary. There will be a general monument to cost $1,000 and 27 monuments to the infantry, ten to the cavalry, and 12 to the artillery.

Big Failure in Norway.

Christiania, June 20.—The failure of Christian Christoffersen, the largest paper manufacturer and paper pulp dealer in Norway, is now certain. His liabilities will amount to 10,000,000 kroner ($2,680,000), and his assets are placed at 11,000,000 kroner ($2,948,000), but conservative financiers fear that the assets are largely overestimated. Extreme nervousness prevails in business circles and money is very tight. One bank has just failed, and other failures are expected.

Train Robbed.

Kansas City, Mo., June 17.—A special to the Star from Mena, Ark., says: About 2:45 o'clock Friday morning the south-bound passenger train of the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf railway, No. 2, was held up by three masked men at a curve about a mile south of Shady, I. T. The exact amount of booty secured is not known, as the express company will not give out the amount of its loss.

To Avenge Brother's Death.

Coffeyville, Kan., June 16. — Among the men enlisted for service in the regular army was Daniel McTaggart, Jr., son of the late Senator Daniel McTaggart and brother of Second Lieut. W. A. McTaggart, of company G, Twentieth Kansas regiment, who was killed a short time ago, while in a charge near Calumpit. Young McTaggart will go to the Philippines to avenge his brother's death.

Death of a Naval Veteran.

Washington, June 16.—Rear Admiral Pierce Crosby, retired, one of the last of Farragut's active officers in the stirring sea fights of the civil war, died here Thursday night of diabetes, aged 76 years. He had a most active naval career, figuring in the capture of blockade runners and assisting in the reduction of river forts, particularly at New Orleans and Mobile. He also saw service in the Mexican war.

Death of a Congressman.

Wheeling, W. Va., June 20.—Capt. Lorenzo Danford, serving his sixth term as congressman from the Sixteenth Ohio district, died Monday night at seven o'clock at his country home near St. Clairsville, O. His death was sudden and was caused by heart disease. The only member of his family present at his deathbed was his daughter.

TRULY EXASPERATING.

He Hated People Who Were So Positive Yet He Failed to Look to Home.

"By George!" said a Hyde Park man who was riding downtown in an early train. "I detest people who are so blamed positive about everything."

"It is a disagreeable habit," the passenger who sat next to him admitted, "and it always pleases me to see such people confronted with proofs that they are in the wrong."

"Yes, it does me, too. My wife's cousin has been visiting us for several days, and he's one of those know-it-all fellows. You can't tell him anything. Yesterday morning he was reading about this Dreyfus trial, and I gave him a pointer on how to pronounce a French word that was used. But do you suppose he was willing to admit that I knew more about it than he did?"

"I suppose not."

"No! He sat there, right at my own table, and argued with me for 20 minutes trying to show that I didn't know what I was talking about. Such people make me weary."

"Why don't you get a French dictionary and prove to him that he was wrong?"

"Oh, I looked it up yesterday and found that I was mistaken myself, but what makes me mad is the fact that he was so blamed positive about it."—Chicago Times-Herald.

How Old She Looks

Poor clothes cannot make you look old. Even pale cheeks won't do it.

Your household cares may be heavy and disappointments may be deep, but they cannot make you look old.

One thing does it and never fails.

It is impossible to look young with the color of seventy years in your hair.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

permanently postpones the tell-tale signs of age. Used according to directions it gradually brings back the color of youth. At fifty your hair may look as it did at fifteen. It thickens the hair also; stops it from falling out; and cleanses the scalp from dandruff. Shall we send you our book on the Hair and its Diseases?

The Best Advice Free.

If you do not obtain all the benefits you expected from the use of the Vigor, write the doctor about it. Probably there is some difficulty with your general system which may be easily removed. Address, DR. J. C. AYER, Lowell, Mass.

ANTI-IMPERIALISTS

MAKE SIGNIFICANT PLEDGES FOR NEXT YEAR'S CAMPAIGN.

Official and Reassuring Statement of Their League—While the League Is Non-Political, Says Secretary Erving Winslow, Our Friends Will Vote for the Candidate Who Stands Squarely on Our Platform — Other National Points. Hanna and Fletcher Will Wipe Out the Trusts—Old Kaintuck Solid—Tears for Silver Dick Bland—Minnesota's Military Arm—Republican Ghosts Refusing to Down—Lumber Up, Grain Down. General Reeve's Loaded "Gun" That Is Not Loaded Now—Secretary Randall's "White City"—State and Twin City Comment of the Week.

Reform Press Bureau.
ST PAUL, June 10, 1899.

There are multiplying signs that the hearts and consciences of the people are becoming aroused on the subject of imperialism, the country over. Since the recent publications in the bureau, mentioning the national work being conducted at Boston and Washington we have received numerous responses, all to the same tenor, that the spreading of the work of the Anti-Imperialist League must go on. Numerous requests have been received to be enrolled in such league membership. In that connection a criticism came to hand, that it was feared, from persons noted in connection with the movement, that there was a religious bent to it which might prove dangerous. For the sake of the cause we laid this before the league, and promptly received the following reassuring and politically very significant statement:

"Anti-Imperialist League,
Boston and Washington, June 12, '99.
"George S. Canfield, Democratic Reform Press Bureau, St. Paul:
"DEAR SIR—I hasten to inform you that there is not the slightest warrant for the impression you mention. There is no religious or ulterior motive in the purposes or work of the League. It is unreligious, unsectarian and unpolitical. But our friends will certainly support for president the candidate who stands squarely on the Anti-Imperialist platform.
Your obedient servant,
"ERVING WINSLOW, Secretary."

"What will be the outcome?" asks the Mankato Free Press. Can't tell you that, but the out-go to date is $2 a head to get 'em, and from $100 to $1,000 a head to kill them off, so far.

While attention has been to a degree absorbed by the civil branches of Governor Lind's administration, the military arm has been brought up to a very high standard by the energy and untiring efforts of the adjutant general, Brigadier General George C. Lambert. The foundation for the results accomplished by General Lambert was in the fact that he was the author of the state's military code, which, by the way, has been followed almost literally by the United States war department. Hence the intimate conformity of state and federal school and tactics where the two branches come in contact.

The following is the roster of the field and staff, as now completed, and as will be in camp this and following weeks, at Lake City, the initial service being at Duluth, in the recognition of the war department, in the person of Secretary Alger:

Commander-in-Chief—His Excellency John Lind, governor.

Chief of Staff—Brigadier General George C. Lambert, St. Paul, adjutant general.

General Staff:

Surgeon General—Brigadier General Alex J. Stone, St. Paul.

Quartermaster General — Brigadier General Gustav Scholle, St. Paul.

Assistant Adjutant General—Major Francis Baasen, New Ulm.

Assistant Surgeon General—Major Ed Whitcomb, St. Paul.

Assistant Judge Advocate General—Major Albert Steinhauser, New Ulm.

Assistant Quartermaster General—Major Roy Viall, Spring Valley.

Military Storekeeper—Captain Ed J. Bobleter, New Ulm.

Chaplain—Colonel James M. Cleary, Minneapolis.

Aides de camp:

Colonel James M. Hawthorn, St. Paul; Colonel F. Bergmeier, St. Paul; Colonel Ed W. Murphy, Minneapolis; Colonel Roland Hartley, Minneapolis; Colonel Arnold R. Chace, Marshall; Colonel Christ Brand, St. Paul; Colonel George O. Eddy, Minneapolis; Colonel Charles W. Stanton, Appleton; Colonel John G. Hardy, St. Paul; Colonel Henry H. Hawkins, Carleton; Major R. F. Shields, Park Rapids; Major Rukhard Hurd, St. Paul.

The First brigade, under command of Brigadier General W. B. Bend, composed of the First, Second, Third and Fourth regiments, the medical corps, and the First battalion of artillery under command of Major E. D. Libbey, will do 10 days' tour of duty and instruction, as follows;

Second infantry (the First, being the Thirteenth, absent at Manila) Colonel Joseph Bobleter commanding, June 22 to July 1.

Third infantry, Colonel Charles A. Van Duzee, July 5 to 14.

Fourth Infantry Reserve, Colonel Conde Hamlin, July 17 to 26.

First artillery, Major E. D. Libbey, July 17 to 26.

Minnesota's honorable part in the Spanish-Cuban war will add an interest to this year's encampment not possessed since the Civil War period. Lake City will be the Mecca for many thousands.

Yes, the Thirteenth is not only still absent, but heaven only knows when our loved ones will be here, or who will never come at all. Apropos of the dreadful losses which have been sustained by the administration's criminal blunders, the Sioux Falls Press has gathered reports of the Dakota regiment's strength at certain recent periods, from letters received throughout the state from men of the regiment. They summarize as follows:

April 2—But 400 men able to be on the firing line.

April 26—300 at the front now, the rest killed, wounded, sick.

April 27—Only about 20 men left to a company.

April 29—Regiment now down to 400 men.

May 1—Started for Malolos with 60 men in our company, got there with but 33. Rest killed, wounded, prostrated and missing.

Same date—Our whole battalion has only 90 men fit for duty.

May 3—Chaplain's statement: "This leaves our fighting strength only about 300 men."

The regiment left Sioux Falls in May, a year ago, 1,000 strong.

And these sacrifices have been made for what? To subjugate a people demanding and fighting for political liberty, as our forefathers fought against wicked George III.

The latest report from National Chairman Jones, now abroad, is that he is fully recovering his health. Oh, he won't do a thing to Hanna next year.

Millions lay tributes of love and respect on the bier of "Silver Dick" Bland of Missouri. Congressman Bland, more than any other public man, up to the coming of W. J. Bryan, upheld and advanced silver's restoration. A member of congress almost continuously for a quarter of a century, he ever stood in protest against silver's debasement and pointed out to the people the certain ruin to follow. The nation has lost a great man and the people a fast friend.

During the past week Hennepin county Democracy has completed the preliminary steps of the organization upon which such indefatigable workers as William Banquet Baldwin have been engaged. The plan is on the lines of Ramsey county, the foundation being laid in the primary election, by precincts. Notwithstanding that the meetings occurred Monday night, in the terrific storm, they were generally held, so that complete representation will be had in the central body.

What are our Republican friends, press, party, leaders and laymen going to do with the discovery made by the supreme court that all the "special" legislation they have been passing for several sessions back, under the guise of general legislation, is really special, and thus unconstitutional. This Republican bungling will probably require a constitutional convention in the very near future.

For Hennepin it may be said that the latest is that the Republicans will attack the primary election law. The fact is that the Republicans find that the law which they passed gives them the worst of it, hence they will try to get rid of it.

Add to the above the fact that the rockribbed Republican "orgin," The Tribune, is now daily denouncing McKinley's Philippine policy, and also that the Nelson Republicans are "rearing mad" at the fight on Nelson, and the G. O. P. in Hennepin may be said to be in Your Uncle Loren Fletcher's "h-ll of a fix."

The Minnesota railroads have received more than 13,500,000 acres of granted lands, state and national, the average selling price of which 10 years ago was $4.98 per acre, making the value of such grants at that time $75,000,000. They have fought the payment of taxes on the most of this to the uttermost, and finally got the Republican state senate to save them from an increase of 1 per cent in their gross earnings tax.

The premium list of the coming state fair is very greatly increased, and this and coming attractions warrant the expectation of the largest fair ever held in the state and probably in the entire Northwest. The grounds even this early are being made ready, and Secretary Randall's men have about converted the beautiful buildings into one vast "white city."

General C. Mc. C. Reeve in the St. Paul Globe, takes a fall out of warrior Wheelock of the Pioneer Press, which the latter will long remember. Wheelock should have known that General Reeve always goes loaded.

Two-thirds of the people of Toledo cast their votes for Golden Rule Jones for mayor, only to be characterized by Mark Hanna, in an interview, as "riffraff, bums, idle fellows and other Democrats." Hanna has a way of improving the "silly season" strictly original.

And Hanna said in an interview, before leaving for Europe, in defense of trusts, that Standard Oil has done the State of Ohio more good than any corporation doing business within its borders. And yet Hanna's party is going to destroy trusts next year—with the assistance of Congressman Loren Fletcher.

Will some one tell us where Noah is? It was up to him some days ago.

As a result of Mr. Bryan's recent visit to Kentucky, it is the understanding that the Henri Watterson wing of the Democratic party returns heartily to the fold. This means Old Kaintuck solid in the Bryan electoral column next year. Hooray!

As if anticipating the reservation pine, lumbermen jabbed lumber up a 50 cent notch. Lumber is several such notches higher than last year, and grain lower. But the farmers have no combine handspike to lift themselves with.

No recent appointment of Governor Lind's has received more favorable comment than that of Rev. Father Cleary of Minneapolis to be staff chaplain.

Very Busy.

May and Edith are sisters, four and five years old respectively. May had been very naughty, and mamma had taken her over her knee to administer corporal punishment, when Edith suddenly pushed the door ajar and peeped in. Turning her chubby face as far round toward her sister as her peculiar position would admit, May said very gravely:

"Go out, Edie, don't you see I'm busy?"

It is needless to add that mamma granted a respite.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Those Absurd Names.

"What ridiculous names they have over there in the Philippines," said the man who had just walked up to the counter and been assured by the clerk that he could have the best room in the hotel. "There's Calumpit, for instance. That name would make a horse laugh. Who ever heard of anything so absurd as to give a town such a postmark as that?"

Then he took the pen that the clerk had been holding out toward him and wrote upon the register:

MINNESOTA NEWS.

A Counterfeiter.

Albert L. Morey was arrested in Minneapolis by United States Marshal Wm. H. Grimshaw and Deputy S. J. Picha, on a charge of counterfeiting.

The officers say that in March, 1896, Morey was convicted of counterfeiting, and was sentenced to two years in the Stillwater prison.

The capture includes about 175 dollars, 125 halves, 225 quarters, and 50 five-dollar gold pieces. All the counterfeit money is made of a composition of metals, largely anti-money, of which there was a large quantity in the house. There was also a lot of plaster of paris, which is used for making moulds.

Morey told the officers that he manufactured most of the coin last winter, and that after he had made a lot of it he threw his plaster moulds into the river from the Tenth avenue bridge.

The counterfeit gold pieces are not completed. They are made of the same metal as the other coins and they have not been plated. Morey told Marshal Grimshaw that he intended to gold plate them when he could get a plating machine.

The coins are by far the most perfect of any that have been captured in this part of the country for some time.

The New Capitol.

Despite the increased cost of some materials the new state capitol can be completed without expending more than the appropriated $2,000,000. This was definitely ascertained at a recent meeting of the capitol commission.

The board voted to sell $150,000 in certificates of indebtedness in order to raise funds to carry on the work of constructing the new state house.

The board had on hand $69,000, but bills were ordered paid which reduced the funds on hand to $31,837. With the $150,000 to be raised the commission will have enough money on hand to carry on the work until October, or possibly November. Cass Gilbert, architect of the capitol, estimates that the expense of construction will not average less than $35,000 per month for the next few months. The certificates are to bear a rate of interest not to exceed 3½ per cent, and will be issued under provisions of the new law. Of the sum, $50,000 will mature in 1903 and the remaining $100,000 in 1904.

There has been spent on the new capitol for all purposes up to date the sum of $454,462.07. Of this sum $26,000 is being withheld from the contractors, according to the terms of the contract.

Climate and Crop Bulletin.

Very little rain has fallen in the Red River valley, and in parts of Kittson county it is so dry that late sown grains are not germinating well; elsewhere there has been too much, except possibly in Renville and Lincoln counties. On high ground and light soil small grains are growing luxuriantly; so much so that lodging is feared unless dry weather comes on soon. Oats are showing a tendency to rust in southeastern counties. Flax is still being sown in the western central counties, and that which was sown earlier has a good stand. Rye is improving somewhat, but cannot be a full crop. Winter wheat and winter rye are in head. Clover is coming into blossom and a little has been cut for hay. Sugar beets look well in Sibley county. Fruit prospects continue good in general.

An Honor to the State.

The honor man in the Annapolis naval academy next year will be William McEntee, son of a well-to-do farmer living at Montgomery, Le Sueur county. Young McEntee was appointed four years ago by Congressman Heatwole, and is the first Minnesota man to win honors at Aunapolis. The young fellow is hard worker and is regarded by the academy officers and instructors as having good stuff in him. He is not only good in class, but has sound seund sense in matters involving discretion, and possesses remarkable executive talent.

Prisoner from Porto Rico.

Rafael Ortiz, the young Porto Rican sentenced to Stillwater for life for killing Private Burke, of the 47th New York volunteers, at San Juan, has arrived at the state prison, escorted by two United States soldiers. He is anything but the bandit pictured, being only 22 years old. Ortiz claims that the woman in the case, on account of whom the killing occurred, was his wife and not his sweetheart, as reported. The journey from Porto Rico was made in eleven days.

Threw the Dishes.

Mrs. Carl Johnson of Montevideo became violently insane and drove her husband and his brother from the house by throwing the dishes and every movable thing she could find at them. Before she was subdued she had demolished everything of a breakable nature in the house. She was placed in jail for safekeeping and will be taken to the asylum.

The gas plant at Mankato was partially destroyed by lightning.

The Washburn Memorial home of Minneapolis has applied to the state board of corrections and charities for listment as a state orphanage, to receive, care for and find homes for dependent children.

Patrick McGraw, a farmer living in Benton county, was found dead in bed, and from appearances the corpse had laid in the house 12 days. McGraw was 58 years old and lived alone.

Eddie Flynn, 10 years old, was drowned in an artificial pond at Wells. He was playing on a raft and fell in.

IS WARMLY WELCOMED.

Visit of the President to Holyoke, Mass.—He Attends the College Exercises.

Holyoke, Mass., June 19.—"If only for the great crowd here it would be a grand success," said President McKinley, as he stood upon the reviewing stand here Saturday afternoon, awaiting the arrival of the parade. There were fully 25,000 people upon the streets. The arrival of the presidential train at ten o'clock Saturday morning was the first event of the day. The second was the big parade, which was reviewed by the president in the afternoon. Afterward the president and Mrs. McKinley were driven by former Congressman William Whiting to his stock farm and log cabin on the banks of the Connecticut at Chicopee, where they rested and enjoyed the first quiet moment since their arrival. Dinner was served immediately on their return, and the evening was spent quietly at the Whiting mansion. No visitors were received.

Sunday for the president was anything but the day of rest that was hoped for. The continual crowding of the curious citizens, the immense jam at the church in the morning, and later in the day an unexpected and totally unprepared-for reception in connection with the baccalaureate exercises at Mount Holyoke college, made the day long and tiresome for all.

Holyoke, Mass., June 20.—Notwithstanding that the day was a long and tedious one, both the president and Mrs. McKinley stood the strain incident to the great demonstration at Northampton and the journey back to Holyoke very well indeed. The trip to Mount Tom in the afternoon was a welcome change from the turmoil of the morning, while the quiet hours were a fitting climax to a busy day. The entire morning was taken up with a visit to Northampton and Smith college. The parade was an interesting feature of the programme, and was followed by the senior chapel day exercises of the college. Here the president and his party occupied the platform, and listened to the exercises by the graduating class of 150 young women, and to a resume of the work of the year as given by President L. C. Seelye, of the college.

During these services a beautiful loving cup of cut glass, trimmed with silver, was presented to Mrs. McKinley by Bethesda chapter, Order of Eastern Star, and later the entire party, with the exception of Mrs. McKinley, were taken for an hour's drive about the city. The only special incident of this drive was when the president, noticing a venerable, gray-headed man seated in a chair near the curbstone, ordered his carriage driven near the spot while he shook hands and spoke a few words to the aged gentleman. He was Gen. Benjamin F. Cook, 97 years of age, father of Capt. Frank Cook, of the United States cruiser Brooklyn.

President McKinley was then driven to the residence of Harry L. Williams, where Mrs. McKinley had been resting while the others were seeing the city. Before they entred the carriages again, President McKinley went out upon the grounds and personally shook the hand of each of the militiamen who had done escort duty for him during the parade. The trip back to Holyoke was without incident.

An interesting feature of the visit of President McKinley to Smith college was the conferring of the degree of LL. D. on him by the board of trustees, which held a meeting in the afternoon. This is the first time Smith has conferred an honorary degree upon a man. But one other honorary degree has been conferred by the college in its history.

More Victims.

New Richmond, Wis., June 19.—Reports brought here show that about nine persons heretofore unheard of were killed by Monday's storm. The dead are families of farmers living along the road between New Richmond and Burkhart. About 200 farmhouses and adjoining buildings along nine miles of that road are more or less wrecked. Three members of G. Lacey's family are reported as among the killed, also three members of a family named Ellis, also Mrs. J. M. Hurd and two or three others.

A Dangerous Voyage.

Atlantic City, N. J., June 19.—Capt. William A. Andrews left this city Sunday afternoon in a little craft named "The Doree" to cross the Atlantic ocean. He headed direct for the Azores islands, where he expects to stop for a few days to reprovision. This makes the fifth attempt of the captain to cross the ocean in similar small crafts, three of which attempts he claims were successful. The boat he is using this time is 12 feet long, five feet wide and 22 inches deep.

Flood in Texas.

Laredo, Tex., June 17.—The Rio Grande reached the highest stage since 1876. The waterworks and ice plants of both Laredos were both flooded and compelled to shut down. This caused a suspension of work at the Mexican National machine shops and such other concerns as get their water from the city mains. Many houses of poor people along the banks on both sides were flooded or washed away, and their contents swept down the river.

High Water at Dubuque.

Dubuque, Ia., June 20.—An extraordinary rise in the Mississippi river is now within a foot of the danger line. Lowlands are submerged and inland streams are overflowing banks. The backwater from the river is causing much damage. The high water is encroaching on factories in the river front. Grant river is spreading over adjacent territory, ruining crops and driving lowland dwellers out of their homes.

Storer Formally Received.

Madrid, June 17.— The newly-appointed minister to Spain, Mr. Bellamy Storer, was received in formal audience by the queen regent Friday. There were no speeches, only a few cordial phrases were exchanged. The queen regent was very amiable and complimentary towards Mr. Storer and inquired cordially concerning the health of President McKinley.

To Fight Tin Plate Trust.

Chicago, June 17.—Senator W. A. Clark, of Montana; Charles Edwin Miller, of New York, and J. E. Shawhan, of San Francisco, had a consultation at the Auditorium Friday looking to the formation of a combination to fight the tin plate trust. It is proposed to establish a plant at Joliet, Ill., with a capital of $1,000,000.

HE HAD A REASON.

Why the Cautious Juror Didn't Believe in Circumstantial Evidence.

A good story is being told about a juror who was drawn for service in the criminal court recently on a murder case. He was one of those men who was willing to do his part as a good citizen, but he had a prejudice against circumstantial evidence which was so strong he could not dispel it from his mind, and it finally became necessary to excuse him.

He answered the questions put to him by the prosecuting attorney to qualify, but when the attorney for the defendant got down to where he asked him if he would convict a person on circumstantial evidence he hesitated.

"Why do you hesitate?" asked the judge.

"Well, I'll be frank with you," replied the juror. "I don't believe in it."

"If the evidence was so overwhelming that there could be no doubt about the guilt of the prisoner, wouldn't you vote to convict?"

"No."

"Why?"

"Judge, can I whisper to you?"

"Yes."

There was a three-minute conversation between the judge and the juror, at the conclusion of which the judge smiled, and then he said: "Juror, you are excused."

The attorneys did not forget the incident, and at the end of the day's session they asked the judge what the trouble was with Mr. ——, naming the juror who was excused.

The judge said the man told him he was the owner of a farm in Cheektowaga, and among his live stock was a handsome pet calf. One day while he was out in the barnyard chopping at a fence with an ax this calf made a break to get out of the yard. With the ax still in his hand he ran after the animal and caught him by the tail. Just as he was dragging it back from an opening in the fence a member of the family happened along, and, seeing him with the ax in his hand, concluded he was suffering with an attack of senile dementia, and in his fury was trying to hack the poor beast into veal cutlets.

"Judge, I was perfectly rational, and I protested that I was attempting nothing of the kind," said the juror, "but appearances were against me, and to this day I am unable to convince my family that I was not crazy and was not trying to murder that calf. That's the reason I am against circumstantial evidence."—Buffalo News.

HE LOST ALL.

Including That Winsome But Changeable Creature, the Lovely Birdy Jones.

It was the first perfect day of the glad springtime. The warm sun brightened the country landscape, and the odor of opening apple blossoms came upon the laden atmosphere. The lazy clouds floated drearily in the sky overhead, chiefly because they could not go afoot nor on the trolley cars. The rural roads were smooth under the hammer of innumerable wheels, and Clarence Wheeler had stolen Birdy Jones from her haughty Soho home for a ramble on his '97 tandem among the highways of the townships. Stopping from their run, they rested beneath a great oak tree which overhung a wayside spring. Cowbells tinkled in the wood lot below the meadow, and little lambs with wabbly legs three sizes too big for them gamboled on the short green grass. On a broad, flat stone that looked down upon the crystal water Birdy spread the lunch they had carried in the tandem box, and Clarence brought water in a romantic tin can that he had found hard by.

The soft winds toyed with the girl's bleached tresses, which streamed over her face like a photogravure picture of the west wind to illustrate Longfellow's poems. Her cheeks flushed with the vigor of exercise and robust health, and when the young man approached her from the spring his whole thought was centered upon the winsome beauty of the divine creature. He sat down by her side. His soul drank in the charm of the picture. She looked up from the can of potted beef that she was opening, with a smile of confident approval on her young face. Suddenly her eye kindled and the rosy flush of young womanhood gave way to a ghastly pallor. Her lip curled in scorn. Her classic head was lifted in anger. "Merciful heaven!" shrieked the young man. "Tell me, dearest girl, what is the matter?"

But she stepped back, and, striking the attitude that she had learned at the Soho Amateur Dramatic club, she pointed her finger at him and said, in tones that would wither a load of hay: "All is lost, Clarence Wheeler; you are sitting in the pie!"—Pittsburgh Times.

Shirt Waist Puffers.

Rufflettes are the latest shirt waist "puffers." A bright girl invented them, and told another girl, and she told some one else, and so it has come to be a fad with everyone who knows how to make them. The first shirt waist puffer was made of some horrid, stiff crinoline or other hard fabric, and made the front of the waist pout out too much. With this new rufflette it is a simple matter to make the most limp and dejected of silks or muslins stand out in the proper way. Take a foundation piece, and over that stitch three rows of ruffles about long enough to run across the breast from arm seam to arm seam of your shirt front. With two of the latest gold safety pins fasten this to your under bodice securely, and you have as dainty a device as you would care to have for warm weather. It does away with padding and inner linings. Starch added to the ruffles will make them stand out more firmly. —N. Y. Herald.

Moths and Their Ways.

It is to be hoped that the housekeepers who suffered from moths last year will begin their war against these small pests early. Camphor is much better than moth balls, although a bit more expensive. Every woolen garment that is put away should be taken out and aired and beaten at least twice a month during the hot weather. Insect powder dusted thickly in closets will send a family of the little millers flying out into the fresher air, where they can easily be caught and killed. Wrapping woolen things in old newspapers is a good plan. — Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

SOME SHORT STOPS.

Sapient Sayings Which Savor Somewhat of Wisdom Gleaned from Experience.

What we get out of life is just about the size of what we put into it.

Don't judge a man by the scowl on his face; perhaps it wasn't there before he saw you.

When a frivolous young lady tells you how awfully interested she is in the specialty you've spent 20 years trying to learn, take her word for it, and then change the subject.

It isn't always fair to judge a man by the hat he wears; perhaps it isn't so much a matter of taste as of salary.

Don't think that because Mrs. Continual Performance is busy she is necessarily doing something. The science of rowing is to get over the greatest distance with the fewest strokes.

It is a mistake to imagine that because people listen to you they are interested in hearing you talk about yourself; poverty isn't the only recipient of charity.

Don't congratulate yourself that because Busyman didn't throw you out of his office he was necessarily glad you had disturbed him with a social call. He smiled when you went out—not when you came in. —Detroit Free Press.

Exhibits at Paris.

There will be a large exhibit from this country at the Paris exposition in 1900, which will prove very interesting to all who may attend, but no more so than the news that the famous American remedy, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, will positively cure dyspepsia, indigestion, constipation, biliousness and nervousness. To all sufferers of the above complaints a trial is recommended, with the assurance that when honestly used a cure will be effected. It also tones up the entire system.

Genius.

"How is it Wilkins over there looks so cool when everything else is sweltering?"

"Ah, Wilkins is smart. Do you see those old papers he is reading? Well, they contain the account of February's blizzard. Every time Wilkins begins to feel the least bit warm he reads about the twenty-some below zero and shivers. His scheme is cooler than fans and cheaper than ice."—Chicago Evening News.

[The Catarrh of Summer.]

Congressman Amos J. Cummings.

New York, Oct. 11th, 1898.

Pe-ru-na Drug M'f'g Co., Columbus, O.

Gentlemen—Pe-ru-na is good for catarrh. I have tried it and know it. It relieved me immensely on my trip to Cuba, and I always have a bottle in reserve. Since my return I have not suffered from catarrh, but if I do I shall use Pe-ru-na again. Meantime you might send me another bottle.

Yours, Amos J. Cummings, M. C.

Summer catarrh assumes various forms. It produces dyspepsia and bowel complaint. It causes biliousness and diseases of the liver. It deranges the kidneys and bladder. Summer catarrh may derange the whole nervous system, when it is known to the medical profession as a systemic catarrh. Pe-ru-na is a specific for all these forms of catarrh. Pe-ru-na never disappoints. Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio, for a free book on summer catarrh.

[LETTER TO MRS. PINKHAM NO. 76,244]

"One year ago last June three doctors gave me up to die, and as I had at different times used your Vegetable Compound with good results, I had too much faith in it to die until I had tried it again. I was apparently an invalid, was confined to my bed for ten weeks. (I believe my trouble was ulceration of womb).

"After taking four bottles of the Compound and using some of the Liver Pills and Sanative Wash, at the end of two months I had greatly improved and weighed 155 pounds, when I never before weighed over 138. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the best medicine I ever used, and I recommend it to all my friends."—MRS. ANNA EVA GUNTER, HIGGINSVILLE, Mo.

Mrs. Barnhart Enjoys Life Once More.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I had been sick ever since my marriage, seven years ago; have given birth to four children, and had two miscarriages. I had falling of womb, leucorrhœa, pains in back and legs; dyspepsia and a nervous trembling of the stomach. Now I have none of these troubles and can enjoy my life. Your medicine has worked wonders for me."—MRS. S. BARNHART, NEW CASTLE, PA.

An Argument.

Here the voice of counsel for the defense thrilled with emotion.

"Gentlemen of the jury," he cried, "you cannot believe the prisoner to be the cool, calculating villain the prosecution would make him out to be! Were he cool and calculating would he have murdered his wife, as he is accused of doing? Would he not rather have spared her in order that she might be here at this trial to weep for him and influence your verdict with her tears?"

Only the thoughtless think lawyers do not assist the ends of justice.—Detroit Journal.

DELANO, FRIDAY, June 23, 1899.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—We understand the Minneapolis Tribune band will furnish music for our 4th of July exercises.

—Rev. O. Styner, of Armstrong, will preach for Rev. Farber, at the M. E. church next Sunday evening.

—George Burnes supplied quite a number of Delanoites with fine luscious strawberries from his patch, on Saturday.

—A couple of hand organs and monkeys amused some of our people this week and gathered up quite a number of stray pennies and nickles.

—A pound master was appointed at the last council meeting, to take care of all stray cows, horses, etc., he finds in the streets of the village.

—Some of our equestrians are out evenings already practicing for the horse back parade on the 4th. Get out your horse and join in the ranks.

—The 4th of July posters for Delano's celebration have been well circulated. It is expected Delano will outdo herself on that occasion this year.

—The Laundry firm has changed: Albert retiring from the business. It is now Emanuel Wandersee, laundryman. The building has been nicely painted by artist August Berneck.

—If the grader should be driven through our streets before the 4th a few days it would add much to the convenience of the grand industrial parade, on our national birth day.

—Delano has the reputation of getting up the grandest 4th of July celebrations in this part of the country and seems determined this year to surpass even her own reputation in that direction.

—Stace Redmon had the old J. E. Borsch & Co store moved to the side of his lots next to the Gilmer House, and will proceed to build a fine livery barn on the corner. Stace is an enterprising citizen.

—Two house moving outfits are at work in Delano this week. Mr. Cadwell, of Rockford, and Mr. Parker, of Howard Lake. It seems as if some Delanoite might do our moving for us if he would rig up for the business.

—Street Commissioner Welker has done some good work on roads leading in from the country. That is what helps build up a town. But when roads are impassable, almost, nobody wants to bring a team to town. Hurrah for good roads.

—Mr. and Mrs. Eb Brandon held a tea at their home, about four miles south of town, Thursday afternoon, for the benefit of the Ladies Aid of the M. E. church. About thirty went out from town, and all report a nice time and fine strawberries and tea.

—The citizens of lower River street have put down a considerable of new sidewalk in the past two weeks. The bed for the walk on each side of the street has been cut down or filled in as required, to the proper grade, and good substantial board walks put down.

—The regular school meeting comes in about one month from now. Women have a right to vote in school meetings. All interestd should be at the meeting and see to getting three good men on the board. A good board will see that we have as good a school as possible.

—The railroad men made some much needed improvements at the Third street crossing this week. If they would manage to keep cars from standing for hours or even days across that and the Second street approach to the depot they would much oblige many of our citizens.

—If Joe Berneck gets his rigging ready for "shooting the chutes" by the 4th of July, there will be lots of fun. No finer place could be had for the business than along the Crow, if it is not too deep It is about as drawing a card for those who have never seen it as any sport out.

—Owing to the inability of several of the Crickets to get away to Monticello tomorrow, the game between them and Monticello nine will have to be postponed for the present. They will, however, play a return game with the Maple Lake club on the home grounds tomorrow afternoon.

—The chivarie for the benefit of Frank A. Cramer was carried on in a more civilized manner than was the one recently tendered his brother George. Firearms were, as they should be, left out of the music. There was enough noise without the aid of powder. We are glad to note even this much advancement towards civilization among our young men.

—A rumor is out in some of the papers along this branch of the Great Northern that the company is soon to run their through flyer from Minneapolis to the coast, through here instead of the St. Cloud division, the train to run in the evening instead of the local pasenger, and only to stop at the larger stations.

—If the Eagle would read up before she gets so liberal with advice to others she might not have said "the city officials should issue a proclamation forbidding" chaivaris. Revised Statutes of Minnesota. Sec, 6937 makes a disturbance of that kind a misdemeanor, and has a penalty of not more thad 90 days in jail of a fine not more than $100. Enforcing the law would beat the "proclamation" out of sight.

—C. W. Kerrick who has gone to Minneapolis to live was perhaps, more instrumental than any other Delanoite in securing an electric and water works system for our village. He had the contract and faithfully performed his work and gave us a good outfit. He also built a neat little home on N. Third street. Our town will miss C. W.

—C. M. Conzet has hung in the post office a fine lap robe, to be given to the parties having the nicest float in the 4th of July parade. Charley is working hard to make the parade one of the finest ever turned out in Wright County, and he seems to be succeeding wonderfully well. He proposes to have the parade instructive as well as ornamental and amusing.

—On Wednesday a young medical student conceived the idea that he ought to drive ahead of such old fogy farmers as chanced to be in his road, so tried it on. But Uncle Eb saw him coming and gave his little blacks the word, and when the top of the grade was reached the procession maintained the same respective relation as when it got in its hurry. The doctor evidently failed in prognosis.

—A pair of boxing mits have found their way to town and as fast as the Delanoites become aware of the fact they are being initiated into the mysteries of the art. Several friendly bouts have already been had, but the floor is awfully slippery. Jeffries don't want to blow around very much about his championship, or he may hear from Delano. The club is already conceity enough to believe it can knock Rockford out.

—The Village council met Monday evening in regular session. The 4th of July committee was granted the use of the hall for the evening of the 4th.

Dar Welker was appointed pound master.

The Recorder was instructed to draw an order on the Treasurer for $210 for interest due on bonds July 2. He was also instructed to draw an order for payment of $1,000 bond due July 2.

The usual bills were allowed.

—The Delano base ball club went to Maple Lake last Saturday and played a five inning game with the aggregation from that place. The game was called at the end of the fifth inning on account of rain, with the score 2 to 10 in favor of Maple Lake. The boys are confident that if the nine innings had been played the game would have been theirs. Maple Lake's scores were made in the first three innings as a result of wild pitching backed up by errors, but in the last two innings the club settled down to work giving them two easy goose eggs with bright prospects of a continuance of the same. In the first 4 innings Delano didn't shine at the bat but in the fifth made two runs and kept the bases full, but were retired on a couple of unlucky bats.

The score by innings was as follows:

Delano	0	0	0	0	2	2.
Maple Lake	4	3	3	0	0	10.

Batteries: Moore, McDonald; Catlin, Johnson. Bases on balls, off Moore 0, Catlin 5. Wild pitches Moore 2, Catlin 1. Struck out by Moore 3, by Catlin 8.

Maple Lake promised to return the game and will be here tomorrow.

Said applicants pray that such licenses be granted to them, and each of them pursuant to the ordinance of said Village of Delano, and the Statutes of said State of Minnesota in such cases made and provided.

The hearing of the above applications will be held at the Council room in the City Hall on Monday, June 26, at 8 p. m. and the licenses then allowed or rejected.

Dated at Delano, June 13, 1899.

PETER R. PETERSON,
Village Recorder.

Litchfield Review. The Augusta saloon keeper who shot and killed one of the 15th regiment boys while they were encamped at that point, was acquitted last week after not over two hour's deliberation when all the evidence in the case almost precluded such an event and it was the general opinion even in the city where the trial was conducted that the verdict could only be a conviction. The members of the regiment are quite indignant at the outcome and it is quite fortunate that they are not now in camp. Demonstrations could hardly be avoided.

Of Interest to Inventors.

C. A. Snow & Co., one of the oldest and most successful firms of patent lawyers, whose offices are opposite the United States Patent Office in Washington, D. C. and who have procured patents for more than 17,000 inventors, say that, owing to the improved conditions in the United States Patent Office, patents may now be more promptly procured than at any previous time in their experience of twenty-five years".

That we have succeeded we leave our readers to judge. It was The Cosmopolitan which offered a prize of $3,000 for the best horseless carriage and prizes for best plans for public baths, and best arrangement of sewer and pipe systems for cities. It was The Cosmopolitan which set the presidents of great schools and universities seriously discussing the defects of existing educational systems. It is The Cosmopolitan whose enterprise is always in the lead in advancing the world's civilization.

St Paul Dispatch

25c per month for Daily. 75c per year for the Weekly.

The St. Paul Dispatch is the best Twin City daily; it has no equal in the Northwest as to size or quality.

The DISPATCH excels in Northwestern news, having a correspondent in every Northwestern town.

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

All Three Together for Only $2.25

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

Three Together One Year for Only $2.35

T. J. CATLIN, Publisher

Entered as Second-Class Mail Matter at the Post Office in Delano, Minn

THE Aitkin Age says farmers in Aitkin county along the Mississippi river have had their crops badly damaged by the greediness of the lumbermen who have booms and overflow the country. The farmers are taking legal advice in the matter. If the lumbermen have done damage for farmers they should pay the damage.

WHEN the term of enlistment of the volunteers in the Philippines had expired, the boys were offered a chance to re enlist for six months. They didn't accept, but are serving the six months just the same. That's poor encouragement for boys desiring to enlist when their country calls.

THE people of Minnesota who have relatives or friends in the Philippines would be glad to see them as soon as possible. Mr. McKinley can come when he pleases If the president wants to know the public sentiment in the matter we think we can safely say, that in this part of the United States, that is about the feeling.

IN St. Paul, recently, an officer tried to enlist about 50 men for the navy. They were to be given a trip around the world before entering the service and other inducements were offered He only got about half the number. Those St. Paul expansionists don't seem anxious to take trips at Uncle Sams expense just now.

THE so called peace conference now being held has at last come to a few agreements at least. They have agreed not to use any new explosives from baloons for five years; not to use dum dum bullets, and a few other of about the same order. It would seem to us, if a conference of the nations of the world can get together and make rules prohibiting from war the use of certain killing agencies it could do away with war itself. It makes war appear, not a fight of nations for supremacy, or for righting of wrongs, but as a hugh prize fight, fought by rules, in order to create excitement and offer opportunity for a few to profit. J.

THE Norwegian Lutheran Synod recently in session in St. Paul, took occasion to notify President McKinley of its feeling on the canteen by almost unanimously voting for the following communication to be forwarded to the president:

To His Excellency William McKinley, President of the United States of America: The United Norwegian Lutheran church of America, in convention assembled, at St. Paul, Minn., June 21-29, 1899, expresses its disapproval of the so called "army canteen," as a nursery of vice and crime among our soldiers, and would respectfully appeal to the president of the United States, whom, through the will of the people, God has made the highest governmental authority in this our beloved land, that he do all in his power to have the army canteen discontinued.

THE attempts to switch William Jennings Bryan off the track appear to be meeting with poor success. Pennsylvania, this month held a Democratic state convention which declared itself "proud of our matchless leader William Jennings Bryan." Kentucky held a state convention this week and re-affirmed its faith in the Chicago platform and W. J. Bryan. This seems to be the drift of Democratic sentiment throughout the Union. Minnesota's Democratic State Central committee, at its last meeting re-affirmed its faith in the Chicago platform. It looks now as if there will be clear sailing for Mr. Bryan and the Chicago platform. It don't seem as if Bryan and free silver are dead, even though the goldbug press do sing their requiem daily.

SOME of the twin city dailies are rather overdoing the business of abusing the men and officers of the 13th reg. They have repeatedly told their readers that the boys were babies, because they wanted to come home after the war for which they enlisted was over. They have said their officers were cowards because they didn't head all the engagements. They now are trying to make their readers believe that the boys are all liars! because they write home that they don't see any signs of the coming end to the war. Shame on such Twin City dailies! The 13th Reg. contains officers and privates whose words will count for much more with the people than all the lies the Twin City editors can manufacture. But in order to have a few misguided mortals believe the press yarns it is of course necessary to have the m. m. believe that their sons and neighbors sons are all liars; and the city editors are doing their part to have it so appear.

Gold Democrats Out in the Cold.

J. Adam Bede has been ranting around the country for some time as a gold Democrat, and claims he did his share towards electing Page Morris to Congress, and now wants his fellow gold bugs of the Republican party to nominate him, J. Adam, for Congress, and leave Page out. The Republican allies don't seem to see it that way, not any more than they do with Mr. Aguinaldo whom they armed and equipped to help drive the Spaniards out of the Philippines and have been ever since trying to subdue as a "rebel, traitor, etc." It is a wonder that J. Adam is not called these pet names by his co workers of the gold bug persuasion, and who want all the offices.

The Duluth Tribune gives Mr. Bede a severe shove as follows:

"Mr. Bede says that the Gold Democratic vote saved the country to McKinley. Perhaps it did. But if it did, the Gold Democratic vote was comparatively small in respect to the number of Republicans that voted for McKinley. If 10,000 Republicans vote for a Republican candidate, and one Democrat, and the Republican majority is one, is it then the party's duty, or is it good politics to thereafter honor that Democrat above the 10,000 Republicans and give him the fatted calf and the ring? Particularly is it so when it is contended that the Democrat's only object in casting the vote was principle, pure and simple, and not for gain. * * *

The right kind of a Republican of the old sort is the man to restore the Republican party in St. Louis county, and consequently in the Sixth district."

The Nation's Danger.

BISHOP MALLALIEU.

"For heathen heart that puts her trust
In reeking tube and iron shard,
For valiant dust that builds on dust,
And guarding calls not thee to guard;
For frantic boast and foolish word,
Thy mercy on thy people, Lord."

The great present danger of the American people is that in the enthusiasm of victory and the pride of conquest, they forget God and trust in their own strength, and so fall into sin. Our people never walked along such perilous steeps as at this very hour. Our resources are so vast, and so rapidly increasing, that with the hundred millions of people soon to be ours we are on the way speedily to become the strongest nation on the face of the earth; in fact, the strongest nation ever known in the annals of time. Well may we stop to enquire if God can trust the future in our hands. Is it not possible that we may become a braggart, arrogant, insolent, and tyrannical power to be hated and feared by all other nations? If we are left to ourselves this will be the outcome within the brief limits of the twentieth century. The wisdom of the greatest statesmen, the schemes of the most astute politicians, the financial plans of our best economists, the arts of our most accomplished diplomats, the widest and most complete secular education of our youth, neither one nor all of these can save us. What we need, what we must have, in order to perpetuate and transmit to future generations all that we prize most highly, and at the same time save us from folly and destruction, is first of all the Christian education of our youth, and the spread and domination of the principles, ethics, and personal experiences inculcated, encouraged, and illustrated by the gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ. Will everyone who reads these lines resolve to be a genuine gospel Christian, and always stand in the defense of all that is righteous, pure and good?—The Epworth Herald.

A Distinction.

Dr. McQueston, late of Gen. Otis's staff and Health Officer at Manila, says that the Western volunteers are "the finest soldiers in the world," but "they all want to return home." And the reason he gives is this: "The men enlisted to fight for their country, and they are not the kind of men who want to stay and fight an insurrection for money or the fun of fighting." Nobody knows better than the volunteers that they are not "fighting for their country" or to liberate an oppressed people, but are engaged in a hopeless conflict to correct Mr. McKinleys colossal blunder.—Thrice-a-Week World.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 23, 1899.

"Too good to be true", is the general comment upon the rumor that preceded Secretary Alger's return to Washington, saying that having made a deal with Plugree to support him for the Senatorship Alger would soon resign in order to devote his whole time to trying to get to the Senate. There are too many pickings in sight for Alger to voluntarily resign before he gets his share of them. Those Porto Rico concessions are yet to be given out, and the scheme of enlisting volunteers for the Philippines without a regular call for quotas from the states, which was devised so as to leave the appointment of the officers in the hands of the War Department instead of the governors of the states, where it would have to go if the usual course was followed, is an additional reason why Alger isn't likely to resign in the near future.

It is denied at the War Department that Gen. Miles is to be sent to the Philippines so as to have him out of reach when Congress meets, as was rumored several days ago.

The Agricultural Department made public a report that it has just received from Lieut. A. P. Hayne, California Heavy Artillery, on agriculture in the Philippines, which shows those islands to be anything but desirable possessions although the country is now adding more than a million dollars a day to the original big price paid for them. The report quotes Senor Manuel del Busto, formerly chief of the agricultural experiment station, at Manila, to show the social stagnation—the increase in population from 1842 to 1888 was less than 4 per cent; also their characteristics—"the middle and lower classes are almost of the worst possible type, irresponsible and degenerate, morally and physically, insensible of any contracts or obligations, written or oral, ready to cheat and expecting to be cheated, and amenable to no sort of persuasion except brute force, from which they are always ready to escape by moving their habitat". After reciting the difficulties connected with clearing ground and getting a crop planted, the report says: "When this is accomplished and a luxuriant crop is raised, it is at the mercy of the first typhoon, which in the northern part of the archipelago, is severe. These wind and rain storms level crops, uproot trees, demolish houses and flood with water everything that has been left by the wind, turning plantations into lakes and swamps, and rendering the primitive roads impassable for long periods." Here's another extract: "Diseases, so far hardly known to European doctors, result from the turning up of this virgin soil. According to competent medical authority, many of these strange disorders cause death in a few hours, while by others, even if the patient recovers, he is condemned to a wretched and lingering existence. One of the commonest of these diseases is temporary or permanent paralysis, with almost endless complications."

Mr William Ryan, of New York City, now visiting Washington, said in reply to questions: "The factional strife that is going on in New York City isn't of much consequence to the democratic party at large, for no principle is involved in it, and the whole struggle is for personal aggrandizement. The taint of commercialism, in fact, is over everything in New York, and dominates its politics absolutely. The mass of democratic voters in New York are for W. J. Bryan for President and for a re-adoption of the Chicago platform. If Mr. Bryan is chosen next year he will carry New York state."

It is regarded as significant that the administration should have considered it necessary for the Postmaster General to make public an official denial of the charge that letters of the volunteers in the Philippines were being censored.

The Sampson clique is still on top in the Navy Department and is still determined to try to down Admiral Schley, and as the clique owns Secretary Long it is able to use all the machinery of the department for its own purposes. It has compelled Lieut Commander Hodgson to make a monkey of himself by subscribing to an official statement branding himself as a liar, in order to bolster up the absurd claim that Admiral Schley ordered the Brooklyn to run away from one of Cervera's ships, although to do so he had to come dangerously near to colliding with the Texas, and it is even contemplating the ordering of a court of inquiry by Secretary Long, to be made up of officers who can be depended upon by the clique to report against Schley. All of this disgraceful mess is a part of the scheme of the clique to lessen the number of Schley's friends in Congress, they having been numerous enough at the last session in the Senate to defeat the scheming of the Sampson clique. The members of this clique do not seem to realize that they have been long ago sized up by the press and by public opinion, both of which are almost unanimously ranged on the side of Admiral Schley.

War department officials express the opinion that Gen. Leonard Wood will resign to accept the presidency of the Washington street railway and electric light trust, which has been offered him, because it will pay him much better than going back to his old position in the regular army, which he would have to do sooner or later.

ANTI-IMPERIALIST'S BIG GIFT.

Anonymous Stranger Contributes $16,000 Toward Mission Work.

During the absence the other day of Rev. Dr. J. L. Barton, secretary of the American board of foreign missions, Boston, a man entered his office and inquired for him. Being informed that the secretary was at lunch, the visitor handed an unaddressed sealed envelope to Mr. Wiggin, the treasurer, and departed.

Mr. Wiggin was busy, and, thinking that the letter was an ordinary business communication, finished what he was doing before opening it. Then he found that it contained ten $1,000 bills.

When Mr. Wiggin saw this large sum of money he ran out to intercept the stranger, but it was too late, and no trace of the generous donor has been found. The letter inclosed with the money referred to a published statement of Dr. Barton in opposition to the imperialistic policy, and added:

"As an expression at this time of the purpose and spirit of the board, and as reflecting the true attitude of the 'church' in its missionary effort toward all people, it seems to me to be distinctly timely and valuable. As an agency for the use of the missionary funds the value of your board is strengthened, I think, by the publication of your letter, and in token of this feeling, I beg you to accept the inclosed, to be used by the board in the way which, in its judgment, will best promote the interest of the Master's kingdom." The letter was unsigned.

MILITARY STATION ON YUKON.

Capt. Ray Laying Plans for Placing an Army Post Near the Boundary Line in Alaska.

Capt. Ray, who will be placed in command of the military district of Alaska, has been busy about the war department getting everything in readiness for his departure, which will take place in July. He will sail from San Francisco or Seattle with supplies for a company for one year. He expects to establish headquarters on the Yukon at Mission Creek, which is near the boundary line. Here he will build a regular military station for the accommodation of his troops and supplies. A military reservation will be established there, the boundaries of which will depend upon the judgment of Capt. Ray. A forest reservation also will be established, so that there may be no question about a plentiful supply of timber for the military station. Capt. Ray will take two sawmills with him to manufacture the lumber which will be necessary for the new station. He will go by boat by way of the mouth of the Yukon river and will have all his supplies taken in by that route. Capt. Ray expresses no doubt as to the practicability of the Copper river route, which Assistant Secretary Meiklejohn has ordered established and which will be examined by Capt. Abercrombie. Capt. Ray has a plan for the establishment of stations along this route, 20 miles apart, placed in charge of natives. By this system, he believes, it will be possible to reach the Yukon country at all seasons of the year.

DARKEST CHINA.

Experience of Walter K. Brice on a Long Surveying Tour in the Celestial Kingdom.

Seven hundred and seventy-five miles on foot, carrying a surveyor's chain through a section of China unknown to travelers of other nations, is the recent experience of Walter K. Brice. While Stewart M. Brice was fighting the Spaniards at Santiago his brother went to Manila as a member of Gen. Anderson's staff. Later he left the army and crossed over to Shanghai, where he met a party of engineers who had come from the United States to make a sort of preliminary survey of the China Central railroad, which Senator Brice was promoting when he died. In describing his experience he said:

"An American railway in China is practically an assured fact. Nothing on earth can stop it now except the disruption of the Chinese empire, which is within the realm of possibility, but is not at all probable. From Shanghai we went up the Yang-Tse-Kiang river in boats to Han Kow. There are no roads, in the American sense, merely paths through the rice fields. Sometimes we slept in old temples. Occasionally we would come across some kind-hearted mandarin who would allow us to unroll our beds for the night on his porch.

"At every village we found crowds waiting to see us. Few of the thousands of men we met had ever seen any other kind of a human being than a Chinaman."

The Lash for Wife-Beaters.

The crime of wife-beating has become so common of late that some extraordinary punishment seems to be needed for its suppression. When garroting became common in the streets of London some years ago the restoration of the whipping post for those convicted of the crime proved an effectual remedy. The New York Herald thinks perhaps a temporary resort to it here in the case of wife beaters would prove efficacious.

Long-Lived Ballet Dancers.

A German statistician has discovered that ballet dancers, as a rule, attain an age much above the average. Carlotta Grisi is 77 years of age and Andalia Ferraris 78. Taglioni was over 80 years old when she died, and Fanny Elssler was 74. Rosita Mauri, well over 50, is still dancing at the Paris grand opera.

FLOCKING TO HAWAII

Rapid Increase in Immigration of Japanese Causes Alarm.

Twelve Thousand of Them Have Arrived in the Islands Since They Were Annexed to the United States.

The rapid increase of Japanese immigration into Hawaii has attracted the serious attention of the authorities at Washington of late, and several official inquiries have been set on foot to learn the extent of the invasion and how it can be checked. The reports received by the immigration authorities are in line with press dispatches stating that the influx is steadily increasing. One official report from a United States inspector stationed at Honolulu states that 12,000 Japanese have arrived since the islands were annexed to the United States. He also reports that in his opinion the total population of Asiatics by the end of the present year will exceed the total population of all other nationalities. Another official report comes from an inspector stationed on the Pacific coast who was sent on a special mission to investigate the causes of this influx. He visited Japan as well as Hawaii and the facts he obtained are expected to shed much light on the causes leading up to the recent heavy arrivals of Asiatics. Thus far only his preliminary report has been received, and this, it is understood, bears out the previous reports as to the extent of this immigration and the menacing results which arise from it.

At the Japanese legation it is said that the coming of Japanese to Hawaii presents no new serious question. An official of the legation said:

"Since the islands were annexed to the United States, Hawaiian affairs affecting Japan come under the legation here. But we have had no recent reports showing an alarming increase in the immigration. On the contrary, we are inclined to believe it will fall off by the expiration of the three-year term which the immigrants spend abroad. At any rate an influx of Japanese can have no political significance whatever, and it would amount to nothing if the reports were true that they would outnumber other nationalities. They have no vote, so that their influence is not exerted in shaping the affairs of the islands. From all the information reaching us, we feel that nothing is to be apprehended by the arrival of Japanese in Hawaii and that their presence is of positive benefit, if not essential, to the development of the islands."

STOMACH SEEN BY X RAYS.

Chicago Medical Society Watches the Organ Performing Its Functions.

The human stomach performing its digestive functions was shown to the medical fraternity of Chicago the other evening through the agency of the X-rays at the meeting of the Chicago medical society. A short paper upon the possibilities of the X-ray in the medical profession was read by Dr. Metcalf, the demonstrator for the evening, after which the practical test was given.

The machine was taken into a darkened room, the subject produced and the test made. The light was slowly turned upon the subject and gradually as the light grew stronger the stomach was seen performing its work. The stomach, which was plainly outlined upon the fluoroscope, was in full action.

"Some months ago," Dr. Metcalf said, "I became convinced that I could make use of the X-rays in the study of the stomach and alimentary tracts. I started a series of experiments, first with the stomach, and later a study of the other cavities of the body. The only work done since Roentgen presented his discovery to the world has been in its application by the surgical profession, and I believe that I am within bounds when I say that the prevailing idea is that it is of value to surgeons only."

KIT CARSON'S PISTOL.

Wisconsin Man Has an Interesting Relic of the Great Pioneer and Indian Fighter.

A. J. Bell, of Fond du Lac, Wis., is the owner of a valuable relic of the early fighting days in the west, when the Spanish, English and Indians formed a population in which every individual was for himself, and the spice and adventure of western life, as seen in the story books, was a reality.

The relic is a large revolver, which was a part of the defensive armor of Kit Carson, the trapper, guide, Indian fighter and soldier of the early '50's and '60's in New Mexico. The weapon has been in Mr. Bell's possession 19 years, he having obtained it while stationed at Las Vegas, N. M., when little more than a boy. It is about 12 inches long, and is uniquely engraved on the nickel portions. Even now it is a weapon that one is bound to respect at first sight.

A Strange Radish.

The first vegetable freak of the season is reported by H. O. Austin, who lives at 703 East Eighth avenue, says the Topeka (Kan.) State Journal. It is a radish which tied itself in a knot. The lower part coiled around the body of the radish and then grew through the loop thus formed.

Islands Forming a Sundial.

The largest sundial in the world is Hayou Toroo, a large promontory extending 3,000 feet above the Aegean sea. As the sun swings round the shadow of this mountain it touches, one by one, a circle of islands, which act as hour marks.

MAPLEPLAIN.

Has been sometime since I made a visit to your sanctum. The cares and anxieties of this life have come very near chokeing me off, but as the people of the United States have a tendency toward expansion and civilization I am much encouraged, and my patriotic strength is renewed day by day. I find that things are getting so mixed up it is hard to separate the gold from the dross.

Since Nimrod that mighty hunter laid the foundation of ancient Babylon, this old earth has undergone a mighty change. But Nimrod little dreamed that he was laying the foundation to the greatest and richest city that should be on earth. "Babylon, thou art this head of gold". There is where we read of the first gold bug, of whom Belshazzar was chief and his thousand lords where his auxiliaries. Belshazzar lost his head and his kingdom.

Time went on and we find the gold bugs croping out again way back there in the wilderness. While Moses, that general and commander was leading the children of Israel to the borders of Canaan, they got dissatisfied with their commander and made a golden calf and they set it up in the wilderness to worship. This has been characteristic of the Jew from time immemorial, and they have been the leading bankers of the world always.

It is evident to the average thinking man, that money is becoming the hub and center around which every thing else circumnavigates. It was money, pride, foolishness and frivolity that caused Babylon to fall and so with every other nation that went down. If the wise men of Babylon had had more brains and less money they would not have left their gates open so the Medes and Persians could march in and take their city by night. And it seems that the people of this country are fast becoming addicted to money making, foolishness and frivolity and should things keep on in this strain it is only a question of time when we too will go as many of our sister Republics have gone, out of existence. Our forefathers in their wisdom and discretion, laid the foundation of this government to the line and to the plumate; but when a man can step from a Lazzarath house to a millionair in one day, there must be something wrong.

Capital and wealth is centralizing and the money power will yet be a monopoly that will control every thing from the tooth pick business to the head of nations. Most of the trusts and combines that are now forming will shortly come to an untimely end; the business can not keep them up. But in time money will control everything. It makes its brags and says: "We are king". It is very hard now for villages, cities an corporations to float their bonded indebtedness. A collapse is liable to come. But some will say, "You are always kicking. You are a crank. There is nothing wrong. We are in the swim and everything is all right".

You remember our forefathers had a big T party at Boston one time. Was it all right? The Constitution of the United States says: "There shall be no taxation without representation." So thought our forefathers and they suited the action to the word. When a man is drowning it is not his politics he is thinking of, but life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.

If everybody would do right we would be a prosperous and happy people; but our prisons are full; our judges, lawyers, sheriffs have more business than they can attend to. But Mr. Editor I will digress a little and give you some local news, perhaps that will be more interesting to the readers of your paper.

The Assessors valuation on personal property in the Town of Independence is $70,515. The dogs of the town help swell that amount to the sum of $710. There are 142 dogs, more or less, according to assessors enumeration, and they are all good dogs. A cry of distress comes from Boston. The Limnoria terebogus, a conchiferous lamelli-branchiate mollusk, is eating the woodwork of its wharves. There is always some kind of a bug with a long name preying on Boston.

Greek divers have discovered treasure in a Russian flagship sunk in Greek waters in 1770. Gold coins to the value of $55,000 have already been recovered, and the divers report great stores of silver and jewels which the storms of a century have washed out from the hulk of the old wreck.

A Mississippi paper announced that at the commencement exercises of the local high school the annual address was delivered by "Rev. E. P. Jones, the velvet-lipped orator of the Delta," and that the musical exercises were in charge of "Prof. George F. Brown, the black Beethoven."

The sweet girl graduate must go home now and take up domestic ologies. And she will be all the sweeter for doing so—that is, to rational-minded people. Girls who are afraid to put on aprons and help their mothers lack right training or something. They are bric-a-brac in any home and almost every young man knows it.

The hopes that the terrible famine now existing in seven or eight of the Russian provinces having an aggregate population of 11,000,000 people, would be relieved by the coming crops, are now dashed to pieces by the report from St. Petersburg that the crops will be a total failure. The situation promises to end in appalling disaster.

It is officially announced that the catch of "imported French sardines" on the coast of Maine will this year reach over 2,000,000 boxes, as against 900,000 last year. The Maine herring will be more nearly sardine in 1899 than ever before because they are to be canned by a process that has been in use across the Atlantic and only recently introduced into this country.

In the past five months 50 new cotton mills have been built or projected in the southern states involving an outlay of $11,500,000, and 39 old mills are making improvements at a cost of $5,600,000. These additions will add 1,100,000 new spindles to existing southern machinery. Outside of these additions there are approximately 4,000,000 spindles in operation in the south.

The Richmond locomotive works has shipped 20 locomotives to Sweden, where they will be used on the railroads owned by the government. The engines have no bell or cowcatcher, as they are not needed in Sweden, where all railroads are fenced in and most carefully guarded, and another peculiar feature about them is that all of the engineers' levers and tools are on the left side of the cabs.

Apropos of Congressman Bland's illness, it is interesting to recall what he said to a Washington friend when Mr. Dingley was attacked by his last illness. Despite later political differences, these two men were the warmest of friends, and when he heard Mr. Dingley's condition was serious Mr. Bland remarked: "I feel all right now myself, but somehow I think I won't survive Dingley a year."

Medical science has discovered that the use of strawberries sometimes produces on the human jaw the effect of entirely arresting its activities. The disability is a curious one, marking out the strawberry as a possible agent of relief in cases of obstinate volubility, domestic and public. If it always worked, the fruit should be worth its weight in gold in the markets, instead of the beggarly ten cents a quart which is at present the ruling rate.

Heretofore the Zapote, a little river south of Manila, was declared to be an insurmountable obstacle to an army, providing the bridge was properly fortified, both by the Spanish and Filipino strategists. But Uncle Sam's soldier boys came to it, and, seeing some armed insurgents on the other side, jumped in and swam across. The insurgents all ran away before they climbed the southern bank, and the battle was over. It is the Yankee's ignorance of established rules of strategy that makes him so blamed dangerous in war.

Gen. John Eaton, director of public instruction in Porto Rico, has written to Col. Allen C. Bakewell, of La Fayette post, No. 140, G. A. R., of New York, describing the enthusiasm with which the flags sent by the post have been received in Porto Rico by the natives. Gen. Eaton says he has been in every municipality on the island and has seen the flag saluted and heard the school children sing "America" in English with great enthusiasm. The American flag is being displayed on all occasions and English is taught in the schools to 10,000 children.

The world is running to clubs. Men and women are enrolling themselves in all sorts of aggregations for all sorts of purposes, but it has remained for Alameda, Cal., to organize the most unique of all clubs, the Divorced Men's club. The divorce mills throughout the country are turning out plenty of candidates for divorce clubs, and it may be that they will spread and become quite popular. But it must not be expected they will be confined to men. Women are shrewdly imitative, and as there are just as many divorced women as men ere long they will have their club.

IS WARMLY GREETED

Arrival of Col. Roosevelt at the Rough Riders' Reunion.

First Meeting of the Famous Regiment Held at Las Vegas, N. M. —Medal Presented to the Leader.

Las Vegas, N. M., June 26.—Gov. Roosevelt may be pardoned if he returns to New York wearing an unusually large lump of self-esteem, for he was given to understand Saturday that he was the greatest man on earth. His rough riders cheered and shouted, shook his hand and patted him on the back while honeyed words were spoken close to his ears. He had come all the way to New Mexico to attend a reunion of the regiment he had led through the jungles of Las Guasimas and up the slope at San Juan, for he was necessary to the first meeting since the war of this famous organization. The colonel arrived at 1:20 o'clock Saturday, and was greeted as he stepped off the train with tremendous cheering from 5,000 persons massed around the depot. The noted New Yorker was clad in his rough rider uniform and was easily recognized by the crowd. He was almost lifted bodily from his feet by the press of persons anxious to grasp his hand, and as he and his party made their way slowly to the Castaneda hotel the crowd surged after him. As he walked down the depot sidewalk a line of rough rider veterans saluted and joined in the general ovation. When Col. Roosevelt came opposite the line of rough riders he commenced shaking hands with the troopers and gave them a most cordial greeting.

The business meeting of the Rough Riders' Regimental association was held in the Duncan opera house, and owing to the absence of Secretary Carter, of Prescott, Lieut. William E. Dame, of Santa Fe, was chosen secretary pro tem.

Honorary Members.

The reading of the minutes of that meeting disclosed the fact that only three honorary members of the association were recorded. These are Richard Harding Davis, Edward Marshall and Lieut. "Gatling" Parker. Gov. Roosevelt recalled to the mind of those present that Capt. McCormick, of the Seventh cavalry, had been made an honorary member and the omission in the minutes were ordered corrected. Gov. M. A. Otero, who actively assisted a year ago in recruiting the rough riders, was also made an honorary member of the association.

Non-Soldiers to Be Excluded.

The committee on constitution was ordered to frame the by-laws so that no one but an actual soldier at some time in his life shall hereafter be elected an honorary member. Gov. Otero responded to the compliment in a neat speech. Gov. Roosevelt was elected as honorary president of the association for life. Col. A. O. Brodie, of Prescott, was elected president; Lieut. Dame, of Cerrillos, secretary; Capt. W. H. H. Llewelyn, first vice president; Lieut. Goodrich, second vice president.

There was quite a spirited contest for the selection of the place to hold the next annual reunion between Oklahoma City and Colorado Springs. The former city had decidedly the best of it, the vote standing 39 to 12. There was a love feast of the rough riders at night at the opera house.

Departure of Roosevelt.

The rough riders attended a sacred concert Sunday night given by local talent. The reunion concluded Monday night with a reception and ball at the Montezuma hotel, Hot Springs. Gov. Roosevelt and party left at one o'clock Sunday on his return to New York. One of the features of the reunion was the presentation to Lieut. Brodie, president of the Rough Riders' association, of a handsome saber.

Thomas Herran were unavoidably absent.

May Call Special Session.

Frankfort, Ky., June 23.—The rumor that Gov. Bradley will convene the legislature about the 15th of July in extra session is considered here as almost a certainty. Gov. Bradley, it is said, desires legislation giving him power to appoint special judges in cases of feuds, and also giving the right to the special judge to select a jury from a different part of the state to try the Bakers, and to find indictments against the slayers of Tom Baker.

May End Strike.

Chicago, June 27.—Common rumor at the stockyards Monday night was that the packers had agreed late in the afternoon to restore the wage scale of 1893, involving an average advance over present wages of ten per cent. Inasmuch as the strike is not yet an organized movement and has no recognized head an official declaration of the effect of the advance was not obtainable, but it was the common opinion that it would end the strike.

The Dodge Jewelry Seizure.

New York, June 27.—Examination of a quantity of jewelry taken from Mrs. Phyllis E. Dodge, of this city, a passenger on the steamer St. Paul, shows that it is worth $100,000, the value of a single necklace being $56,000. The duty on the jewelry seized would have been $40,000. The contents of Mrs. Dodge's trunk alone are worth $10,000. This seizure of jewelry is the largest ever made at this port.

Fatal Mine Disaster.

Rossland, B. C., June 24.—About 11 o'clock Friday morning a terrible explosion took place in the War Eagle mine, the scene of the fatality of a month ago, and in consequence three men are lying dead at the morgue, another is probably fatally injured and a fifth is seriously hurt.

A Family Failing.

Fulton, Ill., June 26.—Nellie Burrows, whose home is at Normal, Ill., suicided by drowning here Saturday. It was the third suicide among immediate relatives in the past few years.

FORMS A NEW CABINET.

Senator Waldeck-Rousseau Succeeds in Organizing a New French Ministry.

Paris, June 23.—Late Thursday afternoon the announcement was made that Senator Waldeck-Rousseau had completed the formation of a cabinet with the exception of the portfolio of public works.

The senator, accompanied by the new cabinet ministers, proceeded to the Elysee palace at 6:10 p. m., to present his colleagues to President Loubet.

M. Waldeck-Rousseau ignored MM. Guillain, Krantz and Poincare, in view of their attitude during the previous negotiations.

The new cabinet as organized is as follows:

Senator Waldeck-Rousseau, president of the council of ministers and minister of the interior.

M. Delcasse, minister of foreign affairs.

Gen. Marquis de Gallifet, minister of war.

M. DeLanessan, minister of marine.

M. Mquis, minister of justice.

M. Caillaux, minister of finance.

M. Millerand, minister of commerce.

M. Leygues, minister of public instruction.

M. Decrais, minister of the colonies.

M. Jean Dupuy, minister of agriculture.

The cabinet was completed by the acceptance of the portfolio of public works by M. Pierre Daudin.

The new cabinet is a strong combination, and is wholly in favor of Dreyfus; but, since it contains such extreme men as Marquis de Gallifet and M. Millerand, it can hardly be expected to have a long career. The socialist party have already declared that they will not in any way be bound by or responsible for M. Millerand's acts as a minister. The latter, however, is a powerful debater, who will share with M. Waldeck-Rousseau the brunt of defending the cabinet in the chamber, most of the other ministers being far less skilled in debate. M. Waldeck-Rousseau, who is perhaps the most successful pleader at the French bar, loses an income of £20,000 by becoming minister.

FUTURE OF THE G. A. R.

A Resolution Proposing Radical Change to Be Presented at Next Annual Encampment.

St. Louis, June 23.—The Post Dispatch says that at the next annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, which will be the closing one of the nineteenth century, a resolution will be introduced by an Illinois member to perpetuate it and take into it the veterans of the navy, as well as of the army. It will be proposed to change the name to "The Grand Army and Navy of the Republic." The resolution will call for the amendment of the constitution so as to admit all soldiers and sailors who ever fought for the union, all who are fighting for it now, and all who may hereafter fight for the flag and the principles which it represents. The reason for the movement is the fact that the G. A. R. is in process of speedy and certain ultimate extinction, by reason of having nothing to recruit from. It is probable that the commander in chief will be memorialized to appoint a committee to consider the proposition, and take the necessary steps to change the name and constitution at the next encampment.

MINERS FOUND DEAD.

While Crossing a Desert Twenty Men Lose Their Way and Die of Thirst.

San Diego, Cal., June 24.—Word has been received here that a party of 20 miners bound for the Sierra Pintada placers lost their way in the desert and wandered around a long time, finally dying of thirst. The information came in a letter received by J. P. Cantlin, one of the charterers of the schooner Thomas S. Negus, which took a party of 60 prospectors to San Roque landing, from L. J. Allen, purser of the Negus. The letter is dated at San Roque Bay, June 17. The corpses of the lost miners were accidentally discovered in the desert by another party bound in the same direction.

Germany's Position.

London, June 27.—The correspondent of the Daily News at The Hague says: "The German delegates on Monday privately informed their colleagues that they had received instructions to accept the principle of a permanent tribunal of arbitration as outlined in the Anglo-American plans. This and the speech of Col. Gross von Schwarzhoff plainly intimating that Germany had made up her mind against the Russian idea of disarmament and had reached the conclusion that the time had arrived to tell the world so are the two great event of the whole conference."

Gen. Otis Sends a Detailed Report of the Situation in the Philippines.

Washington, June 27.—Gen. Otis in reply to a cable from the war department asking for information regarding the situation and conditions in the Philippines, Monday, cabled a reply as follows:

"Manila, June 26.—Adjutant General, Washington: Rainy season. Little inland campaigning possible in Luzon. We occupy large portion Tagalog country, lines stretching from Imus south to San Fernando north, nearly 60 miles, and to eastward into Laguna province. Insurgent armies have suffered great losses and are scattered; only large force held together about 4,000 in Tarlac province and northern Pampanga. Their scattered forces in bands of 50 to 500 in other portions of Luzon; in Cavite and Batangas provinces could assemble possibly 2,000, though demoralized from recent defeat; mass of people, terrorized by insurgent soldiers, desire peace and American protection; no longer flee on approach of our troops unless forced by insurgents, but gladly welcome them; no recent burning of towns; population within our lines becoming dense, taking up land cultivation extensively; kept out Manila much as possible, as city population becoming too great to be cared for. Natives southeast Luzon combining to drive out insurgents; only hope insurgent leaders is United States' aid.

"They proclaim near overthrow present administration, to be followed by their independence and recognition by United States. This is the influence which enables them hold out; much contention prevails among them and no civil government remains; trade with ports, not in our possession, former source insurgent revenue, now interdicted; not certain of wisdom of this policy, as people in those parts are without supply of food and merchants suffering losses; meditate restoring trade privileges, although insurgents reap benefits. Courts here in successful operation under direction of able Filipinos.

"Affairs in other islands comparatively quiet, awaiting results in Luzon. All anxious for trade and repeated calls for American troops received. Am giving attention to Jolo archipelago and Palawan islands. Our troops have worked to limit of endurance. Volunteer organizations have been called in; replaced by regulars, who now occupy salient positions. Nebraska, Pennsylvania and Utah now taking transports and Sixth infantry sent to Negros to relieve California. These troops in good physical condition.

"Sickness among troops has increased lately, due mostly to arduous service and climatic influences. Nothing alarming. Of the 12 per cent. of the command reported sick, nearly six in general hospital, of whom three per cent. have typhoid and 17 malarial fevers; 25 per cent. have intestinal trouble; remaining 55 per cent. have various ailments, 14 of which due to wound injuries. Many officers and men who served in Cuba break under recurrence of Cuban fever, and regular regiments lately received are inadequately officered.

"OTIS."

The inadequacy of the number of officers mentioned in the last part of the above cablegram has been remedied by the sailing of the transports Zealandia and Sheridan, carrying a number of officers for regiments in the Philippines.

IS SOON CAPTURED.

Bold Bank Robber of a Boston Bank Quickly Comes to Grief—Stole $10,000 in Bills.

Boston, June 23.—A sneak thief entered the Metropolitan national bank here and stole $10,000, while the paying teller's attention was drawn away for a moment.

The man entered the bank at about 11 o'clock, and at the teller's window asked for some directions about sending a money order. The teller gave the information desired, and the stranger stood at the counter, apparently making notes. Just then the teller was called to another part of the office and the visitor quickly thrust his arm through the grating of the window and took 50 $100 notes and five $1,000 notes. A young lady stenographer in the bank saw the man's action, but he escaped. He was apparently about 28 years of age, and well dressed.

New York, June 23.—Detectives from the central office arrested the Boston bank robber as he alighted from a train at the Grand Central station at six o'clock p. m. The stolen money was found on his person. He gave his name as George Shea and said he was 21 years old. His real name is Philip Zambele. He lives in Chicago and is a well-known crook.

Lampasas, Tex., June 24.—Mrs. T. J. Lloyd, living seven miles northwest of this place, with her five daughters and a visitor, Miss Childers, went in bathing in a creek. The three youngest girls went beyond their depth, when their eldest sister and Miss Childers went to their rescue, and all five were drowned. Mrs. Lloyd saved her other daughter only by heroic efforts. The bodies were recovered.

Think Americans Defeated.

Manila, June 23.—The rebels have learned that the American volunteers are returning to the United States, and the Filipino newspapers show that they construe this to mean that the Americans are abandoning the war, and are encouraged thereby. Four of the wounded of the Fourth regiment's recent fight with the rebels have died in the hospital.

A PAINT MAN'S STORY.

He Had a Line of Lies That Was Good Enough to String Most Anybody.

This drummer travels for a paint house and as it was up to him he told the following:

"I am organizing a new stock company, and I am going to pass up the traveling business and go to clipping coupons for a living. I was in Mexico not long ago. I think it was the trip before last, when I ran across the most remarkable thing in the paint line that I have ever seen. I was riding through the most forlorn bit of country that it has ever been my misfortune to be cast into. I came to a little house. It was a very peculiar affair, and I noticed that although it was adorned with a coat of red paint, the paint seemed to have been nailed on. Inside I found a little man working with a mortar and pestle. I asked him about the house and most particularly about the paint. He then told me that he was an inventor; that ten years before he had invented what he called asbestos paint—a paint that would not burn. He built a house and laid on a thick coat of his newly-found preparation. Shortly afterward the interior of the house caught fire and burned up entirely, leaving the paint standing. After he had cleared away the debris, he spread a big canvas where the shingled roof had been and lived comfortably inside the four walls of paint for three years. He then accumulated enough money to build up the house inside the paint again. He did so and nailed the paint on to secure the interior of the house from falling down. 'I have lived in it as you see it ever since,' he said. 'How would you like to buy some slices of stock in my invention?'

"I immediately bargained for New Hampshire, Vermont, North Dakota and Michigan and am now organizing my company. Can I sell you some shares of stock or even some territory?"

While the remainder of the company were looking for their weapons, the paint man made good his escape.—Detroit Free Press.

A GLORIOUS FOURTH.

LITTLE Adelbert arose at four
And crept downstairs to the big front door,
And down the walk to the garden gate,
And there he started to celebrate.
With bursting cracker and roaring gun
He waked the neighbors, every one;
He scared the cat out of all her sense,
And blew the slats off the picket fence,
And came to breakfast with one black eye,
And said: "Hooray, for the Fourth of July!"

He ate with hurry and frantic haste,
For never a minute had he to waste;
Then out again to the fray he sprang
And turned things loose with a mighty "bang!"
He fizzed and spluttered and boomed and crashed,
While dishes rattled and windows smashed;
And when, all grimy and sore and lame,
Torn and tousled, to lunch he came,
On his swollen lips was the joyous cry:
"Ain't I glad it's the Fourth of July!"

All that day, till the twilight's close,
The powder-smoke from the garden rose;
All day long, in the heat and dust,
Little Adelbert "banged" and "bust,"
Till, just as the shadows began to creep,
He blew himself in a senseless heap.
Burnt and blistered and minus hair,
They brought him in for the doctor's care;
But, late that night, he was heard to sigh:
"I wish every day was the Fourth of July!"
—Joe Lincoln, in L. A. W. Bulletin.

A QUEER FOURTH OF JULY

IT'S going to be the meanest kind of a Fourth of July. No balloon on the common and no fireworks. They're not even going to ring the church bell—because that little old sexton, Sandy McVie, is too lazy, I suppose."

Truman Bluford, generally known among his comrades as True Blue, was excitedly announcing this dismal news to Rob Tripp and Tenney Cole, in his father's store.

"There's no patriotism in Cherryfield. They've all forgotten how our fathers fought and bled," said Rob Tripp, who liked to read nothing but stories of battle, and meant to fight something when he grew up, if it were only Indians.

"It will be as still as Sunday, I know. What is the Fourth of July, without a racket?" said Tenney Cole, dejectedly.

"I tell you, boys, something ought to be done!" said True.

That was what the boys liked about True. He was always ready to do something. Older people were inclined to think he was a little too ready to do mischief, but the boys were generally ready to follow where True led the way.

"We might ring the church bell," said True.

That wasn't much to do, Rob thought; it sounded rather tame. Still, it would be fun to wake the stupid Cherryfield people out of the naps which they had no business to be having on Fourth of July morning, and startle the selectmen, who had decided that there should be no ringing of bells.

"How could we get into the church?" asked Tenney Cole, who was of a practical turn of mind.

"Break in, of course," replied True, coolly. "You can't expect to have all that fun without—well, without hearing something about it afterward. We could break a window in the porch; and when we once got hold of the rope, wouldn't we make people think the bell was bewitched! They'd blame Sandy McVie for not being on the watch, too. It would be a good joke on the old rascal. He's got us into enough trouble by telling of us."

True's father was coming from the back part of the store, so the boys lowered their voices and walked quietly out at the door; while behind the counter, from the stooping posture in which he had been measuring for himself a gallon of molasses, arose Sandy McVie. He looked after the boys, with all the shrewd little wrinkles in his face drawing themselves up into hard knots.

"A good joke on the old rascal, eh?" he muttered. "There's never any knowing how a joke may turn out, my fine fellows! You're fixing a Fourth of July celebration for yourselves that'll be more than you bargained for, if I'm not mistaken."

The boys went on, all unconscious that Sandy McVie had been a listener to the conversation that was certainly not intended for his ears.

"It would be a good thing if we could get into the church without breaking a window," said Tenney Cole. "There's little Rose McVie now. Let's ask her where her father keeps the key."

"Hanging on a nail in the closet, under his coat," replied the little girl, on being questioned.

"Couldn't you get it for us, Rosy, and not let anybody know it, if we gave you the greatest lot of candy you ever saw, and a bunch of torpedoes for to-morrow?"

Rosy was a very small person, with a very large appetite for candy, to say nothing of a strong desire to celebrate with the proper amount of noise the anniversary of her country's independence. Her eyes grew big and round at the alluring prospect, and she nodded emphatically her willingness to undertake the errand. So it was settled that she should bring them the key that night, after her father had hung up his coat in the closet, so there would be no danger that he would go there again and discover the absence of the key.

That afternoon Sandy McVie and his son, a stout lad of 18, paid a visit to the church. Archie, the son, came out, looking very warm and tired.

"Better have let them do it, and then make them smart for it, than to take all that trouble," he grumbled. "Or just give their father a hint of what they are up to."

"Since they are so fond of jokes, I'm willing they should have a bit of a one," said the sexton, rubbing his hands gleefully. "They'll catch it fast enough for breaking the church window."

Rosy McVie stole out of the house that night after dark and delivered the church key into True's hands, receiving in return an amount of candy and torpedoes that had cost a large share of the boys' Fourth of July savings. But they were all satisfied that it was money well spent, for they had learned from sad experience that the results of breaking windows were never amusing.

It was about half-past four o'clock on the morning of the Fourth when the three boys unlocked the church door. It was very quiet for a Fourth of July morning. Now and then came the banging of a gun, the feeble popping of firecrackers and torpedoes, and the dismal shriek of a fish horn; but there were very few people astir.

"This stupid old town will get a waking up in a minute now. And people ought to thank us. It's a burning shame to have it so still. You may be sure they're making things lively over at Borrowsville by this time."

Borrowsville was a town on the other side of the river, where the boys meant to assist in the celebration after they had waked up Cherryfield.

"They won't thank us, you know," said Tenney Cole. "Boys never are appreciated."

"I don't expect it will be just exactly thanks that we shall get," said True, drily, as he turned the key in the lock behind them. "Anybody that's afraid had better back out now."

Nobody backed out. Six hands seized the bell rope. There was "a long pull, a strong pull and a pull all together."

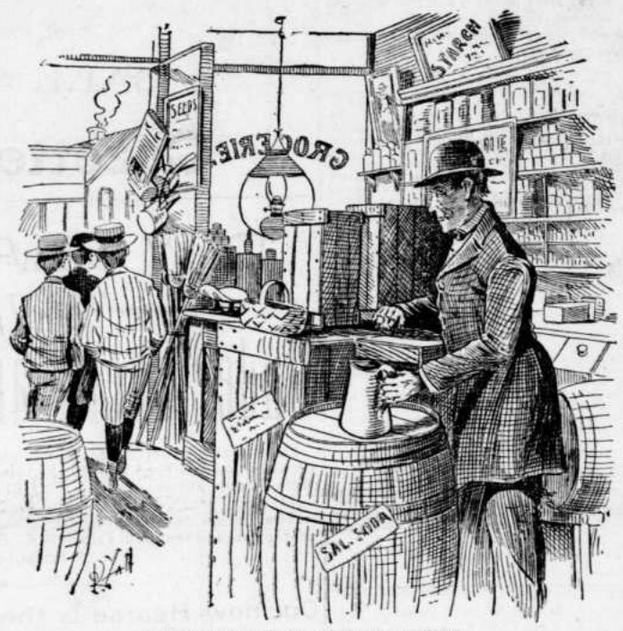
But no sound followed. They looked at each other in silent amazement and tried it again. They could feel that the bell swayed backward and forward; but it did not ring. What could be the reason?

"Somebody must have muffled it!" exclaimed Rob.

"We'll go up and see what's the matter, anyway," said True.

A long, long flight of steep and narrow stairs led to the first landing in the church steeple. Beyond that was a ladder leading to the bell loft. There was a trap door which they pushed open, and all scrambled up to the loft.

"If here isn't a go! The tongue is gone from the bell!" cried True. "Now who do you suppose did that?"



SANDY M'VIE HAD BEEN A LISTENER.

"Rosy must have told on us. I just wish we hadn't given her all that candy," lamented Tenney.

The great bell hung there empty, powerless to arouse any Fourth of July enthusiasm, and looking as sad as if it realized its dumbness.

"I should just like to catch the fellow that did that," said Rob, flourishing his fist at an imaginary foe, as he did so, unfortunately striking the trap door with his elbow, and causing it to fall with a crash. It was somewhat dark in the loft, now that the trap door was closed, the only light coming from a little round window, like a porthole in a vessel, far above their heads.

"Lift up the door, Rob. We may as well go down. Whoever took that tongue out wouldn't leave it where we could find it, you may be sure," said True.

But when Rob tried to lift the door, lo and behold! it stuck fast. The iron ring which had once served as a handle was broken off, and there was no way by which they could get a sufficiently firm hold to pull with any considerable amount of strength. They tried to pry it open with their knives, but only succeeded in breaking them. And time was wearing away, and the Borrowsville celebration must be getting toward its liveliest.

"It's of no use to holler. Nobody could hear us," said Tenney, despairingly.

"It's a pretty place to spend the Fourth in!" said Rob, with a groan. "How long do you suppose it will be before they miss us at home and come to look for us?"

"Why, they'd never think of coming here to look," replied True. "And my mother said I might stay all night with my cousins over at Borrowsville. She won't expect me home till to-morrow, and your folks will think you've stayed with me. Anyway, they would never think we were up in the church steeple."

"But when she knows we're lost, Rosy McVie will tell, if she hasn't already," said Tenney.

"She won't. She's too much afraid of her father to tell that she gave us the key," averred True.

"But he'll find out that the key is gone, and then he'll suspect that we are here," said Tenney, who was determined to look on the bright side.

"Next Sunday, maybe! We shall be starved to death before then!" said Rob, who was not proving himself as brave as his desire for fighting had led his comrades to suppose.

"Somebody must have got wind of what we meant to do, or the tongue wouldn't have been taken out of the bell," said Tenney; "and no one could be mean enough to keep us here for long on the Fourth of July."

"Sandy McVie is mean enough for anything," declared Rob; "and perhaps they have only taken the tongue out to repair it, or something of that kind."

Sandy McVie meanwhile arose at five o'clock and took a walk around the church. There was no broken window.

"So they gave it up, the young rascals, and have probably gone over to Borrowsville to do their celebrating," said the sexton to himself, and felt a disappointment that he should be denied the grim satisfaction of bringing the young rascals to justice. "Well, Cherryfield will be the quieter for their being out of it to-day," he added, to console himself.

If not exactly out of Cherryfield, they were certainly too far above it to interfere with its quiet. A faint echo of distant Fourth of July noises came tantalizingly to their ears now and then. The minutes dragged along heavily. They had no means of telling time, and an hour seemed like a day; but night finally came, the dimness deepened to utter darkness, and, stretched upon the floor, they all fell asleep. Being boys, they could sleep, although the floor was hard and keen gnawings reminded them that they had gone breakfastless, dinnerless and supperless.

When True awakened, a little shaft of sunlight shone through the small window, away up in the dimness of the steeple. It danced upon the cobwebs that covered the dusty beams until they looked as if made of gold thread. A great, long-legged spider was dragging a hapless fly into his web. The spider's web had been partially torn away, and the dust had been brushed from the beams in the corner near it. There was a little scaffold in the corner covered with shavings and chips, evidently left there when the last repairing was done. But somebody had been up in that corner lately. How otherwise could the dust have been brushed away and the spider's web broken? True wondered idly what anybody could have been there for, and then a sudden thought struck him that sent the blood rushing to his head, and made him for a moment feel faint and dizzy. In another moment he was climbing up those beams nimbly as only a squirrel or a boy could climb. He put his hand under the heap of shavings and chips, and it touched something very hard and cold. He dashed off the chips and shavings with which it was covered, and disclosed the bell tongue.

True wanted to shout for joy, but he knew that he needed all his strength just now, and restrained himself. He could not have lifted the bell tongue, even if he had not been obliged to cling to a beam with one hand, but he could draw it along to the edge of the scaffolding, and then with one mighty effort, he pushed it off. It came to the floor with a crash that seemed as if it might arouse all Cherryfield, and certainly did effectually arouse the two sleeping boys, who sprang to their feet, Rob with a vague impression that it was the report of a cannon, and that his time had now come to fight something. It was a happy moment when they realized that the bell tongue was found, though Tenney did grumble that they "ought to have been smart enough to find it yesterday." True thought that if he hadn't been awake when that sunbeam struck the corner, they never would have found it, for who would have thought that anybody would carry it away up there to hide it?

It was no small undertaking to replace the tongue in the bell, but, after much lifting and struggling, it was done, however. Then they all pulled with a will, and a clang that almost deafened them came from the bell. Sleeping Cherryfield was aroused in a very few minutes, and asked, in amazement, what was the matter. The new fire engine was taken out with a rush and clamor. But where was the fire? People ran wildly about and nobody semed to know. The most mystified man was old Sandy McVie, who ran out of the house in a maze of bewilderment, and declared that the bell was bewitched. How else could it ring without a tongue? And how could any human being get into the church when the door was securely locked, and no window broken, as anybody could see?

And still the bell rang wildly and clamorously, as such a sober-minded old church bell was never known to ring before. The spirit of half a dozen Fourths of July seem to possess it. People on the outskirts of the town began to think that the selectmen had repented of not celebrating the Fourth, and were making amends by celebrating the 5th, and they came hurriedly driving into the village to see what was the matter.

At length somebody more courageous than Sandy McVie insisted upon going into the church to investigate, and Sandy went to get the key. The discovery that it was gone put a new face upon the matter, and Sandy's suspicions reverted to the boys whose plans he had overheard, and he volunteered to break open a window and lead the search.

Rosy McVie at that time was pulling the bedclothes over her head, and wondering what would become of her, and resolving never again to touch a key or anything else that she had no right to, for all the candy in the world. Candy was good, but, oh, how bad was the terror she was suffering now! And Rosy is not likely to forget her resolve, although she was never found out. The boys agreed that they would "never be so mean as to tell on a girl, anyway," and they were always supposed to have stolen the key from Sandy McVie's closet themselves.

When they heard the footsteps of their rescuers the boys ceased to ring the bell. It was easy enough to open the trapdoor from beneath. While the boys were wondering anxiously whether it ever could be opened, Sandy McVie's head popped up out of it like a Jack-in-the-box. Rob's father came next, and Rob—who meant to fight Indians—threw his arms around his neck and—cried. Rob's father had suffered some anxiety about him, but thought he had stayed at Borrowsville with True.

Everybody agreed that the boys had been sufficiently punished by their imprisonment and the loss of their Fourth of July fun. Even Sandy McVie said "he guessed they wouldn't be apt to do it again." But he may have been somewhat softened by the compliments which True paid him on his skill in hiding the bell tongue.

The boys didn't care to say much about their adventure. They felt as if the trick they had tried to play had been turned upon themselves. When True's Borrowsville cousins asked him what kind of a Fourth he had had, he replied, carelessly:

"Oh, a sky-high one!"

Which was certainly truer than the cousins, who had their own opinion of Cherryfield celebrations, believed.

But those three boys will never ring another church bell without leave.—Sophie Swett, in Golden Days.

ODD FOURTH OF JULY FROLIC

The Reviving of a Quaint Old English Custom with Many Patriotic Features.

Katherine Bell Tippets, writing of "A Patriotic Garden Party," in Woman's Home Companion, describes the chief diversion of the afternoon thus:

"After the formalities the hostess led the way to the well-shaded lawn where a liberty-pole had been erected with Phrygian cap of liberty at its top. Innumerable red, white and blue streamers had been fastened under the liberty-cap and stretched in every direction over the lawn and the ends tied to trees, arbor, chairs, tables or any convenient objects. A sufficient number had been left fluttering from the pole to serve as starting points. To these were pinned slips of paper, each bearing the first line of some patriotic song, poem or address, and a number to show how many other slips were needed to complete the quotation. The rest of the lines had been pinned to the scattered streamers.

"Each guest selected a familiar line and began a tour of inspection of the other red, white and blue streamers, which was kept up until all the lines called for had been collected, when a new line could be selected from the liberty-pole, and when made up, a third, and so on, up to the expiration of time allowed. The selections were taken from such patriotic poems as 'America,' 'The Star Spangled Banner,' 'Warren's Address,' 'The Battle Hymn of the Republic' and 'The Song of Marion's Men.'

"A large bell hung aloft was rung as a signal for the beginning of the game, and soon the lawn was the scene of laughter and activity, which became patriotism under the influence of the growing sentiments expressed on the slips of paper.

"When the limit of time was up the collected quotations were examined and a prize of a silk liberty-cap was given and placed on the head of the one who had compiled the greatest number of verses or sentences. So thoroughly imbued were the compilers with their work by this time that it naturally followed to join hands around their successful competitor and unite in singing 'America.'"

Independence Day.

Fling out the flag, the starry flag,
The banner of the free!
The symbol of the land we love,
The land of liberty!
Our fathers with their willing blood
Baptized that banner gay,
So let it stream, its stars agleam,
On Independence day!

From brave New England's rugged shore
Washed by Atlantic's waves,
To western lands whose pebbly strands
The fair Pacific laves—
From Minnesota's swamps and swales
To southern hummocks gay,
Fling out afar the stripes and stars
On Independence day!

Fling out the flag, the dear old flag,
The flag our grandsires won!
The emblem of the land we love,
The land of Washington!
The blood of heroes thrills our hearts
And bids us haste away,
To consecrate with fitting state
Our Independence day!

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Postmasters' Salaries.

Assistant Postmaster General Heath has made public the readjustment of the presidential postmasters' salaries, to take effect July 1. These readjustments are based on the receipts at various offices for the four quarters preceding April 1, 1899.

Minneapolis, according to the statement, becomes a first class office, the postmaster's salary jumping from $5,000 to $6,000.

The St. Paul postmaster will receive $4,000, an advance of $100.

The statement accompanying the list shows that of the 120 presidential offices in Minnesota 75 postmasters will have increased salaries next year. In North Dakota 18 out of 26 will draw more money. In South Dakota, 19 out of 43; in Wisconsin, 41 out of 133; in Iowa 113 out of 223, and in Montana 17 out of 25 will draw increased compensations next year.

Decreased salaries will be paid in two offices in Minnesota; Morris, reduced from $1,700 to $1,600, and Waterville, $1,300 to $1,200; two in South Dakota, four in Wisconsin. In North Dakota, Iowa and Montana there will be no decrease in salaries.

Col. Ames' Advice.

Following is an extract from a letter just received by Gov. Lind from Col. Ames. The letter is dated Manila and was undoubtedly written before the colonel left the Phillipine Islands. Col Ames says:

"I have kept our regimental hospita going, and we have had as high as 7t men there, besides all the men we have had in the regular hospital. Many of our men serving in the field ought to be off duty, but they stick to it and will suffer later in consequence.

"I am very sorry to hear that we are likely to be mustered out in San Francisco. If we are Minnesota will never have a chance to see the 13th together again as a regiment.

"If our people desire us to come back—what there is left of us—as a regiment, they will have to do some 'pulling' to accomplish it.

"Our wounded men are doing well, and we are pushing the matter of sending the worst ones home. I have about $6,5000 in gold of the regimental fund still on hand, and I think this will provide for the men's wants and comforts till we get back."

Climate and Crop Bulletin.

There were very heavy rains in the early part of the week in most parts of the state, and since the 16th light and very much scattered showers in all parts of the state. In the southeastern counties from the 11th to the 14th the rains were in many places heavier than have been known for 20 years, with great damage resulting to crops, fences, bridges and roads, and the loss of hogs, cattle and poultry by drowning. In some small localities there was hail, and at points in the southeast there were destructive winds and losses of buildings by lightning. The small grains on the uplands continue in splendid condition but there are fears of lodging in many sections. Winter wheat and early barley are heading. Corn is backward and very weedy. Early potatoes are in bloom. Strawberry picking has begun in southern counties.

Labor Statistics.

Deputy Labor Commissioner Olson has completed a tabulation of the accidents reported to the labor bureau since since January 1. There were 187 accidents in the months, of which 12, or 6.4 per cent, were fatal. Nine accidents were from the mines, three of these being fatal.

There were 71 accidents in St. Paul and South St. Paul, and 61 in Minneapolis. Two of the Minneapolis accidents were fatal.

Nineteen of the accidents resulted in injury to the eyes, mostly from emory wheels.

They were 79 injuries to hand or arm and 41 of the foot or leg.

Planing and matching machines cut 5, and machine gearing caught 14, belts and shafting caused 6 and circular saws 6.

A Gambler.

John Haas, the most prominent saloonkeeper in Moorhead, was brought before Judge Searle in the district court and pleaded guilty to gambling and was fined $200. The complaint was made out by ex-Mayor Arthur G. Lewis and Mr. Haas was indicted by the grand jury.

This is Mr. Haas' second offense and the penalty is regarded as being very light. Ex-Mayor Lewis stated that he is not through with the case yet, and the next move that he will probably make will be for the revocation of Mr. Haas' license, which he claims, according to law, he can do.

Confession of a Millionaire.

GREAT LEGAL VICTORY.

Value of an Honored Trade Name Upheld by the United States Circuit Court.

The California Fig Syrup Co., of San Francisco, has just won a legal victory which is of utmost public interest, as it establishes judicially a fact long recognized ethically that the name or the title of an article is valuable property, entitled to the same protection as chattels or commercial paper. The company mentioned manufactures an excellent laxative which has been extensively advertised and acquired a valuable reputation under the name "Syrup of Figs," or "Fig Syrup." Trading on the reputation of this remedy other manufacturing concerns applied the same name to laxative medicines made by them. The California Fig Syrup Co. took the matter in the United States courts and obtained a permanent injunction, of which the following is the text:

"It is thereupon ordered, adjudged and decreed, that the injunction and restraining order heretofore made herein be continued until final decree herein, and to that end that an injunction be issued as prayed for in the bill of complaint herein, strictly commanding and enjoining the defendants, Clinton E. Worden & Company, a corporation, J. A. Bright, T. F. Bacon, E. Little, C. J. Schmelz and Lucius Little, and each and all of them, their and each and all of their agents, employees, workmen, servants, attorneys and counselors, from making, using or selling any liquid laxative medicine, marked with the name 'Syrup of Figs,' or 'Fig Syrup,' or any colorable imitation of the same; from making, using or selling any laxative medicine put up in boxes, wrappers or cartons, having on the same the name 'Syrup of Figs,' or 'Fig Syrup,' or any colorable imitation of the same; from making, using or selling any liquid laxative medicine put up in boxes, wrappers or cartons, so as to be like the cartons, wrappers or boxes used by complainant in connection with the liquid laxative medicine made by it, or so as to be a colorable imitation of the cartons marked Exhibit A, and filed in this case, being a carton, box or wrapper used by complainant for its liquid laxative medicine, marked and named 'Syrup of Figs,' or 'Fig Syrup;' from making, using or selling any box, wrapper or carton as a wrapper or case for a liquid laxative medicine, bearing upon it the figure of a branch of a fig tree with leaves and fruit, and surrounded by the words in a circle 'San Francisco Syrup of Figs Company, San Francisco, Cal.,' or any similar words or figures, or any colorable imitation of such a symbol or mark, or from making use of, in any way, in connection with a liquid laxative medicine the name 'Syrup of Figs Co.,' or from using any name whereof the words 'Fig Syrup Co.,' or 'Syrup of Figs Co.' form a part as a business name of a company, or concern, or corporation engaged in the business of making and selling a laxative medicine."

This decision is of far-reaching importance to all manufacturers whose products bear a recognized title, as well as a protection to the public whose confidence naturally rests in a large measure upon the name of the goods it buys.

FIFTY YEARS OLD

Why let your neighbors know it?

And why give them a chance to guess you are even five or ten years more?

Better give them good reasons for guessing the other way. It is very easy; for nothing tells of age so quickly as gray hair.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

is a youth-renewer.

It hides the age under a luxuriant growth of hair the color of youth.

It never fails to restore color to gray hair. It will stop the hair from coming out also.

It feeds the hair bulbs. Thin hair becomes thick hair, and short hair becomes long hair.

It cleanses the scalp; removes all dandruff, and prevents its formation.

We have a book on the Hair which we will gladly send you.

If you do not obtain all the benefit you expected from the use of the Vigor, write the doctor about it. Probably there is some difficulty with your general system which may be easily removed. Address, Dr. J. C. Ayer, Lowell, Mass.

DELANO, FRIDAY, June 30, 1899.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Montrose and Delano will play ball Saturday afternoon at Delano.

—Orders have been issued to the police to see that no fire crackers are exploded during the procession. Boys be good.

—Redmond has the frame for his new livery barn 36 by 80 up and is crowding the building towards completion.

—That flag floating above the City Hall shows wear and tear. It should be replaced by a new one; one not for pay but for patriotism.

—Rev. J. R. Davies, of Excelsior, preached a memorial sermon for several secret societies to which he belongs, in the City Hall, last Sunday.

—P. H. Sims, a former Delanoite, has secured the contract of again painting the union depot at Minneapolis. He was there Friday figuring on the job.

—The finest and largest strawberries we have seen this year was a box presented to us by Mrs. C. H. Carlton this week. They were raised in the garden where C. R. Carlton now lives.

—W. D. Young who for the past three years has been in the employ of Paris Murtin & Co., acting as city salesman, received from his employers a promotion with an increase of salary and commission upon all goods sold. He started upon his new round of duties the 1st of this month.

—The Modern Woodmen of America picnic at Spring Park Tuesday was attended by quite a crowd from here. The day was enjoyed by all. Delano captured a prize in the baby show with 18 entries. Little Lottie Knoll, 5 months old, youngest of the crowd, being winner of 2nd prize.

—Mrs. C. A. Corey held a reception in honor of her cousin, Miss Mabel Morton, of Windom, at the home of Miss Cunningham, last Wednesday evening. There were about thirty present. The evening was spent very enjoyably in different amusements. Miss Morton played several selections on the piano, that were well received. Gramaphone music also helped to enliven the occasion. Ice cream and cake were served.

—The Delano baseball club played their second game with the Maple Lake nine last Saturday afternoon resulting in a victory for the latter after a ten inning contest, with the score 19 to 23.

At the end of the fifth inning the score was 12 to 4 in favor of Delano, but in the 6th and 7th innings Maple Lake netted 11 runs as a result of bunched hits by Maple Lake. Quinn of Waverly, batted out a three bagger in right field and was followed by a home run by Mc Alpine over first base and into the river.

The game was Delano's by rights, at the end of nine innings as one of Maple Lake's scores was made by Moore running from second base home through the diamond, on a short fly hit while the umpire was not looking.

Delano did the heaviest batting, as 1 home run, 4 two base hits and 4 three base hits are marked to their credit.

Quinn of Waverly, who played 3rd base for Maple Lake, secured 10 put outs and 2 assists.

Score by innings:

Delano 2 0 1 0 9 0 1 0 5 1—19.
Maple Lake 1 1 0 0 2 5 6 1 2 5—23.

The boys wish to thank the ladies who furnished lemonade to the players during the game.

Delano will meet Montrose on the home grounds tomorrow, Saturday afternoon.

County Cullings.

Buffalo will have a four weeks summer school beginning July 10 at 7:45 a. m.

Howard Lake has $10,000 worth of school bonds to trade for cash to build a new school house.

The regular panned was soon exhausted when the Boxell case was called, and a lot of new jurymen were summoned. A jury was found Wednesday and the trial of Joe Boxell begun.

Tax payers are wondering what the county commissioners will next find to do to deplete the surplus in the county treasury. The idea of hiring an attorney for $500 with a possible $300 or more, don't strike them favorably. It was supposed a county attorney was elected to look after the county business and during this term of court an assistant was appointed. States Attorney General Douglas is said to be on hand. How many more do they want? If the Boxells are guilty it looks as if there ought to be enough legal talent to point it out to the jury without hiring an extra attorney. If they are innocent nobody wants them convicted by a preponderance of attorney. So it looks like needless expense. Besides, where is the statute under which the county commissioners make this additional expense to what bids fair to prove one of the most expensive suits the county ever had?

Among Our Exchanges.

Minneapolis Times: Francis Murphy, the temperance advocate who will speak at the morning services at the Hennepin Avenue M. E. church Sunday, arrived in the city yesterday morning. He will make this city his headquarters, while taking his rest before opening up the fall campaign. Mr. Murphy has been doing work throughout the country and may hold a series of meetings in Minneapolis and St. Paul.

He expressed himself yesterday as very much opposed to the army canteen. Mr. Murphy enlisted during the late war, and spent three months in the service, remaining with his regiment until it was mustered out. During the time of his service he had an excellent opportunity to study the workings of the army canteen, and has come to the conclusion that it is a demoralizing force and has absolutely no redeeming features.

Willmar Tribune: The additional volunteers needed in the Philippines are to be recruited quietly throughout the country without any call. Why be ashamed of stating the need?

Minneapolis Tribune: Gen. Charles King, who recently returned from the Philippines, expresses a higher opinion of the capability of the Filipinos for self-government than most Americans who have been brought into contact with them. He says that Aguinaldo and other leaders are highly educated; that nine tenths of the people read and write; that all are skilled artisans in one way or another; that they are industrious, frugal, temperate, and in his opinion rank far higher than the Cubans or the uneducated negroes to whom we have given the right of suffrage. If this is not an overdrawn picture, there is no reason why the Filipinos should not, in the future, after a few years of tutelage under American rule, be fit to become citizens.

Duluth Herald: W. H. Lawrence of the Thirteenth Minnesota regiment, son of a prominent resident of Wabasha county, has written from the Philippines an interesting letter which is published in the Wabasha Herald. It concludes as follows: "We have recently seen newspaper clippings to the effect that the volunteers would almost mutiny if sent home before the war is finished. The boys are indignant; not many of them believe in the justice of this war, and not one in a hundred would stay here a week longer if he could get home."

Music at the Exposition.

While the musical program for the entire four months of the Greater America Exposition at Omaha this summer has not been definitely arranged, a number of novelties are already assured. Dan Godfrey's great British Military band from London will furnish music for the opening day and the first five weeks of the Exposition. The Bellstaedt Ballenger band of Cincinnati will follow it for a four weeks engagement, comprising fifty performers, among them many famous soloists. The National Hawaiian Band will probably come in September, but if not then it will certainly come later. In addition to the popular music of the day, it will play many of the weird airs of its native land, never heard outside of Hawaii. A number of other superior musical organizations have applied for engagements, but the selections have not yet been made.

A band of Indian boys from the school at Phoenix, Arizona, will be a feature of the Indian Congress.

It had been intended to have the great band that has long been engaged in giving concerts on the Luneta at Manilla, but owing to the objections urged by Gen. Otis, the agents of the Exposition may be unable to secure it.

A New Burlington Book.

Railroad companies are great patrons not only of the liberal arts but of that modern classical expression that printing, engraving and photography places within the reach of everyone.

The Burlington Route has contributed its share to to the sum total of railroad art and its latest addition will rank among the finest specimens of scenic souvenirs ever issued. It is the Burlington's Book of St. Paul and Minneapolis, a rich oblong volume picturing first the magnificent train, then scenes along the route, then St. Paul and surroundings, followed by Ft. Snelling and Minneapolis. In all respects, composition, letterpress, illustrations and binding, it is a dainty volume.

Copies of this elegant book can be had by enclosing 25 cents (postage stamps not received) to Geo. P. Lyman G. P. A., Burlington Route, St. Paul, Minn.

Expenses of remittance can be saved by several persons combining their orders.

The Ohio Campaign.

The state campaign in Ohio this year will be one of more than ordinary interest to the honest masses of the whole country, in that it will be managed on the side of the g. o. p. by Hanna and Cox, the former a national and the latter a state boss, both of unsavory reputation in manipulating political contests.

The Enquirer will in its usual fearless style champion the side arrayed in favor of honest government, fair dealing with the public and greatest good to the greatest number, as opposed to boodle methods an official robbery.

Note what Mr. Whitelaw Reid says of boodle methods, as a manufacturer of public opinion through the news papers, at a gathering of journalists:

"There is no such thing in America as an independent press, unless it is out in the country towns. You are all slaves. You know it and I know it. There is not one of you who dares to express an honest opinion. If you express it you would know before hand that it would never appear in print. I am paid $150 (a week) for keeping honest opinions out of the paper I am connected with. Others of you are paid similar salaries for doing similar things. If I should allow honest opinions to be printed in one issue of my paper, like Othello, before 24 hours my occupation would be gone. The man who would be so foolish as to write honest opinions would be out on the streets hunting for another job. The business of a New York journalist is to distort the truth, to lie outright, to pervert, to villify, to fawn at the feet of mammon, and to sell his country and his race for his daily bread, or for what is about the same thing, his salary. You know this and I know it; and what foolery it is to be toasting the independent press. We are the tools and vassals of the rich men behind the scenes. We are jumping jacks. They pull the strings and we dance. Our time, our talents, our lives, our possibilities are all the property of other men. We are intellectual prostitutes"

As all readers of the Enquirer know it receives no aid from corruption funds and depends upon the honest, well meaning class for its support, we anticipate a greatly increased demand for it during the Ohio campaign.

That it may reach the largest possible number of readers we make a short term rate for the occasion, assuring all that only the entire truth and all the facts will appear in its columns.

We will send the Weekly Enquirer
Four months for only 25 cents
Three months for only 20 cents

And a free copy to club agents sending in clubs of three.

"OLDEST AND BEST"
With the SPECIAL CABLES
OF THE NEW YORK HERALD

THE delights of an evening spent around a well-lighted reading table are not half understood. An illustrated magazine with its wealth of illustrations, its stories of adventure and love, its descriptions of travel which carry you to the remotest ends of the earth, and its instructive articles for young and old—these are the first requisites for your own enjoyment and the entertainment and proper education of your children.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal,

Both Together One Year for Only $1.80

In this way you secure your own home paper and an illustrated magazine at a price that is only about a fourth of what some of the illustrated magazines sell for. For three years The Cosmopolitan has undisputedly claimed that it reached the largest clientele possessed by any periodical, daily, weekly or monthly, in the world. It was The Cosmopolitan which sent Julian Hawthorne to India to let the world know the real horrors of famine and plague. It was The Cosmopolitan which established at its own cost a great Free Correspondence University which now has over 20,000 students on its rolls. It was The Cosmopolitan which offered a prize of $3,000 for the best horseless carriage and prizes for best plans for public baths, and best arrangement of sewer and pipe systems for cities. It was The Cosmopolitan which set the presidents of great schools and universities seriously discussing the defects of existing educational systems. It is The Cosmopolitan whose enterprise is always in the lead in advancing the world's civilization.

St Paul Dispatch

25c per month for Daily. 75c per year for the Weekly.

The St. Paul Dispatch is the best Twin City daily; it has no equal in the Northwest as to size or quality.

The DISPATCH excels in Northwestern news, having a correspondent in every Northwestern town.

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

All Three Together for Only $2.25

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

Three Together One Year for Only $2.35

T. J. CATLIN, Publisher

Entered as Second-Class Mail Matter at the Post Office in Delano, Minn

MINNEAPOLIS is starting in on another boom. Menage has got back and McIntyre has got hold of some mills.

REPUBLICANS seem bent on saving the next campaign with jokers. Just think, J. Adam Bede for Congress and Granville S Pease, for Governor.

ANNOUNCEMENTS have from time to time been made that the 13th would soon sail for home. The latest is that they will leave Manila before the end of July.

THAT milling trust in Minneapolis needs attention. The camel has already got his nose into the shop, and it will require considerable care to prevent him taking possession entirely.

CATHOLICS in Montana complained that the laying of the corner stone of the new capitol had been turned over to the Masonic Fraternity. They wanted the state officials to attend to the exercises themselves and have everybody invited to attend.

CONGRESSMAN MORRIS seems to have protested against the removal of some of his constituents from the Indian reservation in the north part of the state. Indians have rights and their rights should be as much respected as the rights of white men.

PETITIONS numerously signed have been presented to Mayor Gray, of Minneapolis, to close saloons according to law on Sunday. His honor has promised to consider the matter. It ought not to take him long to consider whether or not he will enforce so plain a law as that.

WHILE our republican friends are picking out their menagerie with which to amuse the people while they try to secure votes enough to carry the state at next election they should not forget their late candidate for governor. He's something of a joker himself. He might try for Your Uncle Loren's shoes. With Pease, Bede and Eustis in the field wouldn't the air be full of jokes? A regular little joker campaign.

J. ADAM BEDE should profit by the example of the late candidate for governor on the g. o. p. ticket. Surely nobody has gone up and down like a roaring lion, abusing Democrats worse than William Henry, and when he cast in his lot and became, in spite of the machine, candidate for governor, he was simply shelved. Does J. Adam, in case he can secure the nomination for Congress, expect his new found friends to use him better than they did their old time honored wheel horse William Henry?

IT begins to look as if the powers that be had really concluded to send the 13th and other volunteers who have been to the Philippine islands, home again. The California and Oregon regiments embarked a couple of weeks ago for home. On July 1 the Hancock and Senator with the Nebraska Reg. the Utah battery and the Pennsylvanians started homeward bound. It is claimed that as fast as more troops can be sent to take their places and transports to bring them be had, the other volunteers will follow.

FROM such letters as that of Capt. Braden of the S. D. Reg., and who was a former Litchfield resident, published in the Litchfield Independent this week where he says he shot a Filipino, in a trench, but six or eight feet from him, and "To my dying day I will never forget the horrible look on that poor man's face as he fell" "The blood of one human being on my head is all I want." And from reports of the home sailing of the gallant Nebraskians of whose members but 30 could be induced to remain in the Philippines to engage in business or to reenlist. And from many other sources it is plain that the exterminating of the Filipinos is not meeting with the approval of God, the hearty co operation of the volunteers, nor the favor of patriotic Americans that the war for their liberation from Spanish rule met with.

Wayerly Tribune: It is amazing that we must depend upon the methods of despotism to expand and extend the principle of popular government!

Drummers vs Trusts.

According to the president of the Commercial Traveler's National League, who is good authority, the formation of trusts in this country will result in throwing 35,000 drummers out of work and in reducing the pay of 35,000 more, the total loss of salaries alone aggregating $60,000,000 while the railroads will loose $21,000,000 and the hotels $28,000,000. not to mention what the consumer will lose by increased prices still, men like Havemeyer the King of the sugar trust, have the effrontery to claim that trusts are a public benefit.—Valley Herald.

And yet, probably no set of men did so much to try to make the country merchants believe that gold standard was the thing to vote for in '96 and in '98. Why now should the g. o. p. fire them out in a body? But that seems to be the way of the g. o. p. to make a hurrah over anything they can to get votes, for just this once, and then drop those who were fooled into helping them. But they have struck a snag when they struck the drummers.

For Liberty.

I am reminded by the calander and the sound of Ft. Sumpter guns that this is the 4th of July. Today is read in the hearing of millions of people that unanimous Declaration of American Independenc, adopted July 4, 1776. When in the course of human events it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands etc.

123 years have passed into oblivion since Thomas Jefferson penned that masterly instrument, the declaration of Independence, and as a nation we still exist, and from the top of Bunker Hill monument we view the landscape o'er; that monument that was erected to remind us of liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Since the days of the Revolution and the establishment of and independent government, we have prospered and upon the foundation our forefathers laid, cemented by blood a mighty nation has risen. Our armies have been victorious upon land and upon sea and our flag the emblem of our country's pride has perched upon battlements high mid shot and shell and cannons roar, while our armies went on to victory. But today while we celebrate and feel jubilant and happy, is heard the voice of lamentation and weeping. Some of our people today are cloathed in the garb and habiliments of mourning for their sons that went to fight beyond the seas in a tropical climate, amid malaria, swamps, crocodiles and yellow fever. Many have been killed and others have perished from heat and died of disease, but it seems few are the words of griet and low is the voice of sorrow for those who died in a strange land far from home and loved ones. We talk of liberty perched upon her thousand banners and a nation armed to meet a deadly foe, but all this has no healing balm for those who lost their sons in a foreign land and be buried in bloody graves.

Dr. Shutter, of Minneapolis, in his sermon to the local lodge of Elks in that city said in so many words, he thought the war with Spain and the Filippinos was a God given war. Then he must believe God is sending our bright young men from America to the Philippines, that rotten climate, to be killed and die of disease; for what? To gratify somebody's ambition and to foster to ourselves a race of mondeys. I call such a religion a religion with a patent right, and can be altered or changed at any time by the patentee. We have always loved our country and its free institutions and are ready and willing to defend its flag and constitution. But I do not believe in giving the best blood of our country and sacrificing our sons upon heathen altars, just to inherit a buzzard's nest filled with disease and vermin. Some people talk about humanity and christianity. It is an old proverb that charity begins at home. Some people would drive a horse 40 miles a day and let him go without feed and water to get 25 cents for the missionary fund, that the poor heathen may be enlightened and christianized. I had rather be a living dog than a dead lion.

The Pharisees stood on the street corners and praved and thanked God they were not as other men, but under the cover of night they would rob your hen roost. Nations sometimes get to be like individuals. They think all the good there is is in them. If the United States has taken the contract to convert all the heathen in the world and care for all people who are enslaved and oppesed, she has contracted for more than she will ever be able to do. Andree attempted to explore the North Pole in a baloon and if he made it a success, he intended to have it annexed to the United States as a refrigerator for the keeping of embalmed beef.

Now Mr. Editor, from thousands of rostrums and platforms today eloquence and oratory will flow in great profusion. They will tell us of victories achieved and armies overthrown but will fail to mention the poor, the oppressed and those in the humble walks of life.

Most of my townspeople are celebrating at Delano today, but your correspondent feeling rather indisposed concluded to stay at home for a change.

How glad I would be could our boys who are in the Philippines be at home today to enjoy this days celebration with us. It would be to them more than meat and drink and to their parents and friends more than crowns or scepters. But Mr. Editor, we are at high noon; just the time when our fathers signed that unanimous declaration of Independence, pledging their fortunes their lives and their sacred honor, that they would all hang together or hang separate for the support of an independent government.

A friend to Liberty,
J. H. M.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 30, 1899.

One of the first acts of Mr. McKinley after his return to Washington was to order the persecution of Admiral Schley, by the Sampson clique in the Navy Department, stopped. He did not do so because of any love he had for Schley, but because of statements publicly made by Maryland republicans that they intended to hold the administration responsible for the Navy Department's treatment of Schley. That frightened Mr. McKinley, who is by no means as confident of his re-election as some other republicans profess to be. And in addition to ordering a let up on Schley, Mr. McKinley sent for ex-post master General Gary and asked him to help keep Maryland in line. Unless Marylanders who ought to know are off in their judgement, nothing will prevent Maryland returning to its old place in the democratic column.

In his anxiety to remain in the Cabinet, notwithstanding his deal with Gov. Pingree, who every body knows is not an admirer either of Mr. McKinley or of his administration, Secretary Alger is getting foxey. In order to jolly Mr. McKinley, he publicly said that his deal with Pingree was solely for the purpose of obtaining the Senatorship and was not binding on either for any other purpose; that he was a McKinley man from start to finish and was prepared to prove it at any time it might become necessary, by breaking with Pingree, if he should show any disposition to antagonize Mr. McKinley in Michigan. How much of this Mr. McKinley swallows nobody knows, but it is certain that Alger has undertaken a difficult role. It is known that Senators McMillan and Burrows are hard fighters and that they will demand that Alger be put out of the Cabinet, and their demand will be backed by many republicans whom Mr. McKinley will not care to offend. Besides, it is believed that Pingree is only using Alger to try to get even with Senator McMillan, and considered by no means certain that he would allow Alger to go to the Senate even if he succeeded in controlling the Michigan legislature.

Nothing could more surely prove the deception practiced by the administration concerning the situation in the Philippines than the orders issued this week to all the regular recruiting officers to enlist as many volunteers as may present themselves for service in the Philippines, and the official announcement that Gen. Otis is to have an army of 40,000 men by the end of the rainy season. In order to keep the appointment of all the officers in the hand of the administration, no organizations are to be enlisted. The men are to enlist as individuals and the regiments to be formed will be U. S. Volunteers. Although the announcement was made at the same time that all the officers for these regiments would be chosen from the volunteers who have seen service in the Philippines, it is a safe bet that they will not be. Ex-Congressman Campbell, of Ill., who is now in Washington, tells his friends that he has been promised the Colonelcy of one regiment, and he hasn't seen any service in the Philippines; and there will be others.

"Making a virtue of necessity", said a Senator, "is what I call the announcement of Thurston, of Nebraska, that he would retire from the Senate at the end of his term. Knowing that neither he nor any other republican has any show to be elected to the Senate by the Nebraska legislature, Thurston concluded to save some of the big wad of corporation money he has by not entering the field as a candidate. His talk about being tired of holding office was merely a little grandstand play".

The adage, "Make hay while the sun shines" appears to have been changed by the inventors of the country into "Make money while the mercury rises". The weekly receipts of the Patent Office are now averaging $5,000 more than they did in the summer of last year, and this weeks issue of patents, trade marks and labels was the largest since April 1890, the total being 633.

Secretary Long made public a signed statement, dealing with a rumor that he had made a statement to the cabinet deploring the killing of Filipinos without provocation and the looting of private houses in pacified communities. Knowledge of which he claimed to have acquired from letters from sailors, that was as extraordinary for what it didn't say as was his open invitation to Schley, a day or two before, to ask for a packed court of inquiry, in an authorized interview. Although he knows that he is credited with lack of sympathy with the Philippine policy of the administration, he did not say a word in the statement, written for a paper he knew to be friendly to him, personally as well as politically. He didn't even deny that he had protested, at a Cabinet meeting, gainst the Philippine policy, but merely said that he had never received any letters from sailors, either about looting or about firing on peaceable natives in the Philippines. If he couldn't say more, he would better not have said anything. The country is already surfeited with statements that do not tell all the truth and denials that do not deny.

MY NEIGHBOR OF YESTERDAY.

Beneath yon widely spreading tree
From youth to age he dwelt;
So near to nature's heart was he
Its even beat he felt.

His character wore no disguise;
He envied none his place.
The blue of heaven was in his eyes,
Its freedom in his face.

As guileless as a little child,
As thoughtless for renown,
The weighted years were on him piled,
Until they bore him down.

He took the weal, and took the woe
Of life with equal mind;
Let stream run dry, let stream o'erflow,
To the great Will resigned.

The face we ne'er shall see again
Will waver and grow dim;
The fields and streams will not retain
The memory of him.

The mighty elm that o'er him bends
With a benignant grace,
At once caresses and defends
His earthly biding-place.

How fares he now? Oh, who shall say,
For who that way hath trod?
He was my neighbor yesterday,
He dwells to-day with God.

A FORTUNATE ENCOUNTER

By E Nall.

"I TELL you, my dear Dr. Bridges, there's no use your dosing me with your horrid drugs. There's only one thing that will cure me."

"And what is that?" inquired the medical adviser and family confidant of the Burton family, surveying his fair patient, pretty Minnie Burton, with a merry little twinkle in his eye.

"A trip to England, and to be presented," she replied, promptly. "Come, do coax father into going."

"I couldn't do it! I couldn't do it, Miss Minnie, not even for you! Fancy advising your father to go home now! Why, it would be as much as his chances of promotion are worth, and just as things are shaping so well for him, too! He might send you, perhaps, with your mother."

"O! there's not a bit of good in thinking of that," she said, irritably. "He'd never allow it. But if you could persuade him, now, that it was for his advantage—"

"No, no! ask something easier! You must allow me to keep some sort of a conscience," the doctor replied, laughing.

"Well, then, if I mayn't go to London, I must go to the Melbourne cup. There can't be anything against that! I'm simply choking from boredom here."

"The Melbourne cup!" Dr. Bridges

"DO NOT WAIT FOR ME, MY CHILD."

repeated, thoughtfully. "If you think your father—"

"You don't suppose I meant you to ask him to go to the races, or even to let me go, either," Minnie exclaimed. "Why, doctor, you must think me a duffer! No, but there are always lots of our friends there, and plenty of fun going on, while the races are on, and I do want so much to see some life. At any rate, a hen tea party would be better than this purgatory!"

"Many people would think this nearer Paradise than purgatory. However, I'm going over to the 'cup' myself and I'll see what I can do for you."

Mr. (already in secret anticipation Sir) Samuel Burton was seated in his study reading a letter. He looked up with relief as his visitor entered.

"Ah, doctor, good day, good day. Been seeing my daughter, eh? Take a seat, take a seat! Yes—her mother wished you to be sent for, but if you'll excuse my saying so, I think she would have done better to leave it in my hands. It is a physician for the soul, not the body, that she requires. Of course, you heard all about it? Shameful affair! That scoundrel of a clerk of mine, Lestrange, if ever I catch him round here. * * * Ah, Bridges, it is hard at times to feel as a Christian should! But you had something to speak to me about?"

Then the good-natured doctor, with infinite tact, led up to the proposal he had to make. It so happened that fortune favored him. A large religious gathering was about to be held in Melbourne, to which delegates from various colonies had been invited, and Mr. Burton was at that moment debating as to whether or not he should attend.

A little judicious pressure was sufficient to decide the matter and that evening Mrs. Burton and her daughter received instructions to prepare for a visit to Melbourne the next week.

"Cup day" broke fair and bright, bringing feverish apprehension as well as anticipations of pleasure to many a heart.

"What lovely flowers! Minnie, where did they come from?" inquired Mrs. Burton, as she entered the breakfast-room.

Minnie buried her face among the cool, creamy cluster of roses. "They smell delicious," she murmured, and at this moment the arrival of the post caused a favorable diversion.

Mrs. Burton looked up from her letter with a little scream of delight.

"Only think, John! Lady Ormiston is in Melbourne and wants me to go to lunch to-day. Come early!" she says. "You know how much I wanted to get in with the Ormistons, and they're supposed to be so proud! Just fancy, and to lunch! Won't Mrs. Fitroy be mad. Only"—doubtfully—"she doesn't say anything about you, Minnie. I wonder what I'd best do."

"Of course you must go alone, mamma," replied Minnie, with unexpected alacrity. "It would never do to take me if I'm not asked. Though I did want to see Lady Ormiston, too!"

Half an hour later Miss Burton had driven off, arrayed in splendor, Mr. Burton reentered the sitting-room, where his daughter sat reading.

"Minnie, my dear," he began, and there was unwonted hesitation in his manner, "I am going out to see some friends and may be detained to lunch. Do not wait for me, my child, and—er—on no account go out alone. Your mother or I will return early and take you to the museum or some other place of rational and innocent recreation. You will be very careful, my child, especially on such a day as this! Alas! I fear Melbourne is such a sinful city."

The door closed, and Minnie was alone. Suddenly her countenance underwent a marvelous change. The color rushed into her pale cheeks; she sprang up and clasped her hands. "It's too good to be true!" she cried. Then she ran to her bedroom and donned with trembling fingers an elaborate costume prepared in secret anticipation of this great day.

"I never thought it would all happen so simply," she thought, as she fastened a delicate spray of orchids in her gown. Then she stole downstairs and cautiously opened the street door. Unaccustomed to the busy scenes of a city life, she drew back half frightened, when a hand was laid on her arm, and, turning, she saw a well-known face smiling down into hers.

"It's all right! I've settled everything," Jack Lestrange said, briskly. "Now for a cab; but come out of sight of the house. All out? Why, that's too good to be true!"

"That's what I said," she exclaimed, rippling over with glee, "but they're gone, all the same, mother to Lady Ormiston and father to lunch with friends. And now, Jack, dear, you and I are going to the races, and you'll show me how to put on the 'Tote,' and everything, won't you?"

They were only naughty children, after all, these two very young people, and they were as happy as if they were truants from school, as they bowled quickly along to the course.

"Caards for the rices! Caards for the rices. Now, then, lidy! this way for the tote, lidy, and (confidentially) don't you lay on Heatherbelie. She ain't got no stayin' power in 'er, that's wot I say. Very pretty and flash-like, but Stradbrook's the hoss for yer money."

All this came from a bare-legged gamin as they hurriedly made their way to the grand stand. Minnie, under her escort's guidance, had been speculating pretty heavily on Robin Hood, a comparatively unknown horse, and was beginning to quake as to the results of her venture.

Stradbrook was the favorite, and as she watched his opening her heart sank. Robin was midway in the field almost unnoticed among his peers; but gradually, inch by inch, as it seemed, he stole away until one after the other he had passed all save two; then, with a great dash, he came up to Stradbrook, and now commenced the true excitement of the run.

Neck by neck they strove until it seemed as though the race would end in a tie. Every eye was turned towards the winning post, and in an intense silence the spectators watched for the fatal moment. Now Stradbrook will win—he is drawing ahead—but no—with one supreme effort Robin has come up with—has passed him—and reaches the goal victor by a quarter of a length. The spell which had held the vast multitude breathless was broken. Minnie heaved a deep sigh and looked around.

"O! it was wonderful!" she exclaimed, but the words died on her lips. There—not six yards away, in the midst of a circle of friends, eagerly comparing notes on the fortunes of the day, sat her mother! Their eyes met and dropped as guiltily as if criminals detected in a common crime.

"O, Jack, take me away," she whispered, and following the direction of her glance young Lestrange silently obeyed.

Mrs. Burton had risen, and in another moment her hand was on the girl's arm, where it fell limp and powerless. Samuel Barton himself stood before them, with blanched lips and starting eyes. In his hand he held a "cnard" and a friend by his side was chafling him on his ill-luck. Mr. Lestrange turned to his companion.

"I think, Minnie," he said, sweetly, "that your father seems rather ill. Perhaps we had better call a cab for him?" But as Mr. Burton was not inclined to occupy it, they went home by themselves.

After this the air of Melbourne ceased to agree with Mr. Burton, and he speedily returned with his family to purgatory.

But not for long was Miss Minnie condemned to languish there, for before six months had passed, she had obtained her heart's desire, and was on her way home to be presented, which, in the eyes of a colonial girl, is synonymous with Paradise.—Madame.

America made a great fuss over Kipling a little while ago, and now Great Britain is doing the same thing with Mark Twain. This Anglo-American sentiment is a great thing for visiting litterateurs. The fact that 20,000,000 people in Russia will lack food on account of the failure of the wheat crop in that country is one of the tragedies of the time. No country in the world except China has seen so much hardship of one sort and another in recent years as some parts of Russia. The expulsion of the Jews from Russia a few years ago, and the failure of the wheat crop about the same time, and the consequent deaths of thousands of persons from starvation, are calamities which are well remembered.

The growth of the United States in the important element of iron production in the past 15 or 20 years is one of the marvels of the age. In 1880 this country's output of pig iron was 3,835,191 tons. It was 11,773,934 tons in 1898, an increase of 207 per cent. Great Britain produced 7,721,833 tons of it in 1880 and 8,631,151 in 1898, the gain in her case being 11.7 per cent. Germany produced 2,729,083 in the first-named year and 7,215,927 in the last, her increase being 164.4 per cent. These countries are the three leading iron producers of the world.

E. C. Larrabee, of Salem, Mass., has just completed a picture of President McKinley which is composed of 20 different kinds of wood skillfully inlaid, the woods used coming from Cuba, Porto Rico, the Philippines, the Hawaiian islands and other places with which the administration is identified. The portrait is to be presented to the president by its maker through Congressman Moody. It is a good likeness, and the work is very cleverly done. No less than ten pieces of wood are inlaid in the button on the coat alone. Yet no one will call Mc. a wooden man.

There have been no departures of musical societies in bodies and no departures of any of the singers.

An audience that packed the balcony and almost filled the dress circle and parquet indicated an attendance of much over 10,000. The chorus and orchestra numbered over 2,000 more.

The first vocal work given was the Gloria, from Barnby's "The Lord Is King," by the Cincinnati reception chorus and orchestra. The test of the acoustic qualities of the new hall in both the orchestral and the vocal numbers indicated success. The closing passage of Barnby's Gloria so thrilled the audience that salvos of applause were given.

The oratorical seemed equally satisfactory as in turn the welcoming addresses were made in good German by Mayor Tafel, President Bettman, of the local committee, and the response by President Deiler, of the North American saengerbund. There was a touch of pathos in the song "Herbstleid," by Victor Hervert, sung by the Louisville Liederkranz, Karl Schmidt, conductor. This is the only remaining member of the original North American saengerbund.

The concert closed with the prize cantata by Dr. N. J. Elsenheimer, of Cincinnati, conducted by the composer. It is entitled "Weihe Der Kuenste" (Consecration of the Arts). The soloists were Miss Sara Anderson, soprano; Mrs. Marshall Peaso, contralto; Mr. George Hamlin, tenor; Mr. Oscar Ehrgott, baritone, and Mr. Jose H. Berstein, bass.

Cincinnati, July 1. — The North American Saengerbund has decided to hold its next saengerfest at Buffalo in 1901.

The concert Friday afternoon had the advantage of ideal weather, and attracted a large audience. The programme was a varied one.

The audience at night was over 11,000. In addition to this the orchestra and chorus numbered nearly 4,000, making an assembly of about 15,000. The spectacle was one to prove an abounding love of song. Hundreds of devoted music lovers stood throughout the evening, unable to obtain seats. The programme was one of the most interesting of the week. It presented the Sangerbund mass chorus of 3,500 men, in which the singers are numbered by thousands, in a number of attractive selections.

Editors Go West.

Chicago, July 1.—The members of the National Editorial association which meets at Portland, Ore., July 5, gathered in this city Friday and left in ten Wagner cars for the west at six p. m. at night. About 300 members started from here, mainly from the east and south. It is expected that fully 500 will be at Portland. The train will reach Portland July 4. It is believed that this will be one of the most interesting meetings ever held and that the attendance will be the largest.

ARRIVES IN FRANCE.

Capt. Dreyfus Brought Back for a Retrial—Touching Meeting with His Wife.

Rennes, July 1.—Capt. Dreyfus arrived here early this morning. He was not landed at Brest, as official announcements had led people to expect, but instead was brought by the French cruiser Sfax to Quiberon, and from there was taken by train to Bruz. The distance from Bruz to Rennes—about eight miles—was covered in a carriage, Capt. Dreyfus being accompanied by a high police official. Ten gendarmes, riding in a wagon, followed the carriage, and the other guards followed on foot.

Rennes, France, July 3.—When Dreyfus had been placed in his cell Saturday morning the governor of the prison sent Mme. Dreyfus the news of the arrival of her husband and she immediately went to the governor and asked permission to see the prisoner.

Leave being granted, the faithful wife entered the prison almost unobserved and was conducted to cell No. 830, accompanied by Mme. Havet.

The meeting between the long-parted husband and wife can better be imagine dthan described. Naturally, it was most touching.

Madame Dreyfus issued from the prison in a state of collapse. She found her husband much aged, with beard and hair whitened and body shrunken and stooped. She said Dreyfus knew nothing of the events of the past two years.

FAILURES DIMINISH.

Records Show Them to Be Fewer in Number and Reduced in Amounts.

New York, July 1.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: "Failures for the second quarter of 1899 have been 2,680 in number, against 3,055 last year, with liabilities of $20,259,000, against $36,602,252 last year, and for the first half of 199 failures were 4,852, against 6,766 last year, with liabilities of $48,711,000, against $71,246,783 last year. Nearly half of the June liabilities are due to one failure, not strictly commercial, covering some banking concerns, a promoter and a railway equipment company for $5,136,000, in essential features a loan and trust concern. With it banking failures amount to $6,436,000 for the half year, leaving for commercial failures $42,275,953, against $67,444,629 last year. Manufacturing were $16,980,000 for the half year, against $30,768,144 last year, and trading were $23,000,000, against $32,956,626 last year.

The continuing demand, in spite of rising prices, astonishes everybody.

"Another industry passes all records, boot and shoe shipments from the east 400,813 cases, exceeding those in any other month of any year for four weeks, and the demands for speedy delivery show enormous distribution in all directions. New orders are large, and several months ahead."

Help Is Needed.

Milwaukee, June 30.—A Sentinel special from Hudson, Wis., says Chairman H. Ingram, of the New Richmond relief committee, has issued an official circular to the public as the first fruits of their investigations. The circular states that a careful estimate shows the money loss from the tornado to be $750,000. Subscriptions thus far amount to only about $80,000, a large portion of which has been spent in clearing away the debris and in lending temporary assistance to the people. There is great need of money and building material. An appeal is made for cash, which should be sent to the treasurer at Hudson, and building material to the relief committee at New Richmond.

End of the Carnival.

Milwaukee, July 1.—The Milwaukee carnival came to an end Friday evening with the carnival pageant and the carnival al fresco at the Deutscher and Calumet clubs. The historical pageant was the most expensive feature of the carnival and was the most beautiful and artistic. It cost $15,000 to get up the 20 floats. The parade was witnessed by a great multitude that lined the streets for many blocks. After the parade there were the great ball and reception at the court of honor, which ended the carnival.

At the beginning of the same period, July 1, 1897, there was a deficit in the treasury of $412,000. Two months ago the state treasurer called in the interest-bearing state warrants, amounting to $412,000. The treasury closes the year with the largest surplus in the last 25 years.

Strike at Pingree's Shop.

Detroit, Mich., June 30. — At noon Thursday the employes of the turning and welt department in Pingree & Smith's shoe factory went on strike. It is expected that as soon as the unfinished work is finished the factory will shut down and that 600 employes will be without work. MAYOR ASSASSINATED.

Chief Executive of Muskegon, Mich., Shot by a Disappointed Officeseeker.

Muskegon, Mich., Jan. 30. — Mayor James Balbiornie was assassinated at noon by J. W. Tayer, a disappointed office-seeker. Tayer shot Mayor Balbiornie while the latter was standing in the doorway of his store. The ball entered his left breast above the nipple. After the shooting Balbiornie turned and ran upstairs to his living rooms and dropped in the hall. He expired 15 minutes later. Tayer swallowed some carbolic acid and then turned the revolver upon himself and fired. The ball entered his left breast. He died at one o'clock.

Mayor Balbiornie was the pioneer resident of this city, having lived here since 1865. He was born in Ontario, April 21, 1838, and later lived in Ottawa. When he came to Muskegon he embarked in the furniture and undertaking business and had acquired a comfortable fortune. He was for three years a member of the board of public works, and in 1898 was elected mayor as a republican, being reelected this spring. He was prominent in fraternal organizations.

Tayer has been a resident of this city for about 25 years. He leaves a wife, but no children. He was a member of Phil Kearney post, G. A. R., having served in the civil war in company K, Thirty-eighth Ohio infantry. It was understood that he had been suffering from a slight brain trouble, but he was not thought to be dangerous.

FIRE ON NEGRO MINERS.

Strikers at Sawder, Ill., Attack the Cars—One Colored Woman Killed.

Murphysboro, Ill., July 1.—At nine o'clock Friday morning Conductor William Bryan's train, on the Johnson City branch of the Illinois Central, bearing 47 negro miners from Pana, was shot into by a crowd of miners at Lawder, in Williamson county. One negro woman was killed by a bullet through her heart. The negroes were brought by Sam T. Brush, superintendent of the St. Louis and Big Muddy mines, near Carterville, to work in his mine, where there is now a strike. The miners, 50 in number, were armed with rifles and were hidden in the grass behind the country depot. When the train stopped the leader, who was an Italian, got on the platform and commanded the negroes to get out. Conductor Bryan interfered, but was stopped by a revolver in his face. The train began to move and the miners poured in a withering fire. Conductor Bryan yelled to the negroes to throw themselves on the floor. All escaped serious wounds save the woman, who was killed instantly. Half a mile further and the negroes were unladen and placed under charge of guards. They were then marched to the mine.

DENIED BY PINGREE.

He Says the Recent Alleged Interview Criticising the Administration Is a Fabrication.

Detroit, Mich., July 3.—Gov. Pingree has dispatched a letter to Secretary Alger, brought out by criticisms of the secretary and the numerous comments recently published concerning the agreement made by the governor to support Secretary Alger in his campaign for the United States senatorship. With reference to the recent alleged interview, in which the governor is quoted as criticising the administration, the letter says:

"The interview is a pure fabrication. There is not a single sentence in it which was spoken by me. It is the invention of a reporter who may or may not have been acting upon instructions from his chief. I have at different times expressed an opinion of the necessity of the war in the Philippines. I have, in common with thousands of others in the country, disapproved of it, and have had no hesitation in giving my views whenever I have been asked for them. I voted for Mr. McKinley, and I have no cause whatever to regret it. If he is a candidate again I will take pleasure in giving him my support."

The governor says he is well satisfied that the attack upon the war department is nothing but a cunningly conceived plot to create a vacancy to be filled by a New York politician.

Alger Revokes the Order.

Washington, July 3.—Secretary Alger Saturday revoked that portion of the order of the assistant secretary of war relating to the proposals for certain ordnance which directed that the award to the Briggs-Seabury Gun and Amunition company be annulled and that new bids be invited. The contract for 40 six-pounders and 40 15-pounder rapid-fire guns, mounts and ammunition, will therefore be retained by the Briggs-Seabury company. That portion of the order which imposes the penalties for delay under their present contract for $700,000 was approved.

Being in her seventy-ninth year, rendering her unable to recuperate from the attack, she grew rapidly worse, until a few days since it was seen death was inevitable.

HIS BUSINESS ABILITY.

As a Hanger On Young Mr. Blank Was a Gritty and Glorious Success.

This fair maid will have a handsome dot some time, and it is the ambition of her father to have her marry one whose fortune will at least equal her own.

"I want you to stop that young Blank calling here," he remarked, recently, in the autocratic way that some fathers have. "He has no prospects worth speaking of, there is nothing to show that he has any business ability, and I don't want him hanging around here any more."

"What is business ability, papa?"

"Why, you know. Everybody knows, of course. Let me see. Why, it's the ability to see the main chance, to grab it, and hang on till you get the money. That's what it is, and there's plenty of young men in Detroit that have it. Blank lacks it woefully."

"Oh, he does? I'm afraid, papa, that you're speaking without proper information. He knows that I'll have $100,000 some time. That is a main chance worth looking after. Mr. Blank saw it. He reached out and grabbed for it. He's hanging on, and he's going to get it. Do you happen to know of any other young man of his age and limited opportunities whose business ability has assured him so handsome a fortune?"

The old gentleman's answer sounded suspiciously like smothered profanity, and it was fully five minutes before the bewitching creature could bring the sunshine of a smile to his face. Now he tells a few confidential friends that young Blank has the making of one of the best business men in the city.—Detroit Free Press.

Wise Hen.

A duck which had faithfully stuck to business during the summer and laid several dozens of large fawn-colored eggs complained that she wasn't appreciated. "See that hen over there," said the duck, "she hasn't laid as many eggs as I have, nor as big, but she has books written about her and verses composed in her honor, while nobody is saying a word about me." "The trouble with you is," said a wise rooster that was standing near, "that you don't tell the public what you have done. You lay an egg and waddle off without saying a word, but that sister of mine never lays one without letting everybody in the neighborhood know it. CRITICAL PERIODS

In Woman's Life Are Made Dangerous by Pelvic Catarrh.

Mrs. Mathilde Richter.

Mrs. Mathilde Richter, Doniphan, Neb., says:

"I suffered from catarrh for many years, but since I have been taking Pe-ru-na I feel strong and well. I would advise all people to try Pe-ru-na. As I used Pe-ru-na and Man-a-lin while I was passing through the change of life, I am positively convinced your beneficial remedies have relieved me from all my ills."

Pe-ru-na has raised more women from beds of sickness and set them to work again than any other remedy. Pelvic catarrh is the bane of womankind. Pe-ru-na is the bane of catarrh in all forms and stages. Mrs. Col. Hamilton, Columbus, O., says: "I recommend Pe-ru-na to women, believing it to be especially beneficial to them."

Remember that cholera morbus, cholera infantum, summer complaint, bilious colic, diarrhoea and dysentery are each and all catarrh of the bowels. Catarrh is the only correct name for these affections. Pe-ru-na is an absolute specific for these ailments, which are so common in summer. Dr. Hartman, in a practice of over forty years, never lost a single case of cholera infantum, dysentery, diarrhoea, or cholera morbus, and his only remedy was Pe-ru-na. GOV. LIND'S REPLY

Answers the Criticism of His Veto of the Railroad and Warehouse Bill.

Promptly Demands Retraction of Charges Made by the Luverne Herald.

THE CHARGES RETRACTED

Vetoed Measure Would Have Made Redress of Grievances Impossible.

Full Text of Governor Lind's Statement in Regard to the Railroad Case.

ST. PAUL, June 29.—The Luverne Herald, of which State Senator H. J. Miller is the editor and proprietor, has led the Republican criticism against Governor Lind for his veto of the Miller bill, being Senate File No. 24, to make findings of fact in proceedings before the Railroad and Warehouse Commission official court records in such cases. In a recent issue Senator Miller charged unworthy motives on the part of the governor and that he had been governed in his action by certain railway influence. Thereupon Governor Lind addressed to Senator Miller an explicit denial and demand for retraction of his charges, coupled with a full statement regarding the bill and reasons for the veto. Senator Miller, in The Herald of June 22, retracted the charges, with the statement that he would publish Governor Lind's letter in full in the following issue. The full text of the governor's communication is as follows:

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 20, 1899.

Hon. H. J. Miller, Luverne, Minn.

DEAR SIR—I confess I was not a little surprised when a copy of your paper of June 9th was placed before me and I saw the article headed "Lind's Betrayal of Trust," the first paragraph of which reads as follows: "The Herald has made the charge in previous issues that Senate File No. 24, relating to proceedings for the enforcement of the orders of the Railroad and Warehouse Commission, was killed by Governor Lind at the instance or by the demand of the Great Northern Railway company." I had been informed previous to this that you had made charges of some such character in earlier issues of your paper, but I paid no attention to them as I hoped that you would be down to the City and that I might have an opportunity to place the facts before you in their proper light, my time hardly permitting communication by correspondence in a matter so involved as the consideration of our statutes relating to the Railroad and Warehouse Commission, but this last charge is such a brazen falsehood and of such character that, coming from the source it does, I feel that it demands not only an explicit denial, but an explanation of the law as it now stands and the effect of the proposed amendment, so that you and any citizen who desires to understand the matter may see and appreciate the dangerous character of Senate File No. 24, which I refused to sign.

In Minneapolis and St. Louis Railway Company vs. Railroad and Warehouse Commission, 44 Minn., 336, which was one of the earlier cases under the present railroad law before our Supreme Court, Judge Mitchell uses this language: "The act (Laws 1887, Chapter 10) regulating common carriers and creating the Railroad and Warehouse Commission is a piece of legislative patchwork composed of provisions borrowed from different and dissimilar sources without uniformity of plan and not always consistent with each other. A construction of the act is therefore a difficult task." Although the act has been amended several times since that language was used with reference to it, it is still applicable to many of the provisions of the law as it now stands, as any one who has read it with care must concede; but, nevertheless, it has now been before the Court so often and many of its sections so thoroughly construed, that the most striking inconsistencies have been reconciled and the legislation, as a whole, made harmonious by judicial interpretation. In my message to the legislature I recommended only one change and in the following language: "The report of the State Railroad and Warehouse Commission will be laid before you. No new legislation is needed on that subject, except that the record made before the Commission on a hearing should be made to constitute the record on appeal. The present practice of trying a case de novo in the District Court is useless and expensive and by its delays tends to defeat the ends of the law." An amendment in harmony with this suggestion would have been a decided improvement on the law as it now stands and would have had my prompt approval, as it had my cordial endorsement in advance. I cannot help feeling that you are under the impression that Senate File 24 would have accomplished the purpose indicated by my recommendation, for I can hardly conceive that a man of your standing would purposely traduce and malign a public servant from partisan motives alone. I shall therefore take more time and exercise more patience in explaining the law to you than I would to one for whose character and motives I have less regard than I have had for yours in the past, believing that when the matter is placed before you in its proper light you will have the manhood to undo, so far as you are able, the injustice which you have done me.

By our legislation constituting the Board of Railroad and Warehouse Commissioners and defining their powers, the duties of the Board are divided into two classes. The first, and most important, is to pass upon the reasonableness of transportation rates and to prevent discrimination between persons and places. The second, is the power to regulate the manner of maintaining and operating the railroads, with a view to insuring the security, convenience and accommodation of the general public, without regard to the question of rates; in other words—the rate-making power and the administrative power respectively. This distinction must be borne in mind in order to understand the different provisions of the statute and the decisions of our Supreme Court pursuant to them.

In proceedings under the first class of questions, viz.: Those that involve the rate making power and the prevention of discriminations, the railroad company has the right of appeal to the District Court from the determination of the Commissioners. See Subdivision D of Section 15 of the Act. (Page 21 of the pamphlet which I send you herewith). In the other class of cases, which relate only to administrative regulations, there is no appeal from the action of the Commissioners to the District Court. The propriety of their determination can only be inquired into upon a suit instituted for the enforcement of the Commissioners' decision. See the case cited, 44 Minn., page 336.

The "Steenerson case," which is the most important case that we have had in our courts under the law up to the present time, was decided upon a review of the action taken by the District Court upon the trial of an appeal taken from the Commissioners' decision prescribing lower rates. See the statement of the case by Judge Canty on page 714, Vol. 72, Northwestern Reporter. He says: "After summoning the railway company and having a hearing, as provided by the statute, the Commission made an order reducing rates on grain on all the lines of the railway company within the state. From this order the railway company appealed to the District Court and after a hearing on the appeal, the Court reversed the order of the Commission. From the order of the Court the Attorney General appeals to this Court, etc." This appeal was taken under Subdivision D, Section 15, just cited. A trial in the District Court upon an appeal of that character is undoubtedly the most important feature in a proceeding under the law, for upon the record as there made the case will be reviewed by the Supreme Court and eventually in the Supreme Court of the United States, if a writ of error is taken to the latter Court. This trial in the District Court upon an appeal is now virtually a trial de novo, as I suggested in my message, and it was this section that I recommended should be amended so that it would not be necessary to go over again in the District Court the same ground that had been traveled before the Commissioners, for a retrial upon new evidence necessarily consumes more time.

Senate File No. 24 did not assume to correct this defect, as you appear to think, but steps in to amend Section 22, page 26 of the pamphlet, which simply relates to the enforcement of the orders or decisions of the Commission. These orders or decisions are of two kinds: Administrative orders and final orders or decisions involving the rate making power, when such orders have not been appealed from to the District Court. In regard to the latter class of orders, where the railroad company had the right of appeal if they saw fit, it is a well settled principle of law that where an individual or corporation has litigated a question before a tribunal upon the merits and had the right of appeal from the order or decision of such tribunal to the District Court and omitted to exercise it, it cannot subsequently raise any question as to the merits of the order or decision when it is sought to secure enforcement of such order or decision in the courts. It stands upon the same footing, when not appealed from, as a judgment of the District Court rendered upon an appeal under the provisions of Subdivision D of Section 15. Therefore, when such an order comes up for enforcement in the District Court, no question can be raised as to its validity or its reasonableness, provided the company had due notice. Hence the only class of orders or decisions that can be litigated under the provisions of Section 22, which you sought to amend by Senate File 24, as the law now stands are those relating to administrative proceedings.

You will observe by Subdivision B of Section 15 that on the hearing of the appeal provided for in that section "the record of said Commission shall be prima facie evidence of the matters therein stated." The same provision exists in Section 22 in regard to proceedings for the enforcement of the orders or decisions of the Commission under that section. It is provided (commencing on Page 28), "upon a trial of such case, the findings of fact of said Commission, as set forth in its record, shall be prima facie evidence of the matters therein stated." I have underscored these provisions in the pamphlet which I send you. These two provisions are the most important features regulating the practice under the railroad act. They have the effect of throwing the burden of proof upon the railroad company to show that the decision of the Commission is wrong in case of an appeal under Section 15, and likewise that the order or decision was wrong or unjustifiable in proceedings for its enforcement under Section 22. On this point let me call your attention to the language of Justice Canty, N. W. Reporter 72, page 715, who after quoting this provision says: "Then the burden is on the railroad company to show that the rates fixed by the Commission are unreasonable." Justice Collins, page 73 (same volume), commenting on the same provision in the statute, said: "Here we find that by legislative enactment an order of the Commission fixing and prescribing a tariff of rates must be deemed and taken in all of the courts of our state as prima facie evidence that the tariff so fixed and prescribed is equal and reasonable; the onus being thus fixed upon the appealing carrier, in all our legal tribunals and in all proceedings, to show that it is not. The burden of proof was therefore upon this respondent carrier (Great Northern Railroad Company) to overcome a prima facie case presented in the Court below by means of the order of the Commission." I have no hesitancy in saying that but for this statutory provision the judgment rendered in the Steenerson case could not and would not have been rendered by our Supreme Court. The decision, as you will observe, is simply to the effect that the record does not show the rates established are unreasonable or confiscatory. In other words, the Court simply held that the railroad company had failed to overcome the determination of the commission, which the statute said and which the court said was prima facie just and reasonable. I realize that it is difficult and practically impossible to make one who has had no experience at the bar appreciate the immense advantage of going into Court with a prima facie case, instead of being called upon to establish the case by affirmative evidence, particularly in matters of this character. If it were incumbent upon the state to establish the reasonableness or unreasonableness of the rate by affirmative evidence, such as would be admissible in Court, it would be next to impossible under existing conditions to do so. It certainly could not be done without the co-operation of railroad experts. Notwithstanding these facts, the proposed amendment to Section 22, by Senate File No. 24, leaves out this vitally important provision of the section as it now stands. Now Senator, let me ask you in all candor, why was this left out? Did you realize that it had been left out when you introduced the bill? Would you have introduced it, knowing that it was left out? Would you have voted for this amendment with the knowledge that the effect of it would be to shift the burden of proof from the shoulders of the railroad company to the side of the producer and the state? A candid answer to these questions I have a right to ask and do ask of you. But this is not by any means the sole reason why I omitted to sign Senate File 24, although it seems to me that any candid man would regard this not only sufficient but imperatively demanding that it should not have my approval.

I recommended in my message that the record made before the Commission on a hearing should be made and constituted the record on appeal. This was for the sole purpose of expediting matters and saving time. The protracted delays resorted to by the railroad companies on all proceedings against them is, as you well realize, the worst feature in the administration of the law that we have to contend against. The provisions of Senate File 24, instead of tending to curtail and prevent delays, seem especially calculated to further them. The proposed amendment, Senate File No. 24, provides that the Commission should report to the Court the papers and testimony taken before it and further, that if the Court "shall think it needful, that additional evidence shall be taken or further inquiries be prosecuted, it shall recommit the matter to the Commission to prosecute such inquiry." Now, if you know anything about legal procedure, you know that it would be infinitely more expeditious for the District Court to try and dispose of the case before it in its own way than send a portion of it back for rehearing or for the taking of additional evidence before another tribunal. You also know or realize that if this provision had become a law, the first thing that the railroad company would have done upon a report being filed in the District Court, would have been to make innumerable motions, all of which take not less than 10 days' notice, to have this question and that question and the other recommitted to the Commission for the taking of further evidence. But this is not all, nor the worst feature of this provision. The proposed amendment provides that the Commission might be called upon or it might in its own discretion rehear and reconsider all the questions "involved in or connected with its order or requirement, to enforce which the petition was filed, such rehearing to be had upon additional evidence in connection with the whole record filed with the petition, as above provided, and may thereupon make and file in the case with its report and return of evidence taken, an amended or supplemental order, which shall then be substituted for the original order or requirement of the Commission." When this amended or supplemental order was brought in, it would, of course, be subject to the same power of the court to be recommitted, and so on without limit. Now, although I realize that you are not a lawyer, it seems to me that when you consider these facts, especially if you will take the trouble to confer with some competent practitioner, or say Judge Brown, you will see that I am correct in saying that these provisions seem especially calculated to further delays. You will also observe that these are very different provisions from those that I recommended and this subject was not new to me. I had it up in all its phases when a member of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce of the House of Representatives, and I then arrived at the same conclusions which guided my action in this matter.

You criticise me for not consulting with the Attorney General. Why should I? Would you ask anybody's advice upon a plain proposition where your duty was clear? But I make this suggestion to you. You are at liberty to submit this letter to the Attorney General and take his views upon the questions which I have discussed. I am surprised, in view of your experience in the senate and the judgment which you entertained and expressed of the majority of your colleagues, that the fact that this bill was permitted to go through without opposition was not sufficient to put you on your guard, especially after the passage through the senate with only three dissenting votes of the Shellbach bill, which would have repealed the Anderson law taxing railroad lands, had it passed the house and received my approval. With such experience fresh in your mind, it seems to me that you might have scented the woodchuck in Senate File No. 24.

If you require further information to enable you to understand this subject, let me know and I will cheerfully furnish it. In the meantime, I denounce every statement and innuendo contained in your several articles bearing upon this subject as absolutely false; and as a small measure of reparation, I demand that you retract your charges and that you give this letter such publicity in your paper as you have given the libelous articles referred to.

Yours truly,
JOHN LIND, Governor.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

The State Debt.

The present state debt as passed upon by the state board of audit, including the governor, the attorney general and the auditor, is $1,125,000, represented by bonds held by Eastern institutions. The state's assets, with the exception of the amount deposited with state and national banks, include the following items:

Cash on hand and deposited, $1,274,753.73; Tennessee redemption bonds, $270,000; Minnesota funding bonds, $162,000; Alabama bonds, $564,200; Massachussetts gold bonds, $2,235,000; Virginia funding bonds, $125,000; United States bonds, $200,000; school district and county bonds, $1,390,590.64; Delaware, $4,000; certificates of indebtedness state capital, $100,000; Virginia funding bonds, $300,000; total, $6,815,337.

There is outstanding about $6,000,000 due on state land contracts, the property of the permanent school fund. The state university has to its credit three-quarters of a million of interest bearing bonds, with half a million more in state land contracts. In the near future Public Examiner Pope will check up the state's assets.

Climate and Crop Bulletin.

The week has been very favorable for the growth of all crops, and they have responded well, except where the high water drowned them out in previous weeks. The loss due to floods, however, has been rather over estimated, but still the loss in Wabasha and Olmsted counties was considerable. Wheat, oats and barley are luxurious, and there spots in many fields that are lodged. Spring wheat may be a little late in the Red river valley; in many places south of the central counties it is beginning to head. Barley is heading very well. Oats are beginning to head in southern counties. Rye is turning color and will ready to ready to cut early in July. Rust is reported in a mild form at widely scattered points. Corn has been backward and not very vigorous, but better weather is causing a rapid improvement. In most of the state the hay crop will be good. Clover and timothy and ready to cut as soon as the weather is dry enough. In parts of the state the clover is very poor.

Claim of the State.

The war department has heard nothing in a long time from the state of Minnesota on the question of money due the state on account of the mustering in of troops last year. The total claim of Minnesota was about $140,000 in round numbers, and of this amount only about $20,000 has been paid, this sum representing allowances made to the men direct. Gen. Muehlberg, when he was in Washington several months ago to look after the matter, was told pointedly that the state had not complied with the government requirements and that until it did so the rest of the money would be hung up. The government requires that original vouchers be placed on file in the war department. The state of Minnesota offered to file certified copies, the state auditor claiming that he had no right to give up the originals. Here the matter rests and here it will rest until Auditor Dunn and the secretary of war can get together on some common ground.

Menage Returns.

After an absence of six years, an exile from his native land, Louis F. Menage returned suddenly to Minneapolis.

Mr. Menage stated that he had returned to answer the indictments which were found against him in 1893-4, and County Attorney Reed accompanied him to Judge Elliott's court room, where the indictments were read.

There were three indictments. The first one read by Clerk Royce was that under which W. S. Streeter was tried last. It charged grand larceny in the sum of $270,322.77. To the question, "Are you guilty or not guilty?" Mr. Menage answered "Not guilty."

The same pleading was made to the other indictments, and bail was fixed at $10,000, which was furnished.

Deaf Convention.

The sixth convention of the National Association of the Deaf will meet in St. Paul July 11-14. The deaf people of the Twin Cities and members of the State Association of the Deaf are very much interested. They are bound to exert their best efforts and intend that the delegates from other states shall have a royal good time. The convention will meet in the state capitol. A reception at the Windsor hotel and a picnic excursion to Spring Park, July 13, is announced. The excursion will not be exclusive.

LOST ON LAKE ERIE.

Steambarge Margaret Olwill Founders During a Storm—Eight Persons Perish.

Toledo, O., June 30. — Nine lives were lost by the foundering of the steambarge Margaret Olwill in Lake Erie Thursday morning about two o'clock. The following are those who went down:

John Brown, captain, Cleveland; Mrs. Brown, wife of Capt. Brown, Cleveland; Richard Brown, son of captain; Miss Hunt, guest of Capt. and Mrs. Brown, Cleveland; W. Doyle, fireman, Cleveland; George Heffron, wheelman, Cleveland; Frank Hipp, watchman, Kelley's Island; — James, Cleveland.

John Smith, first mate; Alex McRea, chief engineer; Luke Schinski, second engineer, were rescued by members of the crew of the steamer Sacramento and taken into Lorain by the tug Cascade. Duncan Coyle was picked up by the passenger steamer State of Ohio and landed at Toledo.

The barge Margaret Olwill left Kelly's island at six o'clock Wednesday night bound for Cleveland with a cargo of stone. There was little or no wind blowing and everything was favorable for a pleasant run. At eight o'clock the wind began to blow from the northwest and the little boat with a thousand tons capacity began to go at a lively clip. At ten o'clock the gale commenced and the wind blew at the rate of 50 miles an hour. Suddenly the gale turned to the northeast and Capt. Brown found that the boat was making but little headway and concluded the only thing to do was to turn back and go with the storm. According to the story of Coyle it was two o'clock when the captain gave the order to turn about. The vessel had turned half way round when the rudder chain parted and in an instant the boat was at the mercy of the storm. She was caught between two waves and as she was borne along the top of one of them she rolled over on the side. The cabins came loose from the hull of the barge and floated on the water while the rest of the ship went to the bottom. Whether any of the occupants were able to take advantage of this it is not known, but Coyle says he saw Schinski, the second engineer, and Heffron, the wheelman, after the boat went down, but that was all. Coyle caught hold of part of the after cabin and climbed upon it.

DIE IN TEXAS FLOOD.

Entire Towns Under Water and Property Worth Millions Ruined—Fifty Lives Lost.

Houston, Tex., July 3.—Lives lost, perhaps 50; cotton crop damaged, $2,000,000; corn crop damaged, $50,000; loss of various counties, $300,000; railroads' loss, $500,000; stock, houses, orchards, etc., $1,150,000, a total of $4,000,000—that is the cost of the storm which swept south and central Texas for four days.

The Big Brazos, the Little Brazos, the Colorado, the Trinity, the Guadaloupe, the Leon, the Neuces and all of their tributaries are overflowed.

A dispatch from Fort Worth says that 50 lives have been lost, and that property damages will reach more than a million dollars. The names of the drowned cannot be given, because communication with Calvert, the scene of the fatalities, has been cut off three days. The town is under water and people are in the second stories of houses, on top of roofs and in treetops. A boat with 16 refugees was upset and four were drowned.

Brenham, Tex., July 3.—Emil Steinman is here from Yegua, and says that not less than 300 horses and cattle have been drowned in that stream between Clay and Independence.

Fight Over Cards.

Elmwood, Neb., July 3. — George Jones, a street fakir from St. Joseph, Mo., was shot and instantly killed by John Harris here Sunday. William Malone and Joe Hart, also of St. Joseph, were also shot by Harris, the first through the leg and the latter over the heart. The men came here to attend the district grand army reunion which opened Saturday. Jones and Harris were playing in a game of cards for money and a quarrel over the stakes resulted. Harris claims the three men attacked him and he shot them all in self-defense. The wounded men say the shooting was unprovoked.

A Daring Ride.

New York, July 1.—Charles M. Murphy, of the Kings County wheelmen, rode a mile on a bicycle, paced by a locomotive, in 57 4-5 seconds Friday. His course was a two-mile board track on a siding of the Long Island railroad. Murphy followed an engine and a day coach, the latter being provided with a hood, which acted as a wind shield for the rider. The board track was laid near Maywood, L. I., and extended from that station two miles east, and was as nearly perfect to a level as skill could make it. Fully 3,000 people saw Murphy make his daring ride.

Three Youths Drowned.

Waterloo, Ia., July 3.—John Hoover, age 20; Albert Hoover, age 17; Roy Harbaugh, age 11, were drowned in Cedar creek, 2½ miles below town, Sunday afternoon. Harbaugh was bathing, but got beyond his depth, and Albert Hoover attempted a rescue. He had the boy in his arms, but the current was too strong and he had to let go. He failed to get back to shore himself. John Hoover, in the excitement, got beyond his depth, and, being unable to swim, he, too, was drowned.

Praises Otis and His Troops.

Washington, July 3.—Gen. Harrison Gray Otis, of California, who saw considerable active duty in the Philippines, arrived in Washington Sunday. Gen. Otis has nothing but praise for the manner in which Maj. Gen. Otis has managed the campaign against the insurgents in the Philippines. The volunteers, though not enlisting to fight against the Filipinos, have accepted the situation like true Americans and have done their work uncomplainingly.

Peace in Pana.

Pana, Ill., June 30.—The departure of state troops and the closing of the mines has resulted in a complete restoration of peace in Pana. Thursday night was without doubt the quietest that Pana citizens have experienced since the strike began April 1, 1898, and evidences indicate an early return of the prosperous times which predominated in Pana prior to the miners' lockout.

SELFISH MAN PUNISHED.

A Little Train Incident That Gave Justice-Loving Passengers Much Joy.

Passengers on an Atlantic City train a few evenings ago were treated to a spectacle of retributive justice that tickled them famously. The car was crowded, and, as the dust was flying pretty thickly, all the passengers save one had their windows down. This unpleasant exception was a disgruntled-looking party, with a plentiful growth of weedy-looking whiskers, and these he allowed to sway in and out of the window with the gusty zephyrs. Of course, he got none of the dust and cinders, for these always blow in the seat directly behind. Two nicely dressed women occupied these unfortunate quarters, and, after suffering martyrdom for about 20 minutes, one of them asked the "open-window fiend" if he would mind putting the window down. "No!" he replied, gruffly. "It's too warm. If you don't like it change your seat."

In front of the man sat a traveling man, who took in the situation at a glance. Quick as a flash he raised his window, and instanter the flowing facial appendages of the man behind began to perform a most fearful series of gyrations. The dust speckled them, and the wind twisted them. Their owner, after a few moments of such violence, got red in the face and then put his window down. A few moments later he leaned over and asked the other passengers to shut off the draught in a similar manner, but, to the intense amusement and gratification of the balance of the people in the car, who had watched the little comedy all the way through, the drummer, without so much as a twinkle of the eye, replied: "No! It's too warm. If you don't like it change your seat!"—Philadelphia Record.

A Left-Handed Admission.

Three citizens—one a lawyer, one a doctor and one a newspaper man—sat in a back room recently in the gray light of the early dawn. On the table were many empty bottles and a couple of packs of cards. As they sat in silence a rat scurried across the hearth into the darkness beyond. The three men shifted their feet and looked at each other uneasily. After a long pause the lawyer spoke. "I know what you fellows are thinking," he said; "you think I thought I saw a rat, but I didn't!"—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Peace in the Philippines.

Peace in the Philippines is bound to prove profitable to all concerned. Warring conditions, whether they be in the Philippines or in the human stomach, are equally disastrous. If your stomach has rebelled, there is one authority that will quickly subdue it. It is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, and it cures constipation, indigestion, biliousness, nervousness and dyspepsia. See that a private Revenue Stamp covers the neck of the bottle.

Logic.

"You are wanted around the corner," exclaimed the citizen, confidently.

The policeman laughed aloud.

"I know better," he replied. "When I am wanted I can't be found. Since I have been found, I can't possibly be wanted!"

—Quite a number of Delanoites drove over to Watertown in the afternoon of the 4th. A few went to Montrose and seen the ball game between Montrose and Delano.

—The editor returns his grateful thanks to Mrs. Harris Williams for the timely arrival of as fine a bouquet as can be found in this vicinity. Also to Harris himself for a nice mess of new potatoes. An effort is being made to have Rev. John Doran, Rev. Henry Pitt and other eminent and earnest Methodists present. A big turnout is expected, and a good time to be had. Everybody invited.

—A fire cracker accident happened Saturday afternoon which might have caused the loss of Mr. Goetz house but for timely help. Willie Bolton lit a fire cracker and threw it up; he says the wind took it on the roof of his neighbor's house. It soon had the shingles blazing. G. W. B. couldn't get a ladder long enough, so rushed for the City Hall and rang the alarm. The fire company soon did the rest.

—George P. Schaffer's handsome carriage seems to be unlucky. He is now having the fourth new wheel made for it; fortunately the accidents are to the vehicle alone, and not to its occupants. The buggy stood for a long time on the 4th, on the picnic ground with Mrs. Schaffer and Mrs. Al Eppel and baby quietly surveying their surroundings. All at once they concluded to get out and had hardly more than alighted, when crash, the big band wagon ran against the doomed wheel. A fortunate accident, the people had just escaped.

—Almost a serious accident occurred on the fourth while the parade was starting out. Rader's float was driving down White's hill when the horses made a dash for the sidewalk. Miss Rudberg with Ennis Brandon's little girl in her arms jumped off. Mrs. Brandon and Tom Rader jumped. The hardware went up over the sidewalk, while Clarence went over the whole business, fence and all into Miss White's yard. Luckily no one was injured. Tom was somewhat discouraged and thought he would not re enter the parade. But almost before he knew it kind friends had hitched on another team and righted things so he was in the parade all right.

—Three new members of the Board of Education are to be elected Saturday evening, July 15; the outgoing members being L. M. Maxfield, W. H. Frazee and A. E. Johnson, the latter filling the vacancy by appointment. The school depends largely on the Board of Education. The best men for the business should be chosen. Women have a vote. Don't stay at home and then complain that the board don't suit you. Be on hand promptly and help elect the right board. The board re-organizes every year by electing a President, Clerk, and Treasurer. These officers the board selects. If only good men are on the board, only good men will hold these offices, and we will have only the best of schools. That is what we all want. Money enough is spent for school purposes each year to have first class, and we should have such a school.

—C. M. Conzet proved himself a good general manager of parade for July 4.

—We have heard several high compliments for the Marshal of the Day, for the 4th. Thanks! Thanks! The Marshal reciprocates by pronouncing the procession the nicest he ever rode in. And the immense jam of spectators the quietest and best natured crowd he ever saw.

Prof. Emery M. Cunningham, having finished his term of school at Colfax N. D., returned home Sunday morning. He has engaged to teach in Wisconsin this winter.

The Fourth at Delano.

The 4th of July was one of Minnesota's finest summer days. The weather was just right. People were feeling at their best, and early in the morning were astir, and preparing for the grandest celebration our town ever saw. From every direction, afoot, awheel, or horseback came our country cousins. The train from east and west brought visitors, until our population was about five times its normal size.

At 10 a. m. about 70 bicycles, under guidance of Commander Mealey, headed by Fred Peters and his dog, came down the school hill and by the City Hall to the bridge and took down River street as a starter.

Marshal Catlin, the Tribune band, and carriage with Mayor Lohmiller, President Lindsley, speaker F. N. Hendrix and Dr. Lunn headed the fine procession.

Some of the floats were Johnson Bros., millers; C. H. Green & Co., groceries; F. A. Cramer, butcher; Conzet & Darrow, harness; A. L. Mealey, jeweler; Spreckel & Schaust, butcher, E. S. Redmond, undertaker; T. B. Rader & Co., hardware; H. E. Bock, insurance; Adam Horsch, West Side Lumber Yard; Nick Frank, farm machinery; F. T. Zaun, furniture; Delano Creamery; Eagle Printing Co.; J. E. Borsch, merchant; W. H. Frazee, farm machinery; Geiger sisters, millinery; R. M. Walter, Delano dog kennel; Paul Plotnik, farm machinery; Junior Journal Club, young laidies M. E. aid society; Choir; Brownies; States 21 uniformed horseback riders; calithumpians, with corn cake band and other interesting turnouts.

At the grounds Dr. Lumm offered prayer; Mayor Lohmiller made the address of welcome; Roy Wilder read the time honored Declaration of Independence; Hon. F. N. Hendrix delivered the oration of the day. Music, dinner, dancing, games etc., etc. ended up what all united in pronouncing one of the best 4ths they ever spent.

County Cullings.

Montrose heard her new flour mill whistle on July 4, for the first time. The mill is a nice one, 85 barrel and of the plan sifter style. L. St. John, one of the owners says: "Here's where you can get your good flour."

This week's Maple Lake Messenger again has at its head as editor, the name of its founder, Frank T. Hamilton, who has had the office leased for a year. The lease ran out July 1, and we gladly welcome Mr. Hamilton back into the fold, as an able expounder of true Democracy.

Waverly people did some telephoning to Gov. Lind and others one day this week to find out about Charley Flannigan having been shot, but at last accounts could learn nothing about it. The reported shooting of Flannigan probably came from the death of State Senator Flannigan, of Virginia who the papers reported as having been shot in a political difficulty.

The Boxell murder trial is going on at Buffalo. Things so far are looking rather against the defendant Joe Boxell. The testimony goes to show that Joe has told different stories since the murder. That he had blood in his ear, on his coat, and that his hand showed scratches, the day after the murder. Circumstances point strongly toward the defendant as the guilty man. Unless some strong evidence is brought to counteract this and create a doubt in the minds of the jury it looks bad for Joe. The trial is likely to last for some time yet. Pidgeon and Wendell are prosecuting the case. Latham and Cutting defending.

Among Our Exchanges.

Broad Axe: Why don't President McKinley tell the country what we are fighting for in the Philippines.

Aitkin Age: There is no denying the fact that Mr. McKinley's administration is weaker because of Alger and Otis than it was a few months ago. The presidents fidelity to friends appears to outweigh his better judgment as to the needs of the country.

Advocate-Post: Some editors accept the associated press and Washington correspondence as undoubted authority in politics or war. Such editors ought to look over their own publications and see how far kind Providence permits them to vary the truth, and their new light may prevent too speedy and unjust criticism.

A New Burlington Book.

Railroad companies are great patrons not only of the liberal arts but of that modern classical expression that printing, engraving and photography places within the reach of everyone.

The Burlington Route has contributed its share to to the sum total of railroad art and its latest addition will rank among the finest specimens of scenic souvenirs ever issued. It is the Burlington's Book of St. Paul and Minneapolis, a rich oblong volume picturing first the magnificent train, then scenes along the route, then St. Paul and surroundings, followed by Ft. Snelling and Minneapolis. In all respects, composition, letterpress, illustrations and binding, it is a dainty volume.

Copies of this elegant book can be had by enclosing 25 cents (postage stamps not received) to Geo. P. Lyman G. P. A., Burlington Route, St. Paul, Minn.

Expenses of remittance can be saved by several persons combining their orders.

"OLDEST AND BEST"

With the SPECIAL CABLES OF THE NEW YORK HERALD

COPYRIGHT 1899 BY COSMOPOLITAN MAGAZINE

THE delights of an evening spent around a well-lighted reading table are not half understood. An illustrated magazine with its wealth of illustrations, its stories of adventure and love, its descriptions of travel which carry you to the remotest ends of the earth, and its instructive articles for young and old—these are the first requisites for your own enjoyment and the entertainment and proper education of your children.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal,

Both Together One Year for Only $1.80

In this way you secure your own home paper and an illustrated magazine at a price that is only about a fourth of what some of the illustrated magazines sell for. For three years The Cosmopolitan has undisputedly claimed that it reached the largest clientele possessed by any periodical, daily, weekly or monthly, in the world. It was The Cosmopolitan which sent Julian Hawthorne to India to let the world know the real horrors of famine and plague. It was The Cosmopolitan which established at its own cost a great Free Correspondence University which now has over 20,000 students on its rolls. It was The Cosmopolitan which offered a prize of $1,000 for the best horseless carriage and prizes for best plans for public baths, and best arrangement of sewer and pipe systems for cities. It was The Cosmopolitan which set the presidents of great schools and universities seriously discussing the defects of existing educational systems. It is The Cosmopolitan whose enterprise is always in the lead in advancing the world's civilization.

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

All Three Together for Only $2.25

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

Entered as Second-Class Mail Matter at the Post Office in Delano, Minn

THE Oregon Volunteers have got back as far as San Francisco, from the Philippines.

ERNEST MOORES a seventeen year old son of James Moores, of Big Lake, Sherburn county, was killed by lightning, Wednesday.

A GREAT howl has been made because Bank Examiner Pope has closed a St. Paul saving's bank. If the bank is all right it ought soon to resume bnsiness. If the bank has, as is claimed been, for years, running behind, it seems the sooner they figure up the better for its depositors.

GOLDBUG organs are gloating over Dan Lawler's 4th of July speech. The Sherburn County Star News says: "Hon. Daniel Lawler, who was once the Democratic candidate for governor of this state, and whose democracy is recognized as the rock ribbed variety."

That appears to be all that's left of poor Dan's democracy, unless it be the bellows.

Late Literary News.

The women of the country will be vastly interested in the July Cosmopolitan because it has five articles that will especially appeal to them aside from its other high grade features. Charlotte Perkins Stetson, than whom the sex has no stronger nor more intellectual champion, answers Professor Peck's argument made in the June number, and trenchantly proclaims the right of woman to a certain economic place. Charlotte Whitney Eastman, in the prize paper of the second class in the Cosmopolitan series on "The Ideal and practical organization of a home," tells how comfort and happiness may be attained on the seemingly meager salary of two dollars and a half a day. In antithesis to these serious subjects, Frances De Forest discusses chattily some American girls who have married Continental noblemen. This article is illustrated by a large number of very beautiful portraits. Then comes Mrs Laura B. Starr's article on "Tea Drinking in Many Lands," telling of strange customs, ceremonials and appliances used in preparing and drinking this universal beverage. Lastly, some very striking types of Samoan beauty are exhibited by William Churchill.

Its human interest is at all times the chief characteristic of the Cosmopolitan. Balzac and Funston—the one because the centenary of his birth has just been celebrated in France, and the other because of his heroic exploits in the Philippines—are of vital and present interest; and the July Cosmopolitan treats of them. Harry Thurston Peck contributes a scholarly appreciation of 'Balzac and His Work." The article is profusely illustrated with portraits of the great novelist and with a numerous selection from the drawings made at Balzac's direction to illustrate the characters in the "Comedie Humaine." Charles S. Gleed, the well known Kansas lawyer, railway director and former journalist, who has been General Funston's intimate friend for years, tells of the characteristics, adventures and fortunes of this diminutive Kansan, who had many daring exploits to his credit before he joined the volunteer army and went to the Philippines.

An Agricultural Exhibit.

Mr. J. B. Kitchen, a member of the executive committee, has been placed in charge of the Agricultural exhibit at the Greater America Exposition in Omaha, and $2,000 has been set aside for the payment of cash premiums for County displays in this department. There will be twenty five prizes ranging from $400 to $1,000 and every county making a creditable display will recieve at least $200. As many countries have already arranged for collective agricultural exhibits through an inward desire and determination to exploit there best products and resources, this additional incentive will insure a large agricultural display.

County Line: Honestly now, are we adding to or detracting from our national honor by this war with the Filippino?

Waseca Herald: We are being flooded with what is labeled "Christian Science Literature." We beg to be excused. That old book, called the Bible, contains all the Christian Science we have time to read—yea more—and is good enough for us at our time of life. Besides, we are not sick or sickly.

Backbone: Six of the national soldier's homes spent over $234,000 for beer last year in their canteens. Many of the veterans spend more than half of the amount of their pensions for drink. Shame on our Christian (?) country.

Backbone: This editor hopes to have an opportunity to cheer himself hoarse in honor of the returning Thirteenth regiment, without seeming to applaud the man, elected as a Methodist and a Christian, who, rather than array the liquor power against him in his approaching contest for renomination and re-election, allows thousands of our brave soldiers, many of them mere boys removed from the influence of moral and Christian homes for the first time, to be damned body and soul by the accursed canteen and by the wholesale shipment of intoxicating liquors to and sale in our new territory, both of which outrages he could put an end to by a stroke of his pen.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 7, 1899.

It seems that Mr. McKinley is going into the business of Senator making, notwithstanding the ill-fortune of other presidents who have engaged therein. Assistant Secretary of War Meiklejohn is the administration candidate for Senator Thurston's seat, he having stated his intention to retire March 3rd, 1901, when his term will expire. Of all branches of this administration the War Department is the worst from which a candidate for anything could be taken, and the democrats of Nebraska, who already had excellent chances for electing a majority of the next legislature, and Thurston's successor, ought to, and doubtless will, thank Mr. McKinley for making their task easier by backing the Assistant Secretary of War as the administration candidate for the Senate.

The latest gossip in Washington has it that the Alger Pingree mix-up is the personal work of Mr. McKinley, and that the entire influence of the administration is to be used to help Alger defeat Senator McMillan, provided, of course, that the republicans can elect a majority of the next Michigan legislature—a very important provision, by the way. In view of what Alger has done to discredit the administration, this seems to be an astonishing sort of a deal, but those who have closely followed the various Hanna-McKinley political deals from the spring of '96 to the present time find it difficult to be astonished at anything. According to this story, which may or may not be true, Alger has succeeded in convincing Mr. McKinley that all of the attacks on Algerism have been in reality attacks on the entire administration, and that unless Alger can be vindicated by an election to the Senate all these charges will be placed against the McKinley administration by history. It is plain that the support of Alger by the McKinley administration will be an act of treachery to Senators McMillan and Burrows, both of whom have been steadfast administration men, but treachery to friends has long been a Hanna specialty, and administration Senators will not be as badly needed during the remainder of Mr. McKinley's term as they were when the republicans were short of a majority in the Senate.

Democrats are citing the ease with which ex-Gov. Hogg, of Texas, converted the Tammany Fourth of July meeting, which it had been generally understood was to ignore Col. Bryan, if not directly antagonize him, into a wildly enthusiastic Bryan gathering as an evidence of the wonderful hold that Col Bryan has upon the rank and file of the democratic party—the men who cast the votes, but do not attempt to engage in candidate making. That meeting may prove a valuable object lesson to those who now imagine the possibility of preventing the National Convention registering the will of the democratic party at large.

A New Mexican who attended the recent Rough Riders reunion in that Territory has let a brand new Roosevelt cat out of the bag. He says that Gov. "Teddy" told his old comrades that a brigade of Rough Riders would be enlisted for the Philippines at once, and that he could command it if he decided it advisable to resign the governorship of New York to take it. Nobody in Washington had heard a word of all this until the arrival of the gentlemen from New Mexico. It may be merely a product of the "silly season", or it may be true, but if Gov. Roosevelt is willing to resign his present exalted position to go to the Philippines, he will surprise those who give him credit for knowing how to hold on to a good thing when he has it.

There is a hitch somewhere in the programme arranged for the giving out of concessions for various sorts of franchises in Porto Rico, and it was this week semi-officially announced that the War Department would probably not grant any concessions on the island in advance of Congressional action. This announcement would have aroused more public interest if it had not been known that Mr. McKinley was almost, if not quite persuaded of his right to promulgate a code of laws for Porto Rico in advance of Congressional action. In fact it is understood that the Insular Commission, which ended its official life with the close of the last fiscal year, has been re-habilitated by Mr. McKinley for the express purpose of preparing a code of laws for Porto Rico. If the administration assumes the right to make laws for Porto Rico, it will hardly leave the granting of concessions to Congress especially when men to whom it is under political obligations are after those concessions.

It has been officially announced that all of the new volunteer officers above the rank of Captain are to be taken from the regular army; that one captain and one first lieutenant are to be appointed from the volunteers from each state, and all the second lieutenants from the volunteers at large.

Antonio and Gabrielle

CHAPTER I.

PALERMO was not yet awake. Her eyes were still heavy with the night's slumbers, though here and there a shutter was flung open as the donkey-cart rattled past.

In the streets the gray mist of the sea still lingered, but the sun was struggling through and the golden glow on the red-roofed houses gave promise of a glorious day. The girl in the cart rubbed her eyes as she raised her head from the blanket and smiled:

"We will have a good day, Petro," she said.

Petro nodded, and hit the donkey with the whip. It mattered little to him whether or not the sun shone, even if it were the day of Palermo's street fair. Wine tasted as well in the tavern as under the trees, and he knew the donkey could find the road back to Castlemonte though the clouds poured rain all day.

But the girl bubbled over with happiness. She sniffed the damp air and began to sing. Petro scowled. Finally, as they came upon a square and he drew up to let the donkey stick his nose in the fountain, he said:

"I will go to the tavern, Gabrielle. You can walk to the plaza.

With that the girl jumped to the ground and took the basket he handed to her. Across the square she walked, then down a narrow street and, again turning, the boulevard, already decorated with flags and streamers, lay before her.

A few early arrivals like herself were there. Nearly all were girls, and they, too, carried baskets. Here and there a man was stretching a gay awning over the street or dusting his wares.

Gabrielle kept on her way until she reached a little shop, where a pleasant-faced old man was taking down the gratings. As he caught sight of her he came down from the bench and kissed her on the cheek.

"You are early, Gabrielle," he said.

"I have come an hour before you said so that I might help you," she answered. And, taking off her straw bonnet, she began to fly about the place, changing this vase into a new light and placing the little pieces of statuary along the shelves so that they would show to better advantage. She talked in a merry way as she moved about, and the old man smiled as he watched her. He was proud of this niece of his; proud of her pretty face, which always brought customers to his shop, and prouder still of her love.

"GIVE ME ONE KISS," HE INSISTED.

As the morning progressed, the crowds began to gather in the plaza. Fair day in Palermo is a gala event. Every man and woman puts on his and her best, bright with ribbons and decorated with flowers. They walk about in the morning, looking into the booths and eating sweetmeats. In the afternoon there are cock fights, and Punch and Judy shows and fencing bouts. Much wine is drunk, and as evening comes on there are brawls and fights at the tavern.

This day was like all other fair days. By nightfall the streets were full of roisterers. But Gabrielle did not hesitate to start out alone when Petro failed to come after her.

From the tavern came shouts and songs, but she did not heed. Straight into the drinking-room she went, and there, sure enough, was Petro, sleepy with drink, but trying to keep his eyes open, so that he could pour more of the stuff down his throat.

Gabrielle pulled him by the sleeve. He looked at her in a dazed sort of way, but made no effort to rise from the table.

"Petro, it is time we were starting," she said. "It is late, and it will take us three hours to travel the road in the dark."

Petro still stared vacantly. But the others at the table were not so stupid when they saw a pretty girl. One of them caught Gabrielle by the wrist, and, drawing her toward him, tried to kiss her. She screamed and struggled to break from him, but he held her.

"Come, now, little one; give me one kiss," he insisted.

"Petro, help me," she cried. Petro did not move.

But from another corner of the room came unexpected aid. A boy dressed like a goatherd ran up. In one hand was his whip, and with it he struck the drunkard in the face. With a cry of rage, the fellow sprang up, releasing Gabrielle's arm. The boy stepped aside as he sprang at him, and, sticking his foot out, tripped him so that he fell sprawling on the floor. A moment later the boy had seized the girl and they were running from the place.

In the tavern yard were many trees and in their shadow they sat down. Both were panting, but more from excitement than exertion. They said nothing for a time, but listened to the men in the room they had just left. They were quarreling. They cursed each other in angry tones, and finally the click of steel told the pair under the trees that they were fighting. There was a cry of pain, an oath or two, and then from the tavern door the brawlers ran, falling over each other in their drunken haste to escape from the place.

Then all was still. The boy spoke after a little.

"Shall we see what it is?" he asked the girl. He took her hand and they walked to the door. There was no living person there. The benches and tables were overturned; broken glasses were strewn over the floor, and in the center of the room upon his back and with the blood streaming from a dozen wounds lay Petro. The girl began to sob. Her companion tried to comfort her.

"It is useless to cry," said he. "Come, I will take you home."

CHAPTER II.

High on the hills above Palermo is Castlemonte. It is a ruin now and no one has lived there since Marquis Borgaizi died, ten years ago. But at that time it was the oldest and one of the grandest castles in Sicily. Travelers always visited the place, as they do yet, but then the marquis was always there to receive them and to serve a great dinner under the trees.

It was to this place, upon whose lands her father was a tenant, that Gabrielle and her cavalier came just as day was breaking. No one was yet astir and the girl showed the boy where to put the donkey and cart. Then he followed her to her home, a cabin on the hillside.

There was excitement enough when Gabrielle's parents learned what had happened. It was useless to weep for Petro was not worth much. And here was somebody to take his place—not so big and strong, perhaps, but he would grow. As Gabrielle said he had saved her and wanted him to remain, a place was given him at the table and he was shown to Petro's bunk in the shed. Thus it was that Antonio became a member of the household. After that he took the sheep out to their pasturage in the morning and brought them back as the sun was falling like a golden meteor into the Mediterranean.

The vineyards were not then ready to give out their harvest and Gabrielle had little to do. She used to wander out upon the hillside, where Antonio was watching and talk to him. It was beautiful there. For hours they would lie on the grass and look up into the clear blue of the heavens or watch Mount Etna as the little line of black smoke curled through the air and finally vanished. Many confidences were exchanged there, and Gabrielle promised the boy that when they were a few years older the priest in the chapel should marry them and they would have a cottage of their own.

Then there was a war and Italy was filled with armies. It was not for long, but when it was all over there was much trouble caused by bands of men which had been organized in the war. Gabrielle's father was a member of one of these societies. He violated some oath and was compelled to flee for his life. For many months he hid in the hills, occasionally visiting his family.

One night he came to them and said he was going to America. He kissed them good-by and started for a seaport town. That day his body was found alongside the road to Castlemonte. He had been stabbed in the back. Gabrielle and her mother did not remain in Sicily after that. The mother had relatives in this country, and four years ago she left her Italy and came to the United States. Antonio, lonesome and heart-broken, was left behind.

His only consolation was the promise Gabrielle had given him just before she said farewell. It was that she would never marry anyone but him. So he worked harder than before, and although he heard no word from her, he felt that they would surely meet again some day.

CHAPTER III.

The other day a train from Chicago brought a car into the Union station that was filled with emigrants. They were bound for New Orleans, and they had nearly four hours to wait before their train left. They spent the time in the Midway, walking about or sitting on their bundles. Shortly after six o'clock another train bearing emigrants rolled into the train shed. They mingled with the earlier arrivals, and many found old friends whom they had not seen for years.

Near the baggage office, however, sat a young man who took no part in the conversation about him. He seemed to take no interest in what was going on.

Two women, one well along in life, the other many years younger, walked down the Midway. They looked at the emigrant who sat apart from the others. He, his attention attracted by their stopping, looked up. For a minute there was no word spoken. Then, with a glad cry, the young woman rushed up to him and, flinging her arms around his neck, began to kiss him.

People on the Midway stopped and wondered. They did not know that Gabrielle and Antonio had met again.

It was not a long story to tell. Gabrielle went to Chicago with her mother when they arrived in this country. She wrote to her old home, but none of her letters were ever answered and she ceased to write. She and her mother, she said, had decided to go to her uncle's home in New Orleans.

"Then you are going away from me so soon?" asked Antonio.

"I suppose I must," said Gabrielle.

"It is not necessary," answered he. "I am going to Chicago. I have work there. You might go with me."

Gabrielle looked down at the pavement. "Yes, if you want me."

Of course, the girl's mother objected, but Antonio finally won her consent, and she decided to return with them. And in the list of marriage licenses issued in Chicago last Tuesday appear these names: Antonio Martini, 1420 West Halstead street; Gabrielle Costi, 1420 West Halsted street.

Perilous Times.

Know all men by these presents that in the last days perilous times shall come, men shall be lovers of pleasure more than of God, they shall heap together for themselves treasures for the last days. They will say of themselves we are strong and mighty and we will girdle the earth with a navy, and the tramp of soldiery shall be heard at every cross roads.

The Peace Conference was a farce just as it was intended to be.

Who is making money out of this Philippine war? Transportation companies are conveying soldiers back and forth from the United States to the Philippine islands at a big profit, and the United States is paying the freight. Some people may think this does not amount to much but just stop and make a few figures and you will soon find out. But even this is only a drop in the bucket. There is the furnishing of army supplies, such as guns and equipments, clothing, amunition, hard tack, and the fragrant embalmed beef and many other things too numerous to mention, and all those contractors are making big money out of it, while the poor man is paying the freight.

In the next presidential campaign there will be several issues and the party now in power will be put on the defense in every one of them. The money question will come up just as it did in 1896. It is no more dead than was the slavery question when James Buchanan was elected president. The war question will come up. The question of tariff will come up. Trusts and combinations will be brought up and the party now in power must prove to the people that all these things have been a blessing to us as a people and not a curse, and the question is, can they do it? It is a fact that the party now in power has the right of way (and they say possession is nine points in law) they have all the civil offices and they have the military with them; the trusts and combines, and greatest of them all the money power, and can all this be overcome by any other party is the question. If this war with the Philippinos had been a national necessity, then there would be no cause for complaint, but thousands of Republicans and Democrats say it was not; and who must bear the burden of responsibility of this great expenditure and the shedding of blood; the present administration? Some people claim those islanders are quite well civilized and fit subjects for self government. Then what in the name of the Lord does our people want to be there for, killing them in order to civilize them. Some say God is in this war and it is a righteous cause. From the day Adam left the Garden of Eden we have had war but the Devil was always the instigator and agressor of the crime, he was the first cause. The sins of a nation will destroy it by and by. It has been so in the past and will continue as long as time lasts.

Mr. Editor, I am in favor of the President of the United States serving but one term. That will do away with laying plans for a second term soon as he is inaugurated for the first. Our politics are in such an unsettled state that the people are in constant confusion all the time. There is no rest day nor night. Should this thing continue many years longer there must eventually come a re-adjustment of things.

During the presidential campaign of 1896, all the traveling men were for a high protective tariff and a single gold standard. What has been the result? About 75,000 of those fellows have been thrown out of employment, sustaining a loss to themselves, hotels, and railroads, and putting money out of circulation and making wealth more centralized, and all this has been brought about by a high protective tariff, forming of trusts, and the money power. And the poor fellows (the traveling men) have no body to blame only their own stupidity. Their eyesight was short.

It seems some of the people would like to make a God of Admiral Dewey. Did he do any more than hundreds of others could have done. He is only mortal and not infallible.

Queen Natalie, late of Servia, will, it is said, "devote her saddened life to literature," and is now said to be composing an autobiographical romance—sad, of course. Readers of romance would be glad if all persons, royal and otherwise, who are moved to embalm their woes in print would experience a change of heart and go to raising vegetables.

Not long ago a little orphan boy working for a Reno (Kan.) farmer found a bridge on the Hutchison Southern railway on fire, and he ran to the station and gave the alarm. The other day the railway officials sent him a letter of thanks containing a system pass and a check for more money than he thought was in the whole world.

Prof. Winchell, state geologist of Minnesota, holds that the so-called greenstones of that state are the oldest known rock, older than the Canadian laurentian, heretofore held to be the dean of the faculty of rocks. He considers the greenstones to be the bottom rocks of the geological crust of the earth formed from the molten mass by the earliest solidification.

It would appear that the life of a man in France is worth four times as much as it is in the United States. When a man is killed by a railroad in this country the most that the law ever awards his relatives in damages is $5,000. But a French court has awarded $20,000 damages to the wife of a passenger lost in the Bourgogne, on the ground that the captain of the vessel neglected his duty.

The Yellowstone National park is jealous of the active volcanoes, earthquakes and cyclones produced by other sections of the world, and a dispatch from there tells of the breaking out of a new geyser. Just north of the noted Fountain Geyser there is a crater which has always been considered nothing but a pool, but it awoke from its sleep and for an hour spouted a column of water 250 feet high.

Strangely enough the price of horses is steadily rising, notwithstanding the bicycle, the automobile and other rivals. When this advance began a year ago it was accounted for by the outbreak of the war, but certainly the war has nothing to do with the continuance of the rise. There must be some other explanation, and the best one available is that the horse is too good a friend to man to be lightly thrust aside in favor of the new-fangled machines. It is the horse's turn to laugh.

The famous Schenck chain letter has at last been broken. Since May, 1898, Miss Nathalie Schenck, of Babylon, L. I., has received from one to twelve thousand letters per day, each inclosing a dime, and all in all she has turned over $25,000 to the Red Cross society. Miss Schenck began by writing a letter to each of four friends, asking them to send her ten cents for the purchase of ice and luxuries for the sick soldiers. She asked each friend to write similar letters to four friends, making similar requests of them. That was the beginning.

Amidst the hue and cry the world over against that large but more or less unfortunate portion of humanity which does not wear shirt waists it is encouraging to find some woman endowed with intelligence, courage and charity who asserts, with a positiveness born of conviction, that there is some good in man. Such a woman is Mme. Antoinette Stirling, who declared in the woman's congress in London that she thought the speeches were too severe upon the opposite sex, and that a woman, to realize the true value of a man, had only to lose him.

The Russian government has, after many years' discussion, determined to abandon the old-style, or Julian-Greek, calendar, which is 12 days behind the new universal system of the Gregorian cycle, and which has been a source of annoyance to Russians doing business with other countries, who were compelled to use both dates, as well as to foreigners trading with Russia. The St. Petersburg Astronomical society has taken the matter in hand and will appoint a commission of 16 persons, who will arrange all details. The new style will go into effect in 1901.

FINISH THEIR WORK

Closing Session of the Christian Endeavor Convention at Detroit.

Messages from Distinguished Personages Are Read—Work of the Delegates on Saturday—Memorial to Congress.

Detroit, Mich., July 10.—A decidedly Anglo-Saxon spirit was imparted to the speeches at the Christian Endeavor "peace jubilee" held on Belle isle Saturday afternoon. All the speakers were representatives of English-speaking countries, American and British, and all sentiments favoring greater friendship and closer relations between the United States and British subjects were heartily cheered. Wet, raw weather through the day caused considerable curtailment of the attendance, but at four o'clock the sun had shone forth and several thousand endeavorers grouped about the speakers' stand, erected in one of the pretty groves of Detroit's island park.

President Clarke, who presided, spied Mayor Maybury in the crowd and called him to the platform. In a short speech made later the mayor spoke of the appropriateness of Belle isle as the scene of a peace meeting, since history had recorded that all Indians had always held the island sacred to peace, since no blood of either savage or civilized man had ever been shed in violence there, although numerous battles had been fought elsewhere throughout the same region.

Meetings in the Big Tents.

Saturday morning's "quiet hour" in Tent Endeavor was more largely attended than either of the previous ones. The spirit of genuine piety is especially apparent in these early morning meetings as compared with the more outwardly enthusiastic gatherings of later hours.

The last meetings in the big tents before Monday opened in Tents Endeavor and Williston at ten o'clock with the usual great crowds on hand and the singing as spirited as ever. The main topic of the day in Tent Endeavor was "Saved to Serve."

"Self-consecration" was the general theme in Tent Williston.

The presiding officer in Tent Endeavor was Rev. J. Z. Tyler, of Cleveland. Rev. Dr. McLaurin, of Brooklyn, led the devotions. Various topics relating to the general theme of service were treated.

The Robert's Resolution.

In both tents, resolutions which had been adopted by the board of trustees were read, calling upon all Endeavorers to do their utmost toward preventing Congressman Roberts, of Utah, from assuming his seat in congress.

Accompanying the resolution was submitted a memorial to congress, to be signed by endeavorers, urging utmost endeavor towards accomplishing Mr. Roberts' Expulsion.

On Sunday.

Pulpits of the various Protestant churches in the city were occupied by pastors in attendance at the Christian Endeavor convention. The features of the afternoon were crowded meetings for men, and for women, exclusively, and a Sabbath observance rally. Thirty-five hundred men filled the floor and galleries of Light Guard armory at the men's meeting. The men sang with fine enthusiasm, and a very large proportion of them publicly pledged that the occasion would be with them a landmark from which would date a better life. Secretary Baer conducted the meeting and Rev. Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman, of New York, preached.

The Closing Session.

Detroit, Mich., July 11.—The eighteenth international convention of Christian Endeavor closed Monday night amid scenes of impressive solemnity attending the utterances of "The Last Word" by the president and secretary in each of the great tents, respectively, following responses from each state and country represented, and last exhortations from M. E. Bishop Vincent, of Kansas, and Evangelist Chapman, of New York. Several telegrams and cablegrams were read in both tents, including those sent by President McKinley, Queen Victoria and the American peace commission at The Hague. The reading of the cablegram from Hon. Andrew D. White, president of the American peace commissioners at The Hague, brought out storms of applause.

Mr. White acknowledged the receipt of a message from President Francis E. Clark, and replied by stating that he was pleased to note the success of the campaign for peace in the consummation of the plan for an international arbitration tribunal.

Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman preached the concluding sermon in Tent Endeavor from the texts Luke 6:6 and 10—the story of the healing of the man with a withered hand. The closing address in Tent Williston was made by Bishop John H. Vincent, of the M. E. Church.

Burned to Death.

New York, July 11.—Abraham Finkelstein was fatally burned through the explosion of turpentine in his painters' supplies and wall paper store in this city and his wife and son were burned to death. Finkelstein died this (Tuesday) morning. A can of turpentine that Finkelstein was using near a gas stove exploded and bespattered him with flames. His wife seized him by the arm and dragged him into the hall. It is supposed they became confused there with the smoke and darkness and he happened to run in the right direction, while the woman went back and fell at the foot of the stairs, where she and the child, to which she clung, perished.

Bug's Bite Causes Death.

Trenton, N. J., July 10. — Helen Lersch, the two-year-old daughter of Frank Lersch, died here Saturday night from the effects of a kissing-bug bite. The little one was under treatment by Drs. Griffith and Rogers. Dr. Griffith said that the child's death undoubtedly was produced by a kissing bug. About a week ago the little one ran complaining to its mother that it was hurt. There was a red spot on the child's leg, which did not heal with the application of witch hazel, and doctors were called.

Brother of Czar Dead.

St. Petersburg, July 11.—Grand Duke George, brother of the czar, is dead. Grand Duke George of Russia was born April 27, 1871, and had been in ill health for a number of years, suffering from consumption.

IN NEED OF FOOD.

Sufferers from Recent Texas Floods Number Nearly 100,000—Loss of Life.

St. Louis, July 10.—A special to the Post-Dispatch from Dallas, Tex., says: Gov. Sayers in a talk over the long distance telephone from Austin requested the press to state that in addition to money all character of clothing and provisions are needed in the flood district. He suggests that parties contributing such articles communicate with him before shipments are made in order that intelligent distribution may be had. There are from 75,000 to 100,000 persons needing relief. About $100,000 in money and supplies have been contributed, but many times that much is needed.

The governor figures the reports out to show that the loss of life has been comparatively small, not exceeding 50 persons.

Another source gives the following estimates: Deaths, 38; destitute sufferers, 25,000; land under water, 10,000 to 15,000 square miles; property losses, $6,000,000.

St. Louis, July 10.—A special to the Republic from Caldwell, Tex., says: Estimates made by competent cotton buyers as to the loss resulting from damage to the cotton crop in the Brazos, badly tax the credulity of persons not familiar with the flood conditions. Not less than 200 square miles of cotton-bearing land has been flooded. Every acre of it would have produced a big bale. Basing the loss on five-cent figures, the crop destroyed on these plantations was worth almost $4,000,000. Well-informed persons are of the opinion that this unprecedented rise in the Brazos has cost the people of Texas little less than $10,000,000. Thousands of mules have been drowned, all of the domestic animals have perished, rented houses and negro quarters have been swept away. The gins are nearly all ruined, and hundreds of plantation stores carrying big stocks of general merchandise are under water. Not a bridge has escaped, and not a train has passed over the Santa Fe railroad between Brenham and Milino for a week.

COLUMBIA WINS.

New Cup Defender Proves Herself Speedier Than Her Opponent, the Defender.

New York, July 7.—Over a triangular course of 30 miles in comparatively light winds the new Iselin-Morgan yacht Columbia Thursday vanquished the Vanderbilt yacht Defender and convinced the yachtsmen who saw the royal struggle that she is worthy of defending the precious trophy which Sir Thomas Lipton and his merry tars hope to take back with them in the Shamrock next fall. The Columbia's forestaysail and club topsail are anything but perfect and cracked in the wind like a teamster's whip, demonstrating that in a general way she will need a good deal of tuning up. Yet, based upon the showing she made as a better boat than the Defender under adverse conditions, the nautical sharps are strongly convinced that Sir Thomas will sail home without the silver mug, the possession of which has given us the yachting supremacy of the world since 1851.

The Columbia won the race by a margin of three minutes fifty-three seconds (unofficial time). There is no doubt she would have won by a larger margin if her sails had fitted as well as the Defender's.

New York, July 10.—At last the big sloop yachts Columbia and Defender have met in a battle royal that has been satisfactory to all concerned. In a strong and fairly steady breeze and smooth water, they sailed over a course of about 26 miles Saturday, and in covering that distance the Columbia fairly and squarely outsailed the Defender by 3 minutes 13 seconds actual time.

DEATH OF ROBERT BONNER.

The Well-Known Publisher and Owner of Noted Horses Passes Away in New York.

New York, July 7.—Robert Bonner, publisher of the New York Ledger and owner of famous horses, died at his home in this city at 7:40 Thursday night. Mr. Bonner had been ill for some months, but was able to be about until about ten days ago. Death was due to a general breaking down of the system.

[Mr. Bonner was born near Londonderry, Ireland, 1824. He came to this country when a boy, and soon afterward entered the office of the Hartford Courant. He learned to set type. He came to New York and was able to buy the Merchants' Ledger. He had a great knack of advertising, and the paper proved a gold mine. Mr. Bonner numbered many famous men among his subsequent contributors to the Ledger, such as Dickens, Everett, Bancroft, Bryant, Beecher, Tyng, Hall and McClintock. He paid Henry Ward Beecher $30,000 for his novel "Norwood." By these methods the Ledger spread his fame as a publisher. In 1887 he retired from active business, to take care of his health, and gave the paper to his sons. Mr. Bonner expended $600,000 on his trotting horse hobby, and owned many great record-breakers, such as Dexter, Rarus, Maud S, and Sunol.]

Appeal to Western Farmers.

Houston, Tex., July 11.—The local relief committee which is caring for the 25,000 small farmers whose crops were utterly destroyed by the recent flood in the valley of the Brazos and its many tributaries makes an appeal to the farmers of the west. The only crop which these people can raise is early maturing corn, and there is no seed for it in this country. The corn that is left is not fit for seed, as it cannot mature in time. The local committee, of which ex-United States District Attorney Taliaferro is chairman, asks for seed corn of the early maturing kind to be distributed to the stricken farmers.

Becker Must Die.

Chicago, July 7.—August Becker, the stock yards butcher, was found guilty of the murder of his first wife. His punishment was fixed at death. The jury was out only a short time. Becker showed apparent indifference. The father of Becker's second wife, George Sutterlin, accused by Becker of being the murderer, did not attend the closing scene. Sutterlin's daughter, Becker's second wife, was also absent. Becker and Michael Rollinger, who is also under the death penalty for wife murder, may be sentenced to hang together. Rollinger, like Becker, wanted to be single so as to marry again.

ALMOST EXTERMINATED.

Six Members of a Family of Seven Killed at a Railway Crossing.

Columbus, O., July 10.—All but one of the seven members of the family of William Reinhard, of this city, were killed and the remaining one was badly injured by a Big Four passenger train Sunday afternoon. The dead are: William Reinhard, aged 41; Rachel Reinhard, aged 40; William Reinhard, aged 12; Arthur Reinhard, aged nine; Karl Reinhard, aged seven; Edward Reinhard, aged five. The injured: Clarence Reinhard, aged 14, collar bone broken.

The accident occurred at the Woodward avenue crossing of the Big Four railroad and opposite the southwest entrance to the state fair grounds. Mr. and Mrs. Reinhard and their five children, who resided at 256 Donaldson street, were out for an afternoon drive in a surrey.

They approached the railroad crossing from the east, arriving at that point just as the west-bound passenger train, arriving here at 3:15 p. m. was due. An eyewitness of the accident said he saw the surrey crossing the tracks, and at the same instant it was struck by the train. The vehicle was knocked into splinters, and Mr. and Mrs. Reinhard and Arthur and Karl were killed outright. Edward and William were so badly injured that they died after being removed to a hospital. Clarence sustained a fractured collar bone and other lesser injuries, but it is believed he will recover. The horse which was attached to the surrey was literally ground to pieces. It is not known whether any of the members of the unfortunate family were aware of the approach of the train, but the circumstances indicate that they were not. The crossing has long been regarded as a dangerous one, view of incoming trains being obscured by a high fence around the fair grounds. The train was running at a high speed.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 10.—A carriage containing William M. Diem and Miss Lizzie Prequesel was struck by a Wabash train Sunday night and both of the occupants were instantly killed.

REVIEW OF TRADE.

Business Situation as Reported by Dun—Decrease in Small Failures.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: "Failures of the first half of 1899 with banking and financial included as in all other accounts published, were 4,884, with liabilities of $49,664,661. Commercial failures were 4,853, with liabilities of $42,062,933, of which $16,723,253 were manufacturing and $22,011,364 were trading. In the second quarter failures were the smallest ever reported in that quarter of 25 years for which quarterly reports have been made by this agency. The average per failure, $7,165, is the smallest ever known in any quarter; the average per firm in business, $12.20, and the ratio of defaulted liabilities to solvent exchanges, 62 cents per $1,000, are both the smallest ever known in any quarter. In 10 out of 14 branches of manufacturing, failures were smaller than in the same quarter of 4 of the previous 5 years, and in 13 out of 14 branches. The larger failures for $100,000 or more were only 2 in trading for $224,088 less than a tenth of the smallest previous year, and only 15 in all for $2,417,189, from a fifth to a tenth of previous years. The decrease in small failures is worth especial study.

"Wheat declined three-eighths of a cent, exports being but 2,250,021 bushels for the week, flour included, against 2,642,139 last year, for both coasts, although western receipts were 3,861,523 bushels, against 618,492 last year. If the farmers actually carried over 65,000,000 bushels, or more, a year ago, after $1.25 to $2 per bushel had been paid at Chicago for some months, as one farming journal estimates, they need the education which they are getting, but the claim still entirely falls to account for their liberal spilling this year at lower prices. Contradictory guesses and hopes continue, but this year is very hard on predictions. Corn exports are twice last year's, 2,378,708 bushels against 1,268,255 last year for the week, and the price declined a quarter.

"The volume of business for the first week of July has been 26 per cent. greater than last year, and 49.9 per cent. greater than in 1892.

"Scarcity and high prices of iron and its products can no longer be reckoned evidence of good times.

"Failures for the week have been 119 in the United States, against 229 last year, and 20 in Canada, against 17 last year."

Makes a Frank Admission.

New York, July 11.—The report of Capt. Watkins of the stranding of the American line steamship Paris was made public Monday by the local board of steamboat inspectors. Capt. Watkins makes no attempt to evade responsibility for the accident, but, on the contrary, says frankly that the stranding of the ship was the result of an unaccountable error on his part. The accident, he says, was not due to any want of thought or anxiety about his vessel, but resulted from a mistake he made in calculating the position of the ship. The local inspectors have suspended Capt. Watkins' license as master of ocean steamers for two years.

LETTER TO MRS. PINKHAM.

[LETTER TO MRS. PINKHAM NO. 67,104]

"I cannot express my gratitude to you for the good that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I have taken five bottles of the Compound and two boxes of Liver Pills and feel better in every respect. I had suffered for years with dropsy; the veins in my limbs burst, caused from the pressure of the water. I had the worst kind of kidney trouble, fainting spells, and I could not stand long at a time. I also had female weakness and the doctor said there was a tumor in my left side. The pains I had to stand were something dreadful. A friend handed me a little book of yours, so I got your medicine and it has saved my life. I felt better from the first bottle. The bloating and the tumors have all gone and I do not suffer any pain. I am still using the Vegetable Compound and hope others may find relief as I have done from its use."—MISS N. J. LOCKHEART, BOX 16, ELIZABETH, PA.

Only the women who have suffered with female troubles can fully appreciate the gratitude of those who have been restored to health.

Reform Press Bureau.
ST. PAUL, July 10, 1899.

No event of the administration of Governor Lind to this point has perhaps been of so great interest as the action taken by the governor regarding the Miller warfare on him for the veto of Senate File 24, the bill making proceedings before the grain and warehouse commissions court records in cases of appeal. No party, or faction of one, was ever driven into so ridiculous a situation as the Republican party, or such elements of it as were misled into attack on the governor in that case.

As stated last week, Senator Miller in the Rock County Herald retracted the base charges he had made against Governor Lind, on receipt of the governor's demand therefor, and the senator, as promised, published the governor's letter in full. The senator in doing so made a show of defending his position as to the operation of the measure, but his statements were specious and without effect, and in most cases where he quoted authorities or opinions they were without name or identity, which weakened or nullified his effort.

Wide publication has been given Governor Lind's communication, it having been published by the state press generally, regardless of politics, a sign of fairness that is not usual. Few papers have been rabid enough to refuse this courtesy to the governor, in a matter of so much concern. Numerous Republican papers have borne down hard on Senator Miller for, as they charge, misleading them both as to the facts and the effect of the action for which Governor Lind was criticised.

As it was the charges of unworthy motives that led Governor Lind to depart from his usual course and give attention to the case, we herewith give the terms in which Senator Miller made his full and explicit retraction, as follows:

In his issue of June 23, upon receipt of the governor's demand, Senator Miller said:

"The statement made in these columns June 9 respecting the Great Northern Railroad company, and any other statements which have appeared in previous or subsequent issues of this paper to the effect that the action of Governor Lind in omitting to sign Senate File No. 24 was in any way influenced by that company or any of its officers, is hereby retracted."

In his next issue, publishing the governor's letter, he said:

"Senate File No. 24.

"After reading the letter of Governor Lind, published elsewhere in this issue, The Herald is convinced that the governor vetoed Senate File No. 24 under an honest mistake as to the legal effect of the bill. Being so convinced The Herald makes an absolute and unequivocal retraction of every statement in any issue of this paper which directly or indirectly charges or insinuates that Governor Lind acted corruptly or was actuated by improper motives or that he was influenced by any individual or corporation in omitting to sign Senate File No. 24."

The responsibility of the Luverne Herald in leading its Republican brethren astray is thus expressed by Senator Miller's contemporary, the Luverne Journal, Republican, of which W. H. Workman is the editor. The Journal says:

"If there was any one in the Republican party in position to know the truth or falsity of the statements published, it was Senator Miller, hence the article in question was taken as the truth by the Republicans and many Democrats throughout the state, and it was published by Republican papers and generally circulated as a fact that the Great Northern Railroad company influenced the Governor's action in the matter. In fact one paper dubbed him the 'Great Northern Governor.' It must be very humiliating to those who have circulated the report to find out that it was not true and had no foundation in fact."

Such efforts to bring the Governor into disrepute are a disgrace to respectable journalism and should not be countenanced for one minute by members of the Republican party.

There has been no end of comment on Senator Miller's concealment of the "authorities" cited, but no where located, and in some cases it is asserted, by Republicans, too, that the "blind" authority must be the same as was behind the bill when up in the senate, which no one could definitely locate, hence the impression gaining ground that if the truth is ever ascertained, it will be found that the railways were directing the action, from first to last. At any rate it is a clear case for Diederick Dinkenspiel to discover the "Man Behindt der Horizon," already yet.

The President's forced determination to raise a few more men to go against Aguinaldo, revives interest in the Twin City recruiting stations, and they will be watched to see how the patriots who want to hang their betters for criticizing the policy which has plunged us into a war of foreign conquest rush to enlist. Heretofore Uncle Sam has enlisted several men a week when rushing the business, but that was before the local "fire-eaters" got themselves aroused. Probably the discrimination against the Northwest in wiping Fort Snelling from the list of official stations will not help the business here. Besides, if the stories of Trust prosperity are half true men are so well employed and making so much money that they will hesitate to enlist in so unpopular a war as this is. But we shall see.

"Advance and give the countersign," sang out the American sentinel. The poor, barefoot Filipino crept forward with bowed head and muttered: "All men are born free and equal."

But as this declaration was not the proper password, and because it conveyed a meaning decidedly revolutionary and antagonistic to revised Americanism, the sentinel, after a preliminary discharge, cut the twenty-sixth notch on the stock of his rifle.

Not only the Filipino stumbled on the countersign, but the reading of the Declaration of Independence was numerously dispensed with this Fourth. It couldn't gibe with imperialism.

W. J. Bryan, in his recent sermon in the New York Journal: "What is the attitude of the Christian toward the trust? (The money trust.) Can he be a monometalist? Can he run a corner in loaves and fishes without breaking the Golden rule? Will the Standard Oil and the Water of Life mix?"

During the week wheat has crept back to about as low a point as it has been for several months, the average price at interior Minnesota points being under 60 cents. Silver is close to the same figure, low wheat going along with low silver, the same as par silver would give us dollar wheat and better.

And speaking of gold trust prosperity it seems that the Winona Savings bank celebrates it by reducing interest on deposits to 2 per cent, provided they stand for six months. This is an indication of the condition of banking business where it is conducted without special benefits such as the national banks receive. In fact, if there is a line of business not receiving special favors in some manner, due directly or indirectly to legislatien or administration, that is profitable or more profitable than it has been, will some gold standard advocates please point it out?

The Savings Bank of St. Paul, having basked in the same kind of prosperty, has been closed by Examiner Pope. It appears that the bank has not earned a penny's profit for a long time, although it bravely forced dividends to keep up appearances. Examiner Pope, having exercised his utmost leniency for some months, finally refused to let the depositors and the public be further jeopardized. With resources of over $1,600,000 the bank had on hand at closing only $33,697 in cash and some $50,000 otherwise available, with which to pay over $1,000,000 deposits. The bank's money is largely in mortgages and real estate whose values have been squeezed to death under the gold standard. Examiner Pope, painful as his duty may be, unflinchingly discharges it in protecting the people.

Congressman Morris, as a crowning act of his second and last term, will see the town of Cass Lake destroyed, the people who have settled there in good faith under the Nelson law driven into beggary, perhaps, and settlement of a vast region of the state retarded, all that the dignity of one of McKinley's departments shall be preserved. Yes, Cass Lake must go. Cass Lake delendum est!

A specimen of the efficiency and ability of the departments of the Lind administration is the successful encampment of the State National Guard under Adjutant General George C. Lambert. Says the Globe's Lake City correspondent:

"Congratulations are being extended to Adjutant General Lambert, of St. Paul, on every hand for the efficient manner in which he is performing the duties called for by his commission. No former officer holding this rank has ever performed the duties as well and as economically as has the present incumbent. He is winning the admiration of all the members of the national guard for the manner in which he looks after the interests and comforts of the men.

And the Minneapolis Times says:

"Adjutant General Lambert is exciting universal admiration, not to say surprise, by the manner in which he is conducting the affairs of the national guard encampment this year. At no time during the course of the encampments of years gone by has an adjutant general shown such a deep personal interest in the affairs of the various commands as the present incumbent of that office. He has made it a practice to be upon the grounds as much as possible and to extend his personal supervision over all work and improvements that are under way."

Free coinage is dead, about as abolition was dead when the great interests behind the institution of slavery wanted to believe it dead. The country wants emancipation from the money power, which is the only way to knock off the shackles put on them by the trusts and combines. As Lincoln said: "This country cannot exists half slave and half free."

The official announcement that the Thirteenth will sail for home next, is cheering news to the loved ones who anxiously await the returning veterans. Plans for their reception are not yet matured, further than that Governor Lind will give the regiment a personal and official reception in San Francisco.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Kidnapped.

St. Paul had a real kidnaping case and the police are all wrought up over the affair. A. L. Berry, who resides with a Mrs. Gagne, was out walking with the latter's little daughter, Eva. A carriage drove up beside them and stopped. A man alighted, stepped up to Berry and struck him on the back of the head with a revolver. The man then grabbed the child and placed it in the carriage. Berry, recovering from the blow, caught hold of his assailant and wrestled with him.

Another man was in the carriage, however, and, closing the door, ordered the driver to proceed. In the meantime Berry and his unknown assailant were having a desperate time, but soon Berry felt a revolver at his head and was ordered to resist no longer. He obeyed, and the kidnaper escaped, but not before Berry had recognized him as Joseph Gagne, father of the child.

The Gagne family formerly lived in St. Paul. Their domestic life was an unhappy one and finally Mrs. Gagne secured a divorce and the custody of the little girl.

Climate and Crop Bulletin.

In general, the week has been a very favorable one. Winter wheat is a fair crop and nearly ready to harvest. Spring wheat is heading as far north as the Red River valley counties, and in bloom in some southern counties. Oats are heading well. Barley is well headed and the heads are filling well; the crop is a good one. Flax is in all stages of growth; the earliest is in blossom. In Big Stone and Freeborn counties something is causing flax plants to die. Rust is reported in some wheat and barley fields, and also some lodging, but the drier weather is stiffening the stalks so that lodging will not be as serious as if wet weather continued. Corn is still somewhat backward, but it is improving steadily. Hay is generally a good crop, but there are localities where both clover and timothy are so poor that other crops will have to be used for provender.

Into the Trust.

George H. Christian of the Consolidated Milling company announced that the sale of the company's mills to the United States Milling company—otherwise known as the McIntyre flour trust—had practically been consummated. The price agreed upon is understood to be $1,900,000. With its 6,000 barrel capacity in the recently acquired Minneapolis Flour Manufacturing company plants, the McIntyre combine now has a daily capacity of 18,000 barrels, or nearly one-third the capacity at the falls.

The transfer became possible through the purchase of large blocks of Northwestern Consolidated stock by parties interested in the newer Consolidated company, lessee of the mills, who were in favor of McIntyre.

Narrow Escape.

Three men employed by the George Tilston Flouring Mill company at St. Cloud went into the wheel pit to make repairs. One of them noticed the sand giving away in time to warn the others, and they beat a hurried retreat. They had a narrow escape, as the sand poured into the pit, and it looked for a time as if the dam would give way and the mill be destroyed. Tons of bran and loads of hay were forced into the hole and danger averted, but the banks were washed away for about 15 feet, and the mill will have to remain shut down about two months while repairs are being made.

UTILIZING DOG POWER.

How the Collie May Be Made to Earn More Than His Salt Around the Dairy.

Your correspondent who wishes a power in which to work his collie dog will find that one made like the illustration will fill the bill. I used two different dogs in this power, then sold it, and the new purchaser is still using it and separates his milk, churns the butter and pumps the water for his stock with a collie dog. The power consists essentially of two iron rods with a pulley at each end and rubber belts running on the pulleys. Rivet slats (called lugs) to these belts for the dog to work on. There must be but one rivet at each end of the lag and this in the middle.

DOG POWER IN OPERATION.
A, Detached lag; b, the Power; c, the Churn.

At each end of the lag a small piece, say an inch or less square and six inches long, must be fastened to the lags as a bridge to keep them from sagging under the weight of the dog. Two rivets or clinch nails are needed to hold these bridges firm. Each alternate lag must have these strips set in an inch so they will lap past each other and rest on a lag on each side. Three or four small rollers or wheels are needed under each end of the lag where the dog treads, as seen in the illustration.

The connection with churn, separator or other machine can be made by "tumbling rod" connection, as illustrated, or by a belt on the band wheel. The lags may be a half-inch thick and four or five inches wide. As the pitch may need adjusting to furnish the power needed for different kinds of work, it is well to hang the rear end by straps so the elevation can be changed at will.—Orange Judd Farmer.

SYSTEMATIC WORK.

It is Quite as Essential to Road Improvement as the Expenditure of Money.

The best way to improve and secure our ordinary country roads for comfort and convenience is the important question for the farmer to consider. One of the first important steps is to keep the bed of the road dry. This can be best secured by the action of the common road grader or leveler being used as soon as the surface is dry enough to crumble. The passage of the grader fills up all the ruts and depressions in the road and leaves the center well rounded up and thus enables it to shed the water. The road must be kept clear of water, hence the grader must be used after a rain when the clay will crumble. Now most of the road districts are supplied with these graders and the necessary machinery to make and keep the road in good repair, but too often the road master lets the grader lie hid in some outlot or fence corner till he has an idle time to use it.

The great question arises, how can we retain good roads after they are graded? Here is where the question of permanent roads comes in. In the early history of our republic the national government built and took charge of the leading roads all over the nation. The most prominent of them was the great national road connecting St. Louis with Washington. This is an improvement that any country might well be proud of. All the bridges, culverts, etc., were of solid masonry, and the road of good width and covered with broken stone. It was one of the primary causes for the settlement of the states of Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. One of the best arguments in favor of good roads is it enhances the value of the territory they pass through.

In the state of Missouri the counties are waking up to the necessity of improving the ordinary highways, and the state is helping them to improve their roads. Many wish to have the farmers shoulder the burden of improving the roads, but this is by no means just, and when macadam or gravel is used to make the bed of the road solid it would be too heavy a tax on the farmers.—Samuel Sinnett, in National Rural.

Packing Butter for Export.

The New York Produce Review says that intelligent packers have come to regard parchment paper lining for butter tubs as very necessary. It says that, if we are to share in foreign trade, American butter tubs must be lined with the best quality of parchment paper. All the colonial butter coming into the English market is in paper-lined packages. It says the cheap, thin paper that has been thrown upon the market must not be used. Cheap paper is as poor economy as cheap salt or cheap tubs. The tubs must, also, be steamed and thoroughly soaked. It is, also, important to soak the paper in strong brine, as this will strengthen the paper, exclude air, and help to keep the butter moist.

Striped Cucumber Beetle.

The beetle attacks the plants above ground and not only injures them in that way but indirectly transmits disease germs from one part of the field to the other. These attack not only cucumbers, but cultivated plants of that sort, of such plants as beans, peas, the blossoms of the apple, the leaves and silk of Indian corn; wild plants, as golden-rod, asters, wild cherries, etc. The remedies recommended for the cucumber beetle are early planting, covering the young plants, clean culture, the use of slaked lime, arsenites mixed with ashes, dust or plaster and the like. —Prairie Farmer.

RURAL MAIL DELIVERY.

The System Has Been Received with Great Satisfaction in All Parts of the Country.

The post office department is constantly receiving a large amount of evidence tending to show the popularity of the free delivery system where it has been tried, and the desire for the extension of the service to other territory where it is not yet in operation. The original appropriation by the last congress under President Cleveland's administration, for the trial of the system, was $50,000, and the Fifty-Fourth congress followed this with an appropriation of $150,000 to continue the experiment. The congress just ended increased this amount to $300,000, and the system is now considered practically a permanent feature of the post office department. It is stated by the officials that very great satisfaction has been expressed throughout the country, and those familiar with the subject claim that in populous sections, where the country is thickly interspersed with farmhouses and whose correspondence naturally is considerable, the system will be self-sustaining. The only persons, it is stated, who are opposed to the free rural delivery are the fourth-class postmasters, who lose not only their revenue from stamp cancellations, but also the privilege of doling out provisions of various kinds to the patrons of the office, who naturally, in a good many cases, deal with them in the grocery line, the fourth-class postmaster usually keeping a store. The service has now been extended by the department to nearly all the states and territories, and in such states as have made application, the department is now considering the most advisable systems to introduce. In some of the sparsely settled regions, where the farms are very large and the distances between houses great, experiment is being made with a bi and triweekly system instead of a daily.

MODERN HAY FORK.

An Extemporized Rigging Between Barn "Bents" Having Crosswise Timbers.

Many fail to make use of that great labor-saver, the hay fork, because barns are not properly arranged to accommodate the usual hay-fork rigging. Many old barns have the timbers framed in a way to cause some difficulty in this respect. Still there are many barns now without this help that with a little planning might make use of the fork. Our cut shows a plan for using an extemporized rigging between "bents" having crosswise timbers. A pulley is located above the mow to be filled. The rope from it, a, has the fork at its end. The hay is lifted straight up from the load because held by the rope and pulley (b), operated by the man on the load. When the forkful will clear the edge of the mow, rope b is slacked as required, either to drop the forkful at the front, the middle or the rear of the mow. The rope a, after passing over the pulley above the mow, is carried down as directly as possible to the horse, which draws it out. The direction may, of course, have to be changed by a pulley in the barn below. The cut is given as a suggestion, to be modified as circumstances demand.—Farm and Home.

MODERN HAY FORK.

THE PROFITABLE COW.

She Must Carry a Large, Finely-Shaped Udder and Be of a Moderate Temperament.

The most profitable cow is that one which will produce the maximum amount of milk, containing the maximum amount of fat, from the cheapest feed. This kind of a cow is found in all our dairy breeds of cattle, and occasionally among the beef breeds. Whatever her breed, we will find that she conforms to a definite, clearly fixed type recognized as the dairy type, although not infrequently there are found marked exceptions. As a rule, such a cow is large, that is, large for the breed she represents. As a rule, too, such a cow yields rather a large amount of milk, with a fat content of between four and five per cent. Such a cow will always carry a large, well developed, finely-shaped udder, and usually be of a moderate temperament. The man who is making a success in dairying is the one who recognizes the value of such a cow and if he replenishes his herd by buying he tries to buy as nearly such a cow as possible. If he is a breeder he tries to breed cattle of her type rather than be carried away by any fancy whim that may arise.—National Stockman.

Cows for the Klondike.

A man in Tacoma is preparing to leave soon for Dawson, and will take 123 cows with him. He will take a sled for each cow and make them haul enough provisions for the trip. He already has about a third of his herd, and is busy breaking them to work in harness. He expects to get away in a few weeks. He is positive it will be a paying venture, as fresh milk is a little known article in the Yukon. He has had no trouble so far in breaking his cattle, and talks as though it will be no extraordinary sight to see 125 cows wending their way along the mountain trails, drawing sleds laden with hay and grain. He will take them down the Yukon in boats, and expects to be at the lakes as soon as the ice breaks. He has been over the ground, and feels confident of success.

HIS LITTLE BUNDLE.

It Wasn't Much in Size But the Value of It Astonished the Hotel Clerk.

A quiet-looking, smooth-shaven man, with a straw hat pushed back from his forehead, registered from an adjoining parish at the Grunewald one evening and laid a package on the counter. The package was about the size of an unabridged dictionary and was wrapped up in an old newspaper that bore the stains of travel. It was tied with a piece of white cotton string. "I wish you would take care of this little bundle for me overnight," said the stranger. "All right, sir," replied the clerk, and, reaching for the receipt book, proceeded to fill out a blank. "What's the value?" he asked, mechanically. "Sixty-five thousand dollars," answered the smooth-shaven man in an offhanded tone. "What!" gasped the clerk, his pen averted in midair and his eyes as round as cart wheels. "Sixty-five thousand," repeated the guest; "and, by the way, I guess I'll just seal up that wrapping. It seems about to fall off."

He opened the paper and disclosed a rectangular block of $10 bills, packed as tight as sardines. Theye were nearly all well worn, but nevertheless the grimy mass looked strongly tempting. Its tremendous potentiality drove a spur into the imagination of the dullest chap in the corridor, and everybody began to tell what he would do if he were rich. Meanwhile the smooth-shaven man readjusted the cover, secured it with wax, pocketed his receipt and walked off. He was a country banker bringing a deposit to his local correspondent.—N. O. How to Reach Two Famous Resorts.

An Outing Hint from "Outing."

Fast, safe, superbly equipped and most carefully governed, one need not wonder at the great popularity of the New York Central. No other line affords such facilities for through travel between the East and the West as this wonderful four-track system. In the possession of the Grand Central Station, located in the heart of New York City, and within trifling distances of all first-class hotels, this railway offers greater advantages than competing lines. Spring, summer, autumn and winter, it has attractions irresistible. The great Northern Wilderness, the playground of the State, now beckons its thousands. As autumn falls, America's scenic masterpiece, far-famed Niagara, will claim its annual host of pilgrims with its majestic power, the fierce turmoil of the Whirlpool and all the picturesque surroundings, the awesome Cave of the Winds and several other minor attractions of the vicinity. And when winter comes, then the entire scene transformed to what seems a fairyland of marvelous frost dressings, of icy forts and snowy palaces; of gleaming crystal prison barriers vainly striving to bind the roaring, foaming plunge of water—will present a spectacle of weird, mysterious beauty which is not duplicated in the world.—Outing.

A Startling Answer.

A Latin professor was explaining the derivation of our word "ostracise" to his class in a local academy the other day. He told the story of the early Roman republics and the scheming of the politicians of the times. He related how, when any man in the republic became obnoxious to his neighbors, they used to write his name on an oyster shell (Latin—ostreum, shell), and on the receipt of a specified number by the consuls that man was banished, killed or otherwise removed in some one of those pleasant ways the old Romans had. When he had finished his explanation he said:

"Now, the boy here in the front seat, what did we derive from the old Latin use of the shell, which was called ostreum?"

The answer he expected was far from what he got, for the little student with spectacles in the front seat arose and delivered himself thus:

"From the Roman habit of using shells to get the best of people we derive the present Coney Island shell game, which is a fascinating and costly sport."—Brooklyn Times.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, July 14, 1899.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Arthur Hosmer's raspberries, fine.

—A much needed rain came on Wednesday.

—Coming: The Great Dayton Show for benefit New Richmond.

—Golden Grain Belt matchsafes are quite fashionable in Delano.

—Walter Burrows is getting a nice house built on his farm on the Buffalo road.

—Andrew Hanseman and Ole Eckman are working on a building for Mr. Pett.

—Do not forget the "Great Dayton Show" at the City Hall, Tues. evening next. New Richmond benefit.

—In mentioning the Sumner Cooper case this week, the Eagle says: "F. H. Lindsley was the persecuting attorney".

—An old fashioned Methodist grove meeting will be held next Sunday at Pagenkopf's grove, north of Armstrong.

—Ice cream and raspberry sociable, at Eb Brandon's Tuesday evening, for the Parsonage debt fund. Everybody invited.

—Be at the biggest school meeting Delano ever had tomorrow night. Don't be afraid to vote for men who will be a credit to the town and useful on the school board.

—Lightning is reported to have struck in several places. The nearest. Oscar Burns says a big ash tree in his yard was splintered and pieces thrown against the door.

—A newspaper man named "Wharting," was down to Litchfield cavorting. He ran up against good ball; well that was pretty much all; and then he went home snorting.

MORAL—Don't bite off more than you can chew.-Litchfield News Ledger.

—From the Valley Herald we learn that Henry Kenning, a former Delanoite is visiting his mother at Chaska, and that he broke his ankle last year, and is still obliger to go on crutches. And that W. F. Kohler has sold out his harness business at Lester Prairie and will move to Bird Island.

—Delano now has an Alumni association of sufficient quality and quantity to furnish at least one good public lecture a week, during the year. Delano's citizens would be pleased to listen and the alumni would be much strengthened by its efforts Let's have the lectures.

—Many pieces of barley and rye that should have been in shock last Monday evening are still in the fields. Some of them blown down and tangled badly. Why woods farmers think they must leave their grain from a week to two longer than necessary before harvesting is something due to their old bachelor habits when big weeds were more plenty than grain, and if the grain was not thoroughly ripe it would be spoiled by moisture from weeds. Such cause no longer exists, and the grain should be cut early.

—The Delano High School graduating exercises were held this week. William Hawker opened with prayer. Edward Brown, the one graduate, acquitted himself with honors, as evidenced by the numerous boquets and other presents showered on him at the close of his excellent oration. Prof. Hawker's oration was well received. The presentation of the diploma was made by M. A. O'Hair, president of the Board of Education. Mr. Brown responded in a few well chosen and very feeling remarks, which were loudly cheered. The hall and stage were nicely decorated. The Delano Orchestra and a choir furnished the music. The large audience were highly pleased with the evening's entertainment.

—R. M. Walters, Delano's veterinary surgeon, has been busily engaged the past week or two in examining cows of Western Hennepin county, for tuberculosis. The tuberculin is sent him and he injects a small amount into each cow hyperdermically. If the animal's temperature rises to 103 degrees, it is condemned, and neither it or any of its products can be used in Hennepin county. If the temperature rises to 102½ it is retried in a couple months. This scientific precaution is enforced in Hennepin county by the Health department, as a safeguard against consumption, as milk from turbercular cows is said to produce in the human system, that disease. In some states the above precaution is enforced by a state law, and it is only a question of time when it will become universal among all the states of the Union.

Some farmers kick on having their cattle condemned by examiners, but it is generally through ignorance; not knowing that it is a most sanitary step, in allaying or stamping out, by cutting off one means of disseminating the germs of the dreaded of all dread disease. No milk can be sold in Minneapolis except from cows examined and found free from symptoms of tuberculosis. Let the good work go on. Let us look foreward with joy to the day when it will become a state law.

Wednesday morning, during the storm, lightning struck the Catholic church spire at Maple Lake, running down the front of the church, damaging it several hundred dollars worth. Luckily a cyclone and lightning clause was a part of the insurance policy.

Personal.

Misses Hattie Gross and Annie Parslow are attending summer school at Buffalo.

John Cunningham and son Prof. Emery, and Prof. Ed Freeman drove over to Buffalo Monday.

Miss Sadie Van Eman, of Watertown, visited Delano friends Tuesday.

Editors Catlin, Gutzwiller, and Buckley were county seat visitors Monday.

Misses Mary C. Catlin and Irene Cheeley visited in Buffalo and attended the Boxell trial Monday.

Miss Irene Cheeley, teacher in Hector, came Saturday evening for a week's visit with Delano friends.

Mrs. Prof. Farnsworth and Fay, of St. Paul, visited her parents Mr. and Mrs. William Gross this week.

John Brandes drove up Sunday from the farm with his brother Joe and family on their return to St. Paul.

Miss Mabel Morton who has been visiting for several weeks in Delano returned home to Washington, Tuesday.

Prof. W. C. Gertsen, of the Litchfield High School, visited his classmate, Prof. Emery M. Cunningham this week.

Tiff Hitsman drove to Buffalo Saturday with his daughter Miss Emma, and Miss Estella Davis. The girls are attending summer school.

Mrs. Yancey, of Milwaukee, came this week to see her grandson, Eddie Brown graduate from the Delano High School. She says she was well repaid for her trip.

County Cullings.

The Howard Lake Herald says citizens of that town are taking sides on the Boxell case, and "unfortunately there will be a lot of bad blood in town too," and "there were enough scraps on before and we'll soon need some foreign invasion to bring us together." From most accounts the editor should have concluded by, to keep us apart.

The Mike Doran Democrats of Wright County, who stealthily did their utmost to defeat C. A. Towne for Congress last fall, and are even now only waiting on orders to go after Lind's scalp in the next campaign, succeeded in landing the appointment of deputy oil inspector of Wright county for one of their menials. But the recipitent of this munificent bribe has packed up his old clothes and left the country, leaving the M. D. Democrats to look for some other likely tool to whom they may transfer their patronage.—Maple Lake Messenger.

The full board of County Commissioners met at the Auditor's office on Monday and discussed several petitions to change school districts and deliberated over the Ed Ziebarth bridge. Bill Ziebarth talked against the propriety of building the bridge. Ed Ziebarth and F. F. Chancellor advocated the bridge. The question was taken under advisement. The Board of Supervisors, of Rockford and of Franklin were on hand to look after the interests of their respective towns.

LATER: We learn that the road in question was vacated as a county road.

The trial of Joe Boxell for the murder of his father and step mother two years ago last May, near Howard Lake, is attracting great attention at Buffalo. Joe was placed on the witness stand by the defense, on Monday afternoon and Tuesday, and when his story was told he was turned over to the prosecution for cross questioning. Wednesday did not complete the examination but Thursday morning Joe was again in the witness box. The court room was packed, mostly with women. Many people from abroad are boarding in town, we were told, to attend the trial. Joe is extremely careful on the stand, but after all, things are not always left in the best shape for him. He directly denies having told Rev. Murray that he suspected John Boxell and George Taylor, of the murder of his father and mother-in-law. He admitted having told McVeety and Ege that he did not know as he would recognize his father's watch, but said he did so to get rid of them. He directly denies that Mr. Murray asked him about his coming home breathing hard, but admits that he asked Mr. Murray if he had been talking to his (Joe's) wife. On Monday a number of old neighbors of Joe testified to his good reputation before the murder. The Jury looks to be an intelligent one. The Judge seems fair. And the adience greatly interested in the outcome of the trial. It is expected to take a couple of days next week to finish the trial and give the case to the Jury.

HIGH SCHOOL ORATION.

(BY EDWARD BROWN)

Literature.

Literature has been one of the agents in promoting civilization, uplifting humanity, enlarging thought and producing harmony. It is elevating, inspiring, and a potent element in preparing humanity for the realization and understanding of the presence of the omnipotent Divinity in such manner as life eternal may be had. It has so clearly manifested its influence in the literature of the known history of the world that it can in no way be better illustrated than by taking in detail a few examples of some of the great writers, commencing with Homer.

The "Homeric Poems" consist of the Odyssey and the Iliad. The Odyssey tells of the long wanderings of the hero Ulysses up and down over many seas, while seeking his native Ithaca. The subject of the Illiad is the wrath of Achilles. These poems have exerted an incalculable influence upon the Hellenic literature and religion. The Iliad must be pronounced the world's greatest epic. It has been translated into all languages, and has been read with an ever fresh interest by generation after generation for nearly 3,000 years. It has made warriors as well as poets. It incited the military ambition of Alexander, of Caesar and of Hannibal. It inspired Virgil, Dante and Milton. All epic writers have taken it as their model. In Aristotle the philosophic genius of the Hellenic intellect reached its culmination. Among the productions of his fertile intellect are works on rhetoric, logic, poetry, morals and politics, physics and metaphysics. For centuries his works were studied, copied and commented upon by European and Asiatic scholars in the schools of Athens and Rome, of Alexandria and of Constantinople. For nearly 2000 years, until the time of Bacon in England, he ruled the realm of mind with a despotic sway. While Livy was the brightest ornament of the Augustan age. His greatest work is his annals, a history of Rome from its earliest times to 9 B. C. Unfortunately all save 35 of the books perished in the disturbed period that followed the overthrow of the empire. Livy's history, particularly in its earlier parts, as a chronicle of actual events is unreliable, however it is invaluable as as account of what the Romans themselves believed respecting their origin, the founding of their city and the deeds and virtues of their forefathers. Virgil in his immortal epic the "Aeneid" tells of the wanderings of Aeneas, the founding of Carthage and the founding of Rome. This fitting epic of a unifying and cosmopolitanizing movement made Rome mistress of a pacified and unified world. As for Dante, on the Teutonic side he seems to have inherited the strong moral sense, the almost nervous irritability of conscience, a tendency to mysticism, which made him the first Christian poet, first in point of time, first in point of greatness. From the other he received a proportion and feeling in overplus, well nigh hardening into mathematical precision and formalism, a tendency which at last brought the poetry of the Romanic races to a deadlock of artifice and decorum. Dante represented the passage of the soul from a state of nature to a state of grace and the main question with him was the saving of the soul. He was the forerunner of Humanism and his divine comedy is the "Epic of Mediaevalism". Wycliffe was foremost among the reformers of his time, "The Morning Star of the Reformation". He gave to the English the translation of the bible in their native tongue. It influence was great, and from the date of its appearance may be traced the beginning of the reformation in England. Chaucer perhaps is the first in genius of the English poets. He is reverentially called "Father of English Literature". He stands between two ages, the medevial and the modern and it is because he reflects his surroundings so faithfully in his writings, that he is invaluable as the interpreter of the period in which he lived. His principle work is his "Canterbury Tales", and it is commonly assumed that he in some inexplicable way created English. While Luther wrote the 95 theses, which by means of the press, disseminated the germs of the Reformation in Germany, and the conclusion of this great struggle gave the princes a choice of the Augsberg Confession and the Roman Catholic religion. This was a great stride towards religious freedom.

Lord Bacon is the greatest philosopher since the time of Aristotle. His method is the inductive. He insisted on experience as the truest guide. His philosophical essays operated on mankind through a school of intermediate agents. He talks to all on subjects in which everybody is interested. He accelerated and confirmed the new movement with a thorough apprehension of its bent and value. At home his authority within 40 yrs. was a subject of complaint. Abroad treatises were written on his method and academies were established, which expressly recognized him as their master. Shakespeare's tragical writings have no equal. Others have surpassed him in some particular excellence, but no man ever at once had such strength and variety of imagination. Upon universal sympathy and historical inquiry he has left a potent and enduring impress. His works and the bible, both models of Teutonic simplicity, are the great conservators of English speech. He infused into the drama the spirit of high art, made it an opulent and unfailing fount of entertainment and instruction. He revealed in precise details the complete condition of civilization.

Milton, who wrote "Paradise Lost" was sent as a soldier to humanity. What service Milton has rendered mankind with his love of freedom and the high brave morals he taught! He is of those who make a period as well as mark it; without ceasing to help us as a cause, helps us in effect, who reach so high that age nor comparison cannot rob them of their power to inspire; Who turn by their moral alchemy,

The common dust
Of servile opportunity to gold,
Filling the soul with sentiments august,
The beautiful, the brave, the holy and the just.

Gibbon's greatest work is the "Decline and fall of the Roman Empire", which has never been superseded. Gibbon was a conspicuous factor in the sceptical movement of the 18th century. Scepticism is the necessary antecedent of progress. To it we owe primarily intolerance in religion, credulity in science, and despotism in politics. Again the literature of Rousseau and Voltaire may be mentioned as one of the causes of the French Revolution. It was the appointed time when the straggling masses should emerge from the struggle with liberty and a participation in their government.

Longfellow in extent of popularity is the central figure of American poetry. In this country he is a pervading, purifying and beneficent agency. He is hardly less extensively read in England, where his death was pronounced a national loss. Longfellow building upon sentiments common to all races with consummate art has qualities which guarantee him against all oblivion. Among his writings are "The Courtship of Miles Standish" and the "Psalm of Life". Harriet B. Stowe said of her most famous work "God wrote. Imerely did his dictation'. It is "Uncle Tom's Cabin", a novel, which did more than any other towards arousing the conscience of the world against slavery, and has been translated into 20 different languages. While the poems of Lowell have a specific value partly derived from their intrinsic merits and partly from the time and circumstances of their composition. He was associated with the Anti-Slavery society and had the most influence in public affairs during the civil war. Lowell, in wide range of power and variety of expression is surpassed by none. The Biglow Papers have given him a prominent rank among the greatest satirists and humorists of the age.

Emerson, America's greatest essayist, in his volume entitled "Nature" created a new era of thought and he also began the great intellectual movement known as transcendentalism. He has been light to the illuminators-ministers, instructors, writers. For half a century his ethical and prophetic terances have been an active and growing power to keep the eyes of the people on the strain of rare and noble visions. His writings may be called a great book which is a ship deep freighted with immortal treasures, breaking the sea of life into fadeless beauty as it sails, carrying to every shore seeds of truth, goodness, piety, love, to flower and fruit perennially in the soil of the heart and mind. Thus literature is the great disseminator of science, philosophy, religion, the great educator of the people, one of the potent elements in modern civilization and the enlightener of the world.

But is literature in its infancy? Who knows where we are in the duration and development of learning. In the cradle still or in opening manhood. By the same Divine law of evolution we too in turn shall be outstripped. Our boundary is moyable and elastic. Around any circle another may be drawn. Each end is a beginning and must be superseded by a better. The latest progress of literature will be a suggestion of higher possibilities. Its golden ages are before on, ever on toward the flying perfect!

St Paul Dispatch

25c per month for Daily. 75c per year for the Weekly.

The St. Paul Dispatch is the best Twin City daily; it has no equal in the Northwest as to size or quality.

The DISPATCH excels in Northwestern news, having a correspondent in every Northwestern town.

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

All Three Together for Only $2.25

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

Three Together One Year for Only $2.35

GOV. PINGREE has a reputation as a potato man, but when he takes to the Alger variety it looks as if he had struck a small potato.

WONDER if the breaking of the two St. Paul banks was caused by the continued announcement of the gold bug papers that Free Silver is dead.

CHARLES M. FOOTE, the well known map man and democratic politician, of Minneapolis, died Sunday, July 16, at his home. He was nearly 50 years of age.

REPUBLICANS seem to have lots of material that would like to be governor. The people seem quite well satisfied with the present incumbent, John Lind.

THAT old Van Sant boom has again been launched. She's first to put to sea this time. Wonder if she will sail any smoother than she has in the past, lo! these many years?

THE Germania Bank in St. Paul has fallen into the hands of Bank Examiner Pope. More prosperity of the same kind. Wouldn't it be better for the country to close up all the banks and set money to work in some useful occupations?

GEN. JOE WHEELER is on his way to the Philippines. He don't propose to resign his seat in Congress but expects to thrash the Filippinoes and return to Congress, and it is claimed that McKinley wants him for a vice presidential candidate.

OHIO Democrats have got into line, at the first opportunity for 1900, by the Ohio Democratic clubs adopting: "We reaffirm our allegeance to the National Democratic platform of 1896, and demand the renomination of that fearless champion of Democracy and the people's rights, William Jennings Bryan."

WHILE the United States Senate should carefully consider the case of the polygamous Utah man before admitting him as a member of their body, it might be well also to investigate the actions and morals of some who are already members of that branch of our law making body. Morals need looking after even in the U. S. Senate.

EXPANSION organs are now claiming that Gen. Otis is incompetent to cope with Aguinaldo: others insist that Alger appointed Otis so Alger is the man to blame. But did not President McKinley appoint Secretary Alger? And isn't the president being controlled by others, in the Philippine business, as well as in the favoring of gold standard when he is known as a bimetallist?

BEFORE last fall's election gold bug papers used to delight in predicting how, in case John Lind was elected governor, the state's credit would be ruined. What a bad state of affairs would exist. Now they are as earnestly trying to have their readers believe that prosperity has come; that confidence has been restored; that everybody is growing wealthier. And John Lind is governor just the same. Funny isn't it.

THE editor of the St. Peter Herald says concerning the enlistment of volunteers for the Philippines: A man who is not willing to go there himself ought not to be too eager to send his friends and neighbors there." Correct. We take it that Senator Johnson has had a change of heart since he made his "eloquent" speech in the Senate last winter advocating the keeping of volunteers in the Philippines who had discharged their duty for which they had enlisted and were entitled to come home.

ALL this tomfoolery about getting the 13th to come to Minnesota, at somebody's expense should cease. What the boys and their friends want is to get a chance to shake hands with each other once again, and that pretty soon. What's the reason things can't be ready to muster them out in San Francisco, as they desire, as soon as they land, and trains ready to bring them home at once? It isn't likely it would cost most of the boys much more to come home at once from San Francisco, than it would to lay around there for weeks or months awaiting a discharge. There is no need of it.

SECRETARY ALGER has tendered his resignation.

AFTER all the predictions made by our gold bug friends, that "Democracy is dead"; "Free silver is past redemption"; "Bryanism has passed into oblivion"; "J. K. Jones is sick of his job and will resign his chairmanship" and similar discouraging things, it appears that they were, to put it gently, mistaken. State after state has shown by democratic meetings and conventions assembled, passing strong resolutions favoring a repetition of the '96 campaign and cheering the name of our gallant and fearless leader, W. J. Bryan, even in Tammany Hall's Fourth of July celebration, that instead of being on the wane even, democracy is fast becoming herself once again. The people are bound to sustain our constitution, our form of government, our free institutions; and J. K. Jones has written home from his temporary stopping place in Europe, that he is regaining his health and will be on hand to head the hosts in 1900 for Bryanism and for W. J. Bryan.

"The Same Old Thing."

For a few minutes last week Colonel Bryan's wonderful nerve deserted him. "I talk too much," said the "matchless" frankly, to a Cincinnati newspaper man. "I am afraid people get tired of hearing the same old thing over and over again." The newspaper man did not contradict him; but the "matchless" finaly pulled himself together and talked some more. "Oh, wad some power the giftie gie us to see ourels as ithers see us!" sang the poet. Colonel Bryan was vouchsafed the gift for a few fleeting moments, but he was only temporarily discouraged. He will continue to tell us "the same old thing over and over again," world without end, amen.—Duluth News Tribune.

This don't look exactly as if the News Tribune beleives now, what most of the republican sheets have been trying to make the people believe, that William Jennings Bryan had forsaken the Chicago platform of '96 and his principles. Not by a good deal.

Among Our Exchanges.

County Line: Page Morris looks askance these days at some of his erstwhile friends who show a disposition to draw a bead on him.

Litchfield News Ledger: It is now admitted that Capt. Van Sant will again try for the governorship. It was his surroundings that defeated his nomination before, and if he hopes to succeed this time he wants to profit by past experience.

Minneapolis Tribune: Sen. Thurston thinks the next Republican national platform ought not to contain a declaration in favor of the single gold standard. Why not? We have got the single gold standard, and mean to maintain it. Then why not say so?

Pioneer, Ida Grove, Iowa: President McKinley will, during the balance of his administration, treat the conquered(?) Spanish territory, not as a part of the United States, but merely as property owned by this country. The drift of things are steadily tending toward colonization, imperialism, trustism and throneism.

St. Peter Free Press: The "smoke socials" enjoyed by the members of the republican central committee and a few self constituted party leaders to discuss the desired complexion of the next state ticket might be profitably extended to an element a little closer to the rank and file of the voters. This exclusiveness behind closed doors doesn't look well and should be discontinued.

Minneapolis Tribune: Some of the returned volunteers declare that Aguinaldo is an abler man than Gen. Otis and has beaten him in grand strategy. It is unfortunate that Gen. Otis' men should get such an impression of their commander. If they entertain it generally, it would be a good idea to supersede him with a man in whom our soldiers could feel more confidence.

Brief Exposition Mention.

Landscape Gardener Ulrich of New York and over a hundred men have been busy for weeks beautifying the grounds of the Greater American Exposition at Omaha. To the beautiful floral adornments of last year will be added over 250,000 new plants. Rare tropical flowers and plants are being received by the train load.

The Minnesota Academy of Natural Sciences has concluded a contract with the Greater American Exposition for a display of the natural history of the Philippine islands. The collection will comprise nearly 1,000 birds, a large number of vertebrates, including huge bats and snakes, a marvellous collection of shells and corals and an elaborate ethnographical display.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 14, 1899.

Democrats have good reason to regret the fright in the ranks of the single gold standard republicans because of the warnings uttered by such republicans as Secretary Thurston, of Nebr., and Chandler, of N. H. Ever since the eastern republicans began the movement to try to put through single gold standard legislation at the coming session of Congress democrats have been heartily wishing that they would succeed in doing so, because of the marked advantage it would be to the democratic candidate for president. Senator Chandler was the first to tell his party associates that they were playing with political dynamite. Then came Senator Thurston, who has presided over two republican National conventions and who is much more influential, if not so talkative, than Chandler. Thurston makes it very plain that Mr. McKinley never would have been elected if that international bimetallism bluff had not been put in the republican platform and worked for all it was worth by the McKinley stumpers in the West and Middle West. He also intimated that he didn't care a continental about silver himself, but would take no part in helping his party to invite defeat. He expressed the belief that the effort would not succeed in Congress, although he was not so confident about the National Convention of his party, of which he said: "The Eastern States have a large representation in the convention, and we know the colored delegates can be won over." Of the probabilities in Congress Mr. Thurston said: "With the narrow republican majority in the House and the moderate views of a good many republican Senators, I really do not look for very much in the way of financial legislation between now and the Presidential Campaign." Next to putting it into a law, democrats would like to see the republicans put the single gold standard into their National platform.

Ex-Senator Pugh, of Ala., now in Washington, doesn't wear any cushions on his political views, nor does he believe in trying to win by pussy-foot methods. He said of the next candidate and platform of the democratic party: "I believe that William J. Bryan is the wisest and most reliable democratic statesman living and that he is now better established in the confidence of the American people and stronger than he ever was, and can be elected after he is nominated, as he will surely be, by the next Democratic National convention. As to the democratic platform, let it be the Chicago platform, with additional declarations against the manifold trusts growing out of the existence of the gold standard and prohibitory tariff duties; also in favor of a vigorous prosecution of the existing war in the Philippines, until peace and order is established and the governing power of the U. S. is fully recognized; also that peace and order is to be established, not for territorial expansion or dominion of the U. S., but for the sole purpose of securing to the people of those islands better and more stable government, with all the rights, liberty and privileges they show themselves by trial to be capable of exercising and enjoying in condition of independent self-government."

Although the scheme to give this country a standing army of 100,000 men was defeated in the last Congress, the idea has not been abandoned by Mr. McKinley. The word has been passed among the republican leaders to try to work up public opinion in the vicinity of their homes, in favor of a large standing army, so that when Mr. McKinley repeats his recommendation to Congress for a larger standing army it will seem to be backed by the sentiment of the country. A large standing army will be as dangerous next winter as it was last, and for that reason will be opposed by the democrats. Whenever this government has any real need for fighting men it is easy enough to get as many volunteers as may be asked for. Consequently there cannot be any good reason for maintaining a large standing army, while there are numerous reasons all good- for not placing such a temptation before an unscrupulous administration.

The presence of a G. A. R. committee composed of big guns of the organization, in Washington, for the purpose of investigating the Pension office, has naturally been the subject of much gossip and speculation, as to whether the committee really intended to investigate or was merely engaged in preparing a coat of whitewash to prevent the threatened defection of G. A. R. men in Kansas and other states, because of their dislike to the way Commissioner Evans has managed the office. Of course everybody knows that the committee has no official status, whatever, and no more right to examine Pension office business than would a similar committee from the Sons of Jerusalem, or any other organization. Yet, Commissioner Evans has received this committee with indications of pleasure, and told its members that his office was open to them from top to bottom.

Secretary Alger now says that he will not resign this year, but doesn't know what he may do next year. Humph! The last time he said he would stay until the the close of the administration. Perhaps he doesn't know what he will do.

THE OLD MAMMY WON.

Court Awards Custody of Two White Children to a Negress.

The Rival Claimant Was the Mother of the Two Girls—Remarkable Suit at New Orleans.

Lizzie Jefferson, an old negro "mammy" of New Orleans, has been awarded the custody of Annie and Lucy Galaw, little girls eight and ten years of age, respectively, her rival claimant for the children being the mother. The suit which resulted in the negress obtaining permanent custody of the children was the first of its kind ever decided in Louisiana, inasmuch as "mammy" is as black as the proverbial ace of spades and the children have not a drop of negro blood in their veins.

But in spite of the fact that they are white, Lucy and Annie, who were weeping bitterly during the progress of the case, in fear of being given back to their mother, rejoiced exceedingly when Judge Aucoin pronounced judgment in favor of the negress. Behind the case there is an unusual story.

V. Galaw, the father of the little girls, died eight years ago. He was very poor and was not on the best of terms with his wife. He knew "Aunt Lizzie," and just before death claimed him he asked the old woman to see that his children did not come to want. The faithful negress gave him the promise, and for the last seven years she has worked night and day for her charges, clothing them nicely, and, since they have been old enough, sending them to the public schools.

"Aunt Lizzie" is a caterer in a small way and earns a comfortable living. She announced her intention not long ago of sending the elder girl to Europe to complete her education, for the child is very bright. The devotion of the negress to her "babies" has long been the talk of the neighborhood.

Not long ago the mother married again and demanded that "Aunt Lizzie" give her and her husband, rent free, a room in the house which was sheltering her girls. The negress refused and the mother brought suit to recover her children. All these facts were brought out in court.

After hearing the evidence Judge Aucoin said he was satisfied that the children were better off with "Aunt Lizzie," and he so ruled, much to the disgust of the mother.

NEW DRUG HABIT.

A Druggist of New York Addicted to the Use of Pilocarpine Hypodermically Injected.

Thomas Frazer, a druggist of 2336 Second avenue, New York, has acquired a unique habit, which, according to the physicians in the Harlem hospital, has no known parallel. Eight years ago Frazer was treated in St. Luke's hospital, where he received injections of pilocarpine varied with morphine and cocaine. After he was discharged he continued the use of the drugs. He was taken to the Harlem hospital the other day. Dr. Muller, who is treating him, said:

"We find that Frazer is a slave to the drugs he learned to use while in St. Luke's. His arm is full of sores made by the needles of hypodermic syringes. Every two hours he requires an injection of pilocarpine. Half an hour after the pilocarpine he must take two grains of morphine, and half an hour later three grains of cocaine. It is the first case on record, so far as we know, where a man has acquired the pilocarpine habit."

Pilocarpine when taken inwardly constricts the blood vessels.

QUITTING PUBLIC SERVICE.

As Result of Mistaken Economy Navy Department Is Losing Its Draftsmen.

As a result of mistaken economy the navy department is losing its draftsmen and designers, most of whom are stationed at the navy yards and shipyards where government work is carried on under contract. Private concerns are taking advantage of the experience gained by these employes and are engaging their service at higher salaries than the department is willing to pay. Rear Admiral Hichborn, chief constructor of the navy, has repeatedly recommended an increase in the pay of naval draftsmen, who receive four and five dollars per day for their services, but nothing has yet been done, and the government finds itself in the position of being short-handed at a time when there is a large amount of work to be done. The situation is described by Chief Constructor Hichborn as a serious one, of great embarrassment at this time to the programme of speedy construction.

WOMEN SHIPPED BY EXPRESS.

Two Wives Sent to Their Husbands in the Klondike as Freight on Transportation Line.

The Nugget express has evolved a scheme that eclipses all for uniqueness. The other night it shipped from Seattle, Wash., by the City of Seattle two wives, Mrs. Mullarkey and Mrs. Jones, to their husbands in the Klondike. The ladies are sent as express matter. The Nugget express, for a stipulated sum of money, is conveying them, also their children, to Dawson.

Candy by Mail.

A San Francisco dressmaker ate some candy that she received by mail, but it is thought she will recover. This proves, suggests the Chicago Times-Herald, that candy which comes by mail is not necessarily fatal if you keep antidotes handy.

WOULD BE ONE AMONG MANY.

Foreign Count Who Was Engaged to Several American Women Gets Into Trouble.

Enterprising foreigners desiring to enter into matrimonial relations with American women would do well to ponder on the case of Count Malte Liewen Stiernranat, son of the chamberlain of King Oscar of Sweden, who is now in jail in New York city on a charge of breach of promise preferred by a young lady of wealth and position. The count is a good example of the noble foreigner who cometh to Columbia to seek a bride and a fortune. He was arrested two weeks ago at the suit of Miss Lesbia M. Boswick, who alleged in her petition that she had reason to believe that the count was about to sail for Sweden, and not marry her, as he had promised. The count was immediately arrested, and, being unable to give $500 bail, was committed to jail.

The count is a tall, handsome-looking young man of 27 years, and has all the appearance of a gentleman born and bred. It is evident that he does not consider the offense a particularly heinous one, and is more surprised at the incarceration than concerned as to his fate. He explained to the justice before whom he was arraigned:

"I was not aware that I was obliged to marry her simply because I had become engaged. It was my impression that I could become engaged to as many girls as I desired, and did not necessarily have to marry any of them until I really found that one had suited me best."

He was informed that although such might be the custom in Sweden, it could not go in America, and reserved his decision. His father is one of the richest and most influential men on the Scandinavian peninsula, and, although it is improbable that $50,000 will be paid over to the unhappy lady whose affections the stalwart Swede has stolen, he will undoubtedly be made to pay dearly for his presumption.

COBRA VENOM FOR LEPROSY.

Poison of the Serpent May Rid the World of a Malady—New Discovery was Made.

Dr. Bertrand Wilkinson, of Omaha, general surgeon of the Union Pacific Railroad company, was at the Victoria hotel, New York city, the other day, and he said that if Dr. Thomas J. Biggs, a former surgeon of the United States army, was on the right track the new century would rejoice to see the dreadful scourge of leprosy, if not totally removed from among human ailments, at least reduced to a minimum. He said:

"Startling as this announcement may seem, stranger still is the means Dr. Biggs proposes to employ to rid suffering humanity of the awful pest. The remedy whose effectiveness he hopes to demonstrate is nothing more nor less than the deadly venom of the cobra. Curious, too, that the idea of inoculating the leprous patient was suggested by the savage, demon-worshiping hill tribes of far-off India. Many of these people, seeking to die by means of the cobra's bite, have been cured of leprosy.

"As there are more cases of leprosy in the United States than is popularly supposed, and especially as we have just annexed a colony of these unfortunates with the Sandwich islands, the importance of Dr. Biggs' discovery—if the results of his investigations justify his hopes—cannot be overestimated. The medical profession will follow developments in this instance closely."

TO KEEP REINA MERCEDES.

Former Spanish War Craft to Remain Federal "Show Ship"—Effort Made to Buy Her.

An offer from a prominent firm of ship brokers doing a large business to purchase the Reina Mercedes and any and all of the other war craft captured during the late war has aroused a suspicion that Spain is trying in this indirect manner to obtain possession of the vessels and thus remove the offense to Spanish pride caused by the floating of the American flag over her ships. The offer mentioned no figures, but simply requested that the navy department name its price for the Mercedes and the remainder of the captured Spanish ships.

The navy department will not sell any of these vessels, and that answer will be returned to the writer of the letter. Secretary Long has decided that it would not pay to attempt to renovate the Mercedes and use her as a warship. The cost would be not less than $500,000, and the ship would, when repaired, be of old type and not up to the requirements of a modern naval ship. Therefore the repairs to be made upon her will be confined to a little painting and cleaning and patching, and the Mercedes will be left as a show ship, like the old Constitution, to gratify the patriotism of the American people.

OUGHT TO BE UNIFORM.

Attention of Congress to Be Called to Different Emblems in Use by Army, Navy and Coast Survey.

Attention of congress will be called to the advisability of establishing uniform flags for the army, navy and coast survey services. Each of these services has ships in commission, and if the president were to board vessels representing them one after the other three distinct flags would be hoisted in his honor.

In European countries there is one emblem recognized as the "ruler's" colors, and it is hoisted on shore and afloat whenever he is present.

Both Fickle.

The freckles a girl gets at the lake will stay by her longer, says the St. Paul Dispatch, than the young man she annexes.

From the Philippines.

BOCAVE, MANILLA, P. I. June 9, '99.

Dear Father: Every evening we have lovely sunsets; in early morn we have beautiful sun rise. There is usually about enough clouds to give that beautiful combination of colors we sometimes see in Minnesota; clouds with guilt edges and so on.

We are still patiently awaiting the time when we will be able to go back to our native land and become citizens.

The report came around that California had started but we see by the paper today that the Californians will be relieved by the 6th and return on the same boat. They are at Negros island.

Last night the Lieut. said something about expecting to be asked in a few days whether we would rather be mustered out in Frisco or Minneapolis. Our company was unanimous, or nearly, for Frisco.

I haven't the least idea now when we will be mustered out.

Perhaps you have heard of our Col. being ordered to Frisco? There is nothing going on that I know of now except last week, Oregon regiment after being relieved and taken to Manila to get ready for their trip home, were ordered out on the Marguina road into an engagement, loosing one man, having two or three more wounded, one expected to die and one commit suicide. They are now expected to board the boat next Monday, or rather two of them.

It is quite a while since I wrote but there is very little news.

Everybody is getting so lazy that it is rather doubtful, if they should fall over a rice paddy whether they would get up before they took a nap or not.

I saw George Kurtz, Will Steffes and J. P. Chance the other day and they are all well.

The train for Manila being expected at almost any time compells me to write a very short letter and not take much time over it. So will close with best regards to all.

Your son,
A. G. CATLIN.

Ed Johnson, who resides on the J. J. Baylor farm in Camden, says that he cut from an oak tree on that farm, 4½ cords of four foot wood and 4½ cords of two foot wood. Besides this two big limbs had blown off and were worked into wood a few years ago. How is this for Carver county's hard wood timber?—Norwood Times.

It now appears that the so-called kissing bug is not a newly-arrived insect, but an old bug with new habits. How could it have learned them?

At Wichita, Kan., a bride of two hours was killed and her husband and brother seriously injured as the result of that irresistibly funny performance, the charivari party.

It is estimated that the "bread-eating" population of the world will need during the coming year 2,360,000,000 bushels of wheat. The best estimates are that the total production for the same period will be 2,380,000,000 bushels.

A recent computation shows that, counting only donations of $5,000 and upward, a partial list of gifts to charitable and educational institutions in the United States during the last six years gives an average of more than $35,000,000 a year.

In the naval battles of Manila bay and Santiago the American fleets, according to official reports, had but a slight superiority in the number of sailors engaged. Dewey commanded 1,743 men and Montojo 1,734. At Santiago there were 2,400 men on the American ships and 2,125 on the Spanish.

Since January 1 90 colleges, academies and seminaries and eight art galleries in the United States have received gifts amounting to $27,072,358, not counting contributions of less than $5,000. The total for the six months is not less than $30,000,000, a showing never before equaled in any country or period.

Alexander Dewitt, who has lived in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., for the past 40 years, practically on the bounty of his friends, is dead, and it is found that he has left a fortune of $40,000. Of this he has bequeathed $39,000 to a nephew who once sent him $15 and who is the only relative that ever manifested any interest in his welfare.

George F. Hamlin, who was a state senator from Linn county, Kan., in 1879, had a grandfather whose first name was Europe, and this grandfather had three brothers named Asia, Africa and America. Vice President Hannibal Hamlin was the son of Africa. Europe was a soldier in our revolutionary war. Asia and America did not become noted for anything.

James Billings, of Brookville, Pa., has started a crow incubator, and is furnishing crow heads to a New York milliner for 25 cents each. He places 125 crow eggs in his incubator each time, within 15 days the little fellows have hatched and eight weeks later they are beheaded. Billings has the only crow hatchery in the world, but then it is not much of a business to crow about.

John E. Swearingen, of Edgefield, S. C., has just graduated from the University of South Carolina at the age of 20, despite the fact that he has been totally blind since a boy seven years old. He has taken the full classical course and has made the highest record during the four years of any man since the founding of the institution. He was assisted by a roommate, but only by the reading aloud of his studies.

The government of Trinidad has decided to adopt Marconi's system of wireless telegraphy for communication with the dependency of Tobago. Tobago is an island in the Windward group of the West Indies. The distance through which the system will have to operate will be 24 miles. If a man had said ten years ago that communication could be established and regularly maintained between those points without the use of wires he would have been considered a candidate for the insane asylum.

Prof. Dewar, whose success in liquefying hydrogen and other gases startled the scientific world, has made another discovery which may be of wide-reaching importance. It is a new process of casting steel, by which he says the metal will be rendered much harder and stronger than by present processes. The principal feature of the process is that the metal is to be cast in a vacuum. If the plan is successful it is said "the air bubbles that now cause flaws and weakness will be done away with and a metal will result such as the world has never seen."

Persons apply to the courts for queer things, and often the courts grant queer requests. In Texas, a man having accused another of alienating his wife's affections and having brought a suit for $100,000 damages, petitioned the judge to enjoin the man whom he had sued from communicating with his wife. The judge granted the petition, but the defendant declared that it was an invasion of his right of free speech and communicated with the woman. Whereupon the defendant was fined $100 and sent to jail three days for contempt of court.

Cleanliness is an excellent habit. It is not, however, an essential to good health and mental activity. The healthiest man a writer in a medical journal ever saw is alive and well to-day at 94, and he took a bath only occasionally—once in the Mersey at Liverpool in 1838, and again in the North river in 1878, both of which were accidental, the gentleman being slightly intoxicated when he fell. Almost all people who live to an extreme old age are found to be those who are not overfond of ablutions, but who otherwise are careful in their manner of living.

THE BROOKLYN STRIKE.

No Material Change in the Street Car Trouble—Strike in Cleveland Resumed.

New York, July 18.—The strike situation in Brooklyn remains unchanged. The striking employes are even more determined than they were Sunday, and the management of the Rapid Transit lines is obdurate and unflinching. Cars were run on most of the lines governed by the traction company from early morning until seven o'clock in the evening, but after sundown there was a considerable falling off in the service, and by nine o'clock not a car was moving on any of the lines affected by the striking motormen or conductors. The roads comprising the Nassau system were most effectively crippled. None of the striking employes returned to work, and most of them were busy during the day influencing union and nonunion men on the other lines to quit work. In this respect the strikers were partially successful, but they made no inroads on the running of the Putnam avenue cars. This line is practically intact, not more than half a dozen of its employes being affiliated with the strikers. The Coney Island Railroad company reaped a rich harvest on all of its lines during the day. The Franklin avenue, Smith and Jay street, Hamilton avenue and Dekalb avenue lines were running on full time, and carried a great number of passengers throughout the day and night.

The Coney Island company lived up to its agreement with the employes, and consequently its business was not interfered with in the slightest. In fact, the business on these roads was considerably augmented, as many travelers patronized the cars, although in many cases going blocks out of their way to do so.

Cleveland, O., July 17.—The conductors and motormen of the Big Consolidated street railway system, who were on a strike last month, went out again at 4:15 this (Monday) morning. Eight hundred men are affected. They claim the company has not lived up to the agreement made which ended the former strike.

THE DREYFUS FORGERY.

Count Esterhazy Says the Famous Bordereau Was Written Upon Order of Col. Sandherr.

Paris, July 18.—The Matin publishes a statement by Comte Ferdinand Walsin Esterhazy in which he says that he wrote the bordereau by order of Col. Sandherr, and that it was sent to the house of Col. Schwartzkoppen, then military attache at the German embassy in Paris, whence it was returned to the war office. Col. Schwartzkoppen being at that time in Berlin, never saw the bordereau, which was forged in order to supply material proof of the guilt of Dreyfus. The statement contains the assertion that secret agents in Berlin, whose testimony it was impossible to use, had demonstrated that leakages had occurred in the war office, and the fact that treason existed was undeniable, and everything indicated Dreyfus as the traitor. All the war ministers, the statement further says, knew the facts, and thought the forgery of the bordereau necessary. The evidence implicating Dreyfus were the words of Col. Schwartzkoppen's own mouth. Gens. Mercier, De Boisdeffre and Gonze knew that the bordereau was forged, and that Dreyfus was illegally, but justly, convicted.

ANOTHER OUTBREAK.

Factions of a Kentucky Feud in a Pitched Battle—Five Men Are Killed.

Louisville, Ky., July 18.—A special to the Courier-Journal from London, Ky., tells of a report reaching there of the outbreak of another feud in Clay county, by which five men lost their lives Monday. The dead are said to be: Robert Philpot, Ed Fisher, Aaron Morris, Jim Griffin and Hugh Griffin. These fatalities resulted from a pitched battle fought near Little Goose creek, three miles from Manchester.

The feud dates back nearly two years. On Christmas, 1897, James Philpot was killed by Aaron Morris, but before he died he shot and killed William Bundy, a friend of Morris'. The Morrises and Griffins were closely affiliated. Since then, the feeling between the two factions has been very bitter, and it has been aroused recently by the White-Baker hostilities. The Philpots, who are the strongest faction in the mountain, numbering about 750 voters, openly espoused the cause of the Bakers, while the Griffins took sides with the Whites.

Texarkana, Ark., July 15.—One man is dead, two are fatally wounded and three badly hurt as the result of a shooting affray at New Boston, Bowie county, Tex. The trouble arose over a barbed wire fence between the Hayes and Frick farms.

Lincoln, Ill., July 17.—A foul and bloody murder was committed Friday night in the cemetery at Mason City, west of here, when Roy Sutton, a young man 20 years of age, shot Miss Leona Elmere, a girl of 19 years he loved. Death was instantaneous. A pistol was found near the girl's body. Sutton then shot himself through the body below the heart. He died early Sunday morning.

ENTER A PROTEST.

War Correspondents at Manila Object to the Rigid Press Censorship.

Manila, July 11, via Hong-Kong, July 18.—The constantly increasing strictness of the censorship of press dispatches from Manila, which has prevented the cabling to the United States of anything that did not reflect official views of important events and conditions, has resulted in a united effort on the part of correspondents here to secure an abatement of the rigor of the censorship. The initiative in this direction was taken a month ago and resulted in the framing of a statement which was presented on Sunday, July 9, to Maj. Gen. Otis, commanding the military forces of the United States in the Philippine islands, with a request for permission to telegraph it to the United States. The correspondents also asked that they be allowed to cable to their respective papers all facts and the different phases of events as they transpired here. The correspondents had two long interviews with Gen. Otis, in the course of which they complained that the evident purpose of the censorship was not to keep information from the enemy, but to keep from the public a knowledge of the real condition of affairs here. It was also asserted by the correspondents that newspapers printed in Manila, which reach the enemy quickly, are permitted to publish statements similar to those which correspondents are forbidden to cable. It was made clear to Gen. Otis that the objection was to the system and not to the censor.

Washington, July 18.—The publication of the war correspondents' formal indictment of Gen. Otis' management of the Philippine campaign caused a sensation in the departments here. Secretary Hay had received advices as late as Monday from civil as well as military sources in the Philippines which led him to declare that the situation there was certinly improved materially, and the prospects for the future had brightened very much. With these advices, the secretary said, Gen. Otis had had nothing to do, and they were from disinterested persons whose opinions must carry weight.

THREE CENT FARES.

Plan to Gain Adherents to Pingree's Scheme of Municipal Ownership of Detroit's Street Cars.

Detroit, Mich., July 15.—"Three-cent fares" are announced on the fronts of Detroit street cars in the places where amusement advertising signs are usually carried. This sudden voluntary reduction is the result of a decision of Gov. Pingree and Tom L. Johnson to give the people an object lesson upon what they may look forward to, if present plans for the sale of all the Detroit street railways to the "Detroit Municipal Railway company" in behalf of the city win out. The three-cent tickets sold Friday at five for 15 cents are so worded that their use in full payment of fare can be withdrawn at any time.

The city is in a furore over the present situation. All newspapers and nearly all the more prominent citizens are opposing the Pingree plan, and it is now claimed that the majority of citizens oppose it, on the ground that three-cent fares and quasi municipal ownership will fail to pay the expenses and the $17,000,000 proposed to be paid for the roads; and that they will, if purchased, revert to the present owners.

Warrants for Executioners.

Antlers, I. T., July 15.—Deputy Marshal Bert Brown and a posse left Antlers Friday afternoon for Alikchi, with warrants for the arrest of 27 persons for contempt in refusing to grant a stay of execution on a writ of heabeas corpus issued by Judge Thomas Wednesday, in the case of William Goings, better known as Walla Tonka, who was shot Thursday, under sentence of the Choctaw court, for the murder of his uncle some time ago. The warrants are for the sheriff of Wolf county, the district attorney of the Third Choctaw district, the judge, clerk and a number of deputies.

Another Defeat for Pingree.

Detroit, Mich., July 17.—Gov. Pingree sustained another defeat Saturday. His opponents have put up such a stiff fight against the purchase of the street railway system that Tom Johnson, principal owner of the street car system, Saturday withdrew from the city and declared the deal off. He, through the Metropolitan railway, which operates all the lines, sent a letter to H. S. Pingree, president of the Detroit Municipal railway, in which it was said that the company was satisfied it was not feasible to make the transfer under the conditions existing.

Killed by His Playmates.

Indianapolis, Ind., July 18.—Ralph Schelly, eight years old, lies dead in his home at Montpelier as the result of a vicious attack on him by four playmates. The boys were all playing together, when some difficulty arose over a trifling matter and the four combined to thrash him. The boys implicated in the murder are Cliff Haskins, Ora and Dock Borman and Herman Payne. Two of them held Ralph Schelly while the others kicked him and pounded him on the neck, head and back with stones. Lockjaw followed and then death.

Damage by a Strange Bug.

Minneapolis, Minn., July 17.—A Sioux Falls (S. D.) special to the Times says: Patrick Carney, a Clark county farmer, reports that a strange insect is doing some damage to wheat in his locality. He had 110 acres entirely destroyed, while a few other farmers also suffered losses. The insect seems to sap the life from the plant, causing it to fall over and wilt. No one seems to know the name of the pest, which has thus far confined itself to a limited area.

Capt. Andrews Falls.

Liverpool, July 17. — The British steamer Holbein, Capt. Sherlock, from New York July 1 for Manchester, which arrived here Sunday, picked up Capt. William A. Andrews, known as the "Lone Navigator," who left Atlantic City on June 18 in a little craft named "The Dorcc," barely 12 feet in length, to attempt to cross the Atlantic. Capt. Andrews was found exhausted on July 12 about 700 miles from the Irish coast. His boat was left adrift.

Richmond, Va., July 17.—It was a very late hour Saturday night before the executive committee of the Baptist Young People's union reached a vote on the meeting place for 1901. Chivers, of Chicago, was reelected general secretary of the union and editor of the Baptist Union. He had already served two years.

The convention of the Young People's Baptist union closed Sunday night. In the morning many of the pulpits of the city were occupied by ministers in attendance upon the convention. In the afternoon a regular session was held at the auditorium, when an address was made by Maurice P. Franks, of Trenton, N. J., and the convention sermon was preached by Dr. T. J. Villers, of Indianapolis, Ind. At the night closing sessions addresses were made by Dr. G. Whitman, of Buffalo, N. Y.; Prof. T. L. Shepperson, of Hamilton, N. Y., and others. Final consecration services were conducted by Dr. Chivers, of Chicago.

Most of them at the present date have 25 per cent. ill, and a few regiments have less than one-third their number on duty. The Nebraska regiment has suffered the worst.

J., which was closed Friday, has surrendered himself, and is now in jail on account of a shortage in the bank's funds, which has been variously estimated all the way to $165,000. The affair caused consternation and dismay among the business men of Perth Amboy, where the Middlesex County bank was considered as strong as the eternal hills.

HIS COURAGE FAILED.

He Was Brave Enough Until He Faced Mary Ann, Then He Wilted.

It is the proud boast of Archie Bruce that he is a lineal descendant of the great Scottish hero, and, as becomes a man of his blood, he prides himself on his courage. For several months there has been in his family a servant who has completely terrorized his wife, the latter being the victim and not the commander of her nerves. There was a terrible row between mistress and maid last Saturday, and on Monday morning Mrs. Bruce said to her husband:

"Archie, I cannot stand Mary Jane any longer. Won't you please discharge her before you go to business this morning? You know how afraid of her I am."

"Certainly," replied Mr. Bruce, with suave courage, "certainly. The crossest creature that ever cracked a cup or cleaned a kettle cannot cow me."

The valiant Archibald sometimes surprises himself and his friends by floating along on a stream of alliteration. Procuring his hat and coat, he descended to the basement kitchen, and in stentorian tones bravely addressed the servant:

"Mary Jane, ahem! I must hurry off now, but, ahem!—Mrs. Bruce asked me to tell you that she wants, ahem!—to speak to you after I have gone to the office!"—San Francisco News Letter.

Hon. Judson W. Lyons, Register of the Treasury.

April 23d, 1899.

Pe-ru-na Drug M'f'g Co., Columbus, O.:

Gentlemen—I find Pe-ru-na to be an excellent remedy for the catarrhal affections of spring and summer, and those who suffer from depression from the heat of the summer will find no remedy the equal of Pe-ru-na.

Judson W. Lyons.

Lyons address is Augusta, Ga. He is a member of the National Republican Committee, and is a prominent and influential politician. He is a particular friend of President McKinley.

Remember that cholera morbus, cholera infantum, summer complaint, bilious colic, diarrhoea and dysentery are each and all catarrh of the bowels. Catarrh is the only correct name for these affections. Pe-ru-na is an absolute specific for these ailments, which are so common in summer. Dr. Hartman, in a practice of over forty years, never lost a single case of cholera infantum, dysentery, diarrhoea, or cholera morbus, and his only remedy was Pe-ru-na. Those desiring further particulars should send for a free copy of "Summer Catarrh." Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, O.

THAT MAN A DREAMER?

That man a dreamer? Nay, his soul has wings
Which lift him from the realm of common things,
To where he cleaves the limpid upper air—
And poised on strong and tireless pinions there—
Sweeps time and space with piercing, eagle glance,
Cutting through clouds of earth-bound circumstance.

What cares this man for earthly gauds or gold?
Before his eyes eternal years unfold,
He sees the motives deeply masked in man,
And that which links him unto some great plan,
Which he, short-sighted fool, with bandaged eyes,
Hears of with dim, incredulous surprise.

He sees in lenses made of human tears
The clear reflections of uncounted years,
The rays of hope which through such prisms pass
For him make pictures in magic glass—
Prophetic pictures, beautiful, sublime,
Etched thus on crystal by the touch of time.

He sees the forms of mighty things to be,
The time when all men shall be wise and free,
The day when little envies, little hates,
Fall from them as they pass the golden gates;
And stretching out through spaces veiled and vast
The struggles of the present and the past.

That man a dreamer? No, his clear sight sees,
A million truths hid from the restless fleas
Who grope upon the sin-stained crust of earth
And mock at mightiest men of loftier birth.
They are dreamers who half know, half see
What God reveals to thinkers such as he.
He is God's priest and prophet, let him be!

TWO FLATS AND AN ACCIDENTAL

By Edgar Temple Field.

THE suggestion that brought it all about came from me, I believe.

Suggestions of any sort usually came from me rather than Margery, for I have in my veins the adventurous blood of stanch New England ancestry, who had burned witches and fought Indians and later pursued a relentless traffic in wooden nutmegs with the same high courage and fine disregard of consequences.

While Margery is of Dutch descent and inclined to be cautious, if not a bit pig-headed, as I often told her.

But no one could help loving her, in spite of her little Dutch obstinacy, least of all myself, for of all the provoking little women that were ever created for the express purpose of charming and tormenting their fellow men Margery was the most deliciously dear, and I loved her so well I could forgive her anything. That is, anything but the way she treated Jack Beasley.

The dance she led that poor fellow was something to move even a bearded Turk to pity. For a whole year she had kept him dangling after her as abjectly as a dancing doll at the end of a string, and yet, as far as we could see, he had made no progress whatever in her affections.

We had been talking things over, Jack, Ned and I, in Margery's absence (I never dared mention Jack to Margery, for fear of still further exciting that famous obstinacy of hers), and even Ned, the most hopeful of mortals, had to admit Jack's chances looked blue. Ned, be it known, was the daring youth who had undertaken to guide my New England enterprise and other virtues (too numerous to mention) through life's pilgrimage.

He and Jack were partners in a law office, and occupied the flat on the top floor, where they indulged in certain mysterious rites they called light housekeeping, while Margery and I taught music and Delsarte and practiced the modest virtues of hospitality in the flat below.

Nothing, therefore, could have been more fit, suitable and otherwise to be desired than to have Margery and Jack fall in love with each other, even as Ned and I had done. Jack was willing enough, poor boy, but Margery balked. It was too provoking.

As I said before, we three had been talking it over the day before while Margery was absent teaching the luckless children of a rich soap manufacturer to play Wagner on the piano, and all agreed that the situation looked hopeless.

Jack had been in the depths of despair because the tenor of the choir for which Margery played an organ had called three times that week, and, though I didn't believe she cared a pin for the tenor, I had never known naughty Margery to appear more wilfully regardless of Jack's feelings.

We had parted, therefore, gloomily enough, after a fruitless conference, and I had relieved my mind by being especially cross to Margery all day, though I must own she didn't seem to mind much.

It was an awful day, raining cats and dogs, and in the afternoon I got tired of being cross all to myself, and proposed that we should shampoo our hair and dry it on the parlor radiator, the only one in the flat large enough for the purpose. Of course, Margery objected. Visitors might come, she said, and then who would let them in? I scouted the idea of visitors on such a day, unless, I observed, with sarcasm, she was expecting the tenor again.

She didn't notice this stab, so I proceeded to say that as the radiator was in the corner we could pull our big Japanese screen up in front of it, and, secure in our hiding place, let our entire visiting acquaintance, including messenger boys and duns, knock at the door till they got tired and then depart, blissfully unaware of our proximity.

Accordingly it wasn't long before we were snugly ensconced on a pile of sofa pillows on the parlor floor, wrapped in our bath robes and with our wet locks streaming out behind us across the radiator, over which we had stretched a steamer rug. We were armed with a novel apiece, but soon got to talking, girl fashion, and were deep in a discussion of Amos Judd, when there came a loud knock at the door.

"Great Scott!" I exclaimed, in a stage whisper, the rosy advantages of my plan suddenly fading in the cold light of reality.

"There, I told you so!" cried Margery, ungenerously, sitting up abruptly so that her hair fell about her in a great, shining, coppery shower.

"Sh—shut up!" I whispered, reaching out with an agitated stockinged toe for the bedroom slipper I had carelessly kicked off a moment before.

Again the knock came, this time more imperative.

"What in heaven's name shall we do?" gasped Margery.

"Keep still, you chump!" I said, sotto voce, too nervous to pick my words.

Then the door handle turned and we heard Ned's voice saying: "There's nobody home. Let's come in and wait for them."

"All right," was the reply, in Jack's bass tones. "Maybe it's not the proper thing, but we might as well risk it," and we heard the door close as our visitors entered and took possession of our apartment.

It was too ridiculous. I'd have had to laugh if our lives had been at stake, and in spite of the imminent danger of discovery in this mortifying plight I stuffed all of a sofa pillow that would go into my mouth and shook till my sides ached.

It was the expression on Margery's face that recalled me to myself at last. Chancing to glance up from behind a corner of the cushion I was trying to swallow, I caught her listening with strained attention to something that was being said on the other side of the screen, with every bit of color gone out of her face and a look in her eyes I'd never seen there before.

"Yes," Jack was saying, "if they don't hurry I'll have to go without saying good-by. My train leaves at seven, and I've lots to do."

Ned lighted his pipe before he replied. Dear Ned, I believe he would smoke in Heaven if Peter didn't take the precaution to search him before he let him in.

"I guess it'll surprise them some," he remarked at last. "Especially when they hear you're never coming back."

I nuged Margery violently at this, but she didn't look at me—the minx—and then Jack went on dolefully:

"Oh, they won't care very much, I'm afraid."

"Of course they will," protested Ned, puffing away. "And I will anyway. Must you go, old boy?"

"Well, it's this way, Ned. As long as I hoped that Margery might care for me I wouldn't give in to my uncle's proposition that I should marry his ward, Miss Wilson, and become his heir, but now that I'm satisfied I have no chance with the girl I love, I might as well marry the other one and please the old man, I suppose. I'll be miserable anyway." And Jack heaved such a sigh that the big paper screen waved about till it threatened to come down about our heads.

I gave a horrified look at Margery, but her hair had fallen over her face, and I could only see one little hand clinched fiercely as if she had a pain somewhere. I reached dumbly over and tried to take the little hand, but she shook me off, and so I fell to listening again.

"Well, it's not so bad as it might be," Ned was saying, encouragingly. "I hear Miss Wilson is a beauty."

"She is," said Jack, with enthusiasm.

"And then think of the money, my boy. Most any fellow would envy you."

"I suppose so," said Jack, drearily. "But I must go. Time's up. Will you say good-by to the girls for me, Ned? Tell Margery—"

Here Jack choked and I was so busy catching a large, warm tear that was chasing toward the end of my nose that I forgot to look at Margery, when to my amazement a little figure in a gray bath robe, with a cloud of coppery hair flying after it, bounded right over me, and as the screen toppled over with a crash I heard Margery's voice cry:

"Oh, no, Jack, you mustn't go. I—I love you, Jack."

I had a confused vision of Jack seizing the little figure in his arms, and then I started to run—I don't look so pretty with my hair wet as Margery does. But somehow when I got to the door I met Ned, and as I looked up wrathfully something I saw in his eye made me stop short.

"Ned Tucker," I exclaimed, "you knew we were there all the time."

"Well," he said, not a whit ashamed, "if you will leave the ventilating shaft open—"

"You wretch," I cried, and then something else struck me. "And the uncle," I gasped, "and the beautiful Miss Wilson—"

"Are about as real," said Master Ned, "as civil service reform."—Chicago Herald.

EXTEMPORE PREACHING.

A Young Minister Who Got Through His First Sermon in Twelve Minutes.

The experience of a young clergyman not long since in preaching his first sermon in the space of eight minutes recalls an incident told by an eminent preacher to the students of a theological seminary in this city some years ago. Perhaps the young man first referred to had heard the story. At all events, it is said that he acted as the other did under similar circumstances.

"Until you have had experience in preaching," said the speaker, in effect, "never trust to the extemporaneous method. I remember a case of my own. I was preaching my first sermon before a large congregation, and, relying upon a ready delivery, had jotted down my principal points upon a slip of paper, leaving the rest to take care of itself. Everything went beautifully until I came to the last point I had to make before closing. Then I happened to glance at my watch. I had been preaching about 12 minutes! I knew that the congregation expected to be preached to for at least three-quarters of an hour, and I had to decide what to do. Finally a happy thought struck me. 'My friends,' I said, 'the subject we have been considering together is one of the very greatest importance. Its lessons need to come home to every one of us, and to that end I desire to fix them in your minds by going over them once more.' Then I began with my first head, brought in illustrations and enlargements that I had forgotten in my first excitement, and so went on through the entire sermon, coming out at last to the complete satisfaction of the congregation. Extemporaneous preaching, young men, is a risky experiment for a beginner."—N. Y. Tribune.

Beauties of the Wheel.

"When I get utterly low-spirited," said the nervous man, "I find a spin on my wheel does me a world of good."

"It is the exercise," said his friend.

"I think not. I am so glad to get home alive that I feel good all the rest of the day."—Indianapolis Journal.

A LEADER LEADS

THE ASTONISHING CAMPAIGN OF WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN.

Who Was It Feared He Would Break Down or "Say Too Much?"—He Is Strong Because Right and God-Fearing, and Will Win Because the People Sustain Him—Encouraging National Outlook—The Chicago Meeting—"Johnny" McLean's Ohio Boom for Governor—National and State Politics of the Week. Major Bowler Still at It—Judge Steele's Republican Round Robin, and Tams Bixby's Little Game (at Government Expense) — The Malignant Partisan Press—The Coup by Mayor Gray—Wall Street and Northwestern Cash—Up and Down the Line of the Week's Political Note and Comment.

Reform Press Bureau.
ST. PAUL, July 17, 1899.

What do those who have feared that Mr. Bryan might not effectively continue his campaigning think by this time? It seems as if our great leader has never been so effective as recently. From the time of his presence in Minnesota last February, he has scarcely taken a moment's rest, and all his effort wherever he has been has been prolific of good results. His magnificent personality seems to dispel illusions, strengthen the weak, subdue the factious and the factions, bring concord out of disagreements, and above all lift to the high plane of principle and right, where local or selfish interests incline to lower standards. We have seen such wonderful fruits as in New York, where the regular organization is certain to come to the next convention prepared at least to "take its medicine;" in the West the union of forces certainly foreshadowed; the south come solidly into line again; Kentucky reunited, assuring a great victory there this year and next; Gorman's Maryland, swinging into line for Bryan; Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, Ohio, Pennsylvania, in fact each and every portion of the country visited by Mr. Bryan has responded most significantly. As this bureau has constantly maintained, Bryan's renomination by as near acclamation as it can be done under Democratic procedure is as fixed as fate, and with it the reaffirmation of the doctrines and pledges of the regenerated Democracy which is the hope of the country.

The complete demise of the Gorman boom for president is noted by the Springfield (Mass.) Republican, in disposing of which The Republican very well observes that Gorman "excels in craft and manipulation and use of language to conceal thought," while "Mr. Bryan is one of the most ingenuous men who have ever been conspicuous in our politics."

All eyes are this week turned toward Chicago for the meeting of the Democratic National Committee, when so much is expected from its deliberations, bearing on the campaign. Minnesota will be well represented in the person of National Committeeman T. O'Brien. There is every indication of realization of the hope that the meeting will disclose but one purpose, and that to go straight forward in the directions marked out by the Regenerated Democracy under the leadership of Bryan.

A complete file of the daily reports of the recent Buffalo political conference shows that the Associated Press reports were, as usual, shamefully unfair. The meeting was an earnest, enthusiastic presentation of views from different standpoints, on current economic and political topics, and while there were differences of opinion, the general conclusion to be drawn is that the drift is strong against the prominent Republican policies, and that opposition thereto will be effective and vigorous in next year's campaign. Anti-monopoly, anti-militarism, government and municipal control of the utilities, ennobling and protection of labor, taxation reform, are among the chief topics covered, and it is certain that the great majority of the forces represented at Buffalo will be found supporting Bryan next year.

The Ohio outlook is very favorable for Democratic success. As to Mr. McLean, his attitude is that if nominated for governor he will accept. And this seems likely to be done. If Mr. McLean could not sweep the Buckeye state it is certain that no man can do so. And should he be nominated and elected it would put him right in line to succeed Mr. Bryan in the White House.

No incident has better illustrated the difference in fairness between the city and the country press, than the treatment of the state officials in closing the St. Paul Savings bank. The country press have generally assumed that the governor and public examiner have acted on their best judgement, with regard only for the best interests of the people, and in fearless discharge of their sworn duty, while the city partisan press almost without exception have impugned the motives of both officials, showing the usual malignity. These officials can very safely leave the outcome to the people themselves, after the court in whose hands the case is at present has passed upon it. The people know very well that had there been an enforcement of the state banking laws for a number of years past, they would be better off by many thousands of dollars.

A like specimen case is the treatment of Mayor Gray of Minneapolis, imputing only political motives to his veto of the rapid transit ordinance. And, by the way, a paragraph commending such action was accidentally omitted from the last Bureau letter. Mayor Gray vetoed the proposed surrender of the streets of the city to a monopoly on the highest of grounds and gave absolutely unanswerable reasons therefor. It is perfectly certain, also, that he has the approval of the great masses of the people. That it was also good politics is because it is always good politics to do what is right and of sound policy. Watch results in the Minneapolis hustings and see if Mr. Gray is not approved—not by the corporation controlled council of course, nor by the corporation owned press, but by the people when they reach it in passing on the mayor's administration.

"Tight money" causes stock sales at loss, says the current Wall Street report. "Tight money" is manufactured at will by the bankers. They made a panic in 1893 under Cleveland's suggestion, to kill silver. They make it now to increase interest, for did not the rate for call money double in a day?

And speaking of banking, a prominent ex-banker said, in commenting on gold standard low interest: "Men in legitimate banking now have my sympathy. Neither our state nor savings banks are making a dollar, and they cannot while interest and discount are so low. How can they compete with the national banks, with the government actually furnishing them capital to loan out, equal to the amount of bonds they deposit and pays them interest on the bonds besides!"

Judge Steele has had the Republican state central committee together once more without setting the world turning the other way, but not without the usual "break" being made. This time there were several, one to increase the power of the Republican bureau to do harm, and the other said to be in having invited ex-Weighmaster C. M. Reese of Hennepin to make report on the Swedes of Hennepin. The judge will not have another until September, owing to the engagements of Tams Bixby, Goodnow, Byrnes and other parts of the "machine."

Bixby, otherwise Astute Tams, is working a smooth game. Called in for counsel (on Uncle Sam's per diem), he will encourage the Collins, Clapp, Van Sant, Eddy, Heatwole and any other supporters, and then walk off with the nomination himself.

The State Dairy and Food Department does not let up a minute in its determined efforts for protection of the dairy interests and producers of food articles. The 14 manufacturers of oleomargarine, backed by $46,000,000 of trust money, have doubled their product within the last year, tons on tons of which come into this state to rob the farmer and dairyman. The Department is relentlessly pursuing the adulterators of lard, with the determination, if possible, to drive every pound of the bogus stuff out of Minnesota. There is not a great corporation operating this stuff in the state but has been proceeded against. Oleo and bogus lard have got to go.

The Republican bureau letter did not like Governor Lind's Fourth of July comment on the Philippine war that the killing off of the liberty loving Filipinos is "bad business." If the Republicans do not think it is "bad business," let them wait till the boys come home and see what they say. And the governor was also right in saying that the masses of the people pay the war expenses, and the rich will reap the only benefits of the new colonial policy.

The people pay war expenses every time they turn round; whenever they make a deed, or a mortgage, or a contract, draw money from the bank or send a telegram. If you are not in the habit of doing either, in these gold standard times of trust prosperity, just try it in sending a message by the telegraph monopoly. The stamp they require you to put on or pay for is your contribution to our imperial policy.

Some fat and sleek officers from Fort Snelling, though hiding their names, criticise Governor Lind, and seek to throw the blame of loss of a Northwestern recruiting station on the Governor. It is more likely that the unpopularity of Emperor McKinley's war is the true reason Fort Snelling was dropped. It is sad if the said fat and sleek do not like Lind, for the people who feed them do.

H. L. Chaffee of Minneapolis is organizing the commercial travelers against the trust prosperity, which has turned so many of the "ubiquitous" out in the cold. Things are vastly different with them since they marched and shouted for "sound money" in 1896. Chaffee warned his brethren then, but they would not. Now they would.

Senator Knute Nelson should be expeditious with that Cass Lake job. He is going to be a very busy man a little later on.

Accidental omission of a word by the printer and proof reader in the last letter made it say that the savings bank in St. Paul closed by the bank public examiner had but $50,000 "otherwise available." The omitted word was "immediately." The truth was that not more than 10 cents on a dollar of immediate liabilities was on hand, and yet great public servants like The Pioneer Press denounce the action of the examiner and Governor Lind, in discharging their sworn duty to protect the public.

The following thrilling lines closed the recent address of Hon. M. Morse in Tremont Temple, Boston, before the Anti-Imperialist League, of which such great, old time Republicans as Hoar, Boutwell, Edmunds, Atkinson, Sherman and many others are members:

"While our flag, with stars bedecked,
Threatens where it should protect,
And while Law shakes hands with Crime;
What is left us but to wait,
Match our patience to our fate
And abide the better time?"

Millions will say amen to the sentiment, and millions more will hope, strive and labor that the "better time" will dawn in 1900. G. S. C.

A Left-Handed Admission.

Three citizens—one a lawyer, one a doctor and one a newspaper man—sat in a back room recently in the gray light of the early dawn. On the table were many empty bottles and a couple of packs of cards. As they sat in silence a rat scurried across the hearth into the darkness beyond. The three men shifted their feet and looked at each other uneasily. After a long pause the lawyer spoke. "I know what you fellows are thinking," he said; "you think I thought I saw a rat, but I didn't!"—Chicago Inter Ocean.

The Teller Wouldn't Tell.

Mrs. Brown—Our language is full of misnomers. For instance, I met a man once who was a perfect bear, and they called him a "civil engineer."

Mrs. Smith—Yes, but that's not so ridiculous as the man they call "teller" in a bank. He won't tell you anything. I asked one the other day how much money my husband had on deposit, and he just laughed at me.—Catholic Standard and Times.

It is an awful shock to find that we have been polite to people who were not worth it.—Puck.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Climate and Crop Bulletin.

All the grains continue in excellent condition. Winter wheat will be ready to to cut by the 17th or sooner. Spring wheat is heading as far north as the northern state line. Barley is filling splendidly; it is ripening and will be ready for cutting by the 15th. Oats will make a fair crop. Rye is ripening a good crop and some is already in shock. Flax is doing well. A few correspondents report rust and lodging in wheat and oats, especially in the southwest, but if the present favorable weather conditions continue it is not probable that much loss will result from these causes. Corn has made a rapid growth and in southern counties much of it has been cultivated the last time. Potatoes have a splendid appearance. In places where corn was drowned out considerable buckwheat has been sown. The timothy crop is generally a good one and much of it has been cut and cured, though in some sections heavy dews, light showers and cloudy weather has prevented as rapid curing as desirable. Much clover was winter killed. Sugar beets generally look well, though in some sections they are weedy.

The Beet Sugar Factory.

Work has already been commenced at the beet sugar factory at St. Louis Park and a force of about seventy men is now employed. The entire forty acres of land included in factory grounds will be filled in. A new artesian well 1,000 feet deep has just been completed. Two large tanks with a capacity of 150,000 gallons each will be erected to store the refuse syrup until it can be shipped east to be used in the manufacture of alcohol. The company hopes to build a distillery of its own next year so that all the by-products can be made use of at home. The plant will be given a thorough overhauling and will be put in first-class shape by the time the beets begin to arrive in sufficient numbers to warrant its operation. The prospects are bright for big crop this year and it is expected that the factory will be started by the first of September and run until midwinter.

Are the Hoppers Coming?

Prof. Otto Lugger, entomologist of the state agricultural school, who has just returned from the Turtle mountains in North Dakota, fears an invasion of grasshoppers this season. The ground is infested with them in that country and the season has been a favorable one with them he says. They are now hatching and will shortly be on the move. It is probable that they will spread through Manitoba and North Dakota and there is a chance that they will sweep down on the wheat fields of Minnesota. Prof. Lugger advises the farmers to get in readiness to meet the enemy by constructing "hopperdozers," the plans for which he will furnish on application. Where hoppers have reached a community he also advises farmers to plow a furrow around their farms and saturate it with crude kerosene oil.

Blown Down.

Ringling's circus tent collapsed during a heavy storm at Crookston. Owing to the threatening weather only a small crowd was present. The grand entree had just been concluded and only a few performers were in the ring. It seems a miracle that no lives were lost. J. P. Johnson of McIntosh, Miss Adams of Crookston, Erick Berkman of St. Hilare had legs broken, and fifty others were slightly injured. The property loss to the show people was $7,000. Ringling Brothers personally looked after all injured citizens. The menagerie tent remained in position. The animals were frantic but none escaped.

A Frightful Death.

Edward Hanson, a feeble-minded boy of about thirteen, met with a frightful death at the state school for the feeble-minded at Faribault. A number of the children had been taken out by the teachers for a ride on the merry-go-round, and Hanson was one of the first lot on the machine. He was placed on the inner circle, or revolving platform, which has a number of seats. The merry-go-round had scarcely started when several of the pupils saw him stand up as if he was giddy. The next moment he fell backward on his head on the ground. He was instantly drawn under the stationary platform or exit steps. No one saw what then happened until they perceived the lifeless body lying several feet away with the head completely torn off.

C. N. Fitch, of Minneapolis, was fined $25 for not labeling compound lard.

William Baldwin has been appointed weigher in the grain department.

The attorney general is preparing to bring suit against the Canda Cattle Car company to compel it to pay taxes in this state. The case will be brought under the law imposing a tax on outside corporations, which operate through the state as this company does. Its cars are hauled back and forth through the state, but the company itself is not located here.

A MAN OF PRUDENCE.

He Thought a Cyclone Cellar Might Come in Handy When He Was Married.

"Speaking of wives and their dispositions and tendencies," said Mr. Biskum to the evening crowd in front of his cross-roads store, "there was John Brunt, that lived for ten years in the cyclone belt in Kansas, trying to raise corn and mortgages and things like that, until he was able to borrow money enough to get back to Maryland again without walking more than half way. John come right to me, and I let him have a job on my farm at $20 a month, for he was a hard worker and thrifty. At the end of the first year he had got the Widow Allen's promise to marry him in October, and he rented a nice little farm to do business again on his own hook. John was a widower himself, and being a practical sort of a man, he went to work right away putting the farm and the house into shape. One day I happened over his way, and found him digging a hole in the back yard.

"'What's that for?' says I, walking around and looking over things.

"'That's a cyclone cellar, Mr. Biskum,' says he.

"'A cyclone cellar?' says I, considerably astonished. 'What do you want a cyclone cellar for? This ain't Kansas.'

"'I know it ain't,' says he; 'but you know, Mr. Biskum,' and he got very confidential, 'I'm going to git married, and a cyclone cellar may come in mighty handy occasionally.'"—Washington Star.

SHAPE OF AN ANAESTHETIC.

As Described by an Eminent Specialist Who Had Used One in an Operation.

It is a Bath physician who tells the following:

"Some time ago I happened to spend the night in a country town not far from Bath and it happened that there was stopping at the same hotel an itinerant eye specialist.

"We drifted into a conversation, and during the course of the evening he told me some of the marvelous operations he had performed on the eye. One case in particular he spoke of that caused me considerable astonishment, for I didn't know, I confess, that the operation had been successfully performed. He said he had recently taken out a patient's eye, scraped the back of it, and returned it to its proper place. The patient, he said, was never troubled by bad eyesight afterward.

"'That was a difficult operation, doctor?' said I.

"'Yes,' said he, 'it was.'

"'I suppose you found it necessary to employ an anaesthetic?'

"'Yes, I did,' he admitted.

"'What anaesthetic did you use, doctor?' I persisted.

"'Oh, well, unless you are familiar with such operations you probably wouldn't understand if I were to tell you. But—well, it was shaped something like a spoon,' explained the eminent specialist."—Lewiston (Me.) Journal.

Justice in the West.

"Heard a couple of good ones on this trip," announced one of Detroit's traveling men. "At a little town in Oklahoma court was in session, and I dropped in while waiting for the train. The prosecution had taken the testimony of a stationary engineer, and the attorney for the defense took hold. "Where were you the day this thing happened?' he inquired.

"'Runnin' a injun.'

"'What tribe did he belong to?'

"The day before a case had been tried in which a man had climbed to the top of a freight car laid up on a siding. He had no business there, but loosened the brake. The car started down grade, gained speed rapidly for five miles, and then turned a somersault over an embankment. His collar bone was broken and he got a verdict for $500 because a smart lawyer convinced the jury that the railroad was guilty of contributory negligence."—Detroit Free Press.

Elasticity of English.

Where does the slang of the day originate? When a new verbal monstrosity comes into currency its origin is as mysterious as its effect is startling. On a roof garden last night a weary-looking youth in a straw hat that had seen better days and with tell-tale puffs beneath his eyes, released two straws from his mouth long enough to remark, languidly, that he was suffering from a horrible case of the "ding-bats." His companion, who looked like a vaudeville lady, had just remarked in a tone loud enough to be heard by her neighbors, that one of the performers was "a useless bunch of trousers." One meant that his head ached, the other that the object of her criticism was professionally incompetent. It's a great language.—N. Y. Commercial Advertiser.

Filling the Gap.

The bright boy of fiction is playing with his Noah's ark.

"What are these two chips of wood?" asks the bright boy's father.

It is necessary for the bright boy of fiction to have a father, you know; there has to be somebody to draw him out.

"Them, replied the bright boy, without hesitation, is the microbes!"

Of course, if we think a minute, we perceive that there must have been a pair of microbes on the ark.—Detroit Journal.

Brothers in Affliction.

The czar can sympathize with that ancient Indian who is credited with giving his name to the city of Cheboygan. He had just returned from a long hunting trip through the northern wilds of the Michigan peninsula when the native nurse hurried forward and dashed his hopes by telling him he was the father of a third little daughter. The noble red man straightened up, and, with a look of deepest disgust on his coppery face, gutturally exclaimed: "She-boy-'gain!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

For disobedience the small boy frequently takes the palm.—Chicago Daily News.

Man once ate the cream, but now they cremate the man.—Chicago Daily News.

An Excellent Combination.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, July 21, 1899.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Dr. Niven, Waverly, Aug. 5 and 6.

—Dr. Niven at Delano, Friday, August 4th.

—C. G. Roosen has a bran new horse and buggy.

—The weather this week has been hot enough for most people.

—The improved sidewalk from Shaffer's to Maxfield's stores is a big improvement over the old one.

—J. E. Borsh has his new Third street residence well under way. It bids fair to be just a little better than its predecessors.

—Several Delanoites attended the ball game at Waverly on Saturday. Waverly and Litchfield contested. Waverly won, score 7 to 12.

—The new Board of Education now is John E. Borsch, M. A. O'Hair, Dr. J. S. Shrader, I. Gutzwiller, O. A. Burns and A. E. Johnson.

—Binding twine is one of the staples of trade now. Rye and barley is mostly in shock, and oats is fast maturing. Wheat harvest will soon be on.

—People who use coal stoves are already preparing for winter, getting their coal sheds in order and figuring on laying in a supply of fuel, etc., etc.

—Georgie Burns has become proprietor of a nannie goat. He expects syon to have a harness and then will try to keep up with Fred Peters on the road.

—C. G. Roosen has ordered a carload of brick and expects soon to have an engine house built at the round elevator, and to use a gasoline engine instead of the horse power.

—Some of as fine hay as ever was made is being marketed here before stacking, cheap. Some of it is wild hay but much is timothy and clover. Now is the time to secure your winter's supply.

—Carl Shrader informs us that he has the contract for putting in a culvert on the Ed Ziebarth road, and that he would commence work this morning so the road will be impassable for a week or ten days.

—The social at Eb Brandon's on Tuesday evening was well attended and a fine time had. Many from Delano drove out and enjoyed the evening. The berries were good, judging from the box we received.

—Rev. John Doran preached at the M. E. church to a fair sized audience, Sunday night. He did well for a man who has years ago had his obituary notice printed in several papers. He has lost none of his old time fire, and earnestness.

—The Dayton company showed two nights this week in the City hall. Their musical trio was good. The spiritual performances were what the Prof. claimed, lies and deceptions. But they serve to make many think the Prof. possessed a great power in some mysterious way.

—The Delano Cemetery Association has finally succeeded in getting the plat of the grounds on record with the Register of Deeds, and is now prepared to give deeds for lots in the cemetery. Several who have bought lots have not yet secured deeds. They can do so by calling on the Secretary R. M. Walter.

—Several letters bearing date from May 13 to June 9 were received here Tuesday, from soldier boys in the Philippines. We have heard of none of the boys desiring to remain in the Philippines longer than necessary to get a boat for home. We publish the one from our regular correspondent, the first to be received for some time.

—S. S. Ball says on the 4th he placed a potted geranium on his wife's grave in the Delano cemetery. Last Wednesday he made another visit there and found it gone. He says this is the third one to get away. People who are mean enough to steal flowers from a grave ought to be taken care of. Be on the lookout, and if this thing is repeated let the guilty be punished.

—The old fashioned Methodist grove meeting at Armstrong was a grand success. Seats were arranged in a splendid grove, Rev. Abbott preached in the forenoon. Rev. Pitt preached in the afternoon and held a genuine old fashioned love feast. About half of the good sized audience expressed themselves as believing in the Lord Jesus and as having a hope of life eternal. In the evening the pastor, Rev. Hodgson preached. All agreed that the day was profitably passed.

—We were pleased to receive an announcement of the State Teacher's Training school to be held at Wahpeton, North Dakota, July 31 Aug. 25, and find the name of a former Delano boy as Conductor, and instructor in Psycology, Pedagogy and Geography. It is gratifying to Delanoites to note the rise of any of its young men, and Prof. Johnson has done his share of the climbing so far, and having so good a start will doubtless outdistance many of those who are not so energetic and industrious.

—Sumner Cooper who was last week sentenced by Justice Walter to the Industrial school at Red Wing, went to Buffalo on Saturday and was released from custody by Judge Giddings. Sumner and several other boys about the village will doubtless profit by this narrow escape. It is much more pleasant for parents and friends to see a boy grow up at home among friends and become a useful member of society than to have to, for boyish pranks of too malicious a nature, be sent to state institutions. Boys take warning.

—Last spring the Health Officer in his annual report recommended that each family should be required to keep a barrel to empty swill into, and that the swill should be removed often enough to insure people against disease or unpleasantness from this source. The council adopted the report. A few citizens tried the plan and now speak in high praise of it. A few more pour their dishwater, soapsuds, swill, etc., onto the manure piles in the alley and make mudholes almost impassable in some alleys. Let the swill barrel be adopted into every family during the remainder of the hot season at least. If the council would provide for the removal of the swill it is altogether likely the citizens would willingly do the rest.

—The annual school meeting was much better attended than the one held a year ago, 103 votes being cast as against 41 a year ago. Two printed tickets were peddled about, one containing the names of I. Gutzwiller, John Cunningham and A. E. Johnson; the other, O. A. Burns, George Sutton, and A. E. Johnson. The name of Adam Horsch was placed on the board as a candidate also, though he was adverse to having it so. The ballot officially declared was as follows:

I Gutzwiller, 57 for 3 years.
John Cunninghan, 37 for 3 years.
A. E. Johnson, 85 for 1 year.
O. A. Burns, 45 for 3 years.
George Sutton 35 for 3 years.
Adam Horsch 13 for 3 years 7 for 1yr.
L. M. Maxfield 4.
John Lohmiller 3.
F. H. Lindsley 4.
Fred A. Knoll, 1.
Charles S. Hawker 1.

Gutzwiller, Burns, and Johnson were declared elected.

Personal.

Pat Grecar, of Minneapolis is in town.

O. A. Burns visited Minneapolis on business during the week.

John Mayer, of the G. N. spent Sunday at home with his family.

Mrs. E. S. Babb and children visited Armstrong friends Sunday.

Rev. and Mrs. John Doran, of Cokato were Delano visitors this week.

S. E. Farnham, of the Minneapolis Tribune, visited Delano friends Monday.

Wash Rader and family returned yesterday from a visit with Minneapolis friends.

Miss Alice Arnold, former principal of the Delano school was in town this week.

Dr. Catlin visited the County seat Tuesday and attended the Boxell murder trial.

Fred Farber came up from Minneapolis for a visit with Delano relatives this week.

Miss Irene Cheeley, who visited in and about Delano a week, returned to Wayzata Saturday.

Charley Conzet and brother Fred, of Rockford, visited their mother and relatives at Eagle Bend and Deer Lake.

Miss Grant of St. Paul Miss Merinor, and Dr. Halgren drove over from Watertown and called on Delano friends Saturday.

Mrs. Chance, Mrs. Mulford, and Wolfendons, Hoppers, and others left Satrday for Lake Independence to camp out for awhile.

David Robinson, who has made his home for years with his sister, Mrs. Bain, left last week for Owatonna, to live at the home for feeble minded.

Miss Kate Cauterni, of Eau Claire, Wis., visited with her sister, Mrs. Peter R. Peterson, this week. They with Peter, drove to Buffalo Wednesday.

Mrs. V. F. Brothers writes us to send her GAZETTE to Austin, Minn. instead of Cour de Leon, Idaho, as she has returned to Austin to help take care of her aged mother.

Mrs. George Goetzman, of Howard Lake, was visiting Delano friends Wednesday. She contemplates a trip to the Pacific coast soon. She is a near neighbor of the Boxells and claims they are as fine people as live anywhere, good neighbors and attend to their own business.

County Cullings.

John Boxell and George Taylor have been released from Jail on $5,000 bonds.

The summer training school at Buffalo is said to be a success, 105 teachers enrolled.

There appears to be a wonderful discrepancy in the evidence of somebody in the Boxell case.

The Annandale Advocate-Post tries hard to make people believe they should be loyal to the government, right or wrong. They should not even criticise what they don't like in the administration, and then it proceeds to abuse our Governor, who is not of the same way of thinking politically as the Advocate-Post. According to its own theories the Advocate Post needs hanging.

The trial of Joe Boxell after 19 days closed on Tuesday at about 5 p. m. The attorneys, Douglas, Latham, Wendell and Cutting spoke in the order given and held the large crowd quietly listening for hours. Then Judge Giddings read his very able and fair charge to the jury, and deputies Flannigan and Reems were sworn in to take charge of the jury: Aug. Anderson, Henry Worthington, W. A. Traska, L. R. Niles, Henry Kathman, E. D. Ryder, H. M. Piper, Andrew Henneman, Sam Sykes, M. W. Kingsburg, Paul Hebberling, C. C. Rice. After about 4 hours the jury returned a verdict of not guilty and Joe Boxell was set at liberty.

Political Issues.

In these trying times when so many new issues are sprung upon us, 'tis mighty refreshing to fall back on a leader of such a high degree of political honor, such a refreshing standard of manhood, as "Mr. Bryan" has nobly demonstrated can be possessed by a man in this age of political character collapse. To see a man with back bone solid enough to hold up a brain and mind, that cannnot be dazed by the field of the cloth of gold of the Belmont 10 dollar a plate caliber. Bryan, long may you live to define your principles and stand by them; not become the cringing figurehead of a party whose political life means nothing. Indeed this is the first time in years when the mighty gold barons have been told to their faces that they must subscribe to the new declaration of independence, before they could be comitted worthy to sit down to the loyal feast, of earnest, honest, country loving people. Thank God we have lived to see this day.

J. H. M. quotes Dr. Shutter as saying this is a God given war, etc. etc." Thank the great causes of nature, that produced man, be they Gods or devils, that some of us have brains enough to look at this matter in a sober manner. The same "God given" opportunities that sent some of our best men down there to die in anything but a holy war and cause, this same "God" worked upon the minds of some of our monster corporations and combines, that they might fulfill, and once more repeat that beautiful command in scripture which enjoins the peculiar people of the "Jew God". "That ye shall not eat anything that diest of itself; thou shalt give it unto the stranger that is in thy gates that he may eat it; or thou mayest sell it unto an alien.—Duet. XIV-21. Now this command is indeed a "corker" and by the way Miles and all the others who testified about the rotten meat transaction was made to appear "doubtful testimony", would make one think that these meat selling "trusts" must surely be guided by the same "God" who transacted the Israelites meat business. So if the war is holy this beef business must be for Christ told Pilate in about this style when Pilate said he could condemn him to his death. Christ's answer was: "Thou couldst do nothing except power was given the from on high". So this seems to sanctify and make holy two monstrous transactions in the history of the greatest nation on earth. Shade of Columbus! ! ! "God" causes the war that the "greatest nation on earth" might carry the sword and the bible, the two great persuaders for civilization, to the sorely oppressed natives of the Pacific islands: caused the young men to leave their homes and friends and prospects and in their patriotic devotion face death in some of its most fearful conditions, caused some of our great commercial manipulators, also inspired with selfish greed for "filthy lucre" to send ship loads of that stinking beef, so the testimony goes, to our poor boys already burdened and hampered by the most trying ricisitudes of war. How a sane man can associate a "God of love" as the chief cause of such hellish work as the last year has passed into history, is beyond my ken. Selah!

The human race is not entirely out of animalism and barbarism and in our evolution toward a higher manhood, we are apt to take our unholy and greedy meannesses as the voice of God urging us on to conquest and subjugation.

'Tis said "Stonewall Jackson" and others in the rebel army prayed to God for victory, were members of his holy church and poured out their souls to high heaven that the beloved institutions of the Confedracy might pass safely through the struggle for liberty. Well the whole North, preachers and laity, was all down on their knees engaged in the same purpose. Both intensely earnest; both believing in God. Of course both sides could not be victorious. The largest body and the best equipped and best handled men are generally the ones that are successful. This not nice to think a God of love, a God that sent Christ to teach human affection; sent Christ, the great sympathetic healer of breaking hearts; sent Christ to lead his children up and out of their animal natures, up into the daylight of spiritual possibilities. 'Tis not nice I repeat, to think this being that is at the center of all life, would take a part in the murderous actions of his undeveloped children.

All life is a hymn, and the increasing efforts of the universal cause, is continual blessings for humanity, taking no part in factions, being no respector of clans or nations, but lifting all humanity collectively, upward and out of the evils that adhere, not ifhere. If mankind only would let the sun of righteousness shed its healing influence into all the fields of human endeavor, there would then be no more war. The "Czar's" peace conference is a step forward. This the first premonition of the coming wave of spirituality that will illume the world during the next century. There will be thousands ready to receive the instructions that will come to us from beyond the veil. It will be an awakening of better aspirations, a broader and grander conception of the duties of life. All classes of men now separated by cast, and adamantine environment, will break down all barriers, and stand united in the holy bonds of love for all and a perfect expression of what universal brotherhood means. But we still live on earth, are dominated and controlled by the iron hand of monopolies; but the greatest monopoly of all is the money trust now under organization, and by and by it will be sprung upon the dear people same as that master stroke of financiering was, i. e., the "crime of 73". Inch by inch our liberties and freedom are curtailed, and sooner or later the American sovereign, the voter, the representative of the greatest nation on earth, will surely be turned out to die like an old horse. Worn out and discouraged with labor, labor, labor and rags, rags for our pay. But there is a way out!

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal,

Both Together One Year for Only $1.80

In this way you secure your own home paper and an illustrated magazine at a price that is only about a fourth of what some of the illustrated magazines sell for. It was The Cosmopolitan which offered a prize of $3,000 for the best horseless carriage and prizes for best plans for public baths, and best arrangement of sewer and pipe systems for cities. It was The Cosmopolitan which set the presidents of great schools and universities seriously discussing the defects of existing educational systems. St Paul Dispatch

25c per month for Daily. • 75c per year for the Weekly.

The St. Paul Dispatch is the best Twin City daily; it has no equal in the Northwest as to size or quality.

The DISPATCH excels in Northwestern news, having a correspondent in every Northwestern town.

We have also succeeded in arranging for two additional offers in connection with this journal and The Cosmopolitan.

After placing on your book-table the best of the illustrated magazines in connection with your home paper, probably the most important thing in a household—for every household, in fact—is the proper keeping of accounts. The only thorough system of Self-instruction in Bookkeeping is the "Ellis." It is not only a complete instructor, but with it, neatly put up in a box, go sales-book, cash-book, journal, ledger, bill-heads, statements, bank-book, bills payable and bills receivable, checks, remitting book and every conceivable appliance for beginning and carrying on the business of the farm, the shop, the manufactory or the store. More people fail in business because they do not keep their accounts straight than from any other cause. Farmers and mechanics, husbands and wives, students and professional men, young and old, rich and poor, all need some knowledge of accounting. By the "Ellis System" this is easily acquired through home study.

The cheapest price at which this is sold at retail is $1.75 (express from Michigan unpaid), but The Cosmopolitan has purchased many thousands of sets so that it may offer them if taken in connection with this paper and The Cosmopolitan

All Three Together for Only $2.25

One other opportunity we offer you. You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine

Three Together One Year for Only $2.35

IT'S Root hog, or die, now.

ELIHU ROOT, a New York lawyer, has taken Alger's place in the President's cabinet.

OF course Otis' plans haven't failed. Didn't he tell us he was going to "take them in reverse"?

MR. CLAUSEN has been elected to supersede himself on the grain and Ware House Commission. Quite a surprise to many.

VOLUNTEERS are surely hard to get when men who apply for commissions are told they can have them by securing 40 acceptable volunteers.

THE sooner the talk of giving the volunteers a medal for remaining in the Philippines after their term of enlistment had expired is stopped, the better for those talking it up.

WOULDN'T it be about on an equilibrium with Embalming Egan on full pay, to retire Otis from command in the Philippines by making him governor of the Islands? That's the talk now.

THE post office department of our government must know its business. When the p. m. at Lake City was shot the mail ceased to go there. When Mr. Atkinson sent some pamphlets to Manila, the volunteers mail was ordered held at San Francisco, since June 18 last.

REPUBLICAN papers have howled so much about Alger that he has given up his position in the President's cabinet. Now they are insisting that Corbin and Otis must go. They will be apt to find out where the blame lies by next year, when the campaign opens up for president.

IT has been claimed that 36 returned Minnesota soldiers, some of whom, were sick, recently landed at San Francisco, were not met by the girls they left behind them; as they had expected; and were left to suffer in the hot sun, Col. Ames is there, and has telegraphed that he would look after the boys.

GOLD BUGS are trying to make out that W. J. Bryan is loosing ground by citing Horace Boies, of Iowa, who is claiming that 16 to 1 is not a necessary ratio upon which to agree, and claiming paper money should be used more. If the ratio is so little a matter why not keep the one we have 16 to 1? As for Horace Boies being any loss to Bryan, isn't he as much for Bryan now as in 1896?

SOMEBODY has suggested that all criminals be sent to the Philippines to fight the natives, and forthwith comes the offer of the Minnesota Industrial school, at Redwing, to send 16 boys. Wont the young men's parents have to be consulted; or does placing boys in the State industrial school carry with it the privilege of sending them thousands of miles across seas to subdue a people who are fighting for freedom.

PEOPLE are loosing faith in the ability of the present administration to accomplish much. They promised to use their best endeavors to bring about bimetallism and failed. And now they want to adopt the gold standard. The Cabinet has been changed until but three of the original men remain. Didn't hang together. They undertook to subdue the Philippines in a few months. They have not got through yet, and have pronounced the officers a failure. Who is getting any glory out of that? They are building trusts as fast as Chaplain Mc Cabe built M. E. churches. Do the trusts help the people any? They have suspended the mails in S. C. They have censored the press reports from the Philippines. And when the correspondents got word over how things were going began to hunt for scape goats. They have cut loose temperance people by ruling the army canteen allowable. Uneasy lays the head that would wear and Emperors crown.

This country is far from ready for any such foolishness. No imperialism need expect to flourish among a free and independent people. The prospects are that the masses of American citizens will flock to the standard of William Jennings Bryan next year as they have never been known to flock to any predecessor's cause. Why shouldn't they? He stands for people rights; the rights of the constitution; for free and equal rights and justice to all.

DAY by day it leaks out that Alger, and Corbin and Otis were only doing what they were instructed to do. What better will new men in their places be if they are obliged to follow the same instructions? Or, will the tactics now be changed?

PROF. LUGGER has warned people to keep a lookout for grasshoppers. This year's crop is about safe from them now; but it would be well to keep an eye out for indications of their being with us next year. It might be well not to sell to short of grain if there is any fear of their being with us next year.

IT is astonishing what excuses those in authority can find for keeping the volunteers in the Philippines against their will, and in violation of the contract made with them. Why don't they tell the truth, and say, that men enough to take the Islands are hard to get, so long as the object lesson of those already there is so fresh?

EVEN though Robert Ingersol thought that he believed in nothing; not even a heraafter; and that when men die they are, as animals, gone forever-more, and his body was cremated; it seems that mediums did not escape a chance to get a communication from him. Now if his doctrine was true surely the mediums must be deceived or deceiving people in claiming a communication.

STRIKES and quarrels, demanding or furnishing excuse for soldiers to be ordered out appear more than usually numerous. Are all those places for soldiers the way things are being worked, to make the people of this "land of the brave, and home of the free" believe they need an army of an hundred thousand men? And will Congress be green enough to bite at such bait, when it meets?

WE are one of those who believe that more honorable peace could be arranged in the Philippines now, if our administration was willing, than after another military demonstration. If our country should land soldiers enough in the Islands to govern the people according to military plans, where would the honor be? Everybody knows if this country was willing to do that, that there would be no trouble to get soldiers enough to San Francisco to load the boats, as they steam away for Manila.

THE neighborhood war in Clay county, Kentucky, goes merrily on. Several large families are now involved in the quarrel, and more bloodshed is daily expected. It is claimed that Col. Watterson favors letting them fight it out to a finish without being molested This possibly partakes of the same idea that the man had that said his big curly dog would do just what he told it to, and when he had come out of the water dripping wet, and stood near a lot of onlookers the man said "Shake Rover! Shake". And Rover shook.

THE elements, at least in the Philippine islands have turned in to help Filipinos to gain the liberty they love. Where 14 inches of rain is reported as the average for June we are now told that 41 inches have fallen this year; that bridges supposedly safe have been washed away; that detatched bodies of American soldiers are left without means of communication with Manila, which city is itself largely under water. Then cyclones are severe, and even the natives are aggressive. Some how the Lord is not giving Americans the aid in driving the Filipinos from their homes, that he did when they were aiding the Filipinos to gain their liberty from their Spanish oppressors.

A Hard Case.

When a man becomes involved in a law suit if his case is just, and honest, and himself a just and honest man, he usually hires the most honest and able attorneys he can find and they pick out the most honest and intelligent jury they can, and expect justice.

When a man has charges preferred against him that he knows are true, and the punishment is heavy, and he, as is apt to be the case, is himself tricky, he hires the sharpest, foxeyest, trickeyest lawyer he can find; they pick out the men, as far as possible, for jury men who have the shadiest reputations; the plea is not guilty and they knowing themselves wrong expect, by hook or crook, to win the case; or at least have the jury disagree.

From analogy, then, we are led to infer that the President now has concluded that we are, as a country in some kind of danger. That we are in a sorry fix. We are in such straits that we must get out at any hole we can Otherwise why would he appoint as Secretary of war, to help settle the trouble we have on hand in the Philippines, a man whose interesting legal career, is given by the New York World as, "In nearly all of the great cases he has been identified with he has been on the side of the millions as opposed to what was regarded as essential for the public welfare." The World says Elihu Root, the new Secretary of War, helped defend William M. Tweed when New York sought to punish him for stealing millions of public funds, and that before the trial was over the presiding Judge, Noah Davis, a distinguished Republican, "censured Mr. Root telling him it was better to be known as an honest man than a successful lawyer."

The World says, in 1886 when the Jake sharp Broadway franchise steal was being investigated Mr. Root was counsel for many of the stockholders and contended that they and not the public should own the franchise.

He was counsel for Broadway Traction company and Metropolitan Street Railway company syndicate.

In 1892 Massachusetts people tried to have the operations of the Whiskey Trust declared illegal. Mr. Root defended the Trust.

He was counsel for former Judge Hilton in his famous contest for A. T. Stewart's millions.

He defended the Amsterdam avenue "grab."

He drew the $25,000,000 Astoria grab bill in the interests of Standard oil company.

He drew up for the Metropolitan Street Railway Company a proposition to the Rapid Transit Commission offering to build the underground road, providing his corporation was given a perpetual franchise for the tunnel.

If the career of Mr. Root as outlined by the world is any criterian to go by President Mc Kinley's new Secretary of War will, doubtless be able to look out for the interest of corporations and our country right or wrong about as well as any legal gentleman in the country.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 21, 1899.

The refusal of the administration to take any notice of the courageous exposure by the newspaper correspondents at Manila, of the deception practiced upon the people of this country by Gen. Otis in his official dispatches and of the extraordinary tactics employed by him to prevent the truth being called by the correspondents, is a tacit acknowledgement that the deception has been carried on with the knowledge and approval of the administration. This attitude of the administration has been harshly criticized by prominent republicans as well as by everybody else. If the exposure had been made by one correspondent it would have been right enough to say that it might have been inspired by personal prejudice, but it was signed by every prominent correspondent at Manila, including those of the Associated Press, which furnishes papers of all shades of politics, and moreover it merely confirmed what was known to many for months past. If the administration enjoys its present position, its opponents ought to raise no objection, as it is making anti-McKinley votes by thousands.

Secretary Alger has told Mr. McKinley what he had previously told everybody else-that his resignation, which accompanied the information, might take effect at his pleasure. That was no news to Mr. McKinley and has not relieved his embarrassment a bit. Members of the Cabinet are not in the habit of refusing to resign when asked by the President to do so. The only man who ever did so was Belknap, who had to be kicked out of Grant's cabinet.

While it is not known positively what concessions were granted by this Government in the four treaties negotiated with England, under the Dingley law, respectively for trade reciprocity with the English colonies of Barbadoes, Bermuda, British Guiana and Jamaica, it is said that they are equivalent to a horizontal reduction of 12 per cent in the duties levied by the Dingley tariff on the products of those colonies. All of these treaties will have to be approved by the House as well as the Senate before they go into effect. The time limit was reached this week, and no more treaties can be negotiated under the Dingley law.

Events this week have made it certain that there is a movement on foot in administration circles to throw Hobart overboard to make Gov. Roosevelt Mr. McKinley's running mate in next year's campaign, the idea being that Roosevelt's war record will neutralize any defections caused by Algerism and administration war blunders and mismanagement. Roosevelt's consent has not yet been obtained, and that is why the idea is being publicly pushed. The managers of the scheme think that if the McKinley and Roosevelt ticket is advocated by a large number of republican papers it will tickle the vanity of Gov. "Teddy" to such an extent that he will consent to being shelved by becoming a candidate for Vice President. Mr. Hobart's consent has not been obtained, either, but that is not considered any more necessary than was Levi P. Morton's consent when a similar game was played, notwithstanding the close personal friendship existing between Mr. McKinley and Mr. Hobart. Friendship counts for nothing with the men who are arranging for Mr. McKinley's political future.

"The trusts must go' is the keystone of an organization which though comparatively new, already claims members in every state and territory. It is known as the American Anti Trust League. The executive committee of the league held a meeting in Washington this week. The league, which has a full set of national officers, thus sets forth its object: "The purpose of the American Anti-Trust League is to arouse the only power on earth that is stronger than the power of money in public life. That power is the patriotic impulses of the people. The little finger of that power, when awakened, is stronger ten thousand times than the influence of all the billions of all the trusts and combines of the land The memories of the many sacrifices of the fathers call us to action. If these trust combinations are allowed to go on they can plunder each of us into poverty. No man knows how soon the fear of hunger for his wife and family will make him a coward. It behoves us to strike while the fire of liberty yet burns. The American Anti-Trust League is non partisan We call all American freemen to council. If a democrat or a populist or a republican public man has shown himself to be a subservient tool of this great corporate power, then all the united power of the men of the American Anti-Trust League will be used to crush him and drive him from public life. We will adopt the tactics of our enemy until we have created a legislative, judicial and executive power in sympathy with the public welfare. And we call upon every American citizen who loves his country and the great principles of popular government better than he does his party to join us in the work of re-establishing the equal rights of American citizenship."

FOUND NORTH POLE.

Fortunate Discoverer Forgot to Bring It Back with Him, However.

Startling Story of a Man Styling Himself King La Jole—Found Natives and a Boiling Spring and Other Wonders.

A man who calls himself King La Jole arrived in New York the other day and told a startling story of his discovery of the north pole. He left Montreal about five years ago and traveled toward the polar regions with an old trapper by the name of Josh White to hunt the polar bear and moose. When they had proceeded further north than any other white man had gone and had crossed a great expanse of ice they came to an open sea. Suddenly the ice broke, and he was carried away with several of his dogs, leaving his trapper friend alone. He was whirled along in a strong current for 37 days, and was at last deposited on land inhabited by a strange people dressed all in white furs. The natives were so pleased with him that they made him ruler over the 80,000 persons who inhabit the seven polar isles. He continues his story as follows:

"Several days after I had been made king I took my compass and directed my steps to a steaming mountain of water from which a warm air seemed to blow. When I got there I found an enormous fountain of boiling water about four miles in circumference, which shot up into the air for 1,000 feet. I looked at my compass and the needle was revolving so fast that it was almost invisible. I knew then that I had reached the north pole, and as I was King La Joie I named the country Poletsijoie. I discovered after I had been at the north pole several months that within a radius of 50 miles of the boiling fountain the temperature was so mild that it permitted vegetation. Within a few miles of the fountain beautiful flowers blossomed out of the barren ice and trees in great number rounded out into little green buds, which tasted like brussels sprouts."

ELOPERS SWINDLE FARMER.

A Novel Confidence Game Developed by Michigan's Marriage Industry.

A novel confidence game has made its appearance at St. Joseph, Mich., as a result of the recently developed local industry in quick marriages. A farmer is the victim, and supposed elopers will no longer find a welcome in his neighborhood.

The other evening a well-dressed man called at the home of Robert Wagner, a well-to-do farmer living a short distance from St. Joseph, and asked for a night's lodging, which was granted. A few minutes later a young man and woman called on Wagner and inquired for the nearest minister, as they wished to be married immediately, this being no uncommon thing at St. Joseph now, as there are many strange couples arriving daily from Chicago to get married. This part of the conversation the strange man overheard, and he remarked that he was a clergyman and would perform the ceremony.

A certificate was drawn up and Mr. Wagner's name was secured as a witness, but instead of the certificate they must have, through quick work, placed a promissory note of $35 in its place. Wagner signed it and it turned up against him. The same game is said to have been worked in Indiana.

ITS LONG FLIGHT.

Carrier Pigeon Sent Out by French Steamer Reaches New York After Traveling 1,000 Miles.

The other evening a tired pigeon might have been seen circling over the Bowling Green offices of the Compagnie Generale Transatlantique. When it finally sought shelter there the attendant in charge of the French line carrier pigeons untied from its leg a tiny scrap of parchment, on which was written in ink: "Rosener: Audubon, Broadway, N. Y.; best souvenirs; compliments; fine weather. Bocandeu." The French line officials then ceased to wonder at the weariness of the pigeon which brought the message. It was from the liner La Gascogne, which left the New York port Saturday for Havre. Assuming that the Gascogne had made its usual speed, the pigeon must have traveled a distance of nearly 1,000 miles. Mr. Rosener, to whom the message was addressed, is an old friend of Capt. Bocandeu, of the Gascogne.

FLAG FOR POSTAL SERVICE.

One of Special Design to be Adopted by This Branch of the Government.

In the near future the postmaster-general will have a distinctive flag, as a proposition is now under consideration to adopt a flag for the post office department. An attractive design has been submitted by a Chicagoan. The proposed flag has a background of white crossed diagonally by red bars. In the center is a circle of blue with white stars, inclosing a man on horseback, the emblem of the mail carrier. Underneath the design are the initials P. O. D., in white. The flag has a fringe of gold, and, altogether, makes an exceedingly pretty design. All other nations have a distinctive flag for this important branch of the government service, and it is argued there is no reason why the post office department of this country should not have one.

Adopting American Methods.

A large trust is being formed at St. Johns for the development of the iron, coal and steel industries of Newfoundland.

VALUABLE DISCOVERY.

Mrs. Sickles Finds a Method of Rectifying Corn Oil—A Substitute for Olive Oil.

A new and interesting discovery has been made for the use of Nebraska dirt. A woman in Dawes county, Neb., has discovered a method for rectifying Indian maize corn, making it a valuable substitute for olive oil. It is not generally known that under the new milling process the kernel is degermed before manufacture into flour or meal or other food products. This little germ, containing the life properties of the corn kernel, also contains a rancid oil that taints and gives an unwholesome flavor to corn food products when not removed. The crude oil is thus thrown onto the corn millers in large quantities, and until this discovery they have had no method for successfully treating, hence it was valueless because of its rancid nature.

Mrs. Emma C. Sickles, now attending the Domestic Science laboratory in Washington city, discovered a way to treat it with the soil off her farm. After several months' time she applied for a patent, which was granted a few days ago, since which she has closed contracts with several down-east corn-milling concerns for the use of the soil in car lots to be used in the treatment of the crude oil. The patentee says the soil can be used quite as successfully in the beet sugar factories for the treatment of beet sugar and other food products. She will be here in a few days to personally oversee the shipping of the soil. Hers is the only method discovered in America for the treatment of corn oil, and all former corn oils used on American tables were rectified in Austria. She has found that no other part of America furnishes soil that will successfully treat the oil.

MAKES COFFIN SERVE TWICE.

Man Disinters His Brother in Order to Use Casket for His Dead Sister.

The coroner at Omaha had an extraordinary case called to his attention the other morning. Fritz Pries is a peculiar character. He resides on a farm six miles from the city. He is an atheist and believes a dead human body of no more consequence than clay, and that it should be buried at once after death and with no ceremony. Mrs. George Nelson, Pries' sister, died Sunday night at Pries' home. Pries made preparation to bury the body. There is a little old-fashioned graveyard on the Pries' farm and a grave was soon made in this plot of green, but Pries had no coffin.

Next to the new grave was the moss-covered grave of Adolph Pries, a brother of Fritz Pries. He was buried there ten years ago. Pries remembered that at the time an unusually fine casket was used for the purpose. He deliberately disinterred the body of his brother and removed the coffin from the ten-year-old grave, lifted the skeleton from the coffin, wrapped it in a quilt, placed it back in the grave and covered it from view. Then he took the old coffin to the barn, repainted it and put the body of his sister in it. The coffin was then placed in the new grave and covered up. The coroner could see nothing in the circumstances to call for his interference, and Mr. Pries exhibited surprise when he was asked if it was not an unusual proceeding. He did not think so.

MAY BE THE TIDES.

Superintendent of Wrecking Company That Saved the Paris Suggests a New Theory.

Superintendent Aisbett, of the wrecking companies which have just succeeded in getting the Paris off the rocks, gave a representative of the Associated Press the other day a contribution of a startling nature to the controversy as to the cause of wrecks on the Manacles. He said:

"In bringing the Paris to Falmouth she narrowly escaped a big Manacle rock. It was ebb tide, with a northerly wind blowing, which would naturally take the vessel south; but we found her getting nearer and nearer the Manacles until within 400 yards of them, whereas we ought to have been a mile to the southward. Things looked queer for a time, but we altered our tactics and cleared the rocks.

"From what I have seen during the past six weeks I am confident some mysterious current draws the vessels towards the rocks. While working on the Paris we warned numberless vessels of the danger they were in."

LAST COPPER MINE.

Miss Evangelina Garcia Searching for a Supposed Cipher Description of Its Location.

Miss Evangelina Garcia has arrived at the Broadway Central hotel, New York, to prosecute her search for the descendant of a Spanish prospector named Juan Lopez. This descendant is supposed to possess a cipher giving the location of a valuable copper mine in Mexico. In 1808 Henri Garcia, the grandfather of Miss Garcia, was prospecting in Mexico with Juan Lopez. One day they discovered a copper mine which gave every promise of great value. A description of the exact location of the mine was written down in form of an elaborate cipher. Garcia was killed. Juan Lopez disappeared after the death of his partner. Miss Garcia began her search for the precious document nearly a year ago. Three weeks ago she received a letter in Spanish telling her that Juan Lopez, the son of her grandfather's partner, had been in New York in 1896.

Among Our Exchanges.

Duluth Herald It is estimated that the trusts will cost the traveling salesmen $60,000,000 this year in situations lost and salaries, and that the hotels will lose $28,000,000 and the railroads $27,000,000 by reason of the slaughter of commercial travelers by the great combines.

Duluth Herald: "Keep beer out of the islands," exclaims an Illinois clergyman, "and the Philippine problem is solved." Slowly there! How many people does this minister suppose would favor the retention of the far off islands, if we could not unload our beer and other products on the natives?

Minneapolis Tribune: As long as President McKinley took the people of the country into his confidence they stood behind him almost to a man. His troubles began when he allowed his subordinates to suppress or distort facts which the country had an absolute right to know. There is still time to return to the old policy of frankness and recover much of the lost public confidence.

Candidates for official positions in Hawaii will have to find means to keep themselves before the public until 1900—there will be no general election in the new republic this year.

Eleven states will hold elections on November 7, and six of them—Iowa, Maryland, Kentucky, Ohio, Massachusetts and Mississippi—will elect governors. The others will elect state officers.

A Columbus woman has sued for divorce because, while her husband claimed before marriage to own a soap factory, the only thing she could discover after marriage remotely suggesting soap was the lie.

The civil authorities of Santiago have renamed one of the streets in honor of Gen. Wood, and they propose to change the name of the road upon which the American troops entered the city to Shafter avenue.

The pension list of the United States has apparently reached the high-water mark and is now falling. On June 30, 1898, there were 993,714 names on the list. Now there are but 992,644. The largest number of names ever on the pension rolls was 994,081 in August, 1898.

An artful boomer in the Klondike asserts that the cold of Alaska puts a crop of hair upon the baldest head. It is hardly worth while to go so far away for a hair tonic when liquid air can be produced for three cents a quart and of a temperature several hundred degrees below zero.

A new plan for a cooperative colony on a large scale has been announced. The location is to be in Ohio, on the shores of Lake Erie, near Toledo. The scheme calls for the building of a large commercial city, where all the profits arising from trade are to be equally divided among the members of the colony.

The American is nearly always an apt pupil, and especially so on the filed of sport. The golf championship in this country has this year been won by a homebred golfer. Heretofore the laurels have always gone to men who learned the ancient game in Scotland, but this time the Yankees have shown that they are able to master the principles of the game, if not its vocabulary.

A woman notary public in Colorado, who was recently married, asked the attorney-general what name she should use officially in the future. He replied that she must sign all documents as before her marriage, for he finds no law compelling or even authorizing a woman to drop her maiden name on the simple excuse of marriage. In fact, he says there is no authority for a change of name at marriage or at any other time.

The growth of the Christian Endeavor societies is without precedent in the history of church work. In 1882 the few societies then in existence had 481 members, and in 1883 the number enrolled had advanced to 2,870. Then the membership increased from 8,905 in 1884 to 11,000 in 1885, to 50,000 in 1886, to 140,000 in 1887, to 300,000 in 1888, to 500,000 in 1889, to 600,000 in 1890, until now it has 55,813 societies and a total membership of more than 3,500,000.

Miss Susan B. Anthony was delighted with Queen Victoria when introduced to her the other day, but was most pleased when her majesty declined to permit the American guests to depart without giving them a cup of tea. To the remonstrance of her private secretary that there were hundreds of these women guests her majesty retorted she didn't care if there were a thousand, "they must all have a cup of tea when they come to visit me."

The brigand you see in the comic opera is a rough-looking customer and he kills a man every two or three minutes, but, judging from advices from Rome, he is not one whit more active than the genuine article, and there is no question but that the genuine article is still very much in evidence. During the first five months of this year the brigands in Sardinia have committed 980 crimes of violence, murdered 57 persons, and committed no end of robberies, while in Sicily their deeds of violence number 719.

If bacteriologists are right in their declaration that tetanus (lockjaw) is caused by a germ they have an interesting field of study in Fourth of July accidents. The records show that the immediate cause of death in most of the fatalities primarily caused by powder burns, either from firecrackers or blank cartridges, is tetanus. How does the germ theory fit in? Are the tetanus bacilli in the powder or do powder burns cause a condition of tissue—a "culture medium"—especially favorable to the development of the bacteria?

The total number of pies now needed to supply the daily demands in Chicago is at least 40,000. The apple rules a prime favorite. At least 25 per cent. of the total sold daily are of that variety. If Chicago's daily supply was baked under one huge crust it would be 143 feet in diameter. Physicians who denounce pie as a source of dyspepsia may find consolation if they can in the statement that all the 3,360 doctors in Chicago could stand on its surface at the same time and still have room to spare. There is nothing too good for Chicagoans.

If the statements of Prof. Chope, of the Field Columbian museum in Chicago, are correct the kissing bug has been the most maligned bug in the entire entomological collection. The professor does not deny that the kissing bug may be here, but he does stoutly deny that he is kissing anyone, for he is never known to attack human beings. He is a native of the south and abounds in the cotton region, where his mission is to destroy the large worms which infest cotton plants, and this he does with such success that he is regarded as a public benefactor.
